1. Elizabeth, bapt. 2 Dec. 1662. She made over to her uncle, Dr. William Elmhirst, before her marriage, the ancient estates of Elmhirst and Genne House, whilst Houndhill went to her husband. At the time of Dugdale's Visitation, it is stated she was four years of age. She m. in 1683, John Copley, Esq. of Nether Hall, Doncaster, and left (with a dau., Anne, wife of George Healey, of Burringham, co. Lincoln) a son, Robert, who d. unm. in 1771, bequeathing Houndhill, and other estates, to Thomas Newby, who took the name of Copley.

2. Eleanor, bapt. 16 June, 1665.

III. William, b. in 1645, was of Clare Hall, Cambridge, and took the degree of M.B. in 1670. He lived at Houndhill, and built Genne House, where he latterly lived. He practised his profession, and d. at Newark, 23 Dec. 1715, aged 71. His will is dated in 1702, and probate signed in 1715. He left his nephew, William Elmhirst, son of his brother, Thomas, sole executor, and his cousins, Thomas Canby and Michael Boulton, trustees. To him his niece, before her marriage to Mr. Copley, made over the old family estates of Genne House and Elmhirst.

IV. Robert, bapt. 10 Aug. 1647.

V. THOMAS, of whose line we treat.

I. Ellinor, b. in 1634, m. to Hastings Rashy, of Upper Hall, Kirksmeaton.

II. Mary, m. 1st, to Samuel Bridge, of Boston, and 2ndly, to Samuel Saltonstall, of Rogerthorpe, co. York.

IV. Grace, b. 17 Feb. 1693, d. 11 March, 1693.

The eldest son,

WILLIAM ELMHIRST, b. 8 Oct. 1686, commenced life as a merchant at Liverpool, but afterwards resided at Elmhirst, and in 1723 took up his abode at Genne House, both in Worsbroughdale. He was sole executor of his uncle, Dr. Elmhirst, M.B., from whom he received the estates of Elmhirst and Genne House, and other lands. Tradition says he lost most of his paternal property on his return from the East Indies. He m. at Silkstone, 13 March, 1715, Martha,  dau.* and co-heiress of Robert Allot, of Lewdine, in Worsbroughdale, by his wife, Sarah Green, of Small Shaw, near Penistone; and by her (who was hurried at Worsbrough, 25 March, 1740) had issue,

I. WILLIAM, his heir.

Lineage.

The family of Elton is of Saxon origin, by some supposed to have been originally from Cheshire, and has been seated on the borders of the counties of Hereford and Gloucester, from a very early period. John Alton, or Elton, is included among the list of gentry in the county of Hereford, taken by the commissioners in 12 HENRY VI., anno 1433. The Eltons are also mentioned in the early visitations of the Heralds for Herefordshire. They possessed considerable estates, for several generations, in the parishes of Ledbury, Newent, Much-Marcle, Linton, Kempsey, Hope-Mansell, Hartpury, Munslow, and Tibberton, situated in both those counties, and intermarried, at various periods, with the families of Aston of Tixall, of whom Walter was created Lord Aston in 1627; Cocke of Eastnor; Abrahall; Scudamore of Kenchurch; Reginald, Lord Braye of Barrington; and other families of note. One member, Ambrose Elton, was sheriff of Herefordshire, 15 JAMES I., anno 1618; another, Ambrose Elton, jun., of Ledbury, in 1646.

WILLIAM ELTON, of The Hazell, in the parish of Ledbury, living in 1450, had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, who inherited The Hazell, a very considerable estate.
John, canon of Sarum, who d. in 1547.

The former,

WILLIAM ELTON, by his wife, Margery, dau. of William Leighton, of Plash, had issue, Antony, who m. Alice, dau. of John Scudamore, of Kenchurch, and had issue, Ambrose, who m. Ann, dau. of Sir Edward Aston, Knt. and Bart. of Tixall, and sister of Walter, Lord Aston, by whom he had issue, and in whose line, until it became extinct, was the representation of the family. A younger branch of the first, named William Elton, in the second or third descent, settled at Hom House, or Hom-end,* in the parish of Ledbury. This mansion, which stood near the entrance of the town, was the seat of this part of the family for several generations; it is now pulled down, and the Union-house built nearly on the site. The street to it is still called "Homme End." From the Eltons of Ledbury, Abraham Elton, Esq. of Bristol, created a Baronet in 1717, is stated in the Baronetage to be derived, but no pedigree embracing this point is given. Of this Elton, of Hom House, were derived, with other issue, two sons: one, whose line settled at NEWENT; the other, who d. near Hereford, possessed of a large property, including extensive mills.

RICHARD ELTON, of Newent, b. about 1630, by Anne, his wife, had (with a dau., Elizabeth) four sons, Richard, b. in 1661, d. young; SAMUEL, of whom presently; John, m. Ann Bernard; and, William, b. in 1676, of Hartpury Court, co. Gloucester. Mr. Elton d. in 1695. His second, but eldest surviving son,

SAMUEL ELTON, bought an estate called Twisling, in 1693, in the parish of Hope-Mansell, co. Hereford, on which he resided until his death.† Samuel Elton m. Mary Meek, and by her (who d. in March, 1746) had one son, JOHN, his heir; and three daus., Mary, m. to Thomas Abrahall, Esq. of Weston-Penyard, co. Hereford; Eliza-

* Some members of the family at one period resided at an estate called the Halden, in the parish of Much-Marcle, in which there is also a mansion called Hom House, now possessed by the Money family.

† There is a curious document still extant, viz., a special licence to Samuel Elton, whilst churchwarden, granted by the bishop of the diocese, conferring on him the indefeasible right to a certain part of the church, as a family pew, in spite of any future changes or alterations. Faculties of this sort of an early date are rare.

ERRINGTON OF WALWICK GRANGE, CHESTERS, AND HIGH WARDON.

ERRINGTON, JOHN, Esq. of High Wardon, co. Northumberland, m. 24 Nov. 1836, Anne, youngest dau. of Vincent Eyre, Esq. of Belgrave-square, London, and by her (who d. 22 Oct. 1842) has issue, WILLIAM-VALENTINE, b. 30 April, 1840.

Anne-Lucy.

Mr. Errington s. his elder brother, 5 March, 1835. He is a magistrate for co. Northumberland.

Lineage.

This family derives its name from Errington, a hamlet in the parish of St. John-Lee, and members of it were settled as freeholders in the contiguous parish of Wardon at an early period. In 1206, Lord Adam de Tindale, Baron of Langley, had it entered upon the great Roll, that Elias of Errenton gave him 30 marks and a carucate of land in Alrewas. The Erringtons of Cockly Tower and Errington also resided at Wharney, when they purchased that and other estates of Lord Burgh, in 1555.

WILLIAM ERYNGTON, of Wallekgrang, was witness to a deed between Robert Bellingham, of Bradford, and John Fenwick, of the Fawnys, respecting South Medylton, in the parish of Hartburn, 1 June, 20 HENRY VII., 1505. His son,

GERARD ERRINGTON, of Walwick Grange, had two sons,

ANTHONY, his heir.

Ninian, from whom descended the Erringtons of Wilts, of whom Gerard Errington, of Salterton, entered his pedigree at Camden's Visitation of Wiltshire, in 1623.

The elder son,

ANTHONY ERRINGTON, of Walleke Grange, one of the gentlemen of the Middle Marches in 1550, was, in 1552, with Robert Errington, the setter and searcher of the watch then appointed to be kept at the wall betwixt Carrow burgh and Teppermore. He d. 1 March, 2 ELIZABETH, 1560, leaving a son and heir,

THOMAS ERRINGTON, then 16 years of age, who, in 1572, was witness with his son, Thomas, to the will of George Errington, of Stancroft. His son and heir was

THOMAS ERRINGTON, living in 1572, when he was witness with his father. He had two sons,

- i. MARK ERRINGTON, of Walwick Grange, co-proprietor with the Earl of Northumberland, and for which Mr. Errington was assessed in £100, and for Upper Wardon £40. He lived to the great age of 103 years, and was buried at Wardon in 1696, having had by his wife, a dau. of Charlton, of Hesleyside, three sons,

1. Edward, of Walwick Grange, who acquired from John Errington the part of Wardon manor sold, in 1610, to Ferrars and Phillips; his name occurs in the list of jurors at the assizes of Northumberland, in 1628 and 1638. He m. Margaret, dau. of Edward Charlton, Esq. of Hesleyside, before Sept. 1632, but dying s. p., was s. by his next brother, William.

2. William, of Walwick Grange, s. his brother. He m. Mary, dau. of Ralph Bates, Esq. of Halliwell, and d. in 1713, (he was buried at Wardon, 31 May,) having had a son, William, who predeceased him in 1701, leaving, by Mary, his wife, dan. of Francis Howard, Esq. of Corby, an only surviving son,

Edward Errington, of Walwick Grange, in which he s. his grandfather. He m. in 1709, Elizabeth, dau. of William Haigh, of Kirkholme, co. Lancaster, and d. in 1714, (buried 24 June,) leaving by her (who m. 2ndly, Edward Charlton) an only son and heir, William Errington, who was buried 1 April, 1717.

3. Robert Errington, of Hexham, m. 1st, a dau. of Blenkinsop, of Blenkinsop, and 2ndly, Miss Charlton, but by the former only had issue,

Edward, of Walwick Grange, and of Kenton, s. his cousin Edward in the former, in 1714, and settled it on his cousins, Thomas, the son, and William, the grandson of his great-uncle, Frederick. In Sept. 1717, as a Roman Catholic, he registered the following estates:—Walwick Grange, Upper Wardon, lands in Newbrough, Carredge, and others. He d. s. p. in 1719, and was buried at Wardon.

Anne, m. Christopher Carrick. Their elder son, John Carrick, of Ayden, 23 years old in 1719, claimed Walwick, with his aunts Jane and Margaret, and their husbands, but after long litigation, the Court of Chancery, 12 Nov. 1726, confirmed that estate upon William, the devisee, in remainder after his uncle Thomas, son of Frederick.

Jane, m. to Thomas Loraine, of Ayden.

Margaret, m. to John Robson.

Frances, co-heir of her brother Edward, living in London, in 1719, aged 30.

- ii. FREDERICK (or FRANCIS), of whose line we treat.

The latter,

FREDERICK (otherwise FRANCIS) ERRINGTON, by Isabel, his wife, had (besides a dau., m. to Barker) two sons, Thomas, upon whom, and his nephew, William, his cousin Edward settled his estates, in 1714. This Thomas is sometimes described as of Capheaton. He d. s. p., and was buried at Chollerton, 11 Feb. 1730.

Francis, who was dead in 1714, having had by his wife, a dau. of Richard Carr, Esq. of Hexham, four sons, WILLIAM, who s. to the family estates.

Edward,
John, and } all d. young.
Charles, }

The grandson,

WILLIAM ERRINGTON, Esq. of Walwick Grange, s. to the family estates of his grandfather, and of his kinsman, Edward Errington, as before mentioned. He was high-sheriff of Northumberland in 1738, and d. while in that office, (he was buried 9 March, 1738-9,) having had, by Isabella, his wife, dau. of John Bacon, Esq. of Staward, (whom he m. 7 Oct. 1731; and who m. 2ndly, 2 Sept. 1740, the Rev. Richard Werge, vicar of Hartburn,) two sons, Thomas, the elder, b. in 1732, d. the following year; and JOHN, his heir. The latter,

JOHN ERRINGTON, Esq. of Chesters, built the mansion there. He m. 26 June, 1764, Mary, dau. of the Rev. Charles Stoddart, vicar of Chollerton, and d. in 1783, (buried 18 May,) having had by her (who survived him, and was buried at Wardon, 20 Jan. 1802) five sons and three daus., viz.,

WILLIAM, of whom hereafter.

Charles, bapt. 13 July, 1770, a merchant in Newcastle, m.

Isabella, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Bates, D.D., rector of Whalton, and d. at Lyons, in Aug. 1836, having had by her (who d. at Geneva, in 1828) an only child, Elizabeth. John, bapt. in Feb. 1772, settled at Chester, m. and had issue, one son, John, and two daus., Mary and Eleanor.

Ralph, bapt. 11 Dec. 1776, sometime in the Northumberland militia, also capt. in the 20th and 98th regiments. He afterwards entered into holy orders, and became curate of Ugham and of Widdington. He m. Diana, dau. and co-heir of Cuthbert Watson, Esq. of Cowpen, and had issue five sons and eight daus., of whom Cuthbert William, d. unm. in July, 1835; and Mary, m. 14 Oct. 1835, William Hogarth, Esq. of Clifton, co. Westmorland.

Anne, m. 17 June, 1784, the Rev. Oswald Head, vicar of Chollerton, who d. in 1820. She had issue.
 Mary, d. unm. 9 July, 1829. Isabella.

The eldest son and heir,

WILLIAM ERRINGTON, Esq. of High Wardon and Camden-place, Bath, barrister-at-law, b. 16 June, 1765, was in 1796, of Headlam Hall, co. Durham. He m. Eleaour, dau. of Hugh O'Connor, of London, and d. in 1826, leaving issue,

FREDERICK, his heir.

JOHN, successor to his brother, and present representative.

Mary, d. unm. in 1823.

Monica, m. in Sept. 1838, to Valentine O'Connor, Esq. of Dublin.

The elder son and heir,

FREDERICK ERRINGTON, Esq. of High Wardon, b. in 1805, d. 5 March, 1835, and was s. by his brother, the present JOHN ERRINGTON, Esq. of High Wardon.

Andrew, sometime a partner of the house of Forbes and Co., Bomhay.

Jane-Stewart.

Margaret, m. to Major J. Farquharson, of Corrachrec, H. E. I. Co.'s service.

Mr. Farquharson is in the commission of the peace for Aberdeenshire.

Lineage.

The families of this surname were, from the earliest accounts, located in Strathdee, in the parishes of Crathie and Kindrochit, or Braemar, co. Aberdeen, and were at one time very numerous. The first person of eminence of the name was FINDLAY MHOR, so called, from his great stature. He was head of the clan commonly known in the Highlands by the name of Clan Ionlay, or Farquharson of Braemar. Findlay Mhor was killed at the battle of Pinkie, in 1547, in the reign of Queen MARY, carrying the Royal standard of Scotland, and was buried in the churchyard of Inveresk, at a short distance from the field of battle. No monument was erected to his memory, but the place was long known in that parish by the name of the "Long Highlandman's Grave." Findlay Mhor m. 1st, a dau. of the Baron Reid of Kincardine Stewart, and had issue four sons, William, James, Alexander, and John, the descendants of whom generally settled on the borders of the counties of Perth and Angus, south of Braemar; some of them in the district of Athol, who took the name of McErachar, Gaelic for McFarquhar, the surname of Findlay's father, afterwards Farquharson, but are all now extinct. Findlay Mhor m. 2ndly, Beatrix Gardyne, dau. of Gardyne of that ilk, or Bauchory, (now Garden,) and had five sons, viz., DONALD, Robert, Lachlan, Findlay, and George, and five daus. The eldest son,

DONALD FARQUHARSON, of the Castleton, of Braemar, and Monaltrie, m. 1st, Jean Ogilvie, dau. of Newton, and had issue seven sons, viz., DONALD, Robert, Alexander, James, John, George, and Thomas, and one dau., Ann, m. to McPherson of Nuid, afterwards Cluny. This Donald, of the Castleton and Monaltrie, was Chamberlain and Bailie to George, Earl of Huntly, in Strathdee, then administrator of the earldom of Mar, under Queen MARY. His eldest son,

DONALD FARQUHARSON, m. Beatrix, dau. of Gordon of Knockespeck, and had issue five sons, DONALD OIG, or young Donald, JAMES, Robert, Alexander, and David. The eldest son, DONALD OIG, of Monaltrie, &c., in Strathdee, m. Margaret Gordon, dau. of Abergeldy, and had two sons, Donald who d. unm. in France; and Charles, who left daus. only. By a contract extant, dated 27 Aug. 1632, betwixt John, Earl of Mar, and John, Lord Erskine, his son, on the one part, and on the other, the said Donald Farquharson, the earl became bound to grant a feu charter to him and his heirs male of the lands of Monaltrie, &c., in Strathdee, also the lands of Auchindryne, in the parish of Kindrochit, or Braemar, for a yearly payment in money for all time coming, and certain services when required; and of the same date, the said earl and his son granted a feu charter containing a precept of sasine for infefting him therein, upon which he was infeft personally upon the 11th day of October thereafter, Robert Farquharson, of Cloack, or Invercauld, his cousin-german, acting as bailie for the Earl of Mar; the witnesses being Robert Farquharson, of Finzean; James Farquharson, of Inverey; and Donald Farquharson, son of Alexander Farquharson, of Allanaquoich: the two first, his uncles; and the last, his cousin-german.

Donald Oig was colonel of the Braemar and Strathdee-Men, under the illustrious Marquess of Montrose, in the time of CHARLES I., and was greatly distinguished for his gallant bearing, and at the same time for his mild and conciliatory manners and address, having risen high in favour with his sovereign, and being held in much esteem by his great commander. A striking eulogy of his character is giving by a contemporary writer, Patrick Gordon, of Ruthven, as appears in a chronicle of the period from 1639 to 1649, entitled "Britane's Distemper," published in an abridged form by the Spalding Club of Aberdeen in 1844. Col. Farquharson fell in a sudden affray with the Covenanters' horse, led by Sir John Hurry, at Aberdeen, 15 March, 1645, and was buried in the Laird of Drum's Aisle, forming a part of the principal ecclesiastical edifice in that city; Montrose, then encamped with his forces at Kintore, having sent Lord Lewis Gordon, third son of the Marquess of Huntly, with a thousand horse and foot, to see interred "the pride of Braemar." The aid afforded by Col. Farquharson in maintaining the Royal cause bore severely on his resources, and neither the sacrifices which he made in equipping his followers, nor his personal exertions ever having been recompensed by CHARLES II., on his Restoration, his son Charles ultimately found it necessary to dispose of his paternal property, the lands of Monaltrie, in 1702, to Alexander Farquharson, youngest brother of John Farquharson, of Invercauld.

JAMES FARQUHARSON, the immediate younger brother of Col. Donald Farquharson, of Monaltrie, was a writer to the signet at Edinburgh, and purchased the lands of Whitehouse, in Cromar, co. Aberdeen. He m. 1st, a dau. of Mr. Hay, a lawyer, at Edinburgh, and had two sons, James and David, whose descendants are all now extinct. He m. 2ndly, Ann, dau. of Colonel Gardyne, of the Russian service, and by her acquired the lands of Ballaterauch, and had a son, HARRY, who s. him. Mr. James Farquharson d. in 1666, and was buried in the family burial-place in the church of Tullich, in Mar, where many of his descendants lie, and where a marble tablet has been placed to their memory. His son and successor,

HARRY FARQUHARSON, of Whitehouse, m. 1st, in 1681, Barbara, youngest dau. of Francis Ross, of Auchlossen, and had issue three sons, I. FRANCIS, his heir; II. Charles, who m. a dau. of Grant of Garthmore, and had two daus.; III. John, a surgeon in London, m. and had a dau.; and three daus., whereof the eldest m. John Forbes, of Deskrie; the second, Euphemia, William Stewart, of Auchoilzie; and the third, Barbara, Douglas of Blackmill. Mr. Farquharson m. 2ndly, Mrs. Elizabeth Harper, and had by her two sons, HARRY, and James, the latter of whom d. unm., and three daus.* The eldest son,

FRANCIS FARQUHARSON, of Whitehouse, m. Euphemia, dau. of Robert Ross, of Auchlossen, his cousin-german, and had two sons, HARRY, and Francis, who d. unm., and several daus. He purchased the land of Shiels, in the parish of Cluny, co. Aberdeen. His eldest son,

HARRY FARQUHARSON, of Shiels, m. 1st, Jane, dau. of Rose of Tillysnaught, and had three sons, Harry, Charles, and Alexander; the two first d. in Jamaica, unm.; the youngest, Alexander, m. a dau. of Irvine of Cults, but d. without issue. There were also several daus.; the eldest m. John Henderson, Esq. of Caskiehn, co. Aberdeen, and had an only son, Alexander-Farquharson Henderson, M.D., now of Caskiehn; the other three m. gentlemen of the names of Edgar, Ord, and Gordon, in Jamaica; the two first had issue, the last none. On the death of Alexander, great-grandson of Harry Farquharson, of Whitehouse, the heirs male of his first family became extinct, when

HARRY FARQUHARSON, his eldest son by Mrs. Harper, his second wife, became his heir. He was a captain in the regiment of infantry commanded by Colonel Francis Farquharson, of Monaltrie, forming a part of the army of Prince Charles-Edward, and fell at the battle of Culloden, in April, 1746. He m. in 1720, Barbara, dau. of John Gordon, of Hallhead, co. Aberdeen, by Mary, his wife, dau. of Francis Ross, of Auchlossen, whose brother, Captain Ross, was killed at the battle of Malplaquet, being then aid-de-camp to John, Duke of Argyle. Mary Ross was dau. of Francis Ross, of Auchlossen, and Barbara, dau. of Robert Farquharson, of Invercauld. Barbara Gordon was also aunt to Sir William Gordon, K.B., envoy-extraordinary from the court of St. James's to the court of Brussels, in the Low Countries, then subject to Austria. By her Capt. Farquharson had issue,

- I. HARRY, d. s. p.
- II. WILLIAM, of whom we treat.
- III. James, d. s. p.
- IV. Robert, a physician in Jamaica, who d. there, leaving a dau.
- I. Margaret, who d. unm.
- II. Grace, m. to the Rev. George Campbell, D.D., F.R.S., Edin., Principal and Professor of Divinity in the University of Marischal College, and one of the ministers of Aberdeen, a man eminent for piety and literary acquirements.

The second son,

WILLIAM FARQUHARSON, M.D., was a physician in Dundee, and family physician to John Lyon Bowes, Earl of Strathmore, whom he attended in his last illness on a voyage to Lishon, during which his lordship d. at sea. William m. in 1756, Margaret, eldest dau. of Patrick Souper, of Auchlunies, co. Kincardine, son of William Souper, merchant in Aberdeen, and Jane Byres, sister of James Byres, who took an active concern in the company established in Scotland, about the Revolution, for colonizing the Isthmus of Darien, in South America, the failure of which undertaking, through the influence of the Dutch East India Company with King WILLIAM III., brought numerous families in Scotland to ruin, made the existing government very unpopular, and was a great means of fomenting the rebellion in 1715. By Margaret, his wife, Dr. Farquharson had issue (with a dau., Ann, who d. unm.) two sons, HARRY, who d. unm.; and PATRICK, now

* One of these ladies, Elizabeth, who went to Jamaica, and died unmarried, bequeathed £600 in trust to the family of Invercauld; one-half of the yearly interest thereof to be applied toward the support of the poor of the united parishes of Tullich, Glenmuick, and Glengairn, and the other half of the interest towards supporting a charity schoolmaster for the education of the poorer classes of children in these united parishes: this bequest has been in operation for many years, and has been attended with very beneficial effects.

FINCH OF TULLAMORE PARK.

FINCH, WILLIAM, Esq. of Tullamore Park, co. Tipperary, m. Frances, dau. of Philip Coales, Esq. of Bath, and has had issue, Frances-Elizabeth, d. young.

Mr. Finch s. his father in August, 1834.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the ancient and eventually ennobled family of Finch,* of Netherfield, in Sussex, derived from

JOHN FINCH, next brother of William Finch, of Netherfield, progenitor of the Earls of Winchelsea. John m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Sewer, of Linstead, in Kent, and dying 19 May, 1442, left a son,

WILLIAM FINCH, of Linstead, ancestor of the Finches of Kent and Herts. Of the latter was

WILLIAM FINCH, of Watford, co. Herts, m. Alice, of Frankley, and by her (who survived him, and had administration of his affairs granted to her, 10 July, 1544, and whose will is dated 14 Aug. 1556, and proved 9 Sept. following) had issue, (besides three daus., the eldest m. to Grey; Ellen; and the youngest, m. to Pople,)

WILLIAM, his heir, of Watford, (whose will is dated 23 April, 1576.) He had issue, by Alice, his wife, two sons and four daus., viz., William, bapt. in 1544, d. s. p.; John, d. s. p.; Alice, m. to Ewer; Sibella, m. to Richard Cuppage, Esq.; Mary, d. s. p.; and Elizabeth, d. s. p.

John (Sir), B.A., in holy orders.

JOHN, of whose line we treat.

The younger son,

JOHN FINCH, Esq., jun., of Watford, d. in 1572-3, (his will is dated 1 Jan., and proved 4 March following,) having had by Isabella, his wife,

I. JOHN, his heir, of Watford, d. s. p.

II. William, of Watford, s. his brother, m. 1st, 10 Nov. 1577, Isabella Malves, and 2ndly, Rose, dau. of — Edlin, Esq., d. in 1613, (will dated 17 July, and proved 4 Sept.) having had issue only by the latter, (whose will is dated in 1630,)

* It is the opinion of Sir William Dugdale, that this family is descended from a common ancestor with the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke; namely, Henry Fitz-Herbert, chamberlain to King HENRY I.; and Leland says, "The Finches that be now say, that their proper name is Herbert, and that, with marriage of the Finche's heir, they took Finche's name. One Vincent Finch, in HENRY IV.'s days, recovered by a suit the manor of —, by Winchelsea." And in an old inscription in Brabrone Church, the name is written Herbert, alias Finch.

1. William, of Watford, who m. and had (besides daus., Bethia, m. to Francis Brett, Esq.; Lydia, Sarah, and Elizabeth, all d. s. p.) an only son and heir, Jonathan, bapt. 2 June, 1610, who, by Lucy, his wife, had a son and a dau., viz., John, of Watford, bapt. 10 Sept. 1637; and Sarah.
2. Edward, of Watford, m. and had issue, William and Bethia.
3. Ralph, of Watford, m. and had a son, William, and a dau., Rose.
4. John, of Watford, m. and had a son, John, bapt. 24 May, 1603, and two daus., Anne, and Mary, m. to the Very Rev. Henry Dodwell, D.D., dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin.

Chester, by Christian, his wife, second dau. of Richard Grosvenor, of Eaton, ancestor of the Marquesses of Westminster, and 2ndly, Lady Hester Lambert, dau. of Oliver, Earl of Cavan, and relict of Sir Edward Herbert, Bart. of Darrow, but d. s. p. His will bears date 8 Jan. 1684, and was proved in 1686.

Ralph, of Watford, bapt. 20 May, 1620.
Elizabeth. Sarah. Rose.

The eldest son,

WILLIAM FINCH, Esq. of Watford, bapt. 23 July, 1612, m. twice, but had issue only by his first wife, Jane, viz.,

Ralph, of Chester, bapt. 2 Oct. 1632, who became, by the will of his uncle, Col. Simon Finch, sole heir to all that gentleman's lands in Northamptonshire and in Ireland. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Col. William Danyel, of Chester, and d. in 1685, (his will, dated 19 Feb. 1684, was proved 10 Sept. 1685,) having had issue an only child, MARY, who m. John Earle, Esq. of Liverpool, and had (with a dau., Sarah, wife of the Hon and Rev. John Stanley, rector of Winwick, brother of the 11th Earl of Derby) four sons, of whom the eldest surviving, RALPH EARLE, Esq., assumed the surname and arms of WILLIS, on succeeding, in 1788, to Halsnead, and the other estates in Lancashire, of Daniel Willis, Esq. He m. Dorothy, dau. and heir of Richard Aldersey, Esq., and was, by her, grandfather of the present RICHARD WILLIS, Esq. of Halsnead, (see vol. ii.)

EDWARD, of whom we treat.

William. Walter.

Simon, mentioned in the will of his uncle, Colonel Simon Finch.

In the early adaptation of the cognomen or surname, that of this family ranges among the most ancient.

OSBERNUS PISCATOR, as the surname was first assumed, held lands in capite, at the period of the Domesday survey in Sernchroë, and Carlestone, Bedfordshire, where his ancestor had held lands in the time of EDWARD the Confessor. In the course of the two succeeding centuries, among the branches of this parent stock, which had dispersed into other counties, one was established in Staffordshire, where Alanus Piseator was located at Alderways, before the reign of King JOHN, and his descendant in the sixth generation, temp. EDWARD I., was Nicholus Piseator, alias Fisher, of Alderways, from whom were lineally descended Sir John Fisher, a judge of the Court of Common Pleas, who d. 2 HENRY VIII., seised, among other manors and estates, of the manor and advowson of Clifton, in Bedfordshire; and Thomas Fisher, who claimed Alderways, 17 HENRY VIII., two of whose descendants were created baronets: Sir Robert Fisher, of Paekington, in Warwickshire, in 1622, and Sir Thomas Fisher, of St. Giles's, in Middlesex, in 1627; but their issue male having ultimately failed, both titles became extinct. By the time of EDWARD III., the family had branched into the more northern counties, where William Fisher, in 1334, is described of Beverley, in Yorkshire, (from his branch, it is supposed, was descended the pious prelate, John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester and Cardinal of Rome, who was the son of Robert Fisher, of Beverley, and who, for maintaining his religious principles, was beheaded on 22 June, 1535,) and John Fisher, in 1261, was presented to the vicarage of Urswick, in Furness, in Lancashire, then in the patronage of the abbey and convent of Furness. During the next century, the family was established in the neighbourhood of Cockermouth, in Cumberland, where John Fisher, about the time of EDWARD IV., was seised in fee of Borrowdale Grange, within the lordship of Borrowdale, (which formed part of the possessions of Furness Abbey,) which estate descended, 10 ELIZABETH, to John Fisher, grandson of Edward, son of John Fisher. About this period, temp. ELIZABETH, the possessions formerly of the Earls of Northumberland, in Brackenthwaite, in the same neighbourhood, which had been granted by HENRY VIII. to Lord Grey of Wilton, were conveyed to the Fisher family; and it appears that, in the same reign, they held lands in fee, by military service and otherwise, in Cockermouth, and the adjoining parishes of Embleton, Lorton, Bassenthwaite, and Crossthwaite, in the same county. Robert Fisher, who succeeded his father, John Fisher, 9 CHARLES I., compounded, by the payment of a considerable sum of money, on the sequestration, by the parliament, of his estates in Brackenthwaite and Lorton.

JOSEPH FISHER, son of Joseph Fisher, of Cockermouth, m. 13 May, 1733, Elizabeth, dau. of Josiah Shaw, of Kendal, co. Westmorland, (of consanguinity to the celebrated traveller, Thomas Shaw, D.D., Regius professor of Greek, Principal of Edmund Hall, Oxford, and vicar of Bramley, in Hampshire, where he d. in 1751,) and had, besides other issue, a younger son,

ROBERT FISHER, Esq. of the Inner Temple, and of Mitcham, co. Surrey, a deputy-lieutenant, and in the commission of the peace, who succeeded his elder brother, Josiah Fisher, Esq., in 1806. He m. 1st, 4 March, 1769, Jane, dau. of Jabez Daniel, an eminent goldsmith of London, by whom (who d. 9 March, 1785) he had (besides other children who d. young, and a dau., Frances, m. to Thomas Higgins, Esq.) three sons, FITZMAURICE OF DUAGH.

FITZMAURICE, OLIVER, of Duagh House, co. Kerry, b. 8 Feb. 1818. Mr. Fitzmaurice, s. his father in 1843, and is the only lineal descendant of the Lords of Kerry, still residing on and possessing a portion of their ancient domains.

Lineage.

This ancient family traces its origin to a common ancestor in the direct line with the houses of Fitzgerald, Windsor, Carew, McKenzie, &c., namely, Walter Fitz-Otho, Castellan of Windsor in the eleventh century, whose eldest son,

GERALD FITZ-WALTER, obtained a grant from HEN. I., of Moleford, co. Berks. This Gerald m. Nesta, dau. of Rees Gruffydh, Prince of South Wales, and had issue, MAURICE-FITZGERALD, ancestor of the house of Leinster. WILLIAM, of whom presently.

David, consecrated, in 1147, Bishop of St. David's, and d. in 1176.

The second son,

WILLIAM, called by Geraldus Cambrensis the eldest son, but the pedigree of the family of Leinster setting forth the contrary, and his being possessed of the castle of Karmu, co. Carmarthen, in South Wales, his mother's inheritance, and assuming that surname, bespeak him a younger son, which is confirmed by the unerring testimony of the addition of a chief, ermine, to his coat-armour, (a certain sign of cadency, to distinguish him and his posterity from the elder branch of the family.) This William was sent, in 1171, by Earl Strongbow, into Ireland, with his son, Reymond, where, for a time, he assisted in the reduction of that kingdom; but returning to his native country, died in the year 1173, leaving issue, by Catharine, dau. of Sir Adam de Kingsley, of Cheshire, seven sons and a dau. The eldest son,

REYMOND, surnamed from his corpulency, Le Grosse, having, as stated above, accompanied his father into Ireland, was a principal in the reduction of that kingdom. He m. Baselia, sister of Earl Strongbow, and had, as a marriage portion with her, a large territorial grant and the constablership of Leinster. After this we find him aiding MACCARTHY, King of Cork, against his rebellious son, Cormac O'Lehanagh, and acquiring for his services a large tract of land in the co. of Kerry, where he settled his eldest son,

MAURICE FITZ-REYMOND, who m. for his first wife, Johanna, dau. of Miles Fitz-Henry, founder of Conall Abbey, co. Kildare, and chief governor of Ireland, by whom he had a son,

THOMAS, who assumed the surname of Fitzmaurice, and became Lord of Kerry of Lixnaw. This Thomas founded the Grey Franciscan friary of Ardfer, in 1253. He m. Grace, dau. of MacMurrough Cavenagh, son of DERMOID, King of Leinster, and dying in 1280, was s. by his eldest son,

MAURICE, 2nd Lord of Kerry, who sat in the parliament held at Dublin in 1295, and attended a writ of summons of EDWARD I. in 1297, with horse and arms, in an expedition against Scotland. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Sir John McCleod, of Galway, and dying in 1303, was s. by his son,

NICHOLAS, 3rd Lord of Kerry, whose son,

MAURICE, 4th Lord of Kerry, having a dispute with Dermoid Oge MacCarthy, killed that chief on the bench before the judge of assize, at Tralee, in 1325, for which he was tried and attainted by the parliament of Dublin, but was not put to death. His lands were, however, forfeited, but restored, after his decease, to his brother and successor,

JOHN FITZMAURICE, 5th Lord of Kerry, who d. at Lixnaw, in 1348, and was buried with his brother. He m. 1st, Honora, dau. of O'Brien, of Thomond, and had by her a dau., Margaret, m. to Dermot MacCarthy, Lord of Carbery, and a son,

MAURICE, 6th Lord of Kerry, ancestor of the noble house of Kerry, now represented by the MARQUESS OF LANSDOWNE. The 5th Lord of Kerry m. 2ndly, Elinor, dau. of Garret FitzPierce, Esq. of Ballymac-Equim, and had by her,

GARRET, of whose descendants we have to treat. Robert, ancestor of the Fitzmaurices of Cloncalla. Elinor, m. to the White Knight.

The elder son of the second marriage,

GARRET FITZMAURICE, founded the family of Fitzmaurice of Cosfeale, or Duaghnafealla, in the county of Kerry, which has preserved a male succession to the present time, being now represented by OLIVER FITZMAURICE, Esq., the lineal descendant of Garret, and the proprietor of Duagh House, and a considerable portion of the once broad domains of his ancestors. His grandfather,

ULYSSES FITZMAURICE, Esq. of Duaghnafealla, co. Kerry, (son and heir of John Fitzmaurice, Esq. of the same place, by Margaret, his wife, a dau. of Stack, of Ballycourcey,) m. in 1778, Agnes, dau. of Maurice Studdert, Esq. of Elm Hill, co. Limerick, (see vol. ii. p. 1326,) and left a son and successor,

MAURICE FITZMAURICE, Esq. of Duaghnafealla, who m. in 1812, Margaret, dau. of Oliver Stokes, Esq. of co. Kerry, and d. in 1843, having had (besides the present OLIVER FITZMAURICE, Esq. of Duagh House),

Maurice.	George.	Henry.	Robert.
John.	Edward.	Ulysses.	Julian.

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to James Erdington, Esq. of Gargunock, co. Stirling, and 2ndly, to the Rev. Rowland Bateman. Agnes, m. to William Hutton, Esq. of Stirling. Honoria.

Lineage.

Few families can claim so ancient and unbroken a line of ancestry as the Fullertons of Ayrshire. Their pedigree is authentically traced through six centuries, and, during the whole of that long period, no link is wanting in the chain of descent; and, what is more remarkable, no failure has occurred in the male succession.

That part of the barony of Fullarton whence the family designation is derived, as also, doubtless, their surname, is situated in the immediate vicinity of the town of Irvine, and in the bailliwick of Kyle Stewart, which is here separated from the district of Cuninghame. Traditionally, it is said, the family is derived from an Anglo-Saxon or Norman origin. This seems, at least, not improbable. On the return to Scotland, or first introduction, as some will have it, of Walter, son of Alan, ancestor of the High Stewards, from England, about the beginning of the twelfth century, he was accompanied by many of his friends and adherents. Soon after his arrival, Walter obtained a royal grant of the countries of Kyle and Strathgrife, (now Renfrewshire,) and here, as Chalmers and others affirm, many of his followers obtained from him grants of land, and became resident in the country; and from them have been derived most of the principal families now inhabiting those parts. In accordance then, with tradition, it seems far from improbable that at the period here alluded to, the ancestor of the Fullertons may have so accompanied the progenitor of the High Stewards, and obtained a possession in Kyle.

Fullarton, or as in all ancient deeds always written, "Foullertoun," is obviously of Saxon etymology, and has most likely been derived from office or occupation. In corroboration of which, a Galfredus Foullertoun, who, there is reason to suppose, was descended of this family, obtained from ROBERT I. a charter of some lands in Angus, together with the hereditary office of fowler to the king, in that county, in which office he and his successors were obliged to serve the king's household with wild fowl, when he came to Forfar Castle, where this fowler was to be entertained with a servant and two horses, (see NISBET, who states the original charter to be in the Earl of Haddington's collection.)

ALLAN FULLARTON, living in 1240, d. about 1280, as may be clearly inferred from his son's charter of the lands of Fullarton. He was father of

ADAM FULLARTON, who received a charter from James, High Steward of Scotland, "Ade de Fowlertoun militi filio quondam Alani de Fowlertoun, de terra de Fowlertoun in Kyle Senescali infra vic. de Are; et de terra de Gaylis; et de piscaria de Irwyne," which charter was renewed by ROBERT II., in 1371. His son,

REGINALD FULLARTON, of that ilk, living in 1310, was father of

SIR ADAM FULLARTON, of Fullarton, who had a charter by Robert, High Steward of Scotland, dated 13 April, 1344, of the lands of Fowlertoun and Gaylis, in Kyle Stewart, &c. Sir Adam was much in the interest of ROBERT II., and the family of Stewart, and in reward of his long and faithful services, he obtained various grants of land in his own neighbourhood. In 1346, he accompanied the army under DAVID II. into England, and was one of those created knights by that monarch before the army crossed the border; he was taken prisoner with King DAVID, at the battle of Durham, 17 Oct., and on the king's release, Sir Adam's eldest son and heir was one of the twenty hostages left in England, until the payment of the king's ransom. By Marjorie, his wife, a lady of the Stewart family, to whom, as "Marjorie Foullertoun delecta consanguineæ nostræ," ROBERT II., whilst High Steward, granted an annual rent out of the lands of Troon, by a charter, which was confirmed on ROBERT's accession to the throne, 7 Dec. 1371. By her Sir Adam had two sons,

JOHN, who was one of the hostages left in England for the king's ransom. He d. v. p., leaving a son, REGINALD, successor to his grandfather. David, who obtained a charter from Hugh Eglintoun, of that ilk, of the lands of Laitlis.

Sir Adam d. about 1399, and was s. by his grandson,

REGINALD FULLARTON, of that ilk, who, by Elizabeth, his wife, was father of

RANKIN FULLARTON, of that ilk, living in 1412, who m. twice; by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, he had a son and heir, GEORGE, of whom presently. He m. 2ndly, Marion, dau. of Wallace of Craigie, and by her had two sons, William and Adam: the former got the lands of Dreghorne. He was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE FULLARTON, of Fullarton, also designed Lord of Corsbie, who had a charter, under the great seal, by JAMES III., in favour of himself, or in failure of male heirs, to William, his brother, of the lands of Fullarton, Marras, Shewalton, Harperland, and West Laitlis, also Corsbie, Trume, Craiksland, and Russelsland, all lying within the bailliarie of Kyle, &c., dated 24 Oct. 1466. He had two sons,

Paul, who was contracted in marriage with Janet, dau. of Adam Wallace, of Craigie, but it would seem be predeceased his father.

JOHN.

Mr. Fullarton d. in the latter end of the year 1494. His younger son,

JOHN FULLARTON, of that ilk, was returned heir to his father, 10 Nov. 1494. He m. a dau. of Cuninghame of Capringtoun, and d. in 1498-9, leaving a son and successor,

JOHN FULLARTON, of that ilk, so designed, and "Lord of Corsbie," in a charter granted by him, of the lands of Wester Laitlis, to Gavin Fullarton, and Eliza Dalrymple, his wife, 14 Aug. 1514. He m. Katherine, dau. of John Maxwell, of Nether Pollock, and d. in 1528, leaving a son,

JOHN FULLARTON, of that ilk, then eleven years old, who m. about 1543, Katherine, dau. of David Blair, of Adamstoun, as appears by a life-rent sasine, dated 5 April, in that year. In Dec. 1545, Mr. Fullarton alienated the lands of Shewalton to Edward Wallace, and, 2 May, 1548, he had a charter from MARY Queen of Scots, in favour of himself, in life-rent, and David, his son, in fee, of the lands of Fullarton, Marras, and Gaylis, and the lands of Corsbie, Craiksland, Sandhill, &c. With the consent of his eldest son, David, he alienated, in 1566, to John Wallace, of Dundonald, and Edward Wallace, of Shewalton, the lands of Marras, &c. He was s. by his son,

DAVID FULLARTON, of that ilk, who m. 1st, Christian, dau. of James Hamilton, of Bothwellhaugh, by whom he had three sons, JAMES, his successor; David; and Robert, from whom were descended, it is supposed, the Fullartons of Bartonholm. He m. 2ndly, Jean, sister to Alexander Lockhart, of Boghall, and relict of George Hamilton, of Bogwood. He was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES FULLARTON, of that ilk, who was returned heir to his father, by a precept granted by Henry, Prince of Great Britain and Steward of Scotland, dated 2 May, 1605. He m. Agnes, dau. of John Fullarton, of Dreghorn, by Jean, his wife, dau. of John Mure, of Rowallan, and had (with a dau., Helen, m. to James Blair, of Lady Kirk, co. Ayr) three sons, JAMES FULLARTON, of that ilk, ancestor of the Fullartons of Fullarton, co. Ayr.

John, who served for some years with the army in Germany and, in 1639, went to France as lieutenant-colonel to the Hon. Alexander Erskine, brother to the Earl of Mar. In 1640, Louis XIII., King of France, advanced him to the rank of colonel in the French service. Colonel Fullerton acquired the estate of Dudwick, co. Aberdeen. He m. and left issue; his descendant, Gen. John Fullerton, of Dudwick, a brave and gallant officer, greatly distinguished himself in the Prussian and Russian service, in the latter of which he attained the rank of general. He d. s. p., and the estate of Dudwick passed into the family of Udny of Udny, supposed to have been related to or connected with him.

WILLIAM, of whose line we treat.

The third son,

WILLIAM FULLERTON, minister of St. Quivox, acquired the lands of Craighall, co. Ayr, from John Fullerton, of Dreghorn, his cousin. He m. Frances, dau. of Stewart of Reece, co. Renfrew, a cadet of the Stewarts of Lennox, and had, besides an eldest son, ROBERT, several other sons and daus; one of the latter m. Cleland of that ilk. His eldest son,

Lineage.

In the parish of Axminster, co. Devon, is North Wyke, once the residence and inheritance of the ancient and knightly family of Dunc, de Doune, Downe, le Downe or Downynge, the original stock, from which sprang the branch we are about to detail. In Domesday Book occurs RALPH DE DOUNE, a King's thane, and he is described as holding two manors in Devon. From him derived, sixth in descent,

RALPH DE DOUNE, who was father of two sons, HUGO, whose line terminated in co-heirs; and RICHARD, living A.D. 1410, from whom came

GEOFFREY DOWNYNG, Gent. of Poles Belcham, in Essex, b. in the reign of HENRY VII., and described in the Heralds' Visitation as descended from an ancient family in Devon. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Thomas Wingfield,* Esq., a scion of the illustrious house of Wingfield of Letheringham, (see page 1613.) by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Sir Thomas Wodehouse, K.B., and had a son,

ARTHUR DOWNYNG, Esq., Lord of Lexham, in Norfolk, who m. Susan, dau. (and co-heir with her sister, Anne, wife of John Wingfield, Esq. of Upton) of Thomas Calybut, Esq. of Castle Acre, in Norfolk, of ancient lineage in that shire, and had a son, CALYBUT DOWNYNG, Esq. of Shennington, in Gloucestershire, Lord of the manors of Sugarsnell and Tysoe, co. Warwick, b. in 1560, who m. in 1604, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Robert Wingfield, of Upton, in Northamptonshire, by Elizabeth, his wife, sister of William Cecil, Lord Burghley, treasurer to Queen ELIZABETH, and dying in 1644, left a son.

THE REV. CALYBUT DOWNYNG, who became a commoner in Oriel College, Oxford, in 1625, and subsequently entering into holy orders, was made rector of Hickford, in Buckinghamshire, and of West Ildesley, in Berkshire; which latter he afterwards exchanged for the living of Hackney, in Middlesex, on the presentation, in 1636, of Archbishop Laud. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Robert Brett, D.D., and dying in 1644, left, with daus., two sons,

1. GEORGE (Sir), of East Hatley and Gamlingay Park, co. Cambridge, ambassador from CROMWELL to the States-General, ambassador-extraordinary from King CHARLES II. to Holland, secretary to the Treasury, &c., and created a Baronet in 1663. He m. Frances, dau. of Sir William Howard, Knt. of Naworth Castle, and sister of the 1st Earl of Carlisle, and dying in 1684, left issue,

1. GEORGE (Sir), 2nd Bart. of Gamlingay Park, a teller of the Exchequer, temp. JAMES II., m. Lady Catherine Cecil, dau. of James, Earl of Salisbury, by Margaret, his wife, dau. of John, Earl of Rutland, and dying in 1711, left an only son,

THE RT. HON. SIR GEORGE DOWNYNG, Bart., K.B., and M.P. for Dunwich, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Forester, Knt., but d. s. p. in 1749. This gentleman founded Downing College, Cambridge.

2. Charles, comptroller of the Customs, m. Sarah, dau. and heir of Jacob Garrard, Esq., and dying in 1740, left a son,

SIR JACOB-GARRARD DOWNYNG, Bart., who s. to the title at the decease of his cousin, Sir George, in 1749. He m. Margaret, dau. of — Price, Esq., but by her (who m. 2ndly, Sir George Bowyer, a distinguished officer in the memorable battle of the 1st June, under Lord Howe) he had no issue. His death took place at Roehampton Manor House, 7 Feb. 1764, and with him the title beame extinct.

1. Philadelphia, m. to Sir Robert Pickering, Bart.
2. Frances, m. to Sir John Cotton, Bart.
3. Lucy, m. to Sir Richard Bulkeley, Bart.
4. Mary, m. to Thomas Barnardiston, Esq.
5. Anne, m. to Francis Pengelly, Esq.

11. HENRY, of whose descendants we have to treat.

The second son,

HENRY DOWNING, Esq., b. in 1630, the younger brother of Sir George Downing, Bart., held a commission in the guards of CHARLES II., and was living in Downing-street, London, in 1666. He m. Jane, dau., it is supposed of the ancient family of Clotworthy, and by her, who is buried in the family mausoleum at Bellaghy, had two sons, ADAM and George. Henry Downing d. about the year 1693, and was s. by his eldest son,

COLONEL ADAM DOWNING, b. in 1666, who went over to Ireland with WILLIAM III., and held the rank of colonel in his army. He was present at the siege of Derry, and there gave early and signal proofs of his courage. Subsequently he raised a body of men at his own expense, and served during the war in Ireland, participating in the battle of the Boyne, and contributing eminently, by his gallantry and skill, to the success of the party with which he was engaged. For these services he received the appointments of deputy-governor of the county of Derry, colonel of the militia, and one of the commissioners of array, and was also granted by his royal master a large tract of land in the county of Derry, still possessed by his descendant. He m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Jackson, Esq. of Coleraine. ancestor of Sir George Jackson, Bart., by Margaret Beresford, of the noble family of Waterford, and had issue,

Henry, named after his grandfather, d. in his minority.
JOHN, of whom presently.

Colonel Adam Downing d. in 1719, and was buried in the family mausoleum at Bellaghy. The inscription on his monument mentions his descent from the Devonshire family. His son and successor,

JOHN DOWNING, Esq. of Bellaghy and Rowsgift, b. in 1700, inherited the spirit of his father, and raised, during the rebellion of 1745, at considerable expense, a body of men to serve his king and country in a moment of great difficulty and danger. He m. Anne, dau. and heir of the Rev. J. Rowe, D.D., descended from an ancient Devonshire family, and had three sons, namely,

- I. CLOTWORTHY, father of John and Giffard; the latter, a military officer, was severely wounded at Corunna.
- II. DAWSON, of whom presently.
- III. John, an officer in the army, who served in the Seven Years' war, and d. s. p. in 1792.

The second son,

DAWSON DOWNING, Esq. of Bellaghy and Rowsgift, in the co. of Londonderry, b. in 1739, inherited the ancient mansion, and resided in it till his death. He m. 1st, Catherine, only child of George Fullerton, Esq., and niece and heiress of Alexander Fullerton, Esq. of Ballintoy Castle, in the co. of Antrim, descended from a branch of the ancient Scottish family of that name, and by her had one son, GEORGE, of whom presently. Mr. Dawson Downing m. 2ndly, Sarah-Catherine, dau. of Hugh Boyd, Esq. of Ballycastle, and by her had (with six daus., of whom, Ann, m. Robert Magee, Esq.; Margaret, m. 1st, Arthur Handcock, Esq., and 2ndly, Rear-Admiral the Hon. William La Poer Trench; and Catherine, m. Turnley, Esq.) two sons, JOHN, of Rowsgift, Judge of the Supreme Court of the Kandian provinces, and David. Mr. Downing's son by his first wife.

GEORGE-ALEXANDER DOWNING, Esq., having inherited a considerable property from his great-uncle, assumed, in compliance with that gentleman's testamentary injunction, the surname and arms of FULLERTON, and became of Tockington Manor and Ballintoy. He was b. at Ballycastle, in the old family mansion of the Boyds, 30 Nov. 1775, and d. in 1847, leaving, by his wife, three sons and five daus., viz.,

- I. ALEXANDER-GEORGE, his heir.
- II. George, a military officer.
- III. David.
- IV. Catherine. II. Amy. III. Susan.
- IV. Frances, m. to Sir Andrew Armstrong, Bart.
- V. Mary-Anne.

GOODDEN OF OVER COMPTON.

GOODDEN, JOHN, Esq. of Over Compton, co. Dorset, s. his father, the late Wyndham Goodden, Esq., 17 July, 1839; m. 5 Oct. 1843, Ann, dau. of the Rev. Robert Phelps, (brother of the late John Phelps, Esq. of Montacute House, co. Somerset,) by Maria, his wife, dau. of William Harbin, Esq., of Newton Surmaville, in the last-named shire, and has issue,

- I. JOHN-ROBERT-PHELPS, b. 23 July, 1845.
- II. Edward-Wyndham, b. 17 Feb. 1847.

Mr. Goodden is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the counties of Dorset and Somerset.

Lineage.

The manor of Over Compton was held by the family of Abington from the time of HENRY VIII. to the year 1736, when it passed into the possession of the Gooddens, by whom it is still enjoyed. It may be added that JOHN-ROBERT-PHELPS GOODDEN, the present heir-apparent of Over Compton, derives descent, through his mother, from the Abingtons, its ancient possessors.

ROBERT GOODDYN, of Bower Hinton, co. Somerset, son of John Gooddwyn, who d. at Martock, in that shire, 4 EDWARD VI., m., 2 ELIZABETH, Editba Trent, and was father of

NICHOLAS GOODDYN, of Bower Hinton, who m., 24 ELIZABETH, Catherine, dau. of Sir Edward Waldegrave, and left a son and heir,

ROBERT GOODDYN, Esq. of Bower Hinton, who m. in 1603, Margaret Cox, and by her had two sons, WILLIAM, his heir; and John, of Ilton, who d. 4 Oct. 1672. The elder son,

WILLIAM GOODDYN, Esq. of Bower Hinton, m. in 1625, Agnes Jordan, and had issue, WILLIAM, his heir; Thomas; Agnes; and Eliza. The elder son,

WILLIAM GOODDYN, Esq. of Bower Hinton, m. twice: by his first wife, Sarah Drake, he appears to have had no issue; but by his second, Mary, dau. and sole heir of John Gooddwyn, Esq. of Ilton, he was father of three sons, JOHN, his heir; Robert, who d. in July, 1695; and William. The eldest,

JOHN GOODDEN, Esq. of Bower Hinton, m. Mary, dau. of Hugh Culliford, Esq. of Stapleton, co. Somerset, and had issue, JOHN, Henry, William, Thomas, and Elizabeth. The eldest,

JOHN GOODDEN, Esq. of Bower Hinton, m. Mary, dau. of George Moore, Esq. of Kingsdon, co. Somerset, and had issue, John, of Hart Hall, Oxford, who d. unm.; ROBERT, heir to his father; Elizabeth, Mary, Ann, Hannah, and Susanna. The second, but only surviving son, ROBERT GOODDEN, Esq. of Bower Hinton and Martock, b. in 1708, was also possessed of the estate of Over Compton, in Dorsetshire, for which county he served as high-sheriff in 1747. He m. Abigail, dau. of Wyndham Harbin, Esq. of Newton, co. Somerset, by Abigail, his wife, dau. and heir of Richard Swayne, Esq. of Tarrant Gunville, (see vol. i. p. 535,) and had issue,

JOHN-HARBIN, his heir.
 ROBERT, successor to his brother John.

John-Culliford, rector of Over and Nether Compton, d. unm.

WYNDHAM, successor to his brother Robert.

Elizabeth.

Abigail, m. to George Gould, Esq. of Upwey and Fleet, co. Dorset.

Mr. Goodden d. in 1764, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN-HARBIN GOODDEN, Esq. of Over Compton, who d. unm. in 1766, and was s. by his next brother,

ROBERT GOODDEN, Esq. of Over Compton, who served as high-sheriff of Dorsetshire in 1779. He d. unm. in 1829, and was s. by his only surviving brother,

WYNDHAM GOODDEN, Esq. of Over Compton, who m. Mary, second dau. (and co-heir with her sister Elizabeth) of John Jeane, Esq. of Binford, co. Somerset, and had issue,

I. JOHN, his heir.

II. Wyndham-Jeane, in holy orders, rector of Over and Nether Compton.

III. George, in holy orders, rector of North Barrow, co. Somerset.

IV. Henry-Charles.

V. Charles-Culliford, in holy orders, vicar of Montacute, co. Somerset.

I. Mary.

II. Elizabeth-Harbin.

III. Louisa.

Mr. Goodden d. 17 July, 1839, and was s. by his eldest son, the present JOHN GOODDEN, Esq. of Over Compton.

Motto—Jovis omnia plena.

Seat—Over Compton, Dorset.

GRÆME OF INCHBRAKIE.

GRÆME, GEORGE-DRUMMOND, Esq., K.H., of Inchbrakie, co. Perth, m. in 1842, Marianne-Jane, only surviving dau. of James, Viscount Strathallan, and has issue, Amelia-Anne-Margaret. Major Græme served in the British army during the Peninsular war, and was present at Waterloo, where he was severely wounded. He subsequently served in the Hanoverian guards, in which he attained the rank of major. In 1816 he was created a Knight of the Guelphic Order, and has had the gold cross of WILLIAM IV. and the Hanoverian Peninsular medal conferred on him. Major Græme s. his father in 1840.

Lineage.

This ancient family derives in a direct male descent from William, the first Earl of Montrose, who was killed at Flodden in 1513. The earl, by his third wife, Christian, dau. of Thomas Wavan, of Stevenson, and relict of Patrick 6th Lord Hallyburton, had two sons, PATRICK, of whom we treat, and Andrew, who entered the church and became first Protestant Bishop of Dunblane. The former,

PATRICK GRÆME, of Inchbrakie, was a minor at his father's death, and his mother, the countess, was appointed his guardian. By a charter, dated 20 June, 1513, and now in possession of the family, the earl conferred on this Patrick, and his heirs, the lands of Inchbrakie, Fowlis, and Aheruthven. He m. Margaret Stewart, grand-dau. of the Duke of Albany, brother of King JAMES IV., and by her (who m. 2ndly, Sir Duncan Campbell, of Glenorchy) had issue,

GEORGE, his heir.

Robert, archdeacon of Ross in 1575, ancestor of the Græmes of Drynie, co. Ross.

Nichola, m. to David Murray, of Ochertyre, who was killed at the battle of Pinkey, 1547.

Margaret, m. 1st, to Campbell of Ardkinglass, and 2ndly, to Robert Buehanan, of Lenny.

Patrick built the Castle of Inchbrakie, which was besieged and burned by Cromwell, but the extensive moat which surrounded it still remains. He d. in 1538, and was s. by his eldest son, GEORGE GRÆME, of Inchbrakie, a minor, but who was served heir to his father in 1555. He m. Margaret, dau.

of Andrew Rollo, Baron of Dunerub, ancestor of Lord Rollo, and by her (who m. 2ndly, John Græme, 1st of Balgowan) had issue, PATRICK, his successor.

John, the first of the family of Græmes of Bucklivie. He was killed by the McGregors at Glenfruan, in 1602.

George, Bishop of Orkney in 1615. He m. twice: by his first wife he had two sons and a dau., viz., David, from whom the Græmes of Grahams Hall descend; Patrick; and Catherine, who m. Patrick Smythe, of Braeo. By his second wife, a dau. of Crichton of Cluny, the bishop had a son, Mungo, the first of the Græmes of Gorthy: he m. Helen, dau. of William Moray, of Abercainey, and had an eldest son, Mungo, second of Gorthy, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir William Murray, of Ochiltrey.

Beatrice, m. to Drummond of Balloch.

Margery, m. to John Maxtone, of Cultoquhey.

Lillas, m. 1st, Colville of Condie; and 2ndly, Lawrence Oliphant, of Gask.

Ann, m. to George Robertson, of Faseally.

George d. in 1575, and was s. by his eldest son,

PATRICK GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, also a minor at his father's death. He m. 1st, Nicholas, dau. of Browne, of Fordell, and had by her,

GEORGE, his heir.

John.

Marian, m. in 1607, to Sir James Oliphant, of Newton. Two other daus.: one m. to Toshach of Monzievaird, and the other m. to Finlay McNabb, of that ilk.

He m. 2ndly, Margaret Scott, heiress of Monzie, co. Perth, (a branch of the Scotts of Balweerie,) and had by her a son, James Græme, of Monzie, who was great-grandfather of David Græme, of Orchill, who in 1770, was one of the jury on the service of Patrick Græme, of Inehbrakie.

Patrick Græme, who was the first of the family who appears to have held the lands of Tullybelton, d. in 1635, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, who acquired the lands of Invermay from James, Lord Innerneath, afterwards Earl of Atholl, by a charter, dated 1604. He had also a charter of Tullybelton in 1610. This George suffered severely during the civil wars, having been fined and imprisoned in 1641. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Keith, of Ludquhairn, a younger son of the Earl Marishal, and by her had,

PATRICK, his heir.

Beatrice, m. to Alexander Robertson, of Lude.

Margaret, m. to Alexander Robertson, of Strouan.

George, of Inehbrakie, d. in 1654: his son,

PATRICK GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, the well known loyalist of his time, in conjunction with the great Marquis of Montrose, is mentioned in all the histories of the period. Original letters from the marquis to Inehbrakie are still preserved in the family. This Patrick commanded the Atholl Highlanders, and was known as "Black Pate." He received a commission signed by the "noblemen, barons, and landed gentlemen of Perthshire, to be colonel of their force, which they raised in obedience to the king's command, bearing date 24 June, 1651." On account of his adherence to the royal cause, this laird suffered great losses in property, as well as outlawry and imprisonment, and prior to his release by CROMWELL, a bond was signed by the Earl of Tullybardine and Lord Drummond in 1654, "that the said Colonel Patrick Græme should do nothing to hurt the commonwealth of England nor their armies in Scotland." The only return his loyalty met with on the Restoration, was an offer of a baronetcy, and a grant of arms, with new crest and motto. He m. Jean, dau. of Lord Madderty, and had issue,

I. GEORGE, his successor.

II. Patrick, captain of the Edinburgh town-guard, and afterwards colonel of dragoons in King JAMES II.'s army. He m. Agnes Smyth, dau. of Smyth of Braeo, and had four sons,

1. James.

2. Patrick, called "Father Græme;" his portrait, in his Capuchin dress, is at Inehbrakie.

3. Robert, called "Frère Alexis," a monk of La Trappe, d. in 1701.

4. William.

III. John, postmaster-general of Scotland, m. his cousin, Margaret, eldest dau. of Lord Madderty, and had a son and dau., viz., David and Amelia. David died in the service of the States of Holland.

IV. James, of Newton, solicitor-general for Scotland in 1688. His son, David Græme, of Newton, m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Moray, of Abercainey. He was of the jury in 1770.

I. Anne, m. 1st, to P. Smith, of Rapness, and 2ndly, to Sir Robert Moray, of Abercainey.

II. Margaret, m. to Robert, first Lord Nairne.

Colonel Græme d. in 1687, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, who m. Mary Nieol, heiress of Royston and Granton, near Edinburgh, and had issue,

I. PATRICK, his heir.

II. George, an officer in Lord Carmichael's dragoons in 1710.

I. Margaret, m. to Græme of Pitcairn, and had a son, David, who became of Orehill.

II. Isabella, m. to William Bryce, Esq.

III. Mary, m. to Dr. George Traill, of Aberaigie.

George Græme d. in 1704. His eldest son and heir,

PATRICK GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, had the misfortune, during his father's lifetime, to have had a fatal quarrel with the Master of Rollo, but in 1720 a full remission, under the great seal, was granted to him. He was out of the country in 1715, but his house was burned by the Duke of Argyll's army, after the battle of Sheriffmuir. He m. Janet, dau. of Pearson of Kippenross, and had issue,

I. GEORGE, who m. Catharine, dau. of Lindsay of Cavill, and predeceasing his father in 1737, left issue,

1. PATRICK, heir to his grandfather, and two other sons and four daus. Patrick m. his cousin-german, Helen, dau. of Pearson of Kippenross, and had a dau., Helen, m. Alexander Robertson, of Fascalie.

II. John, d. s. p.

Inehbrakie d. in 1740, and was s. by his grandson,

PATRICK GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, who entered the Dutch army, in which he attained the rank of captain. In 1770, he was served "heir to Patrick, 1st of Inehbrakie, second son of William, 1st Earl of Montrose." He m. Amelia, eldest dau. of Lawrence Oliphant, of Gask, by his wife, the Hon. Amelia Nairne, and by her had issue,

I. GEORGE, his heir.

II. Patrick, lieutenant-colonel 42nd Highlanders: died in India.

III. Lawrence, captain R.N., drowned on returning home from the West Indies, in the Ville de Paris, after the action with Count de Grasse.

I. Amelia, m. 1st, to James Campbell, of Monzie, and 2ndly, to William Graham, of Orehill, and had issue, Patrick and Lawrence, both d. s. p.; Margaret, and Henrietta. The former m. James Gillespie Graham, Esq., and had a dau., Henrietta, m. to James Oliphant, of Gask.

II. Margaret, d. s. p.

III. Louisa, m. to Robert Stewart, of Fincastle.

Captain Græme d. in 1796, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE GRÆME, of Inehbrakie, captain in 72nd Highlanders, and colonel of the Perthshire cavalry. He served at the siege of Gibraltar, where he was wounded. He m. Margaret, eldest dau. of Oliphant of Condie, and had issue,

I. Patrick, an officer in the army, killed in action in North America, in 1814.

VI. Henry-Lowndes.

III. Anna.

IV. Frances.

V. Elizabeth.

VI. Christina.

Mr. Graham is a magistrate of the county of Lanark.

Lineage.

The lands of Tamrawer, with several other farms forming the estate of Tamrawer, in Kilsyth parish, and county of Stirling, belonged, in the year 1427, to ROBERT GRAHAM, designed of Tamrawer, who was descended from Graham of Dundaff, (of whom the Montrose family,) which barony is adjacent. Robert d. in the year 1469, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who d. in 1512, and was s. by his son,

JAMES GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who d. in 1543, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who d. in 1561. William was s. by his son, ROBERT GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who, in the year 1585, built a large castellated house upon his lands. This house was, a great many years afterwards, burned to the ground, and a small portion of the remaining walls, of great thickness, now forms part of a farm steading. A large stone, which had been placed over the main entrance of the building, having the date of it, viz., 1585, and the armorial bearings of the family, also the initials R.G. carved upon it, is still in perfect preservation. Robert d. in 1623, and was s. by his son,

JAMES GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who d. a few years after his father. He was s. by his son,

JOHN GRAHAM, of Tamrawer. He was accidentally killed on Tamrawer hill, when making preparations to join the first Marquess of Montrose, with his tenantry, a few days previous to the battle of Kilsyth, in 1645; and a cairn of stones was erected on the spot, which still remains. He was s. by his son,

JOHN GRAHAM, of Tamrawer, who was s. by his son,

WILLIAM GRAHAM, of Tamrawer. He m. three times: 1st, to a dau. of Russel of Gorbethill, by whom he had one son, who d. without issue; 2ndly, to a dau. of White of Condenshill, by whom he had one son, ROBERT, his heir and successor; 3rdly, to a dau. of Laing of Lees, by whom he had three sons, WILLIAM, JAMES, and Alexander; and two daus., Christian and Isobel. He was s. by his son,

ROBERT GRAHAM, of Tamrawer. He was an eminent agriculturist, and was the first person who introduced the culture of potatoes in the open fields of Scotland, to any extent, as particularly noticed in SIR JOHN SINCLAIR'S Statistical Account of Scotland, in the description of Kilsyth parish, vol. xviii. page 282. He m. the only dau. of John Luke, Esq. of Claythorn, in Lanarkshire, by whom he had three sons, John, George, and William; also four daus. leys, yet on the summit of a smooth and gentle elevation, shrouded in aged trees, is the ancient house of EMMOTT, which has given name to a long line, still preserving a female succession. Of this family, established in England since the Conquest, the first of whom any record exists is, ROBERT DE EMOT, who held lands at Emmot, 4 EDWARD II., as appears by inquisition. His descendant, the representative of the Emmotts in the middle of the 17th century, was

WILLIAM EMMOTT, Esq. of Emmott, who d. in Aug. 1683, and lies interred at Colne, under a monument still remaining. By Mary, his wife, (who d. in 1677,) he left four sons and one dau., viz.,

WILLIAM, of Emmott, fellow-commoner of Jesus College, Cambridge, d. 13 May, 1720, aged 51, s. p. His monumental inscription states that "Amicus charus, vicinis utilis, omnibus hospitalis vixit, omnibusque fidebilibus occidit."

JOHN, of Emmott, who d. 21 Oct. 1746, aged 82, "a gentleman of great piety and charity."

THOMAS, d. in 1669, aged 29.

CHRISTOPHER, of London, merchant, who is stated in his epitaph to have "had so good a judgment in mercantile affairs, that differences between merchants were often, by consent, referred to his determination, by which he prevented many lawsuits." He acquired a large fortune, with a good reputation, and purchased back the family estate of Emmott, which the inattention of his brothers to their worldly concerns rendered necessary. Mr. Christopher Emmott d. unm. 24 Feb. 1745, aged 71, and was buried in the church of St. Michael, Bassishaw, London.

MARY, m. to Mr. Wainhouse.

This lady,

MARY EMMOTT, wife of Mr. Wainhouse, d. 16 Jan. 1722, aged 50, leaving a son,

RICHARD WAINHOUSE, who assumed, as heir to his uncles, the name and arms of EMMOTT. Like the youngest of those gentlemen, he followed commercial pursuits, and is styled, on his monument, "late of Basinghall-street, London, merchant." His death occurred 14 March, 1761 in the 60th year of his age. He left (with a dau., who m. Alexander Ross, Esq.) a son,

RICHARD EMMOTT, Esq. of Emmott, co. Lancaster, and Goldings, Herts, who entailed the former estate on his nieces. Of those ladies, the eldest is Caroline, wife of Edward Parkins, Esq. of Chesham Lodge, Herts; and the second was

HARRIET-SUSANNA ROSS, who m. in April, 1811, GEORGE GREEN, Esq., and had issue, HAMILTON OF SUNDRUM.

HAMILTON, JOHN, Esq. of Sundrum, co. Ayr, s. his father, 31 Jan. 1837; m. 7 May, 1845, Catherine-Barbara, eldest dau. of the late William Hobart, Esq. of Picktree, and has issue.

Lineage.

In the "Supplement to the Memoirs of the House of Hamilton," the ancestor of the Hamiltons of Sundrum is said to have been Claud Hamilton, fourth son of Sir James Hamilton, of Broomhill, and brother of John, 1st Lord Belhaven. This Claud was actively engaged on the side of CHARLES II., during the civil wars, and was at the battles of Preston and Worcester. He m. Jean Hamilton, heiress of Parkhead, by whom he had issue,

I. JAMES, of Parkhead.

II. CLAUD, who carried on the line of this family; and other children.

CLAUD HAMILTON, being in infancy at his father's death, was brought up by the noble family, at Hamilton. When a young man, he was sent, under the patronage of the Dundonald family, into Ayrshire, where he settled, and acquired the Kirklands of Maybole, &c. He m. a dau. of Vere of Stonebyres, and had issue.

Such is the account of the origin of the Hamiltons of Sundrum, given by Mr. Anderson, author of the "Memoirs of the House of Hamilton." The issue of Claud, Hugh Hamilton, is said to have married a dau. of Robert Blackwood, merchant in Ayr, &c.; but this could not have been the case if his grandfather, as is represented, had been at the battle of Worcester. We know from authentic records—the town books of Ayr—that

ROBERT (not Hugh) HAMILTON, bailie-clerk of Carrick, and Janet Blackwood,* his spouse, were, on the resignation of Hew Kennedy, in 1670, admitted to the lands of Clongall, Clongall Muir, Clongall Montgomerie, Nether Clongall, Dupillburn, &c. Between the battle of Worcester, fought in 1651, and the admission of Robert Hamilton to these lands, only nineteen years had elapsed; consequently the bailie-clerk of Carrick could not possibly be the grandson of Claud. The descent of the family must therefore have been from a different source, otherwise the author is in error when he states that Claud was at the battle of Worcester.

HUGH HAMILTON, of Clongall—now called Glengall—merchant in Ayr, m. Jean Ferguson, dau. of John Ferguson, of Castlehill, and had issue,

I. Robert, of Bourtreehill, b. 5 Jan. 1698.

II. JOHN, from whom the Sundrum family is descended.

* Daughter of Robert Blackwood, merchant in Ayr, ancestor of Sir Robert Blackwood, of Pitrcavie.

- iii. Hugh, ancestor of the Hamiltons of Pinmore, b. 6 Jan. 1707.
 i. Janet, b. 21 Aug. 1692. Amongst the witnesses at the baptism were "Robert Hamilton, clerk, of Carrick, and John Ferguson, of Castlehill, writer in Ayr, grandfathers to the child."
 ii. Janet, b. 16 Nov. 1693.
 iii. Agnes, b. 27 March, 1695.
 iv. Marion, b. 21 June, 1695.
 v. Jean, b. 6 Feb. 1699. vi. Mary, b. 22 Dec. 1700.
 vii. Jean, b. 25 April, 1703.

JOHN HAMILTON, the second son, b. 24 March, 1702, served in the Royal navy, and afterwards settled in Jamaica, where he and his elder brother, Robert, possessed the estate of Pemberton Valley. He m. in 1730, Margaret, eldest dau. of Hugh Montgomerie, of Coilsfield, (by his second marriage, with Catharine Arbuckle, widow of Claud Hamilton, of Lethame,) and sister of Alexander Montgomerie, of Coilsfield, father of Hugh, 12th Earl of Eglinton. He was drowned in returning from the West Indies, leaving an only son,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Sundrum, who, through the medium of his trustees, acquired that property in 1750. He m. in April, 1762, his cousin Lillias, second dau. of Alexander Montgomerie, of Coilsfield, and sister of Hugh, 12th Earl of Eglinton, by whom he had issue,

- i. JOHN, his successor.
 ii. Alexander-West, deceased.
 iii. Robert, deceased. iv. Hugh, a lieut.-colonel.
 v. Archibald, of Carcluie and Rozelle, capt. E. I. Co.'s naval service.
 vi. Thomas-Bargany.
 vii. Montgomerie, capt. in the E. I. Co.'s naval service.
 i. Lillias, d. unm. in 1832. ii. Margaret.
 iii. Frances, d. unm. in Nov. 1820.
 iv. Hamilla, d. young. v. Jane.
 vi. Hamilla, m. to the late Lieut.-General Hughes.

It was to this family that the lines by Burns refer:—

"I spy'd among an angel brood," &c.

John Hamilton, of Sundrum, was for several years vice-lieutenant of the co. of Ayr, and thirty-six years convener. He d. in Jan. 1821. So much was he respected that the county gentlemen were at the expense of having his portrait painted to hang in the County Hall. He was s. by his son,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Sundrum, who spent a number of his earlier years in the naval service of the E. I. Co. He m. 4 June, 1804, Christian, eldest dau. of George Dundas, of Dundas, and d. 31 Jan. 1837, having had issue,

- i. JOHN, his successor, now of Sundrum.
 ii. George-Dundas.
 iii. Alexander, d. in Jamaica.
 iv. Archibald, d. 5 June, 1846, E. I. Co.'s civil service, Madras establishment.
 v. James. vi. Hugh.
 i. Christian, m. to Charles Herly, Esq. of Gargunnohan.
 ii. Lillias, who d. young.
 iii. Margaret, who d. young.
 iv. Lillias. v. Anna-Maria.
 vi. Margaret, m. 9 Aug. 1843, to the Hon. Thomas Preston, youngest son of Viscount Gormanston.
 vii. Mary.
 viii. Jane-Hamilla, m. to Henry Spencer, Esq.

HAMMOND OF FIRBY HALL, LATE OF HUTTON BONVILLE.

HAMMOND, JOHN-LEONARD, Esq. of Firby Hall, co. York, m. Mary, dau. of John Aspinall, Esq. of Standen Hall, co. Lancaster, (see that family), and has issue by her (now deceased) an only dau. Mr. Hammond is the senior male of his family now resident in Yorkshire.

Lineage.

This family is a younger branch of Hammond of Scarthingwell, in Saxton parish, West Riding of Yorkshire, which recorded its pedigree at the Visitation of 1666. The Scarthingwell Hammonds had matched with the Methams, Stapletons, Cressys, Salveys, Fletchers, Wilsons, Middletons, and Hungates, and had owned Scarthingwell from about the time of HENRY VIII., when that manor was acquired by the marriage of Anthony Hammond with the heiress of Leedes. The branch before us still possess a most ancient seal, with the old family arms, of a chevron between three mullets, on it, and seem to have settled at and about Richmond, co. York, in the time of CHARLES I.

CAPTAIN HAMMOND, of Richmond, a military officer, viewed the common arms and muskets, and mustered the men of Richmond before Thomas, Lord Fairfax, and Sir William Pennyman, Bart., the king's commissioners for inspecting the same, in 1633. He was, no doubt, the settler there; but unfortunately record only speaks of him as "Captain Hammond," and his baptismal name being thus unknown, it is difficult to identify him with any particular younger son of the house of Scarthingwell.

JOHN HAMMOND, of Richmond, the next of this family of whom public record takes notice, owned a house in Frenchgate, in that town, in 1679, was appointed a common-councilman of Richmond in 1684, a surveyor of the highways in the precincts thereof, in 1702, and was mayor of Richmond in 1694 and 1708. The next of the family was

PETER HAMMOND, of Richmond, (1685,) afterwards of Wensley, co. York, (1693.) This gentleman (whose wife is believed to have been a Smithson) had issue five sons,

I. PETER, his heir.

II. Anthony, of Borobridge, Gent., who owned property at Neesham, co. York, and m. Elizabeth, sister of Thomas Smales, Esq. of Park Hall, co. York, of the old Yorkshire and Durham family of Smales. He made his will 26 Aug. 1725, and dying, was buried at Aldborough, near Borobridge, 18 Dec. 1725. His will was proved 18 Dec. 1731. By his said wife he had issue,

1. Henry, who d. young.

2. Peter, to whom his uncle, Peter Hammond, Esq. of Bolton Hall, leaves £100 per annum, to put in no claims for his estate. He d. 11 Sept. 1774, aged 65.

1. Anne, who was b. 3 Sept. 1723, bapt. 10 Sept. same year, at Aldborough, and d. young.

2. JANE HAMMOND, b. 7 Nov. bapt. 8 Nov. 1724, at Aldborough. This lady, eventually heiress of the family, was m. 19 Sept. 1752, by licence, at Brignel, co. York, (by the Rev. Mr. Farrer,) to John Ewbanke, Gent. of Kirby Hill, (Kirby Ravensworth,) afterwards of Richmond, co. York, descended from the ancient family of his name, there and thereabouts located, and by him (who d. at Hutton Bonville, 31 May, 1789, and was buried in the chapel there, 3 June following, she surviving, and dying at Richmond, 12 Sept., buried at Hutton Bonville, 15 Sept. 1803) had issue three sons and two daus.,

John Ewbanke, b. 30 Nov. 1755, at Kirby Hill, bapt. 7 Dec. 1755, and christened 3 Feb. 1756, d. 15 April, 1756, buried in Kirby Hill Church, 17 April, following, an infant.

ANTHONY EWBANKE, afterwards HAMMOND, Esq., of whom hereafter, as eventual heir.

Peter-William Ewbanke, b. at Richmond, 24 Nov. 1763, bapt. 11 Dec. following. He d. 23 Dec. 1763, an infant, and was buried 25 Dec.

Elizabeth Ewbanke, b. 12 April, 1754, at Kirby Hill, bapt. 23 April, and christened 14 May, 1754, d. 5 May, 1759, aged 5, buried at Richmond, 7 May, 1759.

Jane Ewbanke, b. at Richmond, 10 Dec. 1756, bapt. 14 Dec., living unm. in 1772. She subsequently m. the Rev. Thomas Leighton, A.M., of Cambridge, and rector of Richmond, co. York, by whom she had an only son, Thomas Leighton, who m. Anna, dau. of — Dighton, of Northallerton, and had issue.

III. John, bapt. 7 Dec. 1693, who m. 31 Dec. 1716, Mary, dau. of William Skinner, Esq. of Aveiro, in Portugal, merchant, and by her had issue two children, John, and Mary, both d. s. p.

IV. Charles, of Huntingdon, who made his will 26 March, 1754, owning tenements in St. John's, Huntingdon. He d. s. p. and was buried 18 Jan. 1755, at Hartford, co. Huntingdon; will proved at Doctors' Commons, London, 25 Feb. 1755.

V. William, of Naburne and Acaster Malbis, in the county, and of St. Dennis, in the city of York. This gentleman owned considerable property, and dying, was buried at Naburne, 9 Oct. 1760, in which year also his will was proved, at York. He m. and left issue, an only dau. and heiress, Jane Hammond, m. to John Pratt, Esq. of Ascrigg, in Wensleydale, co. York, the famous sportsman, who d. at Newmarket, 8 May, 1785. (See his curious epitaph, in CLARKSON'S Richmond.)

The eldest son,

PETER HAMMOND, Esq. of Bolton Hall and Spennithorne, co. York, bapt. at Richmond, 7 Sept. 1685, m. 14 April, 1709, Elizabeth, dau. of — Cox, of Stainton St. John's, co. Oxon, (who had been baptized there, 25 Feb. 1676,) and by her (who d. 26 Nov., aged 89, and was buried 29 Nov. 1765, at Wensley, co. York) he had issue,

1. Peter, bapt. 26 April, 1712, but who dying young, 13 Sep t., was buried 15 Sept. 1715, aged 3.

II. George, of Castle-yard, Holborn, London, in 1761, but in 1736, of St. Bartholomew's, Exchange, London, bapt. at Wensley, 14 Sept. 1715, m. by licence, in Jan. 1736, at St. Gregory and St. Mary's, Fish-street, London, Anne, dau. of — Hicks, of Munden, co. Herts. He d. 21 Sept. 1767, and was buried at Chiswick, co. Middlesex, leaving by his said wife, an only child, Peter Hammond, heir-apparent to his grandfather. He was b. in July, 1737, but dying 2 July, was buried 3 July, 1769, aged 32, and s. p., in his grandfather's lifetime.

1. Elizabeth, bapt. 12 Sept. 1710, at Richmond, co. York, d. 24 Sept., buried 26 Sept. 1751, aged 41, and unm., all at Wensley.

Thus all Mr. Hammond's progeny predeceased him. He accordingly made his will, 1 May, 1772, devising his Spennithorne estate to his great-nephew, Anthony Ewbanke, (on condition of his taking the name of Hammond,) and leaving his nephew and heir-at-law, Peter Hammond, £100 per annum to put in no claims for his estate. He d. 11 Aug. 1773, s. p., and was buried 15 Aug. following, at Wensley. This Peter Hammond, Esq., was very active, in 1757, in suppressing the riots of the Swaledale and Wensleydale miners.

ANTHONY HAMMOND, Esq., (then EWBANKE,) his great-nephew, and then in his minority, thereupon s. to the family estates, and took its name. This gentleman was b. at Richmond, 30 Sept., and bapt. 5 Oct. 1758. He received his college education at Christ Church, Oxford, and inheriting Spennithorne from his great-uncle, purchased also the manor and mansion of Hutton Bonville, in Birkby parish, co. York, of the Peirses of Thimbleby, in or before 1790. Anthony Hammond lived long thenceforth at Hutton Bonville, and became a deputy-lieutenant for the North Riding. He m. at Richmond, 21 Oct. 1790, Jane Close, aunt of J.-J. Tuffnell, Esq. of Langleys, in Essex, Lady Pilkington, of Chevet, &c., and second dau. of John Close, Esq. of Easby Hall, co. York, clerk of assize for the northern circuit, and bencher of Lincoln's Inn, (by Eliza, his wife, dau. of Robert Wilson, Esq. of Hartlepool, in Durham, ancestor of Robert Wilson, Esq. of Woodham, East Ham, co. Essex, high-sheriff of that county in 1813, and of Thomas Wilson, Esq., M.P. for the city of London,*) and directly descended from the old Richmond family of Close. By her, (who d. 20 Oct. 1835, and was buried beside her parents at Easby,) he dying senior deputy-lieutenant for the North Riding, in his 80th year, 27 Jan. 1838, at Richmond, where he latterly resided, (having resold Hutton Bonville to the Peirses of Bedale before his death,) had issue,

I. PETER, now of Boulogne-sur-Mer, in France. He m. a sister of Sir Robert Bateson, Bart. of Killoquin, co. Antrim, and dau. of Thomas Bateson, Esq., by whom he has issue, a son, an officer in the E. I. Co.'s service, and other children.

II. Anthony, in holy orders, who holds a chaplaincy abroad, and has been twice married: his first wife was Mary Tomlinson, who d. in India; his second, whom he m. in 1843, was a dau. of Sir John-Poo Beresford, Bart., and granddau. maternally, of Henry Peirse, Esq. of Bedale, M. P. for Northallerton, co. York.†

III. JOHN-LEONARD, now of Firby Hall, and the senior male of the family resident in Yorkshire.

IV. Charles, of Richmond, co. York, who m. Margaret, dau. of J. Potts, Esq. of the city of Durham, by whom he has issue several daus., and an only son, Charles Hammond.

1. Jane, m. the Rev. John Bayley, A.M., fellow and wrangler of Emanuel (but previously of Trinity) College, Cambridge, of Northallerton, Wakefield, and Ellerbeck, co. York, (eldest son and heir of Dr. Bayley, of Northallerton and Ellerbeck,) by whom she has an only son, the present Charles-John Bayley, Esq., A.M., barrister-at-law, of the Inner Temple, and late scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, joint lord of Ellerbeck manor, co. York.

II. Anne, who d. unm. about the year 1813.

III. Eliza, m. in 1819, to Sir Robert Bateson, Bart. of Killoquin, co. Antrim, but without issue in 1843.

IV. Laura, m. 1st, to — Robinson, and 2ndly, in 1843, the Ven. Archdeacon Trew; but s. p. by Mr. Robinson, in 1843.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of an ancient family, originally of Hauteville in Normandy; and for more than six centuries holding a distinguished rank in the Island of Guernsey, where they have been bailiffs and jurats of the Royal Court from the earliest records.

JAMES DE HAVILLAND, Esq., sworn a jurat of the Royal Court in 1516, lineally descended from Le Sieur Thomas de Havilland, so distinguished at the recovery of Mont Orgueil, in Jersey, temp. EDWARD IV., was grandfather of

CHRISTOPHER DE HAVILLAND, who settled at Poole, in Dorsetshire, early in the reign of ELIZABETH. He m. Amy, only dau. and heiress of John Mann, Esq. of that place, and by her had issue,

- i. MATTHEW, alderman and many times mayor of Bristol, of which city he was a great benefactor, having left large sums of money for the endowing of various charities. He saw the trophies of the Invincible Armada brought in triumph into his native town, and lived to see the Gunpowder Plot. He m. Mary, dau. of Robert Knightley, Esq., and by her left issue, Robert, of Hawkesbury, co. Gloucester, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Guise, Esq. of Elmore.

- ii. JOHN.

The second son,

JOHN HAVILLAND, Esq. of Charlinch Hall, co. Somerset, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Everard, Esq., and by her had issue,

ROBERT, of whom presently.

John, of Charlwich, who m. Miss Elizabeth Dight.

The elder son,

ROBERT HAVILLAND, was father of

MATTHEW HAVILLAND, Esq. of Goathurst Place, a zealous Cavalier officer, who served from the commencement of the disturbances until the death of his Royal master, and had the happiness of beholding the Restoration. He m. Lucretia, dau. and co-heiress of — Tutthill, Esq., and had issue,

- i. JOHN, of whom hereafter.

- ii. Matthew, of Wellisford House.

- iii. William, a captain in the army, who served with honour during the revolutionary war of 1688, in Ireland, where he m. and left an only son,

WILLIAM HAVILLAND, Esq. of Penn, co. Bucks, lieutenant-general and colonel of the 45th, a very gallant and distinguished officer, whose many acts of romantic generosity made him known to, and a favourite of his Majesty George III. His whole life was spent in the service of his country, for he was born (in 1717) whilst his father was on duty in Ireland. He acted as a lieutenant, under Lord Cathcart, at the memorable siege of Carthage; then under Vernon, at the conquest of Porto Bello; during the rebellion in Scotland he was aide-de-camp to Gen. Blakeney; and in the first American war, which ended in the conquest of Canada, he commanded a division of the army. Here his singular genius for mechanics enabled the army to pass the rapids, and the fertility of his resources as a general, in many novel circumstances, contributed so much to the success of our arms in America, that he received the public thanks of Lord Amhurst, whose friendship he ever after retained. So highly esteemed were his services, that when it was determined to attack Martinico, he was appointed second in command, after the surrender of which place, he commanded a division at the conquest of the Havannah. His good fortune through life had placed him in the most conspicuous scenes of action, in chosen service, and with the most eminent men, among whom his conduct gained him a high rank. When the American revolutionary war commenced, he was put on the staff; but as soon as the French invasion was threatened, the command of the western division of the island was conferred on him. Here his style of living, worthy the service of his sovereign, his character, and varied information, (of which his relative, the great Burke, was wont to say, "he knew no one who had not devoted a life in study, possess more,") enabled him to maintain with dignity his difficult situation, in a country entirely unused to the burden of arms, with honour to himself. To his own regiment he was always a kind father, and to the younger members of it his house was literally a home. He d. 16 Sept. 1784, and left issue, by Mary, dau. of Thomas Dodge, Esq. of co. Meath, Ireland, a dau., Mary, m. in 1785, to Samuel-Ruxton Fitzherbert, Esq. of Swinnerton, co. Meath, and a son,

WILLIAM, of Penn, co. Bucks, lieutenant-col. of the 45th, s. his father, and m. a niece of the great statesman, Edmund Burke; he from a sense of duty, though in ill health, accompanied his regiment to the West Indies, where he d. at Martinico, about the time he was gazetted colonel, leaving an only son,

THOMAS HAVILLAND BURKE, Esq. of Penn, co. Bucks, and of Lincoln's Inn, the only grand-nephew of Edmund Burke, whose name and arms, as his nearest relative and representative, he has, by Royal permission, added to his own.

The elder son,

JOHN HAVILLAND, Esq. of Gundenham, b. in 1658, m. Joan, dau. of Alexander Webber, Esq. of co. Cornwall, d. 22 July, 1746, and left issue,

- i. John, m. Hannah, dau. of — Bacon, Esq. of Twyhouse, co. Somerset, and d. 17 Sept. 1742; on his monument are his arms, impaling those of Bacon. He had a son and heir, John, who d. unm. in 1786; and a dau., Mary, eventually heiress, who d. in 1792, when the estate passed to her cousin, John Haviland, Esq.

- ii. Matthew, } d. s. p.
- iii. William, }

- iv. Alexander, M.A., rector of Badialton, bapt. 9 May, 1690, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Weare, Esq. of Rimington Manor, hut d. s. p. m.; on his monument are his arms, impaling those of Weare.

- v. EDWARD.

EDWARD HAVILLAND, Esq., fifth son, b. in 1692, m. 12 Dec. 1718, Mary, dau. of C. Clotworthy, Esq. of Clotworthy, co. Somerset, and by her he left, at his death, 1 Oct. 1783, a son and successor,

JOHN HAVILLAND, Esq. of Gundenham, b. 3 Jan. 1720, who s. his cousin, Mary Haviland. He m. Mary, dau. of Walter Prior, Esq., and d. 14 March, 1786, (will proved 2 April of the same year,) leaving issue,

JOHN HAVILLAND, Esq. of Gundenham, b. in 1754, who m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of Samuel Glover, Esq. of Dunham, Notts, by whom he left at his decease, in 1817, an only son, the present DR. HAVILLAND, of Cambridge, DE HAVILLAND OF HAVILLAND HALL.

DE HAVILLAND, THOMAS-FIOTT, Esq. of Havilland Hall, Guernsey, b. 10 April, 1775; m. 1st, 3 Sept. 1808, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas de Saumarez, Esq., first-cousin of the late Lord de Saumarez, and by her had issue, Thomas, Captain 55th Regt., d. of fever at Hong Kong, 6 Sept. 1842.

CHARLES-ROSS, in holy orders, m. Grace-Anna, dau. of David Verner, Esq., and niece of Colonel Verner.

John, d. young.

Emilia-Andros.

Elizabeth-Martha, m. to St. John Gore, son of the Rev.

Thomas Gore, and nephew of the late Sir Ralph Gore, Bart.

He m. 2ndly, Harriet, dau. of Anthony Gore, Esq., and niece of the late Sir Ralph Gore, Bart. Mr. de Havilland was in the E. I. Co.'s service at Madras, from 1792 to 1824, when he retired as a lieutenant-colonel. He was elected Jurat of the Royal Court of Guernsey in 1842.

Lineage.

The ancient Guernsey family of De Havilland is of Norman origin, and came from Cotantin, in Normandy, temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror. It has been known in the Isle of Guernsey since 1176, and members of the family have been solicitors and attorneys-general, jurats and bailiffs of the Royal Court, from the earliest records. In a charter, under the great seal of England, still extant, granted by EDWARD IV., in the first year of his reign, the king confirms the ancient constitution of the island, and adds many new privileges, in consideration of the gallantry displayed, and the heavy losses sustained, by "LE SIEUR THOMAS DE HAVILLAND," and others, gentlemen of Guernsey, and their followers, in recovering Mont Orgueil Castle, in Jersey, from the French, by whom it had been held during the last six years of HENRY VI.'s reign, in commemoration of which was added "a laurel branch," above the shield, as an honourable augmentation to the island arms. The Havillands in England are descended from CHRISTOPHER DE HAVILLAND, who left Guernsey, and established himself at Pool, temp. HENRY VIII. He was grandson of JAMES DE HAVILLAND, who was sworn a jurat of the Royal Court, A.D. 1527. The eldest son of this James, the jurat of 1527, was

JAMES DE HAVILLAND, attorney-general of the island, in 1588. He m. Thomasse, dau. of Richard Maindonal, and was father of

JAMES DE HAVILLAND, of Guernsey, who m. Martha, dau. of John de Vic, and had a son and heir,

JAMES DE HAVILLAND, jurat of the Royal Court of Guernsey, b. in 1612, who m. in 1640, Mary, dau. of Josias de Marchant, and was father of

JOHN DE HAVILLAND, of Guernsey, who m. Anne, dau. of John de Saumarez, jurat of the Royal Court of Guernsey, and left a son and successor,

JAMES DE HAVILLAND, Esq. of Guernsey, who m. Catherine, dau. of the Rev. John Martin, by Catherine Gibault, his wife, and d. in 1719, having had (besides three daus.) one son,

JOHN DE HAVILLAND, Esq. of Guernsey, who m. Mary, dau. of Peter Dobree, Esq., and Martha Carey, his wife, and had, besides two sons, who d. young, four other sons, John, jurat of the Royal Court, Guernsey.

James, in the Royal navy, and commanded a frigate in the Sardinian service.

Martin, sheriff of Guernsey.

PETER, of whom we treat.

And several daus.

The youngest, but survivor of all the other children,

SIR PETER DE HAVILLAND, Knt., barrister, magistrate and bailiff of Guernsey for many years, m. 1st, in 1771, Carteretta, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Fiott, and by her (who d. in 1789) had issue,

i. THOMAS-FIOTT, of Havilland Hall.

ii. Charles, m. Martha, dau. of Richard Saumarez, Esq., brother of the late Lord de Saumarez, and d. in 1845, leaving issue,

1. Charles-Richard, in holy orders, of Downside, co. Somerset.

2. Saumarez, a cadet in the E. I. Co.'s service, drowned in the Ganges.

3. James, lieut. Royal artillery.

4. John.

i. Harriet.

HAWKINS OF MIDDLESEX.

HAWKINS, CHARLES-SIDNEY, Esq. of Cantlowes, co. Middlesex, M.A., b. 16 Oct. 1817; m. 30 Oct. 1844, Thomasine, eldest dau. of the Rev. J.-G. Maddison. Mr. Hawkins, a Captain in the Worcester Militia, and a deputy-lieutenant of Middlesex, s. his father, 12 Aug. 1842.

Cincaige.

The first person of this family of whom anything is known is ANDREW HAWKINS, Esq., who was resident at Nash Court, temp. EDWARD III. He m. Joan de Nash, by whom he had issue, two sons, Richard and John. From him descended

JOHN HAWKINS, Esq. of Tavistock, Devon,* who m. Joan, dau. of William Amydas, Esq. of Launceston, Cornwall, by whom he was father of

WILLIAM HAWKINS, Esq. of Plymouth, who m. Joan, dau. of William Trelawny, Esq. of Cornwall, and grand-dau. of Sir John Trelawny, descendant of Edwin, who held the lordship of Trelawny, temp. EDWARD the Confessor: by her he had issue, a son,

SIR JOHN HAWKINS, b. in 1520, admiral and treasurer of the navy, temp. QUEEN ELIZABETH. His first voyage was to the West Indies, in 1561; his second to Nova Hispania and Guinea, in command of a small fleet. In this expedition he was so successful against the Moors, that Clarenceux, Hervey, "that then was," added for his crest of arms a demi-Moor, in his proper colour, bound in a eord. In another voyage to the West Indies, in 1568, he, with 200 men, attacked Rio de la Hacho, and put to flight Michael de Castiliano, a Spaniard, who, "in warlike wise resisted," with 1000 arquebusiers, and brought away his ensign, "for which noble action, at his return, he had a further addition of honour granted to his arms, to wit, on a canton, gold, an escallop between two palmers' staves, sable, by Clarenceux, Cook. But his greatest glory was the share he had in beating the Spaniards' invincible Armada, in 1588, when his conduct and valour both were such, that the admiral of the English navy, the Lord Charles Howard, conferred the honour of knighthood upon him (with some other brave captains besides) on the sea; and after that, when he divided his fleet into four squadrons, he assigned the third to the command of Sir John Hawkins. After holding a joint command with Sir Francis Drake, on the American coast, he d. at Porto Rico, 21 Nov. 1595, having been three times elected member of parliament. Sir John m. the dau. of — Gunson, Esq., and by her was father of

ADMIRAL SIR RICHARD HAWKINS, who also distinguished himself. He was the sixth person that passed the Straits of Magellan. After a desperate engagement, of three days' duration, with Bertrandus de Castro, who was sent out by the King of Spain's viceroy to intercept him, (he having but one ship, and the Spaniard eight,) in which Sir Richard contended, with 75 men and boys, against 1300 of the enemy, he was obliged to surrender, which he did "upon honourable articles of life and liberty, and embarkation of himself and company for their own country." The terms were not kept, and he remained a prisoner in Spain for some years. After many "high-spirited actions which," Prince says, "had they been duly recorded, (as pity it is they were not,) would have made a large volume of themselves, he d. suddenly, in 1622, being seized with apoplexy, while at the privy council." His widow, the Lady Judith, survived him seven years; by her he had two sons and three daus., i. JOHN; ii. Richard; i. Margaret; ii. Joan; and, iii. Mary. The eldest son,

JOHN HAWKINS, Esq., by Hester, his wife, had four sons, i. Robert, d. in 1644; ii. John, b. in 1639, d. in 1642; iii. JOHN, b. in 1643; and, iv. William, b. in 1644. The third son,

JOHN HAWKINS, Esq., was s. by his son,

JOHN HAWKINS, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Phillips, Esq. of Herefordshire, and dying in 1771, was s. by his youngest and only surviving son,

SIR JOHN HAWKINS, b. in 1719, author of the Science and Practice of Music, published in 1776, in 5 vols. 4to. In consequence of this publication, he was offered the degree of doctor of civil law, by the University of Oxford. This he declined, but at the request of the University, consented to sit for his portrait, which still exists in the music school at Oxford. He wrote the life, and published an edition of the works of Dr. Johnson, the lexicographer, whose executor he was. This work, which was undertaken at the expressed wish of Dr. Johnson, appeared in 1787, in 11 vols. 8vo. Sir John Hawkins was for many years a magistrate and chairman of the Quarter Sessions of Middlesex, and was knighted for his conduct in his magisterial capacity. He m. Sidney, second dau. of Peter Storer, Esq. of Cantlowes, and Ashford, in Middlesex, who, on the death of her brother, Peter Storer, jun.,

* PRINCE'S Worthies of Devon, and the patent granted in 1565.

Esq., became one of his co-heiresses. By her he had issue,

JOHN-SIDNEY, his heir.

Henry, b. 13 Sept. 1761, d. in April, 1841

Lætitia-Matilda, d. in 1836. Ann, d. an infant.

Sir John d. 21 May, 1789, and was s. by his son,

JOHN-SIDNEY HAWKINS, Esq., F.S.A., b. 14 Jan. 1758, the author of The History of the Origin and Establishment of Gothic Architecture, published in 1813, and of other works; also the editor of the Latin play of Ignoramus. He m. Emily, dau. of M. Mackenzie, Esq., by whom he had issue,

CHARLES-SIDNEY, his heir.

Emily-Louisa, b. 5 Nov. 1825.

Mr. Hawkins d. 12 Aug. 1842, and was s. by his son, the present CHARLES-SIDNEY HAWKINS, Esq. of Cantlowes.

HAYMAN formerly of KENT AND DEVON, and now of SOMERSETSHIRE AND IRELAND.

HAYMAN, THE REV. SAMUEL, of North Esk, Glanmire, co. Cork, B.A. (and formerly Fellow Commoner) of Trinity College, Dublin, b. 27 July, 1818.

Lineage.

The family of HAYMAN is of Norman descent; and their genealogical roll embraces a period of more than nine centuries.

ROLLO, the Sea King, by his marriage with Gillette, dau. of CHARLES the Simple, King of France, left issue at his death, in 917, two sons, WILLIAM LONGSWORD, Duke of Normandy (through whom derived WILLIAM the Conqueror of England, and the English kings), and

ROBERT, created Earl of Corbeil; in direct succession from whom was

HAIMON DENTATUS, 6th Earl of Corbeil and Baron of Tourney and Granville. He was slain in battle, in 1037, leaving four sons, who all accompanied the Duke of Normandy in his English invasion of 1066,

I. ROBERT FITZ-HAMON, the conqueror of South Wales, m. Sybel, dau. of Roger Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury, and d. in March, 1107, leaving issue, four daus.,

1. Cecile, abbess of Shaftesbury.

2. Hawys, abbess of Wilton.

3. Mabel, m. in 1109, Robert Fitzroy, Earl of Gloucester, natural son of HENRY I.*

4. Amy, m. the Earl of Bretagne.

II. Haimon, surnamed in the Domesday Survey, Dapifer, from his office of lord steward in the royal household, d. s. p., circa 1112.

III. Richard, ancestor of the GRANVILLE family.

IV. CREUQUERE, or CREVE-CŒUR, Lord of Chatham, whose line we follow.

Crève-cœur-en-Ange, in the arrondissement of Lisieux, gave its title to the Earl of Corbeil's youngest son, whose Christian name seems, from the family records, to have been HUGO, or HUGH. In the Battel Abbey roll he is called "Creuquere;" and he appears in an old French chronicle, relative to the battle of Hastings, as "Le Sire de Crève-cœur." His son was

ROBERT DE CREVE-CŒUR, who in 1119, founded the priory of Ledes, in Kent, the manor of which (along with the hundred of Chatham) he inherited from his uncle, Sir Robert Fitz-Hamon. He received, also, many of Haimon Dapifer's possessions, and had his lands erected into a barony, called by distinction, "Baronia de Crève-cœur," consisting of five knights' fees. The head of this barony was Chatbam, for which reason his descendants generally wrote themselves Domini de Cétham. His great-grandson,

HAIMON DE CREVE-CŒUR, was lord of Ightham, in the reign of King JOHN (now the property of the JAMES family.) This, and his other landed possessions, he bequeathed to his son, HAIMON DE CREVE-CŒUR, called likewise, Sir Haimo del Blen, from his manor of Bleane. He was also seised of Farleigh, Teston, and Ledes, and the hereditary lordship of Chatham. At his death, in extreme old age, in 1263, his grandson s.,

ROBERT HAIMON, who, according to prevailing fashion, converted his patronymic into a surname,* and thus led the way to the disuse, and finally to the extinction of the Normau affix, "de Crève-cœur." He sided with the discontented barons in the reign of HENRY III., and was one of the league, under Simon Montfort, Earl of Leicester, formed against that pusillanimous monarch. His lands were in consequence escheated in 1265, but were (excepting Chatham) restored some years after. Undeterred by this precedent, his son,

ROBERT HAIMON, surnamed "de Crève-cœur," was one of the leaders in the revolt against Gaveston, EDWARD II.'s minion, and during the temporary triumph of that unhappy monarch, had his castle of Ledes razed to the ground. The opposition of the nobles was ultimately successful, and the unfortunate EDWARD was cruelly murdered in Berkeley Castle, 22 Sept. 1327. Omitting five intervening generations, during which the orthography of the name was unsettled, and by successive owners was used as "Haimon," "Haymon," and "Hayman," indifferently, we come to

RALPH HEYMAN, or HAYMAN, who, in the reign of HENRY VII. (1485-1509) possessed considerable estates in Kent, and was ancestor of a line that received a baronetcy from CHARLES I., under patent, dated 12 Aug. 1641. (See HEYMAN of SOMERFIELD, Extinct Baronetcies.) In the list of the "Justices of the Peace and their Dwelling Parishes," which Lambard, in his curious Peregrinations of Kent, originally written in 1570, furnishes, we find the name of "RALPH HAYMAN," in Sellynge, Baylywike of Shypwey; and "among such of the nobilitie and gentry as the heralds recorded in their visitation, 1574," he mentions "RALPH HAYMAN." He was grandson of the first-mentioned Ralph Hayman. The Somersfield branch subsequently adopted the spelling "Heyman," probably for distinction's sake, but at what period it is difficult to say. Ralph Hayman's very near kinsman, if not son, was

ROBERT, or ROGER HAYMAN, Esq., b. circa 1524, who, to avoid religious persecution in Queen MARY's reign, fled from Kent, and found refuge in Devonshire, where, in 1554, he m. Joan, second dau. of Walter Yonge, Esq. of Sudburie, (see YONGE of CULLETON, Extinct Baronetcies.) By this marriage he had, with other issue,

JOHN HAYMAN, b. in 1555, an opulent merchant of Minehead, in Somersetshire. He was living in 1619, for we then find him purchasing an estate from the Luttrell family; but he d. soon after, and left three sons,

I. ROBERT, his heir.

II. William, supposed to have settled at Clonmel, in Ireland, and there founded a line which became extinct in 1828.

III. George, vivens 1649, who is believed to have founded a branch in Devonshire.†

The eldest son,

ROBERT HAYMAN, Esq., was b. in 1580, and came to Ireland in 1639, fixing himself at Youghal, co. Cork, where his descendants may still be found. He m. and had issue,

* Camden remarks, that "many surnames (sire-names) are derived from Christian names, which were in use about the time of the Conquest, and are found in the record, called the Domesday Book, and elsewhere." He gives a list of about 130, and includes the name "Hamon."—Remains, p. 130, ed. 1657.

† A member of the Devonshire family was FRANCIS HAYMAN, an eminent historical painter, whose memoir is included in most biographical dictionaries. He was b. at Exeter, in 1708, and removed to London, where his talents were immediately appreciated. A writer in the Literary Gazette (No. 894, March 8, 1834) considers him the introducer of historical painting into this country. He was appointed librarian to the Royal Academy, and filled the office until the period of his decease, which took place at his residence, Dean-street, Soho, 2 Feb. 1776.

* The LUTHER family, who were kin to the great Reformer, settled in England in the reign of HENRY VIII. Branches of great respectability exist, or did exist, in Essex and Somersetshire, and from the latter county was derived the Irish line, of which this gentleman came. The following descents are interesting:

JOHN LUTHER, Esq., b. in Somersetshire in 1623, removed to Youghal, in Ireland, circa 1650. He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Giles, Esq. of Minehead, co. Somerset, by whom (who d. 4 Dec. 1661) two daus.,

JOHN HAYMAN, Esq. of the College, Youghal, now called Myrtle Grove,* b. 10 May, 1702, mayor of Youghal in 1750 and 1751. He d. unm., 14 April, 1770, at his seat, Myrtle Grove, and was s. by his next surviving brother,

* This seat derives so much interest from its connexion with the unfortunate RALEIGH, that we shall extract its mention in the Article YOUGHAL, from LEWIS'S Topographical Dictionary of Ireland.

"The scenery around Youghal is varied, bold, and interesting, and is embellished with numerous gentlemen's seats. Among these, the most interesting to the visitor is the Warden's House of the old collegiate establishment, now called Myrtle Grove; it formed part of Queen ELIZABETH'S Irish grant to SIR WALTER RALEIGH, and was for sometime occupied by the chivalrous knight. In 1602, when Raleigh feared an attainder, he disposed of all his Irish estates to Sir Richard Boyle, afterwards created Earl of Cork; and, with the rest, passed his residence at Youghal, where Sir Richard established himself as owner and occupier, and where he died, in 1643. From his successor, Richard, the second earl, the place was purchased, in 1670, by Samuel Hayman, Esq., of the ancient Kentish and Somersetshire family of that name, and it has since continued in the possession of his descendants. The house is situated in a secluded spot near the church, and, with the exception of some of the windows which have been modernized, preserves its antique character of pointed gables and spacious chimneys, and is considered a perfect specimen of the Elizabethan style of architecture. The drawing room is panelled with polished oak, superbly carved; the mantelpiece is an elaborate and exquisite specimen of carved work in the richest designs, the lower cornice resting upon three beautiful figures, representing Faith, Hope,

THE REV. ATKIN HAYMAN, A.M., of Trinity College, Dublin, b. 11 June, 1714. He was ordained, 20 Sept. 1741, by Berkely, Bishop of Cloyne, the famous metaphysician, for the cure of Middleton, which he served twelve years. In Aug. 1759, he removed to Youghal, and for eleven years was officiating minister of St. Mary's Collegiate Church, in that town. In 1754, he was appointed chaplain to the Earl of Hillsborough, and, 17 May, 1759, was presented to the living of Carrigrohanebeg, whence he was, 3 July, 1764, preferred to the united vicarages of Ballyelagh and Castlemagner, near Mallow, which he retained until his death. In 1742, he had m. his cousin, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of the Rev. Walter Atkin, of Leasington, incumbent of Middleton, and vicar-general of the diocese of Cloyne,* (by Elizabeth Coningsby, his wife, of Hampton Court, co. Hereford, cousin to EARL CONINGSBY, see Extinct Peerage.) and by her (who d. 30 Jan. 1756) had issue,

- i. John, bapt. at Middleton, 9 May, 1748, d. 11 Dec. 1749.
- ii. Walter, bapt. 25 May, 1749, d. 30 Nov. of the same year.
- iii. WALTER-ATKIN, his heir.
- iv. SAMUEL, whose line we follow.
- v. John, bapt. at Youghal, 4 Aug. 1754, buried 31 May, 1755.

- ii. Ursula, bapt. 19 Sept. 1744, d. in infancy.
- iii. Anne, bapt. 24 Nov. 1746, d. 23 May, 1751.

He m. 2ndly, 12 Aug. 1757, Elizabeth, dau. of Frank Wilson, Esq. of Youghal, but by that lady (who d. 3 Oct. 1776) had no issue. The Rev. Atkin Hayman d. 13 April, 1793, and was buried in the family vault in St. Mary's Church, Youghal. His elder surviving son succeeded,

WALTER-ATKIN HAYMAN, Esq. of Myrtle Grove, bapt. at Middleton, 30 June, 1750, m. 28 July, 1783, Eliza, dau. of Henry White, Esq. of New Ross, co. Tipperary, who d. s. p., 22 Aug. 1800, at Carmarthen, South Wales, on her journey home from the Bristol hot wells. At his death, 5 June, 1816, he alienated the greater part of the family property, bequeathing it to some illegitimate children, and left an only brother,

SAMUEL HAYMAN, Esq., a doctor of medicine, bapt. at Middleton, 26 Sept. 1753. He studied at Edinburgh, whence his diploma is dated, 24 June, 1779, and was a favourite pupil of the great physician, Cullen. He m. 17 Nov. 1782, Melian, younger dau. and co-heiress of Matthew Jones, Esq., collector of Youghal, (by Audriah, his wife, second dau. of James Roch, Esq. of Woodbine Hill, co. Waterford, descended from the Fermoy family,) and by her, who d. 25 Feb. 1835, he had issue,

- i. ATKIN, lieut. R.N., b. at Prospect-row, Cork, 17 Sept. 1783. He entered the navy at the age of 14, being appointed to the frigate Diana, 26 Jan. 1797, and served under the heroic Nelson, under Captain (Sir Thomas) Hardy, and various other great commanders, in the Vanguard, Foudroyante, Perseus, Princess Charlotte, and other ships, whose names have become historical things. In July, 1798, he was wrecked on the Isle of Planes, near Porto Farina, 27 miles north of Tunis, while the captain of the L'Aigle, of 40 guns, on board of which he happened to be, was crowding all sail to join Lord Nelson for the battle of the Nile. Next year he was actively engaged in the Neapolitan hostilities, and was an officer of the Vanguard, when (in April, 1799) she brought their Sicilian majesties for safety from Naples to Palermo. Soon after, he was transferred to the Foudroyante, and was serving in her at the time (30 June) the unfortunate Caraccioli was condemned by the court-martial which assembled on board by Nelson's order. Towards the close of the same year he served in the Perseus, bomb, on the coast of Italy, and at the siege of Malta. In 1801, he shared in the dangers of the Baltic expedition, in the Ruby, 64, under Sir Edward Berry; and in the four succeeding years he served in the Leander, in her voyages to Bermuda and elsewhere, of which Capt. Basil Hall, then a midshipman of the Leander, has left us so pleasing a record, in his Fragments of Voyages and Travels. The officers on the Bermudian station at this time enjoyed the friendly society of the poet Moore, who had come out from England in the Phaëton frigate, to discharge the duties of an official appointment he then held on the island. The poet, in a recent edition of his works, makes happy allusion to this interchange of social regard: "The very names of the ships," he writes, "then so familiar to my ears—the Leander, the Boston, the Cambrian—transport me back to the season of youth and those Summer Isles once more."—(MOORE'S Poetical Works, ed. 1841.) Lieutenant Hayman then served on the North American coast, and frequently took part in the desperate hand-to-hand combats fought with the United States' navy; but his health did not keep pace with his professional ardour, and when on the eve of promotion, having been four years a first-lieutenant, he was compelled to retire, and was invalided 13 Dec. 1809. He m. 6 Feb. 1813, at Douglas Church, near Cork, Eliza, younger dau. of the late Walter Atkin, Esq. of Leasington, high-sheriff of co. Cork in 1766, and by her (who m. 2ndly, 17 May, 1821, William-Andrews Lamb, Esq., J. P., of Kilcolman Park, Bandon) left issue, at his death, 25 March, 1817, at Sunday's Well, Cork.

Family of Jones.

EDWARD JONES, Esq. of Loughvree, co. Montgomery, presumed, from identification of names, dates, and armorial bearings, to have been a younger son of JOHN AP DAVID, of Lliviôr, in that shire, (see DAVIES OF LLIVIOR, under OWEN OF GLANSEVERN,) and through him to have descended from BROCHWELL YSGITHROG, Prince of Powis, had, with other issue, two sons,

- i. EDWARD, in holy orders, b. circa 1635. He was educated at Westminster and Cambridge, and, in 1662, came to Ireland with the Duke of Ormond, the viceroy, as do-and Charity, and the whole embellished with a profusion of richly carved figures and emblematical devices. In removing the panelling of one of the rooms some years since, an aperture in the wall was discovered, in which were found several old books; one, bound in oak, consisted of two parts: the first, in black letter, a History of the Bible, with coloured initials, was printed at Mantua, in 1479; the other part, printed at Strasburgh, in 1483, is Peter Comestor's Ecclesiastical History, translated by John Schallus, professor of Physic at Hernefeld, dedicated to Prince Gonzales; it is now in the possession of Matthew Hayman, Esq. of South Abbey. The demesne of Myrtle Grove is remarkable for the luxuriant growth of myrtles, bays, the arbutus, and other exotics, in the open air, some of which have attained the height of twenty feet. In the garden of these grounds, the potato brought by Sir Walter Raleigh from America was [first] planted; but, from an erroneous opinion that the apple which grew on the stalk was the sole produce of the plant, it was gathered and rejected, and it was not till some time after, when the ground was dug for another crop, that the potatoes were discovered, and the value of the plant appreciated: from these few plants the whole country was, in course of time, stocked."

* Mr. Atkin was distinguished for his preaching to the native Irish, in their own language. A very interesting account of his labours and ministry will be found in MANT'S History of the Irish Church, vol. ii. p. 167.

mestic chaplain. By him he was appointed master of the grammar-school of Kilkenny, founded by the house of Ormond; where he was the first preceptor of Dr. Jonathan Swift, dean of St. Patrick's, who received his public education in that seminary. His rare abilities ensured him rapid advancement, and in 1670, he was first appointed to the prebend of Freshford, in the diocese of Ossory; thence, 16 Nov. 1678, to the deanery of Lismore; and thence, in 1682, to the bishopric of Cloyne, by letters-patent, dated 26 Feb. of that year. His love for his native land induced him to seek a return, and, at his own request, he was translated to the see of St. Asaph's, Wales, 13 Dec. 1692, though of far inferior value and importance. Queen ANNE, on her accession, to mark her royal favour, was pleased to create him lord-high-almoner. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Kennedy, Bart. of Mount Kennedy, co. HAYMAN OF BYE FARM.

HAYMAN, GEORGE, Esq. of Bye Farm and Holford, co. Somerset, b. 27 June, 1771; m. 1st, in 1821, Mary, relict of — Davis, Esq. of Taunton, but by her (who d. 28 August, 1835) he had no issue. He m. 2ndly, in 1838, Miss Ann Western, of Tiverton, co. Devon.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the baronetial family of HEYMAN, of Somerfield, co. Kent, (for whom, see Extinct Baronetcies, and for higher descents, the previous article.)

ROBERT, or ROGER HAYMAN, Esq., of the Somerfield family, was driven from Kent, by religious persecution, in Queen MARY's reign. He fled to Devon, and settled at or near to the city of Exeter, where he m., circa 1554, Joan, second dau. of Walter Yonge, Esq. of Sudburie, (see YONGE OF CULLETON, Extinct Baronetcies.) By this marriage he had, with other issue,

JOHN HAYMAN, b. in 1555, an opulent merebant, of Minehead, co. Somerset. He was living in 1619, as we find him in that year purchasing an estate from the Luttrell family. At his death he had three sons,

- I. ROBERT, his heir
- II. William, who settled at Clonmel, in Ireland.
- III. George, who founded a branch in Devonshire.

The eldest,

ROBERT HAYMAN, Esq., b. in 1580, removed to Ireland, and, in 1639, settled at Youghal, co. Cork. He had issue,

- I. GEORGE, of Minehead.
- II. William, of Bristol, who had issue,

1. Thomas, d. s. p.
2. John, settled in Virginia.
3. WILLIAM (Sir), mayor of Bristol in 1684, in which year he was knighted at Whitehall by King JAMES II. From his free expression, notwithstanding, of Protestant opinions, he incurred the Royal displeasure; and when the infamous Jeffries held his sittings at Bristol, after Monmouth's defeat at Sedgemoor, Sir William Hayman was made to stand at the bar in his scarlet robes, and was treated with insult and opprobrium. He had m. in 1670, Mary, dau. of William Colston, sheriff of Bristol, only surviving sister and heir of EDWARD COLSTON, the philanthropist, and had an only child,

MARY HAYMAN, who m. in 1698, Thomas Edwards, Esq. of Filkins, near Lechlade, co. Gloucester, by whom, Sarah, m. to John Pullen, Esq., s. p.

 Mary, m. in 1723, to Francis, second Baron Middleton, (see Peerage.)
 Sophia, m. to Alexander-Ready Colston, Esq. (see COLSTON OF ROUNDWAY PARK.)

1. Phillis.
2. Elizabeth.

- I. A dau., m. to — Gully, of the Trevennen family.
- II. A dau., m. to — Perring, of Taunton.
- III. A dau., m. to — Chaplin, of Lincolnshire.

GEORGE HAYMAN, Esq., who s. his father, m. in 1634, Miss Atkins, of Minehead, by whom he had,

- I. SAMUEL, of Youghal.
- II. Robert, of Minehead, d. there, unm. in March, 1720.
- III. George, m. Miss Giles, of Minehead, and d. before 1720, leaving grand children, his own issue having predeceased him.
- IV. Simon, who left two sons,
 - I. Samuel Hayman, of Minehead, who had issue, WILLIAM HAYMAN, b. in 1709, familiarly known as "the Old Justice," d. unm. in 1785.
 - Mary, m. Mr. Warren, of Minehead, and d. in 1751, leaving issue.
 - Elizabeth, m. in 1752, to the Rev. John Bere, vicar of Morebath, d. in 1763.
2. Nicholas Hayman.
- V. Michael, vivens 1709.
- I. Joan, m. to John Ball, Esq.
- II. Elizabeth, d. unm. before 1720.

Mr. Hayman d. 12 Nov. 1670, and was s. by his eldest son,

SAMUEL HAYMAN, Esq. of South Abbey, Youghal, m. in 1663, his cousin Elizabeth, dau. of John Atkin, Esq. of Polemore, near Youghal, and by her (who d. 22 Feb. 1676) he had issue,

- I. JOHN, of Cloynepriest, b. in 1664, M.P. for Youghal from 1703 to 1713. He m. in 1687, Hannah, dau. of James Croekford, Esq. of Ellseombe, in Somerset, and had by her (who d. at Minehead, 25 Dec. 1688) an only child, Atkin, d. in infancy.
- He d. 21 Aug. 1731.
- II. GEORGE, whose line we follow.
- III. SAMUEL, ancestor of the Irish family, (see preceding article.)
- I. Jane, m. 20 July, 1682, to John Vaughan, Esq., and 2ndly, 11 May, 1685, to Jasper Lucas, Esq.
- II. Elizabeth, m. 3 May, 1688, to Edward Tottenham, Esq. of Tottenham Green, co. Wexford, (see that family.)
- III. Frances, m. 9 April, 1700, John Luther, Esq. of Youghal, and d. in 1727, leaving issue.

The second son,

GEORGE HAYMAN, Esq., returned to Somersetshire, where he m. in Oct. 1687, Mary, only child and heiress of John Croekford, Esq., by Ann, his wife, dau. of Robert and Mary Speed. He d. at Bye Farm, an estate he received with his wife, in 1746, having had issue six sons,

- I. SAMUEL, on whom the estates were entailed, but who d. unm., when they passed to his next brother.
- II. ATKIN, whom we follow.
- III. John, of Bilbrook, m. his cousin, Hannah, second dau. of John Luther, Esq. of Youghal, by Frances, his wife, youngest dau. of Samuel Hayman, Esq., (see preceding generation.) He d. 7 April, 1763, leaving,
 1. George, of Bilbrook, who in 1766, became of weak mind, and d. unm. in 1799.

2. John, d. on the coast of Guinea in 1757, unm.
1. Elizabeth, m. John Smith, Esq. of Monksilver, and had by him an only child, Anne, m. to the Rev. Robert-Freke Gould, of Luckham, Devon.
2. Mary, m. to John Feltham, Esq. of East Quantocks-head, s. p.
- iv. William, of Old Cleeve, m. Dorothy, dau. of John Cundit, Esq. of Kilve, and by her (who d. 4 Aug. 1723) had one dau., Mary, who d. in childhood.
- v. Walter, d. unm. in youth.
- vi. Speed, b. in 1699, d. unm. 1 Nov. 1769, and was buried at Holford.

He d. at his seat, Bye Farm, in 1746, and was s. by his second son,

ATKIN HAYMAN, Esq. of Bye, b. in 1690, m. Joan, dau. of Stephens, Esq. of Old Cleeve, and had by her eleven children, of whom two only arrived at manhood,

- i. GEORGE, of Bilbrook, b. in 1734, d. unm. 24 July, 1797.
- ii. JOHN, of Lydeard St. Lawrence, heir to his brother.

He d. 27 June, 1747, and was s. by his elder son, on whose death, s. p., in 1797, the next brother succeeded,

JOHN HAYMAN, Esq., b. in 1740, who inherited all the estates of his brother, with the exception of one which he had willed to his cousin Elizabeth, wife of John Smith, Esq. (as above.) He m. 26 April, 1770, Elizabeth, dau. of John Smyth, Esq. of Holford, and by her (who d. 23 Feb. 1823) had issue,

- i. GEORGE, now of Holford.
- ii. John, of Bilbrook, b. 1 Sept. 1773, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Veysey, of Bowerhays, Carhampton, and by her (who d. 9 Dec. 1841) has an only son, GEORGE, of Bilbrook, m. 30 Jan. 1846, Miss Emma Escott, and has issue, a son, George-Escott, b. 5 Jan. 1847.
- iii. William, of Hungerford, b. 13 Aug. 1777, m. Anna-Maria, dau. of Captain Robert Lenden, of Bristol, by whom (who d. 23 Dec. 1841) he had issue,
 1. Robert-George, b. in 1805.
 2. John-Lenden, m. 12 Feb. 1846, Miss Elizabeth Howse, of Old Cleeve, and has issue, a dau., Anna-Maria, b. 1 Feb. 1847.
 3. William.
- iv. Samuel, b. 22 Feb. 1780, d. unm. 23 Jan. 1833.

Lineage.

This family, which came originally from Cambridgeshire, and spelled the name Hixon, have long been of high standing in the co. of Kerry. The first on record there, we have been able to trace, is

THE REV. JOHN HICKSON, who was appointed rector, by patent, of the parishes of Killiuey and Kilgobbin, in the diocese of Ardferd. His son,

THOMAS HICKSON, m. Frances Hussey, dau. of Walter Hussey,* of Castle Gregory, by his wife, Catherine, dau. of Fitz Gerald, of Kilmurry, and had issue, (besides a dau., Catherine, m. to Walter Langdon, son of the Rev. Nathaniel Langdon, Dean of Ardferd, previous to 1641,) three sons, viz.,

I. RICHARD, who m. Martha, dau. of Captain Theobald M'Ghee,† by Bridget, his wife, second dau. of Sir Thomas Crosbie, of Ballyheigue, and had two sons and two daus., all of whom d. unm.

Mr. Hickson m. 2ndly, Julia, dau. of Christopher Delmege, of Castlepark, co. Limerick, but has no issue.

Robert, m. Margaret Lynch, dau. of Mark Lynch, Esq. of Drumcory, co. Galway, relict of — Watts, Esq., and has issue, Robert, John, Cecilia, Mary, and Anne.

* This Walter Hussey (proprietor of Castle Gregory, Ballybeggan, and The Magheries) was second son of Meyler Hussey, who founded the castle of Castle Gregory, by his wife, Frances Spring: the elder son, Nicholas, was killed in the wars. In 1641, Castle Gregory was held by this Walter for the King, and after sustaining a protracted siege by CROMWELL's forces, the garrison, with their commander, escaped by night to Minard Castle, which they defended until Colonels Le Hunte and Sadleir, finding they could make no impression by cannonading it from works erected for the purpose, sprang a mine in the vaults beneath, and blew up the castle, with the remnant of the garrison and their gallant chief.

† Captain Theobald M'Ghee was second husband of Bridget Crosbie: her first husband was Philip Morgell, by whom she had two sons, Thomas and Philip. The mother of this lady was Bridget Tynte, Sir Thomas Crosbie's first wife. Her elder sister was married to Anthony Stoughton, ancestor of the Stoughtons of Ballyhorgan, in Kerry.

2. James, m. Mary,* dau. of John O'Connell, of Newtown, co. Cork, by his wife, Avis Hilliard, and left issue,

Thus:—

Alice Conway = Patrick Dowdall.

Catherine = Patrick Peppard.

Constance = Morgan O'Connell.

John = Avis Hilliard.

Morgan = Christiana Stevens, of Devonshire, niece of Denys Rolle, father of John, 1st Lord Rolle.

Mary = James Hickson, as above.

Avis Conway = Robert Blennerhassett.

Catherine = Richard Mac Loughlin.

Avis = John Mason, of Bally-Mac Elligott, great-grandson of Sir John Mason, of Sion House, near London, by his wife, Eliza Touchet, dau. of John, Lord Audley.

Barbara = William Hilliard.

Avis = John O'Connell.

Morgan, married, as at the other side.

Mary = James Hickson.

† The first of the Conway family who settled in Ireland, was Capt. Jenkin Conway, (married to Mary Herbert,) who, with his three brothers, Hugh, Edward, and William, went to the sister island in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, to plant in Killorglin, in Kerry, one of the forfeited estates of Garrett, Earl of Desmond.

† This coat was confirmed by William Camden, in 1617, (14 JAMES I.,) to Thomas Hixon, of Greenwood, keeper of the King's wardrobe, who descended out of Cambridgeshire, and who at his death left his manor of Greenwood and Willatts, for various charitable purposes.—GWILLIM'S Display of Heraldry, 6th edit., London, 1724.

Lineage.

This family is called by Camden a knightly one, and traces its origin from an early period.

SIR CHRISTOPHER HILDYARD, Knt. of Wynstead, co. York, (eldest son of Peter Hildyard, living in the time of HENRY VII., and then the representative of an ancient and eminent family, by his wife, Joan, second dau. of Sir Martin del See, of Barnston,) was s. by his son, HOG OF NEWLISTON.

HOG, JAMES-MAITLAND, Esq. of Newliston, co. Linlithgow, b. 7 Aug. 1799; m. 7 Aug. 1827, Helen, fourth dau. of Sir Alexander-Charles-Maitland Gibson, Bart. of Clifton Hall, and has issue, THOMAS-ALEXANDER, b. 14 Jan. 1835.

Helen-Maitland.

Mr. Hog, a magistrate for the counties of Linlithgow, Mid-Lothian, and Fife, and a deputy-lieutenant of the first-named shire, s. his brother Roger, 31 Dec. 1833.

Lineage.

The surname of Hog, one of local origin, is of great antiquity in Scotland: coeval with the retirement of Cospatrick, Earl of Northumberland, into North Britain, about the time of the Norman Conquest, it became hereditary in the reign of MALCOLM CANMORE, and was first assumed by the proprietors of the lands of Hogstown, in the shire of Angus, for we find in the bond of submission given in 1296 by the barons of Scotland to EDWARD I. of England, as recorded in Prynn's history, that ALEXANDER HOG, ancestor of the family of whom we are treating is styled "Alexander de Hogstown." This Alexander was father of JAMES HOG, who m. Jean Henderson, and had a son, ROGER HOG, a burgess of Edinburgh in 1330, who acquired different charters in the reign of DAVID II. of the lands of Dalry and Eistfentown, in the constabulary of Haddington; he gave a dotation of the lands of Pitravie, in Fifeshire, to St. Nicholas' altar; and a charter in the same reign appears in ROBERTSON'S Collections: "Roger Hog, burgensi de Edinburgh, tenementi et omnium terrarum et annuorum reddituum ejus in dieto burgo, 23rd Augt. a. r. 34." His son, JOHN HOG, who is mentioned in the second roll of the General Register-house, as having obtained, in the 3rd of King ROBERT II., A.D. 1373, a charter confirming a grant, of the deceased Isabel, Countess of Rife, to himself and his mother, Margaret, out of the lands of Over and Nether Sydserff, in the barony of North Berwick, was father of ROGER HOG, whose son, ALEXANDER HOG, of Hogstown, gave a charter of alienation to Sir Alexander Hume, in the reign of James III. (1484.) He was founder of the house of Harcarse, in Berwickshire, from which sprung Sir Roger Hog, senator of the College of Justice, and also,

JOHN HOG, Esq. of Cammo, (now New Saughton,) co. Mid-Lothian, and Ladykirk, co. Berwick, son and heir of WILLIAM HOG, Esq., immediate younger brother of Sir Roger Hog, Knt. of Harcarse, one of the senators of the College of Justice, by Janet, his wife, dau. of Sir Robert Douglas, Knt. of Glenbervie, grandson of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus. He m. 27 June, 1707, Mary, dau. of Alexander Cochrane, Esq. of Barbauchlaw, co. Linlithgow, and had issue,

John, m. in 1736, Barbara, dau. of Sir Christopher Musgrave, Bart. of Edenhall, and left issue two daus., one of whom m. in 1787, the Rev. Mr. Howard, stated in Wood's History of the Parish of Cramond to be brother of John, Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire.
ROGER, of whom we treat.

The younger son,

ROGER HOG, Esq. of Newliston, b. 22 Nov. 1715, described in the certificate, in 1783, from the Lyon Office of Scotland, of the matriculation of his arms, as "ROGER HOG, Esq., heir male and representative of the ancient families of Hog of Harcarse and Bogend, and chief of the surname." He m. 14 March, 1738, Rachel, dau. of Thomas Missing, Esq. of Stubbington Park, co. Hants, and had issue,

HOGG OF GILSTOWN, CHURCH VIEW, AND CARTRON.

HOGG, GODFREY, Esq. of Church View, co. Roscommon, b. in Nov. 1812; m. Ellen, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Knox, (brother of Colonel Knox, of Prehen, co. Londonderry, and nephew of Maurice, Lord Hartland,) by Ellen, his wife, dau. of — Dillon, Esq. of Ashgrove, co. Louth, and has issue, one son,

JAMES.

Mr. Hogg is a magistrate for Roscommon, and s. his father in March, 1831.

Lineage.

THE REV. JAMES HOGG, the immediate ancestor of this family derived descent from the Hogs of Hogstown, N.B., (see preceding lineage.) He was minister of South Leith in 1656, and as DOUGLAS, in his Baronage of Scotland affirms, suffered for his attachment to the House of Stuart; for General Monk, in the service of CROMWELL, had turned his church into a stable, and compelled his congregation to hear their minister in the open fields, because he had remembered CHARLES II. in his prayers. He m. Mary Gordon, and by her was father, with others, of

JOHN HOGG, who m. Ellen, dau. of John Hogg, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Thomas, son and heir of Sir John Charteris, of Amisfield, in the shire of Haddington, by the Lady Catherine Crichton, dau. of William, Earl of Dumfries, and by this lady had, with other issue, a son,

THE REV. JAMES HOGG, who fearing the fate of his grandfather, and the infuriate zeal of the Covenanters, left his native country, went to Ireland, in 1678, and in a few years after was presented to the rectory of Kilmore, in the diocese of Elphin; he resided at Lowfield, co. Roscommon, and was buried in the cemetery of his rectory, about the year 1712, leaving, by Susanna King, his wife, three sons and one dau., viz.,

I. GILBERT, of whom presently.

II. John, of Cartron, co. Roscommon, who m. Jane, dau. of Captain John Hall, son of Henry Hall, Bishop of Killala and Achonry, by Susanna, his wife, dau. of Andrew Blackburne, of Carrickena, co. Roscommon, and Susanna King, his wife, and by this lady left at his decease, in 1760, in the 70th year of his age, (with a dau., Essy,) two sons,

James, his heir.

Gilbert, of Moyglass, co. Roscommon, m. Jane, dau. of James Honan, Esq. of Ballycommen, co. Roscommon, by Mary, his wife, dau. of James Armstrong, Esq. of Annaduff, co. Leitrim, and Jane, his wife, sister of Mary Nisbett, of Derrycarn, co. Leitrim, and dau. of Francis Waldron, Esq. of Cartron, co. Roscommon, by Mary, his wife, dau. of Charles Jones, of Ard-naree, co. Sligo, and had a son, James, who was in the commission of the peace for Roscommon, and d. unm.; and two daus., Susanna, m. to William M'Donnell, Esq.; and Jane, m. to Edward Waldron, Esq. of Drumsna: both have issue.

The eldest son,
James, of Cartron, m. Anne, dau. of Clarke, Esq., co. Westmeath, and d. in 1787, leaving (with other issue) an only son,

James, of Cartron, who m. Isabella, dau. of James-Bell Booth, Esq., of the Drumcorbin family, co. Cavan, (descended of the ancient family of Booth, of Barton, in Lincolnshire,) by Margaret Bell, his wife, aunt of Jane Betty, wife of Richard Simpson, Esq. of Jamestown, co. Leitrim, and of William Betty, Esq. of Rutland-square, in the city of Dublin, assistant-barrister for the co. Cavan. He d. in 1816, leaving (with a dau., Margaret) four sons, Gilbert, of Cartron; James, d. unm. in 1836;
John-Booth; and Andrew, in holy orders.

III. Andrew, of Lowfield, m. Margaret, sister of Thomas Hogg, Esq. of Edinburgh, and had two sons, John, who settled in the north of England, and left issue; and Andrew, (posthumous,) who also left issue.

I. Essy, m. James Honan, Esq. of Ballycommin, co. Roscommon, only son, by Mary, his wife, (dau. of Andrew Blackburne, Esq. of Carrickena, and Susanna, his wife, granddau. of Dr. Edward King, Bishop of Elphin,) of the Rev. James Honan, (son of the Rev. Dr. Honan, of Elphin, by Sarah Cawfield, his wife,) vicar of Kilkefin, Cloonluskel, and Cloonfinlaugh, in the diocese of Elphin, in 1664, and had (with two daus., Mary, m. Gilbert

This gentleman, a magistrate, s. his mother in the estate of Argaty, in 1806, and his father in that of Softlaw in 1843.

Lineage.

Family of Binning.

The chief family of this name in Scotland was Binning, of Binning, whose ancestors acquired those lands lying in the county of Linlithgow, and when surnames became hereditary, assumed the territorial name as a patronymic. The immediate ancestor of whom we have certain information was,

WILLIAM BYNNE, who, in the year 1308, took the castle of Linlithgow from the English, by concealing himself and seven sons in a wagon of hay, which was stopped in the threshold, when the porter and those with him were instantly slain, and a large party of friends, lying in ambush, was admitted, and the garrison put to the sword. The castle was delivered by its captor to King ROBERT BRUCE, who rewarded him with a gift of lands, and assigned to the family, to perpetuate the memory of this hardy adventure, an augmentation of a loaded wagon to their armorial bearings, (vide BARBOUR'S Life of King Robert Bruce, chap. 46.) William was s. by his son,

BYNENE, who assisted his father in assaulting the castle of Linlithgow. He was s. by his son,

BYNENE, of Bynene, who was father of

WILLIAM BYNENE, of Bynene, who is mentioned as proprietor of the lands of Binning, in a charter from King JAMES II., to his son and heir,

DAVID DE BYNENE, who obtained a charter, under the great seal, dated 18 Nov. 1446, of the lands of Easter Binning, in the co. of Linlithgow, wherein he is designed the son and heir of William de Bynene. He was s. by his son and heir,

WILLIAM BYNENE, of Bynene, who was father of

DAVID BYNENE, of Bynene, who was s. by his son and heir,

THOMAS BINNING, designed of Carlowriehaugh, lying in Mid-Lothian, who got a charter of those lands from James, Lord Torphichen, dated 4 Sept. 1571, and on the 9th of Jan. 1573, he got a charter of confirmation under the great seal of King JAMES VI. He m. Catharine, dau. of Livingston of Inghismacabans, by whom he had, JAMES, his heir; Thomas; and Agnes. The eldest son and heir,

JAMES BINNING, of Carlowriehaugh, m. 1st, 20 Sept. 1618, Marion, dau. of Addinstone of Addinstone, and by her had two sons and two daus. He m. 2ndly, 26 April, 1636, Euphemia, dau. of Baillie of Jerviston. By her he had an only son, SIR WILLIAM, who carried on the line of the family. The last named

SIR WILLIAM BINNING, who, on the extinction of the males of the first marriage, carried on the representation of this ancient family, was b. 11 March, 1637, his mother being then fifty, and his father fifty-seven years of age. He became a great merchant, and in company with Sir William Bruce, of Kinross, Sir Robert Baird, of Saughton Hall, and Sir Robert Barclay, of Pearston, fitted out privateers during the two wars with the States of Holland. He engaged successfully in many great mercantile undertakings, became provost of Edinburgh, and, in 1675, purchased the estate of Walliefoord from Sir John Falconer, master of the Mint. Sir William m. 27 Dec. 1662, Elizabeth, dau. of Laurence Scot, of Bavelaw, by whom he had,

i. Laurence, m., and d. before his father; issue now extinct.

ii. James, d. unm.

iii. WILLIAM, his heir, m. Isabella, dau. of John Dundas, of Duddingston, and had issue, William, John, Laurence, and two daus., who all d. unm. He sold the estate of Walliefoord, but left the proceeds to David, second son of Catharine, second dau. of his brother Charles.

iv. CHARLES, of whose line we treat.

The fourth son,

CHARLES BINNING, Esq., solicitor-general for Scotland in 1722, m. Margaret, dau. of Montgomery of Broomlands, co. Ayr, by whom he had a son,

WILLIAM BINNING, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Archibald Stewart, Esq. of Torrance, and by her had a son, Charles, who d. unm. in 1754; and three daus., Elizabeth, CATHARINE, and Isabella. The second dau.,

VI. Janet-Keith.

He m. 2ndly, in 1844, Mrs. Elizabeth Cosens, of Kames. Mr. Hood is a deputy-lieutenant and magistrate for the co. of Berwick.

Lineage.

The surname of Hood, in Scotland, is almost entirely confined to the eastern district of Berwickshire, where it has existed for a long period.

There has ever been a tradition and belief in this family, that their progenitor came from England, and was descended from Nobilis ille Exlex famosissimus Robertus Fitzooth, vel Hoode, Comes de Huntingtun, temp. HENRY II. et RICHARD I.

JAMES HOOD, and his predecessors, possessed property in the parish of Eymouth in the Merse, in the reigns of JAMES VI. and CHARLES I., called by their name, "Hoodsland," and part of which, although sold in 1697, is still in the county records under that designation. He survived his younger brother, THOMAS HWDE, b. in 1648, whose name is so spelled on his tombstone in Aytun, where several generations of the family are interred. He left two sons, JOHN and THOMAS. John, the eldest, was b. in 1677, and d. in 1732, leaving also two sons; THOMAS, the younger of the two, b. in 1727, acquired the estate of Stoneridge, and was s. by his elder brother, JOHN, of Stoneridge, b. in 1719, and who d. in 1810, and hequeathed his property to his third cousin, the present JOHN HOOD, Esq. of Stoneridge.

THOMAS HOOD, second son of Thomas Hwde, was b. in 1683, and d. in 1725, leaving, by his wife, Catherine Rutherford, one son, THOMAS HOOD, b. in 1714, who m. Mary Cockburn, dau. of David Cockburn, Esq., Langton, and d. in 1777, leaving two sons and three daus.

THOMAS HOOD, of Hardacres, co. Berwick, the eldest son, was b. in 1749, and d. in 1834. He was a person of singular ability and worth. His opinion and sound judgment, as a magistrate and referee, were much respected, and few have ever been more esteemed in the county they lived in. He m. in 1788, his cousin-german, Agnes Cockburn, third dau. of Thomas Cockburn, of Rowehester, and had two sons and two daus. The eldest son, Thomas Hood, capt. in 75th regt., d. in Santa Maura, in 1818, and by his wife, Rebecca Walker, of Wooden, left one dau. The second son, JOHN HOOD, of Stoneridge, succeeded to that property in 1810, and survived his father. He is the present possessor.

Family of Cockburn.

THOMAS COCKBURN, of Rowchester, b. in 1723, from whom the present John Hood, of Stoneridge, is thus paternally and maternally descended, was deputy-keeper of the Great Seal of Scotland. His great-grandfather, James Cockburn, of Selburnrig, descended in direct line from Cockburn of that ilk, and Langton, chief of that very ancient Border family, lost, in the time of the troubles, his property of Selburnrig, in Lammermoor, originally a part of the estate of Langton, which a predecessor, a younger son, acquired from his father. JAMES COCKBURN, from the side he espoused in the politics of the time, was obligated to place his lands and their titles in the keeping of his kinsman and chief, Sir Archibald Cockburn, and to flee to Holland for security; but Sir Archibald contrived, by consent of the government of the day, to keep both lands and titles to himself, and they still form a part of Langton estate. Thomas Cockburn, of Rowchester, m. in 1752, Agnes Scott, dau. of John Scott, Belford, Roxburghshire, (who, to his great injury, was a keen partisan of Prince Charles Stuart, in 1745,) by Marion, dau. of Baillie of Ashiesteel, and his wife, Mary Wood, dau. of the Bishop of Edinburgh, temp. CHARLES II. John Scott was son of Charles Scott, of Palace Hill, ("out" and forfeited in 1715, in the cause of the old Chevalier, and died in the Tower of London,) by Margaret, sister of Alexander, Lord Rutherford, and grandson of Sir John Scott, Bart. of Ancrum, by Miss Scott, of Maugerton, his wife, in 1671. Thomas Cockburn and Agnes Scott had three sons and six daus.,

- I. John, after his father's death designed of Rowchester. He m. Jane Ross, beiress of Shandwick, Rosshire, and, by the entail, assumed the name of COCKBURN-ROSS, of Shandwick, and left issue.
- II. Thomas, civil service, Madras, afterwards of Rochampton, Surrey, m. Henrietta Colebrooke, niece of Sir J. Colebrooke, Bart. Their only dau., Agnes-Mary, m. Henry, eldest son of Sir Stafford Northcote, Bart. of Pynes, Devonshire, and d. in 1840, leaving issue.
- III. Alexander, m. Olympia, dau. of Gen. Sir Alexander Campbell, Bart., and had issue, the present SIR ALEXANDER-THOMAS COCKBURN-CAMPBELL, Bart., (see BURKE'S Peerage and Baronetage.)
- I. Marianne, d. unm.
- II. Mary, d. unm.
- III. AGNES, m. to THOMAS HOOD, of Hardacres.

HUGHES OF PLAS COCH.

HUGHES, WILLIAM-BULKELEY, Esq. of Plâs Côch, co. Anglesey, and Brynddû, in the same county, b. 26 July, 1797; m. 19 April, 1825, Elizabeth, widow of Harry Wormald, Esq. of Woodhouse House, near Leeds, and heiress of Jonathan Nettleship, Esq. of Mattersey Abbey, co. Nottingham. Mr. Hughes is a magistrate for the counties of Anglesey and Caernarvon, and deputy-lieutenant of the latter county. He has represented the Caernarvonshire Boroughs in parliament since 1837.

Lineage.

The progenitor of this ancient line was LLOWARCH AP BRAN, Lord of Cwmwd-Menai, in Anglesey, founder of the II. Noble Tribe of North Wales and Powys, who flourished in the twelfth century. This noble, whose chief seat was Porthaml, in Anglesey, m. Gwenllian, dau. of Conan, younger son of Owen Gwynedd, Prince of North Wales, and had issue,

Mr. Hughes held, for many years, the government appointment of Secretary to the Barrack department of Ireland, and previously, that of Inspector-general of Barracks.

Lineage.

The family of Hughes is of great antiquity in Wales, several of the name being mentioned by Jones, and other historians, as being descended from the ancient royal or noble tribes of that kingdom. The present family of Hughes of The Grove, originally of Welsh extraction, claims descent, in the paternal line, from the ancient family of Hughes of Gwerclas, co. Merioneth, Barons of Kymmer-yn-Edeirnion, scions of the Royal dynasty of Powys, and in the maternal line, descends from the noble family of De Courcy, Lord Kingsale, and from Sir John de Ireland, Lord of Hutte, co. Lancaster, temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror. The first of the present family who came over from Wales, and settled in Ireland, was

JOHN HUGHES, Esq., an officer in the army of CHARLES II.; he subsequently held a government appointment in one of the military departments of that period, and is stated, in an old family memoir, to have been a man of considerable talent. He purchased the estate of Eln Park, co. Mayo, and m. about the year 1682, Miss Wynne, of an ancient Welsh family, and by her had issue several children. He was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES HUGHES, Esq. of Eln Park, J.P., b. temp. CHARLES II., about 1684, m. in 1714, Miss Giles, a branch of the family of Giles of Gileston, and by her had issue,

- I. JOHN, his heir, of whom presently.
- II. George.
- III. William, an officer in the army.

The eldest son,

JOHN HUGHES, Esq. of Elm Park, b. in 1716, m. in 1737, Mary Blakeney, an heiress, dau. of — Blakeney, Esq. of co. Cavan, and d. 23 April, 1779, aged 63 years, leaving issue by her,

- I. JOHN, his heir.
- II. JAMES, of whom presently.
- III. Douglas.
- IV. Alexander.
- I. Eleanor.

The second son,

JAMES HUGHES, Esq. of Ballinrobe, co. Mayo, b. in 1740, m. in May, 1774, Letitia, dau. of the Very Rev. William Ireland, a distinguished divine, rector of Cong, co. Mayo, varden of Galway, and J.P. for several counties, and great-granddau. of William Ireland, Esq.,* by the Hon. Margaret De Courcy, his wife, youngest surviving dau. of Patrick De Courcy, 20th Lord Kingsale, (and at the time of her marriage with William Ireland, about 1640, widow of Philip Barry Oge, Esq.) Mr. Hughes dying, 9 Nov. 1786, aged 46 years, left issue, by Letitia, his wife,

- I. JOHN HUGHES, Esq. of The Grove.
- II. William, an officer in the 64th regt., b. in 1776, m. Margaret, dau. of — Carr, Esq., and widow of Col. Duncan, and had issue, one son, John, d. in 1822.
- III. JAMES, of Strabane, co. Tyrone, b. in 1780, m. Jane, dau. of the Very Rev. John Brocas, dean of Killala, and granddau. of the Very Rev. Theophilus Brocas, who preceded his son in the deanery, d. in June, 1823.
- I. Mary, m. Stephen Hughes, Esq., and has, (with other issue,)

William, in holy orders, A.M. and ex-scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, rector of Anghnanloo, co. Londonderry, b. 5 April, 1801, m. Rebecca Mathewson, of Ardstraw, co. Tyrone, and has issue surviving, two sons and six daus.

* This William Ireland was the son of George Ireland, Esq., and grandson of Sir Gilbert Ireland, of Hale Hall, Lancashire, who d. in 1626, and was lineally descended from the famous Sir John de Ireland, temp. WILLIAM the Conqueror, 1066. (See IRELAND OF ROBERTSTOWN.)

Letitia, m. Major Edward-Harman Pope, of Popefield, Queen's County, J. P., and has issue two sons and four daus., of whom the third, Harriet-Anne, m. in Dec. 1844, J.-L. Beasley, Esq. of Salisbury, co. Kildare, and has issue.

II. Magdalene, m. Mr. Tunbridge, merchant, and left, with other issue, John, an officer in the Ordnance department; and Jane, m. to the Rev. Kenneth Fraser, rector of Astley Bridge, Lancashire.

HUSSEY OF LITTLE WYRLEY.

HUSSEY, PHINEAS-FOWKE, Esq. of Little Wyrley, co. Stafford, a Lieutenant in the 98th regt. of foot, b. in Jan. 1822.

Lineage.

The manor of Little Wyrley, and a considerable estate in land and coal-mines therein, has been held by this family many years, passing through four generations to the present possessor.

The Husseys became lords of Little Wyrley by marriage of JOSEPH HUSSEY, of London, with Sybil, heiress of Walter Fowke, of Brewood. They are also joint lords of the adjoining manor of Norton, to the extent of one-third. Fowke Hussey (in 1714) also held eight twenty-fourths of the extra-parochial manor, or reputed manor, of Ogley or Oggele-Hay, the whole of which was subsequently purchased by the late Phineas Hussey, at whose death it was sold to Charles-F. Cotterill, Esq. of Walsall, and is now enclosed, by act of parliament.

This family bears the same arms as the Husseys of Wiltshire, Essex, Dorsetshire, and Shropshire, viz., Barry of six, ermiuc and gules. Crest—On a wreath a boot, sable, spurred, or, topped, ermine. Sir William Hussey, justice of the King's Bench, temp. EDWARD IV., bore the same coat. He was father of John, Lord Hussey, and of Sir Giles Hussey, from whom descended Thomas Hussey, Esq. of London, father of Thomas and Peter Hussey, living temp. CHARLES II. From the similarity of the coats of arms, it may be presumed that these are the ancestors of Joseph Hussey, the first lord of the manor of Little Wyrley, of that name.

ADAM WYBASTON, of Brewood, 1 RICHARD II. and 10 HENRY IV., left, by Rose, his wife, (living a widow, 1 HENRY V.,) a son and heir,

WILLIAM WYBASTON, 10 HENRY IV., 5 HENRY V., 2 and 5 HENRY VI., whose wife's name was Juliana. By her he was father of a dau. and heir,

ELIZABETH WYBASTON, who m. ROGER FOWKE, Esq. of Brewood, in right of his wife, temp. HENRY VI. Their son and heir,

WILLIAM FOWKE, of Brewood, temp. EDWARD VI., m. Jane, dau. of John Stretchay, of Stretchay, and had a son,

ROGER FOWKE, buried in Brewood Church, in 1546, who left, by Margaret, his wife, dau. of John Whorwood, Esq. of Compton, (buried 24 Jan. 1561,) a son and successor,

WILLIAM FOWKE, Esq. of Brewood, who m. in 1555, Joan, dau. of James Leveson, Esq. of Lilleshall, and widow of William Skeffington, Esq., and d. 18 Feb. 1558, leaving a son and heir,

ROGER FOWKE, Esq. of Brewood, who bought Little Wyrley of John Leveson, Esq. He m. Sybil Turnbull, widow, and by her (who was buried in June, 1600) he left, at his decease, (he was buried at Brewood, 25 March, 1594,) a son,

WALTER FOWKE, Esq., whose first wife was Mary Micklethwaite, and by her he left a dau.,

SYBIL FOWKE, who m. JOSEPH HUSSEY, citizen, of St. Bride's, London, son of Joseph Hussey, of Southampton, and was mother of FOWKE HUSSEY, of Little Wyrley, in 1714, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Jesson, Gent. of Lichfield, and sister of William Jesson, barrister-at-law. Of this marriage, the fourth son,

RICHARD HUSSEY, of Wolverhampton, m. Miss Beckett, and left a son,

PHINEAS HUSSEY, Esq. of Little Wyrley, in 1799, who inherited Little Wyrley by will of his uncle, Phineas Hussey. He m. 1st, Fanny Fowler, by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Sophia Ray, by whom he left, at his decease, with a dau., (Fanny-Sophia, who m. in 1843, Edward Kellaart, Esq. of Ceylon, army medical staff, and d. in 1847,) a son, the present PHINEAS-FOWKE HUSSEY, Esq. of Little Wyrley.

P'ANSON OF CORFE CASTLE.

Lineage.

The family of P'Anson is descended from a family of the name in France, a branch of which possessed a large seignior in that kingdom, and bears the same arms as the English line, with the title of Marquis or Count de Tourban. Cornelius Jansen, the Bishop of Ypres, in Flanders, who d. in 1630, the head or founder of the Jansenists, who made so much noise, was a descendant of this family.

JAMES P'ANSON, of Hawkeswell, in Richmondshire, co. York, son of John P'Anson, captain of a man-of-war in the reign of HENRY VIII., came out of Westmorland or Cumberland, and d. in the service of the king. By his wife, Anne Carlisle, of a Richmondshire family, he left, with other children,

BRYAN P'ANSON, Esq., b. in 1559, and bapt. in St. Gregory's parish, London, for which city he fined for sheriff and alderman. He purchased the manors of Bassettsbury, near High Wickham, co. Bucks; Southys, near Ockingham; and Ashby Ledgers, co. Northampton; and possessed also lands in Binfield, and houses in Reading, co. Berks, of good value. He served the office of high-sheriff of Buckinghamshire. His wife was Anne, dau. of Robert Lee, of Beaconfield, co. Bucks, nephew to Sir Henry Lee, of Lees Rest, co. Bucks, and Ditchley, co. Oxford, knight of the Garter, and privy councillor and champion to Queen ELIZABETH. By this lady he left several children, viz.,

NICHOLAS JACKSON built the mansion-house at Duddington, 9 CHARLES I., in 1633, and by his will, dated 9 Nov. 1641, left his estate there to his son,

WILLIAM JACKSON, who s. his father in 1662, and by will, dated 12 Nov. 1667, founded the school at Duddington, giving £50 to build a school-room, "and £10 yearly for ever, issuing out of my farm at Helpstone, towards the maintenance of a schoolmaster for the teaching of twelve children, if so many there are fit, horn and dwelling within the parish of Duddington, which children, my will is, shall be able competently to read any chapter in the New Testament, so as to be approved of by any two or more of the neighbouring ministers, before they shall be accounted capable of being admitted into the school aforesaid. The schoolmaster to be placed therein by my son, Thomas, for his life, and after him, by his heirs and successors." The school has always been of marked utility. The schoolroom has recently been rebuilt, and a dwelling-house for the master added thereto, and at this time contains seventy-three children. To his son Thomas he devised all his lands in Easton, Helpstone, and Duddington. This

BAKER, in his History of Northamptonshire, speaking of Duddington, says, "Francis Jackson has a good stone house there, and the church contains many memorials of the family." There are several of these still remaining, but the more ancient ones in the chancel have been removed and thrown aside, to make room for others, a loss which, together with the destruction (as it is said by fire) of the parish registers previous to 1733, has occasioned some difficulty in exactly determining the earlier dates. Francis Jackson, by will dated 11 Dec. 1744, left all his lands &c. at Duddington, Wakerley, and Wothorp, to his eldest son,

THOMAS JACKSON, who m. 1st, in 1720, his cousin, Sarah, dau. and co-heiress of Thomas Burneby, Esq. of Manton, Rutland, of an old family of that name formerly settled there, by whom (who d. in 1739) he had twenty-one children. Of these were brought up,

JENKINS OF CHARLTON HILL.

JENKINS, EDWARD-LEIGHTON, Esq. of Charlton Hill, co. Salop, b. 20 Jan. 1816; s. his father, 2 May, 1836. Mr. Jenkins is in the Bombay civil service.

Lineage.

EDWARD JENKINS, Esq. of Charlton Hill, (only surviving son of Thomas Jenkins, Esq., by Rachael, his wife, dau. of Sir Edward Leighton, Bart., and grandson of Thomas Jenkins, Esq. of the Abbey Foregate, Shrewsbury, from whose eldest son, Richard, descends Sir Richard Jenkins, G.C.B., see vol. i. p. 646.) m. Sarab, dau. of the Rev. Richard Boycott, and had issue, Robert-Charlton, b. in 1772, deceased.

ROBERT-BOYCOTT-CRESSETT, heir.

Emma-Gertrude, m. to Francis-Blithe Harries, Esq. of Benthall Hall.

Louisa-Elizabeth-Sarah, d. in 1794.

Mr. Edward Jenkins was in the army, and served in the first American war.* He was interred in the abbey church, Shrewsbury, where a handsome mural monument erected to his memory bears this inscription:—

“Near this place is interred the body of Edward Jenkins, Esq. of Charlton Hill, in this county, who died on the 1st of May, 1820, in the 81st year of his age. The early part of his life was devoted to the service of his country, and during the first American war, being then a lieutenant in the 60th regiment, he underwent the greatest hardships, and was twice left prisoner in the hands of the Indians. On the return of peace he retired to a country life in his native county, where he acquired universal esteem for his benevolence and kindness of heart. In a more especial manner he was endeared to his children, who have erected this monument in a deep sense of gratitude and reverence to his memory, and in the hope that his numerous posterity may be excited to imitate his most valuable though unostentatious virtues, and thereby be fitted to join him in the regions of bliss which are prepared by our Heavenly Father for the righteous.”

His son and successor,

ROBERT BOYCOTT-CRESSETT LEIGHTON-JENKINS, Esq. of Charlton Hill, b. 13 March, 1781, a major in the army, m. Elizabeth, second dau. of Richard Jenkins, Esq. of Bicton Hall, and had issue,

- VI. Robert, b. 22 Jan. 1825, lieutenant. R.N., promoted for his services. When midshipman of the Blonde frigate, in China, he served on shore at the attack on Woosung, and at the attack on Ching-Kiang-foo, and was in charge of a flat boat on the canal. He was subsequently appointed to the Dido, and was engaged in the affairs with the pirates of Borneo, (the particulars of which have been so interestingly described by the Hon. Captain Keppel, who commanded the Dido,) and had the charge of a cutter when attacked by the pirates at Serhassen, on that coast, and in several other expeditions up the rivers of Borneo, on which occasions he obtained the approbation of his commanding officer.

FREDERICA, who m. in 1839, Thomas-Plumer Halsey, Esq., M.P. for Hertfordshire, and has one son.

Lieut.-Colonel Johnston has served in the Inniskillen Dragoons, 17th Lancers, and 67th regt., and became the male representative of this family on the death of his cousin, Robert Johnston, of Hilton, who having had the misfortune to lose his only son, alienated the family estates which he had inherited in direct descent, and which had been in the family since 1633.

Lineage.

This family, though settled in Berwickshire, in 1633, is descended from Gowain Johnston, whose name appears amongst the chiefs in Annandale, who, after the successful incursion into the western border by the English, under Lord Wharton, in 1547, were compelled to yield a reluctant submission, and pledge themselves to serve the King of England with the number of followers annexed to their names. "A peace, in 1551, put an end to this war, the most destructive which for a length of time had ravaged Scotland. . . . The chieftains who had distinguished themselves during the late troubles received the honour of knighthood."—See Introduction to Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, pp. 31—35. Gowain Johnston designed "in Kirkcoun de Kirkpatrick-juxta," had a charter, dated 6 March, 1555, of the lands of Clerk Orchard, Thornick, Scaligolholm, &c., in Annandale, most probably as a reward for his services during the late war. His son JAMES, designed "de Middlehill," held the lands of Milnetoun, Milnetounholm, Muirthwat, Tassiholm, &c., and by the retour in Chancery, dated 28 April, 1608, his son, described as "Jacobus Johnnestoun de Beirholm, Hares Gavini Johnnestoun in Kirkcoun de Kirkpatrick-juxta, Avi," succeeded to the lands of Clerk Orchard, &c.; and in a second retour of the same date, where he is described as "Hares Jacobi Johnnestoun de Middlehill, Patris," succeeded to the lands of Milnetoun, Milnetounholm, Muirthwat, &c. This last James's younger brother,

ARCHIBALD JOHNSTON, having m. Rachel Arnot, dau. of Sir John Arnot, treasurer-depute and lord-provost of Edinburgh, settled there, and embarked in mercantile affairs; and is entered in the Dean of Guild's book,

* Admiral Halliday assumed the name of Tollemache, in 1821, in compliance with the will of his maternal uncle, Wilbraham, 6th Earl of Dysart.

15 May, 1577, "burgess and guild-brother in right of his wife, Rachel, daughter of Sir John Arnott." He is mentioned by DOUGLAS, Baronage, p. 233, as "a younger son of the house of Beirholm, an ancient and honourable family in Annandale, who acquired considerable riches." He became in fact one of the richest men in Edinburgh, and was called "the king's merchant," being to JAMES VI. of Scotland, what Sir Thomas Gresham was to Queen ELIZABETH of England. He had by his wife, Rachel Arnot, three sons, and a dau., m. to Sir James Skene, of Currie Hill. Of the sons, the eldest, JAMES, was father of Sir Archibald Johnston, Lord Warristoun, beheaded in 1663, from whom descended the Johnstons of Warristoun; the second, SAMUEL, became progenitor of the Johnstons of Scheines; and the third, JOSEPH, purchased the lands of Hilton, &c. in Berwickshire: from him the present family descends. Archibald "the king's merchant," by his will, dated 14 Oct. 1618, constitutes his wife, Rachel, and youngest son, Joseph, his executors, and besides numerous legacies to relations, 1000 merks to the College of Edinburgh, 500 merks to the hospital, and a like sum to the poor of Edinburgh, leaves "ane hundred merks to help repairing and completing the kirk, callit Kirkpatrick-juxta, where my pridecessor's bonis lyis." Bishop Burnet, whose mother was Archibald Johnston's granddaughter, mentions his great riches, and the court paid to his widow by the puritans, of whom she was a great protector. It may not be amiss to remark here, that the family of Johnston of Warristoun appears to have ended in a female towards the close, and that of Johnston of Scheines about the middle of the last century, by the marriage of two sisters, co-heiresses, with two brothers, Johnstons of Westerhall, successively baronets.

JOSEPH JOHNSTON, of Hilton, youngest son of "the king's merchant," had, by his wife, Sophia, dau. of Sir Patrick Home, of Polwarth, ancestor of the Earls of Marchmont, and Lord Polwarth, I. ARCHIBALD, his heir, denominated Archibald "with the beard;" II. Sophia, m. to John Fairholme, of Craigie Hall, whose only dau. and heiress was m. to William, 1st Marquis of Annandale; III. Rachel, who m. Bruce of Stenhouse, and became mother of the first baronet of that family; and, IV. a posthumous son, Joseph: dying in 1637, he was s. by his eldest son,

ARCHIBALD JOHNSTON "with the beard," who m. Catherine, dau. of Sir George Winram, of Libberton, and had, I. JOSEPH, his heir; II. PATRICK, of whom hereafter; and a dau., Janet. This Archibald was a minor at his father's death, but on attaining his majority, had "Carta Archibaldo Johnston, terrarum et baroniæ de Hiltoun," Reg. Great Seal, 3 July, 1649; and later, "Carta, Archibaldo Johnston de Hiltoun, terrarum de Whitside, Tweedale," Reg. Great Seal, 2 Dec. 1654: he died in 1663, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOSEPH JOHNSTON, of Hilton, who m. Mary Douglas, dau. of Douglas of Blackadder, and had, besides Archibald, who d. young, JOSEPH, his heir; ROBERT; and a dau., m. to Home of Ninewells. This Joseph was murdered, when on a visit at the Hirsle, in 1683, by William Home, sheriff of the Merse, and brother to the Earl of Home. For an account of the murder, and a curious tradition connected with it, see CHAMBERS' Edinburgh Journal, Saturday, 24 Dec. 1842, article, "An Old House in the Merse;" LORD FOUNTAINHALL'S Observes; LAW'S Memorials; and MAXWELL'S Wanderings in the Highlands and Islands. The murdered Johnston was s. by his son,

JOSEPH JOHNSTON, of Hilton, a minor at his father's death, who, by the retour in Chancery, dated 15 May, 1684, appears to have inherited from his father very large estates in Berwickshire, but dying unm. in 1695, was s. by his next brother,

ROBERT JOHNSTON, of Hilton, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Home, of Coldingham, and had, WYNE, his heir; Sydney, m. to Sir John Sinclair, of Longformacus; and Alicia, m. William Baird, of Newhyth, by whom, besides other children, she was mother to Robert Baird, of Newhyth; David Baird, created Baronet for his distinguished services in the late wars; and Charlotte, Lady Haddo, mother to George, 4th Earl of Aberdeen.

WYNE JOHNSTON, served heir to his father in Oct. 1749, m. his cousin, Margaret, dau. of George Johnston, of Dublin and Kimmerghame, son of Sir Patrick Johnston, lord-provost of Edinburgh, and M.P. for that city in the last Scots parliament, and had, ROBERT, his heir; George, captain in the army, killed in the West Indies, d. unm.; Hesther, m. her cousin, Robert Baird, of Newbyth; Lucy, celebrated for her beauty, m. to Richard-Alexander Oswald, of Auchincruive; Henrietta, m. to Sir James Baird, of Saughton Hall; and Margaret, m. to Stuart of Alderton.

ROBERT JOHNSTON, of Hilton, the eldest son and heir, who attained the rank of captain in the 89th regt., and was acting A.D.C. to General Boyd, during the memorable siege of Gihraltar, retired from the army on succeeding to the family estate, but subsequently served in Ireland, during the Rebellion, as major of the Berwickshire fencibles, and finally was lieutenant-col. commandant of the Berwickshire volunteers. He m. Catherine, dau. of John Home, of Ninewells, and niece to Joseph Hume, the historian, by whom he had only one son and three daus., viz., I. HUME, lieutenant R.N., who d. suddenly at Deptford, in 1824; II. AGNES, who m. the Rev. Alexander Scott, grandson of Scott of Harden, and had issue, Francis, lieutenant R.N.; Robert, late fellow of Balliol College, Oxford; III. Margaret; and, IV. Catherine. Robert Johnston having alienated the family estate in Berwickshire, which, be it observed, had come down to him materially diminished by the hospitality and improvidence of his ancestors, settled in England, and dying at Ripon, in Yorkshire, in Nov. 1842, the elder branch of this family, in the male line, expired. We now revert to

PATRICK JOHNSTON, next brother to Joseph Johnston, of Hilton, murdered by William Home. He is entered in the Dean of Guild's register, Edinburgh, on commencing his mercantile career, in July, 1677, as "brother-german of Joseph Johnston, of Hilton." He became one of the most eminent merchants in Edinburgh; was three times lord-provost; M.P. for that city in the last Scots parliament, and first of the United Kingdoms; and one of the commissioners of the Union between the two countries in 1707. His signature and seal are attached to the original parchment deeds which ratified that great measure. Having been knighted on becoming lord-provost, as was customary before the Union, he is mentioned in all the public acts of that period as Sir Patrick Johnston, and the names of many distinguished noblemen, and gentlemen of ancient family, recorded as witnesses to the baptismal registries of his numerous children, sufficiently attest the consideration he enjoyed. He became, however, extremely unpopular, with the middling and lower classes, on account of the active part he took in favour of the Union. The mob attempted to set fire to his residence, and murder him and his family, as mentioned in DEFOE'S History of the Union, and BISHOP BURNET'S History of his Own Time. Sir Patrick appears to have resided latterly in London, and d. in the parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster, in Sept. 1736. By his wife, Margaret Kinnair, he had, besides his eldest son, GEORGE, seven sons, and two daus.; of the latter, Henrietta, m. Sir John Warrender, of Lochend, 2nd baronet, and had issue. The eldest son,

GEORGE JOHNSTON, captain in Colonel Henry Hawley's regiment, (33rd,) having, whilst quartered in Ireland, m. Hesther, dau. of J. Bland, Esq. of Dublin, quitted the army. His wife brought him a considerable fortune, which, however, he was induced to leave in an army agency established in Dublin by some of her relations; unfortunately the house failed, and he not only lost her fortune, but was obliged to part with Kimmerghame, and other property he had purchased in Berwickshire. Only one son, JAMES, and two daus. survived him; of the latter, I. Mary, became second wife of James, 5th Lord Napier, by whom she had, the Hon. George Napier, father to Lieut.-General Sir Charles Napier, the conqueror of Scinde, and other sons distinguished in the army and navy; and the Hon. Hesther Napier, m. to Samuel Johnston, Esq., E. I. Co.'s civil service, father, by her, of the Right Hon. Sir Alexander Johnston, and other children; II. Margaret, m. her cousin, Wynne Johnston, of Hilton. The only son,

JAMES JOHNSTON, b. in Dublin, was appointed cornet in Hawley's (13th) dragoons in 1736, and on General Hawley's removal to the 1st Royal dragoons in 1739, was transferred to that corps, and served with it at Dettingen, and the campaigns in Flanders, where he obtained the majority of the regiment in May, 1745: having repeatedly distinguished himself in affairs of outposts. He was promoted to the lieutenant-colonelcy of (the 13th) Mostyn's dragoons in 1754; and on his friend, General Conway, being appointed colonel of the Royal dragoons, he was again transferred to that corps, and proceeded in command of it to join the allied army, under the command of Ferdinand of Brunswick. Here again he was particularly distinguished on several occasions, especially at Warburgh, Kirk Denchern, and Kampfen: in the latter affair he was severely wounded. In 1762, he was appointed major-general in Germany, and continued to serve with that rank till the close of the war. On the army marching into winter quarters, in Nov. 1762, the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, under whose command he had frequently been engaged with the enemy, particularly at Kampfen, sent General Johnston a very handsome gold snuff-box, with a flattering autograph letter, begging his acceptance of it. Peace being signed, the English regiments returned to England, in 1763, and in the autumn of that year Major-General Johnston was appointed lieutenant-governor and commander-in-chief of the Island of Minorca, whither he proceeded immediately, and retained that command till 1774, when he returned to England. From that period until his decease he was much employed on the staff at home; and for several years commanded camps of exercise which were formed on Salisbury Plain. He d. in Dec. 1797; being a general in the army, colonel of the Inniskillen dragoons, and commanding the eastern district, consisting of the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex. General Johnston, when major in the Royal dragoons, was reputed the handsomest man and best swordsman in the army, and many anecdotes are told of his exploits both in the field and in casual rencontres, which in those days, when no gentleman ever went out without his sword, were of frequent occurrence. Although of a Scotch family, and brought up at Westminster School, from having been born in Dublin, he was usually called "Irish" Johnston, (and is so called by Horace Walpole, who frequently mentions him in his letters to Sir Horace Mann, Marshal Conway, &c.,) to distinguish him from his relation of the same name and standing in the army, who died colonel of the Scots Greys in 1795. By his wife, the Lady H.-Cecilia West, eldest dau. of John, Earl de la Warr, he had a dau., Caroline, m. to Colonel Evelyn Anderson, brother to Charles, 1st Lord Yarborough, who d. in 1823, leaving no issue; and one son,

HENRY-GEORGE JOHNSTON, b. at Port Mahon, Minorca, in 1766; having joined his father's regiment (Inniskillen dragoons) in 1788, he proceeded with it to Flanders in 1794; was shortly afterwards attached to the staff of General Clairfoit and to the Archduke Charles of Austria during the siege of Valenciennes. Being promoted to a majority in the York hussars in 1797, and joining that corps in the Island of St. Domingo, he served with it, till its reduction at the peace of Amiens. He d. on half-pay of the York hussars, at the age of 42, worn out with wounds and illness brought on by hard service in an unwholesome climate. By his wife, Jane, dau. of Lord Frederick Campbell, he had two sons only, I. FREDERICK, present representative of the Johnstons of Hilton; and, II. John-Frederick, lieutenant Royal navy, d. on board H.M.S. Queen Charlotte, 3 Oct. 1816, of the severe wounds he received in the successful bombardment of Algiers, by Admiral Lord Exmouth, in the August previous; he had been made lieutenant by Commodore Sir James Yeo, for his conspicuous gallantry on several occasions on Lake Ontario in the years 1812-13; d. unm.

Lincage.

This family, originally of Lancashire, settled about the middle of the sixteenth century in Cornwall, in consequence of a marriage with the heiress of Talvarne. Mr. Carew, in describing the principal inhabitants of St.

Germans, says, "Amongst the first, I may not (without withdrawing my testimony due to virtue) omit Mr. George Keckwitche, of Catchfrench, whose continuall large and inquisitive liberality to the poore did, in the late deare yeres, extraordinarily extend it selfe, to an inviting emulation, but beyond the apprehensive imitation of any other in the shire. He hath issue by Blanch, the daughter of Sir Francis Godolpbin; his father, George, married Buller."

GEORGE KEKEWICH, resident at Catchfrench, at the time of Carew, rebuilt the mansion in the castellated style; the stately embattled entrance, and some other parts of which are still standing, and bear the words, "George Kekewiche, 1580," cut in stone. The manor of Catchfrench continued in the Kekewich family until the time of CHARLES II., when it was sold by John Kekewich, Esq., to Hugh Boscawen, Esq. of Tregothnan. In the same reign, Peter Kekewich, Esq., possessed the manor of Trehawke, and Samuel Kekewich, Esq., was seated at Polmartin; subsequently therepresentatives of the family were resident at Hall, near Fowey. This gentleman, whose paternal name is Langdale, assumed by act of parliament, in 1812, the surname of Kelham only, and the arms of Kelham, in compliance with the will of his maternal uncle, Robert Kelham, Esq., dated 29 Aug. 1808. Mr. Kelham is a magistrate for the county of Nottingham.

Lineage.

The Kelhams descend from a younger branch of an ancient family which was very early seated at Kelham, near Newark-upon-Trent, co. Nottingham, and bore for arms, "Az., three covered cups, or," allusive to the office they filled, of cup-bearer to Allan, first Earl of Richmond, son-in-law of WILLIAM the Conqueror. The first mentioned in the family evidences is

RICHARD KELUM, of Allington, co. Lincoln, living in the year 1428. He was s. by his son,

WILLIAM KELUM, of Allington, living in 1440, ancestor of

JOHN KELLAM, of Allington, who m. and had issue two sons, ROBERT and Hugh. The elder son and heir,

ROBERT KELLAM, of Allington, was living in 1531, in which year his brother Hugh released all his right and interest in certain messuages and lands in Allington and Great Gonerby, which he, with others deceased, had of the gift of his father John. His son and successor,

RICHARD KELHAM, Esq. of Hougham, co. Lincoln, who purchased lands in Gonerby in 1568, and, in 1576, m. and had issue two sons,

- I. JOHN.

The Rev. Robert Kelham dying 23 April, 1752, was buried in the chancel of Billingham Church, and s. by his third but eldest surviving son, ROBERT KELHAM, Esq. of Hatton-garden, London, Great Gonerby and Billingham, co. Lincoln, and Bush Hill, in the parish of Edmonton, co. Middlesex, b. 9 Nov. 1717. On 8 July, 1734, he was admitted to the society of Lincoln's Inn, of which he became senior member several years previous to his death. On 11 Jan. 1739, he was admitted an attorney of the Court of King's Bench; 24 Nov. 1739, entered member of Staples Inn; and on the 28th of the same month was admitted a solicitor of the Court of Chancery, and afterwards chosen one of the ancients of the society of Staples Inn: 9 May, 1758, he was elected pensioner, to which honourable station he was re-elected six times, and was chosen principal, 21 Feb. 1784, which he resigned in Feb. 1787, the attendance at the hall being too much for his advanced years. On 18 July, 1791, he succeeded the late Earl Bathurst as a general commissioner. Mr. Kelham was author of several learned publications, besides many manuscripts, which it is to be regretted have not yet been given to the public. His printed works are:—1. An Alphabetical Index to all the abridgements of Law and Equity; folio, printed in 1758. 2. His baptism is not to be found in the registers of Tamworth, which were kept irregularly for some years, and at one time were altogether disused, during the time of the civil wars, that in an especial manner disturbed the country about Tamworth, particularly at the siege of Lichfield, a period when his father's marriage, and his birth, took place. The following extracts are from the parish registers:—

"Towards the latter end of this month the towne and castle of Tamworth were taken in from the enemye by the parliament forces under the comand of Coll. W. Purefoy. July, 1643."

"About the latter end of this moneth of May, the noble committee of safety for the county of Warwick, at Coventry sitting, desired Theophilus Lord, the preacher, to supply the whole duty of the ministry in Tamworth, the former man, that challenged the place to be his, going away about 2 moneths before, and never acquainting the towne with his intentions. Old and honourable as is the descent of the Leghs of the West Hall, the Lymmes, from whom they originally sprang, were even still more ancient. Ormerod conjectures Lymme to have been a collateral branch of the Barons of Halton.

HAMON DE LEGH, living temp. HENRY II., all but proved to have been younger son of Gilbert Venables, 3rd Baron of Kinderton, grantee of a moiety of High Legh, was father of

WILLIAM DE LEGH, living temp. HENRY III., whose son,

RICHARD DE LEGH, living temp. HENRY III., m. Margery, dau. of John, nephew of Peter de Hugtrinton, who gave with her all his lands in Hugtrinton and Lymme, and had issue, RICHARD; Madoe, who had half of Sworton; and Margery, m. to Aytrop de Millington.

RICHARD DE LEGH, the eldest son, living temp. HENRY III., had a dau. and heiress,

AGNES DE LEGH, who had three husbands: her first was Richard de Lymme, by whom she had THOMAS DE LEGH, named from the place of his residence. She m. 2ndly, William de Hawardyn, and had issue by him, Ralph de Hawardyn. She m. 3rdly, William Venables, of Bradwall, second son of Sir William Venables, 7th Baron of Kinderton, and by him had issue, John de Legh, who purchased Knutsford Booths, 1299, 28 EDWARD I. The eldest son,

THOMAS DE LEGH, lord of a moiety of High Legh in 1305, had by Cicely, his wife, THOMAS; John; William; Margery, m. to William, son and heir of Robert Massy of Tatton, in 1307; and Agnes, m. to William Danicll, of Lymme. He d. about 10 EDWARD II., 1316. His son and heir,

THOMAS DE LEGH, of West Hall, living 18 EDWARD II., 1324, m. Alice, (who was a widow in 1330,) and had issue, THOMAS. He was grantee from Gilbert de Lymme, 10 EDWARD II., 1316, of the advowson of the moiety of the church of Lymme, since which time the Leghs of the West Hall have been patrons of the half of Lymme Church. His son and heir, LESLIE OF BALQUHAIN.

LESLIE, JAMES-MICHAEL, Esq. of Balquhain, Fetternear, and Inch, all in the co. Aberdeen, a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of Aberdeenshire, s. his nephew, as 25th Baron of Balquhain, in 1844.

Tinctage.

Many errors having been discovered in the pedigrees of the original family of Leslie, and those of their descendants, as detailed in the Laurus Leslieana, published in 1692, by the Rev. William Leslie, and by Crawford, Douglas, Playfair, &c., and from them copied into more recent Peerages, the following abstract of the Leslie family, showing the descent from 1067 to 1847, has been compiled from public records, original charters, and other documents in the possession of the Earls of Rothes and Leslie of Balquhain, &c. &c.

BARTHOLOMEW, the founder of the family, was a noble Hungarian, who came to Scotland with Queen MARGARITE, 1067. He was much esteemed by King MALCOLM CEANMORE, who conferred upon him grants of lands in various parts of Scotland, but particularly in the district of the Garioch, co. Aberdeen, where the ruins of the old castle of Leslie still remain, in the parish of Leslie. It would appear that he married a sister of King MALCOLM. We find in the Genealogical Tree of the Royal Family of Scotland, published in 1792, and approved of by the Lyon Office, that Princess Beatrix, dau. of King DUNCAN, and sister to MALCOLM CEANMORE, married Bartholomew Leslie, of whom all the Leslies in Scotland are descended, by whom he had a son, Malcolm, who succeeded him. Bartholomew d. at an advanced age, about 1121.

MALCOLM s. his father, Bartholomew, as authenticated by a charter now extant. David, Earl of Huntingdon and

* In direct descent from HENRY VII., by his dau., Mary, Queen-Dowager of France, and Duchess of Suffolk, and her posterity.

Lord of the Garioch, the brother of King WILLIAM the Lyon, granted a charter to Malcolm, the son of Bartolf, of the lands of Leslyn and others, which was confirmed by King WILLIAM about 1165. He left issue,

- I. NORMAN, his successor.
- II. Malcolm, who was killed in the Crusades.

NORMAN s. his father, Malcolm, as is also authenticated by a charter now extant,—viz., John, Earl of Huntingdon and Lord of the Garioch, granted a charter of Caskieben and other lands to Norman, the son of Malcolm, the son of Bartolf, about 1219. Norman was constable, or keeper of the Castle of Inverury, the stronghold of the lordship of the Garioch. He m. a dau. of Stewart, Earl of Lorn, by whom he had,

- I. NORINO, who succeeded to him.
- II. LEONARD, who some say succeeded his brother.
- III. Bartholomew, who d. young.

NORINO s. his father, Norman, also proved by a charter now extant. Isabella de Bruce and her son, Robert Bruce, (then possessors of the lordship of the Garioch in right of her father, the late David, Earl of Huntingdon,) granted a charter to Norino, the son of Norman, the son of Malcolm, the son of Bartolf, of the lands and free forest of Leslyn, &c. &c., which was confirmed by King ALEXANDER II., about 1244. Some say that Norino d. without issue, and was s. by his brother Leonard, who m. Catharine Muir, heiress of Taces, in Fifeshire. It is, however, certain that either Norino or his brother Leonard had a son,

NORMAN, who succeeded. He is styled in all public documents, Sir Norman de Lesley, Dominus de Lesley. He and many of his successors had the honour of knighthood conferred upon them by various kings. He got a charter of the lands of Fythkill, (now called Leslie,) in Fifeshire, from King ALEXANDER III., about 1283. He swore fealty to EDWARD I., at Aberdeen, 1296; was sheriff of Aberdeenshire in 1305; and in parliament, 1314. He m. Elizabeth Leith, heiress of Edengarioch, by whom he had,

- I. ANDREW, his successor.
- II. Margaret, m. to Sir John Innes, of Innes.
- III. Ann, m. to Sir Alexander Dunbar, of Westfield.

Sir Norman d. before 1320.

SIR ANDREW DE LESLEY, styled 6th Dominus ejusdem, or Lesley, s. his father. He m. 1st, about 1313, Mary Abernethy, one of the three daus. and co-heiresses of Sir Alexander, Lord Abernethy of Abernethy, by whom he got the estate of Balinbrech, in Fifeshire; Cairney, in Forfarshire; and various other lands. By this lady he had,

- I. ANDREW (Sir), his heir, 7th Dominus ejusdem, who granted an annuity on the lands of Balinbrech in 1353, charter of the lands of Culmelly and Cushnie in 1373, and of the lands of Acquhorts and Blair Daff in 1391, to his brother-in-law, David Abercrombie. He had a son, NORMAN DE LESLEY, who was father of DAVID DE LESLYN, who went to Palestine, and being absent many years was supposed to be dead. On this supposition, his grandfather, Sir Andrew, and his father, Norman, entailed in 1390, the estates on their consanguinity, (kinsman,) Sir George Leslie, of Rothes. Norman, however, d. shortly afterwards, (before 1394,) before his father. Sir Andrew d. about 1399. His grandson,

DAVID, shortly afterwards unexpectedly returned to Scotland, and claimed the estates, as proved by an inquest held before the sheriff of Fife and a jury, by which he was served heir to his grandfather and his estates, and became 8th Dominus ejusdem. He was a hostage for the ransom of King JAMES I., and was liberated in 1432. David m. Margaret Davidson, and had a son, Alexander. He subsequently so far confirmed the entail made by his father and grandfather in 1390, that he settled the estates of Balinbrech, &c., in Fife, on Sir Norman Leslie, son of the aforesaid Sir George, and left at his decease in 1439, the original estate of the barony of Leslie, &c., in Aberdeenshire, to his son, Alexander, who, and his descendants, were styled the Barons of Leslie of Leslie, or that ilk. This family failed in the seventh generation, in the person of George Leslie, seventh Baron Leslie, of that ilk, who d. without male issue in 1629, when his widow (the Hon. E. Leslie, dau. of Lord Lindores), who m. John Forbes, a son of Money Musk, paid the debts, and got possession of the estates.

- II. Another son, who, it would appear, was father of the following sons,

1. Sir George Leslie, of Rothes, founder of the noble house of Rothes, (see BURKE's Peerage.)
2. Walter, who m. in 1366, Euphemia, Countess of Ross, and became, jure uxoris, Earl of Ross; and in a charter dated Dingwall, 18 Aug. 1394, she styles Sir George Leslie, Knt. of Rothes, her brother, (brother by marriage.) Walter was renowned for his distinguished military services and bearing in the wars against the Turks, and was styled "The Generous Knight." He d. in 1369, leaving (besides a dau., Margaret Leslie, who m. Donald of the Isles) a son, Alexander Leslie, Earl of Ross, who gave Fythkill to Sir George Leslie, of Rothes, in 1398. He m. Lady Isabel Stuart, dau. of the Duke of Albany, and d. in 1410, leaving a dau., Euphemia, Countess of Ross, who was urged by Albany to renounce the Earldom of Ross in favour of her uncle, A.D. 1410, whereupon she retired to a convent, and d. there in 1415, aged 16. Donald of the Isles claimed the Earldom of Ross in right of his wife, Lady Margaret Leslie, and to enforce his claim, raised an army, made an inroad through Ross, Inverness, towards Aberdeen, but was defeated by the Earl of Marr, at Harlaw, in 1411. His son, Alexander, after many aggressions, was pardoned in 1431, and got the Earldom of Ross; but his son, John d'Isle, rebelled and was attainted; being afterwards pardoned, he resigned the Earldom of Ross, and his title as Lord of the Isles was recognised only as a Lord of Parliament in 1474.

3. Norman, who m. Margaret Lamberton, and d. s. p., before 1365, as proved by charters granted by his widow that year, in which the deceased Norman is styled brother of Walter. Norman de Lesley was sent with Sir Robert Erskine, on a mission to Rome, in 1358, to solicit the Pope for a grant of the tenth part of the ecclesiastical revenue of Scotland, to pay the ransom of DAVID II.

Sir Andrew m. 2ndly, Elizabeth Douglas, dau. of Lord Douglas, by whom he got the lands of Woodfield, Bomain, &c., and had a son, GEORGE, founder of the Balquhain family; and a dau., Margaret, m. to David Abercromby. This son,

GEORGE LESLIE, had from his father the baronies of Syde, of Balquhain, of Braco, and other lands in Aberdeenshire, about 1340, which grants were confirmed by royal charter; hence he and his descendants have been styled Barons of Balquhain. He m. Elizabeth Keith, dau. of the Baron of Inverurie, and d. about 1351, having had a son and successor,

HAMELIN LESLIE, 2nd Baron of Balquhain, who had a passport to travel abroad, in 1356. He m. a dau. of Maxwell, Baron of Carluarock, and d. about 1378, leaving a son and successor,

SIR ANDREW LESLIE, 3rd Baron of Balquhain, who m. Isabel Mortimer, dau. of the Baron of Craigievar, and had a son, WILLIAM (Sir), his heir, and four daus.: the eldest, Margaret, m. Alexander Leslie, 1st Baron of Leslie; the second m. Glaster of Glack; the third m. Munroe of Foulis; and the fourth m. Cheyne of Strathloch. Sir Andrew commanded the horse of the Earl of Mar, at Harlaw, in 1411, and was killed at Braco, in 1420. Sir Andrew had several natural children, one of whom, styled Malcolm Leslie, of Culis, was great-great-grandfather of the famous John Leslie, Bishop of Ross, the faithful adherent of Queen MARY. Sir Andrew's son and heir,

SIR WILLIAM LESLIE, 4th Baron of Balquhain, distinguished himself at the battle of Brechin, in 1452. He m. 1st, the Hon. Eliza Fraser, of Lovat, by whom he had,

ALEXANDER, his heir.

William, who purchased in 1470, the barony of Kincaigie, and became the founder of the family of that name. This family appears to have failed in Scotland about the end of the last century; but there is still a male descendant, in the person of Charles Leslie, Esq. of Kincaigie, in Ireland.

Sir William m. 2ndly, Agnes Irvine, of Drum, and by her had,

Alexander, founder of the family of Leslie of Wardes, of which the following are branches: the Leslies of Glaslough; Leslie of Tarbet, in Ireland; Leslies of Warthill Little Fola, and Rothie; also of Leslie of Buchorn, and Leslie of Clisson, in France.

Elizabeth, m. to Norman Leith, of Barnis, who d. temp. JAMES III.

He m. 3rdly, Euphemia Lindsay, by whom he had,

George, founder of the family of New Leslie, and progenitor of the Leslies of Kinivry, and of the Earls of Leven. Thomas, in holy orders, d. s. p.

James, founder of the Leslies of Pitcairle.

Sir William had also a natural son, Patrick, from whom the Leslies of Eden are descended. Sir William d. 18 April, 1467, and was s. by his eldest son, ALEXANDER LESLIE, 5th Baron of Balquhain, who m. 1st, Janet Gordon, of Cairnbarrow, and 2ndly, a dau. of Cuming of Coulter; and by the former had a son, PATRICK his successor, and five daus., one of whom m. David Ross; the 2nd m. John Ogilvie; the 3rd m. Sir John Rutherford; the 4th m. David Anderson; and the 5th m. John Stewart, of Strathdon. Alexander d. 10 April, 1472, and was s. by his son,

PATRICK LESLIE, 6th Baron of Balquhain, who m. Murial Grant, of Fruchie, and d. 16 April, 1496, leaving a son and successor,

WILLIAM LESLIE, 7th Baron of Balquhain, who m. 1st, Eliza, dau. of Sir Walter Ogilvie, of Boyne, by whom he had a son and heir, JOHN, of whom presently. He m. 2ndly, Margery Keith, of Inverugie; and 3rdly, a dau. of Forbes. This gentleman had also five daus., all married, of whom Jean, the 2nd dau., m. Patrick Leith, of Edingarroch, (see p. 716.) He was chancellor of a jury at Aberdeen in 1540; d. in 1545, and was s. by his son,

JOHN LESLIE, 8th Baron of Balquhain, sheriff of Aberdeen in 1550, who m. 1st, Elizabeth Leslie, of Ardoynne, and had by her,

John, who m. about 1539, a dau. of Wood of Bonnington, and d. v. p., from a fall from the town-house, at Aberdeen, in 1550, having had two daus.,

Jean, m. to Patrick Leslie, of Kincaigie.

Margaret, m. to Alexander Bisset.

WILLIAM, of whom presently.

Janet, m. to Duguid of Auchinhove.

Agnes, m. to James Harvey, of Boyndis.

Margaret, m. to Dunbar of Bonnyfield.

Barbara, m. to William Cuming, of Auchray.

John, who m. 2ndly, Christian Menzies, d. in Feb. 1561. His second but eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM LESLIE, 9th Baron of Balquhain, m. 1st, Janet, dau. of John, 6th Lord Forbes, and widow of John, Earl of Atholl; and 2ndly, Margaret Leslie; and d. in 1571, having had issue,

JOHN, his heir.

William, a privy councillor to JAMES VI., d. s. p.

Arthur, drowned in the river Don.

Gilbert, killed at Muresk.

Andrew, d. abroad.

Jane, m. to James Dempster, of Muresk.

Margaret, m. to Alexander Abercrombie, of Birkenbog.

Isabel, m. to James Arbuthnot.

Christian. Elizabeth.

William, 9th Baron, being sheriff of the county, protected the Cathedral of Aberdeen, in 1560, from destruction, against the fury of the mob, instigated by the Lords of the Congregation. For this service, Bishop Gordon (a brother of the Earl of Huntly) presented him with the barony and mansion of Fetternear, 8 June, 1566, which was the bishop's summer residence. This gift was afterwards confirmed by crown charter, 10 May, 1602; and ratified by Pope CLEMENT, 20 September, 1670. Queen MARY, in her progress from Aberdeen to the north, honoured Leslie at Balquhain Castle with a visit, and passed the night there, 9 Sept. 1562. His eldest son and heir,

JOHN LESLIE, 10th Baron of Balquhain, m. 1st, in 1564, Eliza Grant, of Grant, by whom he had,

JOHN, his heir.

WILLIAM, successor to his nephew.

He m. 2ndly, in 1597, Lady Eliza Hay, dau. of the Earl of Errol, from whom he appears to have been shortly after divorced; and 3rdly, in 1598, Johanna Erskine, sister to the 1st Earl of Kelly, and by the latter had,

ALEXANDER, successor to his half-brother, William.

Walter, who served with great distinction in the Austrian army, and was created a Count of the Roman Empire. He m. the Princess Ann-Francisca de Dietrichstein. Walter d. s. p. in 1667, but having no issue, he entailed his estates on his nephew, James, the eldest son of his brother, Alexander, then 14th Baron of Balquhain; on whom he got the title of Count confirmed, with remainder to his descendants. Consequently the dignity was continued in the family, and Balquhain's three sons, James, Patrick, and Alexander, became Counts Leslie.

Isabel, m. to Alexander Hay, of Dalgety.

Jane, m. to Sir Patrick Leslie, of Eden.

Elizabeth, m. to Gilbert Hay, brother of Dalgety.

John Leslie mortgaged the estate of Fetternear to his brother-in-law, Abercrombie of Birkenbog. He d. in 1622, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LESLIE, 11th Baron of Balquhain, who m. 1st, the widow of Duguid of Auchinhove, and dau. of Gordon; and 2ndly, Jean Innes; and by the latter only had issue,

JOHN, his successor.

Jean, m. to James Elphinston, of Glack.

John d. in 1638, and was s. by his son,

JOHN LESLIE, 12th Baron of Balquhain, who went to Russia, in disgust at the religious troubles prevailing in Scotland, and entering the Muscovite service, became a colonel, and fell at the siege of Igolwitz, in 1655, leaving no male issue by his wife, a dau. of Crawford. He was s. by his uncle,

WILLIAM LESLIE, as 13th Baron of Balquhain, who had migrated to England, and was in the service of CHARLES II., whom he accompanied to Holland. He m. Margery Bernard, by whom he had a dau., Mary, m. to Sir Elias Lechton, a colonel in the army. Having had no male issue, he was s. about 1660, by his half-brother,

ALEXANDER LESLIE, as 14th Baron of Balquhain, who was created a Count of the Roman Empire. He m. Jean Elphinston, of Glack, and d. in 1677, having had issue, James, field-marshal in the Austrian service, who s. his uncle, Count Walter, as second count: he m. the Princess Maria-Theresa de Leichtenstein, and d. s. p. in 1694.

PATRICK, of whom presently, as 15th Baron of Balquhain. Alexander, Count Leslie, colonel in the Austrian army, killed at the siege of Vienna, in 1683, leaving by his wife, the Countess Heberstein, a son, Francis-Jacob, Count Leslie, who d. s. p. in 1700.

William, in holy orders, author of "Laurus Leslæana," published in 1692.

The second son,

PATRICK LESLIE, s. his father as 15th Baron of Balquhain, and afterwards, on the death of his elder brother, s. to the German estates. He made an entail, by which the Scottish and German estates should be distinct and separate—the German to descend to the eldest son, and the Scottish to the second son; and further, that in case of failure of male issue, the estates should descend to the male issue of his daus. He m. 1st, Eliza Douglas, by whom he had,

James-Ernest, who s. his uncle, Count James, as 3rd Count Leslie, in Germany. He m. the Princess Berne de Leichtenstein, and d. in 1738, having had issue,

Charles-Cajetan, 4th Count Leslie, who m. 26 June, 1719, the Princess Maria-Theresa D'Eggenberg, and d. in 1760, having had, with other issue, Leopold, Count Leslie, d. v. p., without issue, having m. 1st, the Countess of Kinsky; and 2ndly, Frances, Countess Walstein.

ANTHONY, of whom hereafter, as 19th Baron of Balquhain.

Count Charles Cajetan claimed the Balquhain estates.

Margery, m. to Alexander Leslie, of Pitcaple, and was mother of Sir James Leslie, of Pitcaple, who claimed the Balquhain estates in 1740. He d. s. p., 12 March, 1757.

Anne-Francisca, m. to John Grant, of Balindalloch, and had issue,

John Grant (Capt.), who was father of PETER LESLIE-GRANT, of whom hereafter, as 20th Baron of Balquhain.

Eliza Grant, m. to Patrick Leslie Duguid.

Theresa, m. to Robert Duguid, of Auchinhove, and had issue,

PATRICK LESLIE-DUGUID, who s. as 21st Baron of Balquhain, and of whom hereafter.

Lady* Betty, abbess of the Ursuline Convent at Lisle.

The 15th Baron m. 2ndly, Mary Irvine, of Drum, and by her had,

GEORGE, who s. his father as 16th Baron.

Margaret, m. to George Leslie, of Eden.

Jane, m. to Patrick Gordon, of Aberlour.

Henrietta, } both d. unm.
Mary, }

Count Patrick Leslie redeemed Fetternear in 1696, from Abercrombie of Fetternear, who m. the Baroness of Semple, and was created Lord Glassford in 1688, and finding the ancient castle of Balquhain inconvenient—it having been erected more for a place of strength than a place of residence—he removed to Fetternear, beautifully situated on the banks of the Don. Thus Fetternear became the family residence, and the old castle of Balquhain fell to decay. He d. in 1710, and was s. by his second son,

GEORGE LESLIE, 16th Baron of Balquhain, and Count

* It would appear from many family documents that all the daughters of Count Patrick Leslie had the title of "Lady" by courtesy.

Leslie, who m. in 1706, the Hon. Margaret Elphinston, dau. of Lord Elphinston, and had issue,

JAMES, his heir,

ERNEST, successor to his brother,

George Leslie d. 17 June, 1715, and was s. by his elder son,

JAMES LESLIE, Count Leslie, 17th Baron of Balquhain, who dying unm. at Paris, in 1731, was s. by his brother,

ERNEST LESLIE, Count Leslie, 18th Baron of Balquhain, who d. unm. in 1739. The estate was claimed by Sir James Leslie, of Piteale, in right of his mother, Margery, eldest dau. of Count Patrick Leslie, the 15th baron; and by Count Anthony Leslie, as second son of Count Charles Cajetan Leslie. But the House of Peers decided in favour of the latter, and accordingly, in 1743,

ANTHONY LESLIE, Count Leslie, second son of Count Charles Cajetan Leslie, s. as heir male, as 19th Baron of Balquhain; but his father dying in 1760, he s. to the German estates, and the entail made by Count Patrick Leslie precluding him from holding both the German and Scottish estates, the Balquhain lands went, according to the entail, to

PETER LESLIE-GRANT, (son of Captain John Grant, and grandson of Anne Francisca, second dau. of Count Patrick Leslie,) who then became 20th Baron of Balquhain. He d. unm. in 1775, and was s. by

PATRICK LESLIE-DUGUID, of Auchinhove, as 21st Baron of Balquhain, in right of his mother, Theresa, third dau. of Count Patrick Leslie, 15th Baron of Balquhain, the entail. He was b. in 1700, and m. in 1740, Amelia, dau. of J. Irvine, Esq. of Kingcausey, and had issue,

James, b. in 1741, in holy orders, and precluded thereby from succession to the entail, d. in 1816.

Charles, also in holy orders, d. in 1806.

Henry, b. in 1749, d. s. p. in 1762.

Northumberland, and d. s. p. in Jan. 1840.

Margaret, Mary, } all deceased.

Mary-Anne, Amelia, }

He took a very active part in the cause of the Stewarts, and was engaged in the struggles of 1715 and 1745. His castle of Auchinhove was burned by a party of soldiers after the battle of Culloden. He d. in April, 1777, and was s. by his son,

JOHN LESLIE, 22nd Baron of Balquhain, b. in 1751. He never took any official steps to claim the title of Count Leslie, to which he considered himself entitled, as representative of his great-grandfather, Count Patrick Leslie, (He m. 17 Nov. 1774, Violet, dau. of John Dalzell, Esq., (cousin to the Earl of Carnwath,) by his wife, the Hon. Harriet Gordon, dau. of William, Lord Kenmure, who was beheaded in 1716, on account of the active part he took in the Stewart cause. By this lady, who d. at an advanced age, 23 Sept. 1836, he had issue,

ERNEST, his successor.

John, who entered the Austrian service in 1797, and was actively engaged during several campaigns, particularly at the battles of Novi, Marengo, &c. &c.; he was attached, as officer of Ordnance, to Marshal Suwarrow, and was badly wounded. He left Aberdeen on board a foreign vessel, in Dec. 1803, bound to Dantzic, to join his regiment, then in Poland, but the ship was lost at sea.

Joseph, d. an infant.

JAMES-MICHAEL, who s. as 25th Baron of Balquhain, and is the present possessor of the estates.

LIND, JAMES-PLAYER, Esq. M.D., of Corstorphine Lodge, Ryde, Isle of Wight, b. 16 Sept. 1790; m. 17 Oct. 1822, Mary-Anne, dau. of William Reeks, Esq. of Bourne, Sussex. Dr. Lind is magistrate for Hampshire.

L I V

Lineage.

The surname of Lynne was assumed by the proprietors of the lands and barony of Lynne, in Ayrshire, as soon as surnames became hereditary in Scotland. In ancient times it was variously written, for Lynne, Linn, and Lind, are all the same, and there appear to have been five barons of this name in very early times; viz., the Linns of that ilk, in Ayrshire, and the Linns of Pitmadie, in Perthshire. Sir James Lind is descended from the Linds of Ayrshire. William de Lynne, of that ilk, is mentioned in a donation of JOHN BALIOL to the abbacy of Kelso, in the tenth year of his reign, A.D. 1302 or 1303, (Charter of Kelso and Hadd. Collect.) Of this William, was lineally descended,

JOHN LIND, of that ilk, who sold the lands of Lynne, and was afterwards designed by the title of "Croftfute," (this appears by a charter under the great seal of JAMES V., dated 15 May, 1532, confirming the lands, "Thomas Boyd, frater germanus Roberti Boyd, in Kilmarnock, super chartam sibi factam per Johnnem Lind de Croftfute de omnibus et singulis 40 solida terrarum antique extentus de Lynd jacen in Vice Comitatus de Air et tenend de Rege Chart. in Pub. Arch. lib. 24, vol. 228.") He was s. by his son,

JOHN LIND, of Croftfute, who, in the reign of Queen MARY, (of Scotland,) sold the lands of Croftfute, and retired to Edinburgh, where his descendants long continued. (MACFARLANE'S Collection.) He was father of

JOHN LIND, Esq., who m. Mary, a dau. of the Boyds of Pitfiddle, of the Lord Boyd's family, by whom he had,

JOHN LIND, who m. Isabel, dau. of Boyd of Forgill, likewise of the Lord Boyd's family, by whom he had five sons,

George, who purchased the lands of Gorgie; he m. and had several children. His second son, George, was lord-provost of Edinburgh, and M.P. for that city. He d. in 1763.

JAMES LIND, M.D., b. at Edinburgh, in 1716, m. Isabel, dau. of John Dickie, Esq. of Corstorphine Hill, accountant-general of excise in Scotland. Dr. Lind was long physician to the Royal Naval Hospital at Haslar, near Portsmouth; he was member of many colleges and learned societies, both at home and abroad, and author of several esteemed and useful works on the Health, Seamen, &c. He d. in 1794, leaving two sons and one dau.,

i. JOHN, of whom we treat.

ii. James (Sir), captain R.N., knighted in 1805, and created Knight Commander of the Bath.

LLOYD OF PENIARTH.

Lineage.

The immediate progenitor of this ancient line, EDNOWAIN AP BRADWEN, Founder of the XV. Noble Tribe of North Wales, derived from MARCHUDD AP CYNAN, Founder of the VIII. Noble Tribe, (for intermediate descents refer to LLOYD OF PLYMOG.)

The following account of Ednowain, taken from a manuscript written about the middle of the seventeenth century, will be found in the Cambrian register for 1796. "He (Ednowain) is by many writers called Lord of Merionydd, but, I apprehend, erroneously, for the princes and their issue were always lords of Merionydd. Howbeit, it might be, that he (as others) took the same to farm, and, therefore, might be called lord thereof. Yet, certain it is, that he and his issue were possessed of all Talybont, save Nanney, and the prince's demesnes, and for the most part of the hundred of Estimaner, in like manner. He is said to have lived in Gruffydd ap Cynan's* time. The ruins† of his house, Llys Bradwen, are to be seen in the township of Cregenau, in the hundred of Talybont Iscregenau, in Merionethshire." From Ednowain, was lineally descended,

LLEWELYN AP TUDUR, who, the Cambrian Register, quoting the same manuscript, states, "lived in the time of EDWARD I., and did him homage, with the lords and gentry of Wales, as, by the said king's records, is manifest." Llewelyn had two sons,

I. EDNYVED AP LLEWELYN, of whom hereafter.

II. Llewelyn Vychan, who m. Jane, dau. of Gwyn ap Seisyllt, of Aberacron, ancestor of the LEWISES OF ABERNANT VYCHAN.

The eldest son,

EDNYVED AP LLEWELYN, m. Gwenllian, dau. and co-

* Prince Griffith ap Cynan, who began to reign over North Wales in 1075, and died in 1137. According to another statement, Ednowain lived at a later period, in the reign of Llewelyn ap Iorwerth, "about the year 1194."

† "These ruins, consisting of large stones, as usually laid to form the foundations of buildings, mark the form as well as the simplicity of the habitations of the ancient Reguli of Wales, agreeing exactly with the account given of them by WHITTAKER, in his History of Manchester, who says, 'They were commonly placed in the hollow of a valley, and either upon the margin of one stream, or the confluence of two, for the convenience of water, and security from winds. And the followers lived immediately about the person of their chief, or in little bodies along the windings of the valley, to be within heir of Griffith ap Adda,* of Dolgoch, in the parish of Towyn, co. Merioneth, who appears to have held the office of Raglot of the hundred of Estimaner, in the year ending at Michaelmas, 7 EDWARD III., 1333, and by her had issue,

ARON AP EDNYVED, who appears, by the minister's accounts, for the period extending from 8 June, 50 EDWARD III., 1376, to Michaelmas following, at that time to have held in farm, from the crown, the manor of Estimaner, co. Merioneth. By Lucy, his wife, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Griffith Ddu, of Llanvendidged, in that county, his issue were,

I. Ednyved, who, at Michaelmas, 1400, and 1420, held in farm the office of raglot of the hundred or comote of Estimaner, in the co. of Merioneth; he m. Lowry, dau. of Jenkin Lloyd Vychan, of Pwll Dyfach, and had issue. Ednyved is said to have concealed Owen Glyndwr, during the reverses of that Prince, in a cave on the sea-side, in the parish of Celynin, which is known to this day as Og of Owen, the cave of Owen.

II. GRIFFITH, of whom hereafter.

III. Owen.

IV. Einion, who is supposed to have left issue.

I. Gwenever.

The second son,

GRIFFITH AP ARON, upon whose death there is an elegy in the works of the Welsh bard, Lewis Glyn Cothy, published in 1837, obtained in 4 HENRY V., in pledge or mortgage, with other lands, those called Maes Peniarth, (doubtless the site of the present mansion of Peniarth,) and subsequently, in many lots, and perhaps at various periods, a great extent of land in the same vicinity. Of this property, it is probable that little, if any, was ever deemed. Griffith held in farm, from the crown, at Michaelmas, 1417, the mill of Llanegryn, (in which parish Peniarth is situated,) is grantee in a deed dated 2 Nov. 1430, and was probably a grand juror for the county of Merioneth in 31 HENRY VI. He m. Gwenever, dau. of Howel ap Ievan Vychan, and by her had issue, Gwenllian, wife of Tudur ap Howel.

The son,

REES AP GRIFFITH, of Peniarth, was foreman of a grand jury empanelled at Harlech, before Thomas Stanley, justice of North Wales, in 32 HENRY VI., and was one of the sureties for the farmer of the extent lands of the crown in the hundred of Penllyn, in 21 EDWARD IV., (1481.) By Gwenever, (or Catherine,) his wife, dau. of Howel ap Tudur, of Penllyn, he was father of,

JOHN AP REES, of Peniarth, who was living in 2 HENRY VII. He m. Angharad, dau. of David ap Meuric Vychan, of Nannau, (see VAUGHAN OF RUG.) and by her had issue,

I. David, who is stated to have been alive about the year 1580, and it is supposed d. unm.

II. WILLIAM, of whom hereafter.

III. John, or John Llwyd, who m. Gwenllian, daughter of Richard Palgus.

IV. Henry.

II. Margaret.

The second son,

WILLIAM AP JOHN, of Peniarth, is party to a deed, dated 20 June, 9 HENRY VIII., (1517,) and was living 26 June, 1566. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Howel ap Jenkin ap Iorwerth, of Ynys-y-maen-gwyn, (by Mary, his wife, dau. of Sir Roger Kynaston, Knt. of Hordley, county of Salop, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Henry Grey, Earl of Tankerville and Lord Powis,) and by her had a son and four daus.,

I. DAVID LLOYD AP WILLIAM, of whom hereafter.

II. Margaret, wife of Lewis Gethin ap Tudur Vychan.

III. Anne, wife of Rees Llwyd ap Rees Vychan.

IV. Elli, wife of Thomas ap Oliver.

V. Lowry, wife of Ievan Llwyd ap Rees.

Owen of Peniarth.

The following notice of this family, and of their first settling in Merionethshire, is taken from an autograph manuscript, written about the year 1654, of Robert Vaughan, Esq. of Hengwrt, the eminent antiquary. "Cadwgan ap Jeun (Ievan) ap Mad^c, married a gentlewoman of Northwales, ye daughter of dd (David) ap Jeun Vaⁿ. (Vaughan) of Gwythel vynydd, in ye parish of Towyn, in ye countie of Merioneth, one of the greatest men in his country, and he sold his lands in Kydweli (in South Wales) and came to live to Northwales, to his wives friends, where he bought lands in ye hundred[s] of Talybont and Estimaner, and left ye same to Evan, his sonne, by his sayd wife: and ye said Evan ap Cadwgan had two sonnes, Mad^c. and Griff. Ddu, who divided his meanes (property) betweene them. Mad^c. had a sonne called David; he lived in the 31 year of HENRY VI., and was of ye inquest at ye great turne kept at Towyn, by Thom. Burnby, then shiriffe of the county, Jenkin ap Ior^t, of Ynys-y-maengwyn, being ye foreman, and this dd ap Mad^c. was the second man in it. He had two sonnes, Griffith and Mredith, who having noe issue male, theire lands fell to theire daughters. Griff. Ddu had two sonnes, Lln (Llewelyn) and Enion,‡ and a daughter called Nest," who appears to have been married to Howell ap Griffith ap Owen. "Lln ap Griff. Ddu sold his lands and tenem^{ts}, in Kevenyrhos, called Llawegros, Tyddyn Enion Gryc, and divers other lands in Estimanner, to Tud^r. ap Jeun ap Tud^r. ap Griff., of Caethle, as by ye records and evidences of y^t house is manifest. He had a sonne called Howell ap Lln ap Griff. ddu, who removed from Estimanner, and came to dwell to Talybont. He lived in the dayes of King HENRY VI., and was of the grandiury for ye said countie, in a session kept at Caernarvon, before Thomas Stanley, justice of Northwales, in ye 23th^s yeare of ye sayd king. I finde him alsoe, in divers other grand inquests, An^o. 31, 32, 33, and 34 of HENRY VI., and alwayes ranked and placed with the best of ye gentry. He had a sonne, called Owen, father of Lewis Owen, Esq., comonly called the Baron."

LEWIS OWEN, Esq. of Dolgelley, vice-chamberlain of North Wales, and haron of the Exchequer of Carnarvon, represented the co. of Merioneth in the first and second parliaments of King EDWARD VI., in 1547 and 1553, and in the third parliament of the following reign, in 1554, and probably, the co. of Montgomery, in the second parliament of Queen MARY, in 1554. He was sheriff for Merionethshire in 1546 and 1555, in the month of October, in which year, he was murdered by banditti, near Dinas Mowddwy.¶

* A poem is extant, addressed to David Lloyd ap William, by William Llyn, one of the most eminent of the Welsh bards of the 16th century.

† It is uncertain whether Catherine or Elizabeth was the elder of these two daus.

‡ Enion ap Gr. Dduy was a grand juror for the co. of Merioneth in the 34th year of HENRY VI.

§ This is a mistake in the MS. It should be 32nd.

¶ The mill and the demesne lands of Llanegryn, or manor of Talybont, were leased by the crown to Lewis Owen, Esq. upon 20 July, 1548. The latter were conveyed to his son Griffith, in perpetuity, upon 12 Dec. 1615, and they still form part of the Peniarth estate.

He m. Margaret, dau. of Robert Puleston, rector of Gresford and Whitford, and by her had issue,

- i. John-Lewis Owen, of Llwyn, Esq., who represented Merionethshire in the fourth parliament of Queen ELIZABETH (1572), and was sheriff for the county in 1566, 1573, and 1590. He m. Ursula, dau. of Richard Mytton, Esq., Lord of Mawddwy, and had issue.
- ii. Hugh, (of Caerberllan,) who represented Merionethshire in the third parliament of Queen ELIZABETH (1571). He m. Catherine, dau. of John Pughe, Esq. of Mathavarn, co. Montgomery, and had issue.

- ii. Elizabeth, wife of Richard Nanney, of Cefn-deuddwr, Gent. (refer to that name.)
- iii. Catherine, m. to John-David Lloyd, of Ceiswyn, Esq., sheriff for Merionethshire in 1550, 1558, and 1562.
- iv. Mary, wife of John-Wynn Rees, of Caerddinen, co. Denhigh, Gent.

The fourth son,

GRIFFITH OWEN, Gent. of Talybont, m. (as is before stated, see family of LLOYD) Elizabeth, one of the sisters of William-David Lloyd, Esq. of Peniarth, and by her was father of,

- i. LEWIS, of whom presently.
- ii. William, who m. Ellen, dau. of William-Lewis Gethin.
- iii. John, who d. s. p.
- iv. Edward, who d. s. p.
- v. Hugh, (of Talybont,) who by his will, dated 18 July, 1650, was founder of the free-school at Llanegryn.
- vi. Henry, in holy orders, who held a rectory in the Vale of Evesham, m. and was father, with other issue, of the celebrated John Owen, D.D., dean of Christ Church, and representative for the university of Oxford in the parliament which met 3 Sept. 1654. Henry Owen d. 18 Sept. 1649, in his sixty-third year.
- i. Margaret, wife of William David ap William, of Rhyderiw.
- ii. Ursula, wife of Owen Griffith ap John ap Ievan, Gent. of Peniarth-ganol, (then called Peniarth-ucha.)
- iii. Anne, wife, 1st, of the rector of Llanvair Veehan; and, 2ndly, of John Anwyll, A.M., rector of Llandanwg, who was instituted to one of the canonries of Bangor Cathedral, 2 June, 1627, and resigned it in 1634.
- iv. Mary, wife of William-David ap Ievan, of Llanelltyd.*

The elder son,

LEWIS OWEN, Gent., is described, in a deed made subsequently to his marriage, dated 10 June, 1593, as "heire" to William-David Lloyd, above mentioned, upon whose death he succeeded, as is before stated, to the Peniarth estate. He m. Laura, dau. of Robert Edwards, Gent. of Llwyn-du, in the parish of Llanaber, and by her had issue, two daus.,

LOVETT.

Lineage.

The name of Lovett, as differently written in Domesday, is, Loueth, Lueth, De Luviet, De Luvet, Lovet, or Lovett. The collateral descent of the family, as noticed by Betham, is deduced from the ancient Houses of Beauchamp, Engaine, St. Maur, Turville, Billinge, Drayton, Gimilies, Liguers, Linseys, Prayors, Maltravers, Craverfords, Frevilles, Dauneys, Paris, Giffard, Barons of Bromflete, &c. &c.

The unbroken line from the year 1066, or Conquest of England, to the present day, is as follows: 1. Richardus, 2. William; * 3. William; 4. John; 5. Richard; 6. William; † 7. Sir Robert; 8. Robert; ‡ 9. Thomas; 10. William; 11. Roger; 12. John; 13. William; 14. Roger; 15. Thomas; 16. Richard; 17. Lawrence; 18. Francis; 19. Sir Robert; 20. Robert; 21. Edward; 22. Robert; 23. Christopher; § 24. Robert; 25. Jonathan; 26. Sir Jonathan; 27. Verney; 28. Henry-William; 29. Sackville-Hatch; 30. Jonathan-Vaughan.

COLONEL JOHN LOVETT, son of Christopher, who m. Frances O'More, dau. of the O'More, representative of the Princes of Leix, continued the line, but never enjoyed Liseombe, m. 1st, Susan, widow of — Horton, Esq., and dau. of Laurence Lovett, of Eyethorpe, and by her had issue, I. ROBERT; and, II. Christopher. He m. 2ndly,

* William held in capite of the crown the following lands, which were granted him by the CONQUEROR: Craucaia and Fluminiehe, Beds; Deritone, Anebone, and Mortune, Bucks; Wallingford, Leicester; Dinvoit, Tediworth, &c. &c., Northampton. The CONQUEROR also appointed him Master of the Wolf hounds. Extract from the Harleian MSS., as may be seen by referring to the Shirley genealogy therein set forth; Miss Lovett having been married to Mr. Shirley, direct ancestor of the present Earl Ferrers:—"GULIELMUS DE LOVETT inter nobiles Normanicis generis qui cum Duce ad conquestum Angliæ venerant vir primarius fuit et adeo fortiter se gessit ut rex ei terras multas donavit eumque Canum Luporum, (quibus ea tunc insula non parum infestabatur) magistrum per totam Angliam constituit ratione cujus arma gentilisimo officio respondentes, (tres scilicet Lupos incidentes in campo argenteo,) sibi appropriavit suisque reliquit."

† His wife was Engaine, whose godfather was principal engineer in the CONQUEROR's army; the same family as Baron Engaine.

‡ His wife was daughter of Sir Nicholas de Turville, of Helmedon, whose direct ancestor was another of the CONQUEROR's companions in arms.

§ Philip O'Reilly, of the co. Cavan, Ireland, had seven daughters. Roger O'More, of Belina, married the eldest: he was the representative of the great family of the O'Mores, Princes of Leix, whose estates had been forfeited in the reign of ELIZABETH, and was a man highly accomplished in body and mind; but unfortunately for himself and his country—the great promoter of the Irish rebellion in 1641—he fell a victim to his feelings, and died of a broken heart when he found he could not control the rebels from committing the barbarous acts of cruelty which were perpetrated by them on the protestants. He had one son, who died without issue, and two daughters: the one married — Belin, and died without issue; the other, Frances, was wife of Christopher Lovett. The present Jonathan Lovett, Esq., therefore, has a right to quarter the O'More arms.

Mary, dau. of the Right Hon. Viscount Fermanagh, and by her had issue, I. Verney, major in the 39th regiment; II. John; I. Mary; and, II. Elizabeth; all of whom d. unm. Col. Lovett d. in 1710. His eldest son, ROBERT LOVETT, Esq. of Liseombe and Kingswell, succeeded. He m. Sarah, dau. of Jonathan Ashe, Esq. of Ashe Lodge, Tipperary, by whom he had (with several daus.) one son,

JONATHAN LOVETT, Esq. of Liscombe and Kingswell, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Daniel Mansergh, Esq. of Maerony, co. Cork, and had, with several daus., (see vol. i. p. 767,) two sons: I. JONATHAN; and, II. VERNEY. The elder son,

JONATHAN LOVETT, Esq. of Liscombe and Kingswell, created a Baronet in 1781, m. Sarah, dau. of Jonathan Darby, Esq. of Leap Castle, and had issue, LUNDIN OF AUCHTERMAIRNIE.

LUNDIN, EUPHEMIA, of Auchtermairnie, co. Fife, inherited the estate at the death of her brother, in Nov. 1832.

Tincage.

The lands of Lundin, which at one time embraced nearly the whole parish of Largo, in the co. Fife, were possessed by individuals of the same name so early as the reign of DAVID I. Towards the end of the twelfth century, Robert, a younger son of King WILLIAM the Lion, having married the heiress of this ancient family, assumed the surname of LUNDIN,* and his descendants continued in unbroken succession, in the male line, for a period of 450 years. On the decease of John Lundin, of that ilk, in 1648, the representation and estates devolved upon his daughter, Margaret, who m. the Hon. Robert Maitland, second son of John, 1st Earl of Lauderdale, and had issue an only dau., Sophia, who inherited the property of her mother, and retained the surname of Lundin. She married in the year 1670, John Drummond, second son of James, 3rd Earl of Perth, afterwards created Earl (and in France styled Duke) of Melfort,* and was succeeded by her eldest surviving son, Robert, who also retained the surname of Lundin, and m. Anne, dau. of Sir James Inglis, Bart. of Cramong, by whom he had two sons, JOHN, his successor, who d. unm. in 1735; and James Lundin, of that ilk, who succeeded his elder brother. This James adopted the surname of DRUMMOND, in lieu of that of Lundin, on inheriting, in 1760, the representation of the attainted family of Perth, at the decease of Lord Edward Drummond, youngest son of James, 4th Earl of Perth, and grandson of the 3rd Earl already referred to. By his wife, Lady Rachel Bruce, dau. of Thomas, 7th Earl of Kincardine, he had a son, James, afterwards Lord Perth, and father of the present Lady Willoughby d'Eresby, who is accordingly heir of line of the Lundins of that ilk. The Lundin estates were not alienated from the united families of Perth and Lundin till a number of years subsequent to the attainder of the Earl of Perth, in 1745.

* According to some antiquarians this Robert derived his surname from the city of London, where he is said to have received his education. Sir Robert Sibbald, in his History of Fife, p. 330, alluding to "the ancient barons of Lundin," observes, that "Robert de London, son to King William, married the heiress of this family, and of the same name of London."

The only descendants of the family of Lundin, bearing the name, are the Lundins of Auchtermairnie, in the parish of Kennoway, co. Fife, but the precise period at which they sprung from the main stem appears to be uncertain. The following is the earliest notice of this branch that occurs, in LAMONT'S Chronicle of Fife, (1649—1671,) a curious and interesting volume, containing numerous genealogical memoranda:—"1650, Jan. 13. Jhone Lundy (Lundin), the Laird of Auchtermairnie, in Fyfe, dyed at Brunton, his father-in-law his house, and from thence was caried to Auchtermairnie, and was interred the 18 day att Kennochey, (Kennoway,) his parish church." He left (besides two daus.; one, Helen, m. to the Rev. Mr. Hannah, one of the ministers of Edinburgh) two sons, I. JOHN, his heir, who d. unm.; and, II. JAMES, who succeeded his elder brother, and m. Agnes, only dau. of George Law, of Brunton, from whom was descended,

DAVID LUNDIN, of Auchtermairnie, whose dau. and heiress, ANNE, m. JAMES LUNDIN, son of her uncle Robert, and had an only dau.,

Elizabeth, who d. unm.

The eldest dau. of Robert Lundin aforesaid, named ANNE, m. Richard Smith, Esq., and had (with two daus., viz., Margaret, m. to Lachlan Maclean, of Torloisk, co. Argyll; and Anne, d. unm.) an only son, CHRISTOPHER SMITH, who, on succeeding his mother's cousin, Anne, (dau. of David Lundin,) in the estate of Auchtermairnie, assumed the surname of LUNDIN. He m. Rachel, dau. of Andrew Johnston, of Rennyhill, co. Fife, by whom he had three sons and five daus.,

I. RICHARD, capt. in the 73rd regt., who s. his father. A most interesting narrative of the wonderful adventures of this gentleman during a homeward voyage from New South Wales, appeared in a recent number of Lowe's Edinburgh Magazine, October, 1846. He d. unm. in 1832, and was s. by his eldest surviving sister, Euphemia.

* The Duke m. 2ndly, Euphemia, dau. of Sir Thomas Wallace, of Craigie, lord-justice-clerk, to the issue of which marriage, the Melfort peerage was limited. He accompanied King JAMES VII. to France, and as he did not return within the time prescribed by law, his estate and honours were forfeited to the crown, while it was expressly provided by a particular clause in the act of attainder, that the children by his first marriage with the heiress of Lundin should suffer no prejudice thereby.

† The same arms, with the exception of the bordure, were carried by the Lundins of that ilk, till the year 1679, when the following coat was specially granted to them by King

LUTWIDGE OF HOLMROOK.

1773. Lord Nelson, then in his fourteenth year, at his own earnest request, accompanied him as his cockswain, and was ever after upon terms of great intimacy and affection with Admiral Lutwidge, as appears by his correspondence, and by the following extract from his own sketch of his life:—"In this way I was trained, till the expedition towards the North Pole was fitted out, when, although no boys were allowed to go in the ships, (as of no use,) yet nothing could prevent my using every interest to go with Capt. Lutwidge, in the Carcass; and, as I fancied I was to fill a man's place, I begged I might be his cockswain, which, finding my ardent desire for going with him, Capt. Lutwidge complied with, and has continued the strictest friendship to this moment." [sc. 1799.] (See Dispatches and Letters of Lord Nelson, edited by Sir HARRIS NICOLAS, vol. i. p. 2.) Admiral Lutwidge commanded the Terrible, 74 guns, in Lord Hood's fleet,

Lineage.

The clan Gregor or MacGregor is said to have sprung from Gregor, or Gregorius, third son of ALPIN, one of the Scottish kings of the eighth century. From this descent of their founder, the sept derived their original name of MacAlpine, and they still occasionally receive the appellation of the clan Alpine. From a very ancient period, they appear to have possessed a wide tract of land on the boundary lines of Argyle and Perth shires, around Loch Katriue and the northern end of Loch Lomond. While the strong arm constituted the sole title to property in Scotland, the MacGregors managed matters as well as their neighbours, being sufficiently able and willing to make their hands keep their lands; but when territorial possessions were legally secured by written tenures, the clan imprudently continued to trust to the right of the sword, and thus paved the way for the long train of misfortunes which fell upon them. While they pursued their simple and retired mode of life, the great barons in their vicinity used their court influence to obtain charters over the old MacGregor possessions, and followed up the acquisition of such documentary rights by driving out the true proprietors. The MacGregors habitually and obsti-nately resisted such encroachments, and their bravery often gained them advantages over their adversaries. But the latter parties had always possession of the royal ear, and what was simply self-defence on the part of the devoted sept, was uniformly misrepresented at court as a headstrong defiance of all proper rule and authority. The natural result of the whole was, that the MacGregors became a wild, a lawless, and a broken clan.

This state of things commenced at a very early period. In the reign of Queen MARY, two acts of the privy council, dated from Stirling in 1563, gave authority to Sir John Campbell, of Glenorehy, and other powerful nobles and barons, to pursue the MacGregors with fire and sword; a commission which the parties concerned fulfilled, no doubt, to the utmost of their ability. But the MacGregors were not a people to be safely or easily suppressed. Oppression had made them all that their enemies had at first falsely called them. Robbed of the best portions of their property, they still retained fastnesses that could yield them shelter, but not food, more especially as their hunted mode of life prevented them from drawing sustenance in a regular way from the earth. Hence they were compelled to depend, in a great measure, on predatory forays, for the very means of living. Their temper, too, had become embittered, and their passions eager and vehement, so that they were too easily roused to the commission of acts of violence and cruelty, which furnished new and successive pleas for the entailment of further miseries on themselves. In the year 1589, a body of the MacGregors seized and murdered John Drummond, of Drummond-ernoeh, a forester of the royal forest of Glenartney. The circumstances attending this crime were peculiarly horrible. Placing the head of the victim before them, the clan swore upon it that they would avow and defend the deed in common. Letters of fire and sword, for the space of three years, were issued anew against the MacGregors, and all men, according to the usual tenour of such documents, were forbidden to entertain or assist any of the sept, or to give them, under any plea whatsoever, either a mouthful of food, or a scrap of clothing. Under these terrible denunciations, the MacGregors were only saved by their impregnable fastnesses from utter extinction.

Some few years after these last letters of fire and sword had been issued and put in force, an event occurred, which shows that the persecution inflicted on them had merely the effect of exciting their fierce spirits to a wilder pitch. The Colquhouns of Luss, a sept holding large possessions on the western shore of Loch Lomond, had long been at feud with the MacGregors, and, about the period under consideration, the breach was widened by an act committed by Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, Laird of Luss, and chief of his clan. Two of the MacGregors being benighted on the Colquhoun territory, entered a house belonging to one of the dependents of the Laird of Luss, and sought shelter. Their request was sternly refused, on which they went to an outhouse, killed a sheep, and made a meal upon its carcase. According to the MacGregor tradition, from which this story is derived, the two intruders offered payment for what they had taken. They were seized, however, and carried before Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, who, in the exercise of his power as a feudal baron, condemned them summarily, and executed them. The kindred of the unfortunate men were deeply exasperated by the intelligence of this act, and MacGregor of Glenstrae, the chief of the clan, resolved to revenge their death on the Colquhouns. He assembled a force of nearly four hundred men, and took the way with them to Luss. Before their arrival, the Laird of Luss heard of their intention, and hastily collected all the strength at his command. Being joined by parties of the Buchanan, the Graham, and other Lennox men, as well as by a band of Dumharton citizens, under the leadership of Tobias Smollett, a magistrate of the town, and ancestor of the famous novelist of the name, Sir Humphrey Colquhoun found himself at the head of a body double the number of the invaders. Glenfruin, or the Vale of Lamentation, situated at a short distance from Luss, was the spot where the two parties met. Had the Colquhouns taken their stand on more favourable ground, the victory would in all probability have fallen to their superior numbers; but the ground was boggy, and a large part of their force consisted of cavalry, which could not act in such a locality with advantage. Hence it was that the MacGregors obtained a decided superiority soon after the contest was begun. The Colquhouns are said to have fought manfully, but they were completely worsted, and a merciless slaughter exercised on them by their adversaries. Sir Humphrey Colquhoun escaped by the activity of his horse. Betwixt two and three hundred of his followers fell on the field or in the flight, while of the MacGregors only a very few were slain.

Besides the ferocity which they are reported to have used to the adversaries who met them fairly hand to hand, a particular and uncalled-for act of cruelty was perpetrated by some of the MacGregors at the battle of Glenfruin, if we are to believe the tradition of the country. Near the scene of the contest, a large stone is shown, which receives the appellation of the Leck-a-Mhinisteir, the Ministers' Stone. It is said to have derived this name from the murder of a party of students at the spot by one of the MacGregors, a man of great size and strength, named Ciar Mohr, or the Mouse-Coloured. These students had imprudently come to witness the engagement, being most probably on an excursion from Glasgow at the moment. They fell into the hands of the chief of the MacGregors, and were by him committed to the charge of Dugald Ciar Mhor, who savagely luthered them in cold blood. Being afterwards asked by the chief where the youths were, the mouse-coloured barbarian is said to have drawn out his bloody skene-dhu, and exclaimed, "Ask that, and God save me"—alluding, in the latter words, to the piteous appeals to heaven made by the ill-fated students. Dugald Ciar Mhor's grave is still shown at the church of Fortingal, covered with a large stone. It is but right to say, that another account of the matter frees Dugald Ciar Mhor from the imputation of this crime. He was the immediate and indubitable ancestor of the most celebrated personage who ever bore the name of MacGregor—namely, Rob Roy.

Only one man of note on the side of the clan Alpine was slain in the Vale of Glenfruin. This was the brother of MacGregor of Glenstrae, whose death-scene is yet marked by a stone, called the Grey Stone of MacGregor. But although the battle was to them almost bloodless, it entailed dire misery otherwise upon the race. Eleven score women, widows of those slain in the engagement on the side of the Colquhouns, attired themselves in deep mourning, and, mounted on white palfreys, appeared before the king, JAMES VI., at Stirling, and demanded vengeance on the heads of the MacGregors. To make the deeper impression on those to whom this supplication was made, each of the petitioners bore on a spear her husband's bloody shirt. Such a spectacle was well calculated to affect the reigning king, who had always shown a heart specially accessible to sights of fear and sorrow. The consequence was, that measures of extreme severity were resorted to for the punishment of the MacGregors, in whose favour no man was found to lift up his voice. By a privy council act, of date 1603, (the year following the battle,) the very name of MacGregor was abolished, a proceeding which has no parallel in the annals of the country. All those who bore the name were commanded, on pain of death, to adopt other surnames, and all who had been concerned in the battle of Glenfruin, and other marauding excursions detailed in the act, were forbidden, under the same penalty, to carry any weapon but a pointless knife to eat their victuals. Death was also denounced against any of the race who should meet in greater numbers than four at a time. From time to time, acts of this kind were issued, keeping up the ban against the unfortunate race of Alpine.

The execution of these statutes was assigned to the Earls of Argyle and Athol, and their followers, whose territories almost surrounded those of the doomed sept. The Marquis of Huntly also assisted in the fulfilment of the acts against the MacGregors. Stubbornly did the clan resist for a time the enemies by whom they were now hemmed in, but at length their chief, Allaster MacGregor, of Glenstrae, saw the necessity of bending before the storm. He surrendered, with some of his principal followers, to Argyle, upon the previously stipulated condition of being allowed to leave the country. The chieftain of Clan Alpine was wretchedly betrayed. The promise made to him was kept to the ear, but broken to the sense. He was sent "out of the country"—that is to say, he was sent under a guard across the English border, but he was immediately brought back again to Edinburgh, and thrown into confinement. On 20 Jan. 1604, he was tried, and condemned to death. The sentence was soon after carried into execution at the Cross of Edinburgh, where several of his chief followers suffered with him. To mark his rank, the chief of Glenstrae was suspended from a higher gallows than that allotted to his friends. Before his death, the chieftain made a confession, which is still extant, and which presents a terrible picture of the life "of sturt and strife" led by the race of MacGregor, from the number of feuds in which the chieftain owns to having borne a part.

Though the MacGregors, out of necessity, submitted ostensibly to the edict commanding them to take other names, they nevertheless held firm hold of the fastnesses which they had formerly occupied, and which no exertions could expel them from. Though known, as their situation might render convenient, by the names of Campbell, Drummond, Graham, or Stewart, they still retained their individuality as a clan in all but the name. They forayed in unison as formerly, and menaced with the general vengeance all who might injure one of their nameless race. They therefore remained much in the same odour as previously, and CHARLES I. thought proper to renew all the statutes enacted against them by his father.

"Yet," says Sir Walter Scott, "notwithstanding the extreme severities of JAMES VI. and CHARLES I., against this unfortunate people, who were rendered furious by proscription, and then punished for yielding to the passions which had been wilfully irritated, the MacGregors, to a man, attached themselves during the civil war to the cause of the latter monarch." This kept the sore-vexed clan still in a mesh of troubles for a long period, but they in some measure got their reward at the Restoration. CHARLES II., in the first Scottish parliament after his ascension of the throne, annulled the various statutes against them, gave them once more a name, and reinstalled them in all the ordinary privileges of liege subjects, expressly on account of the distinguished loyalty they had shown.

Strange to say, without any known cause, or any plea of renewed violence and lawlessness, WILLIAM III. recalled into force all the original statutes, making the clan once more "nameless and landless" in the eye of the law. But things were more peaceful generally throughout the country, and excepting when the clan was raised into an unfortunate notoriety by the acts of Rob Roy, who was born about the times of the Revolution, the clan of MacGregor seems to have been but little disturbed in consequence of their unhappy prominence in the statute-book. The history of the race from this time forth, excepting as far as regards the renowned freebooter just alluded to, presents no particular events worthy of notice. Up to the very close of the eighteenth century, the MacGregors were legally a nameless clan, in as far as the penal acts against them still held a place in the statute-book, though, practically, the law recognised the name, and none of the penal statutes were ever enforced. The British parliament finally abolished all these traces of ancient barbarity. As soon as this boon was conferred on them, the MacGregors showed remaining tokens of a strong feeling of claniship, by acknowledging a head and chief. Eight hundred and twenty-six persons, of the name of MacGregor, subscribed a deed, admitting John Murray, Esq. of Lanrick, afterwards Sir John MacGregor, Bart., as lawfully descended of the house of Glenstrae, and the proper and true chieftain of Clan Alpine.

The ancestor of this family was DOUGAL, surnamed Ciar, (or mouse-coloured,) and his descendants are known in the Highlands as Clan Dhongal Chear. It is stated in DOUGLAS'S Baronage of Scotland, that Dougal Ciar was the fifth son of Gregor, called Aulin, Laird of MacGregor, who d. circ. 1413-15. I. Katherine, m. to Stewart of Glenbuckie.

Gregor accompanied his chief, and fought gallantly at the battle of Glenfrone, in 1602, which proved so fatal in its consequence to the Clan Gregor, although they gained the victory. He was s. by his son,

MALCOLM MACGREGOR, in Glengyle, who entered into a bond of friendship with the Earl of Argyll, whereby, according to the custom of the times, they bound themselves to support each other against all persons, the king and his authority excepted. In 1624, three hundred of the Clan Gregor accompanied the Earl Moray from Monteth and Balquhither to Morayshire, in order to protect his property from the Clan Chattan. Malcolm's conduct on this occasion gave such satisfaction to the noble earl, that he granted him a farm at the Bridge of Turk, Perthshire, as a reward for his services, which still remains in the possession of the family. Malcolm purchased the lands, or wadset of Portneilean, from John Buchanan, of that ilk, on the 8th of Aug. 1659, for one thousand merks, as stated in the contract, which is recorded. Malcolm m. a dau. of Macdonald, of Keppoch, by whom he had (with several daus., one of them was m. to MacGregor, of Caol-letter, in Strathfillan) two sons, DONALD and John. The elder son,

DONALD MACGREGOR, in Glengyle, signed a bond of association at the Castle of Blair Atholl, on the 24th Aug. 1689, where he, along with other highland proprietors, became bound to raise a quota of men for his majesty King JAMES VII., in whose service he was appointed a lieut.-col. There is still preserved a bond of friendship entered into, according to the custom of the times, by the said Lieut.-Col. Donald MacGregor, and John Buchanan, of Ardprior, dated the 23rd and 24th of May, 1693. Lieut.-Col. Donald MacGregor m. a dau. of Campbell of Glenlyon, by whom he had three sons and one dau.,

I. JOHN.

II. Duncan, d. s. p.

III. Robert, known as the celebrated Roh Roy MacGregor, of Craigostran and Inversnaid.

I. Sarah, m. to Macdonald, brother of Glencoe.

Col. MacGregor was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN MACGREGOR, in Glengyle, a man in no respects inferior in merit to his ancestors. When Sir John Campbell, of Glenorchy, was created Earl of Caithness, the Sinclairs, by violence, opposed him, as there was a distant heir male who had a right to that title. On this occasion, the earl was under the necessity of vindicating his right to the land and title of Caithness by force, and accordingly sent a party of his clan, commanded by his near relation, Campbell of Glenlyon. John, who was a nephew of Glenlyon, joined that party with his friends and followers, and rendered an essential service to the interest of the earl. John m. Christian, dau. of Campbell of Duncavon, by whom he had two sons, viz., I. GREGOR; II. Donald; and a dau., m. to Graham, of Brachurn, Stirlingshire. John was s. by his eldest son, GREGOR MACGREGOR, of Glengyle, (known by the name of Gregor Ghindie, from his having a black spot on his knee. He was b. in 1688, and liberally educated by the care and attention of his uncle, Robert Roy MacGregor, of Craighrostan and Inversnaid. In 1703, he purchased of the Duke of Montrose the feu right of the lands of Glengyle, which was formerly held in lease by his ancestors, and in compliment to that nobleman, on the suppression of his own name, he assumed that of JAMES GRAHAM, and as such signed several contracts, which are still preserved. In the insurrection of 1715, Glengyle collected all his friends and followers, and took arms in the interest of the Royal Stewart family. The first service he performed was to secure the boats on Lochlomond, for which he received a letter of thanks from the Earl of Mar, dated at the camp, at Perth, 14 Oct. 1715. Glengyle conducted himself during those troublesome times with such steadiness and courage, that he not only acquired the esteem of his general officers, but also of many distinguished persons of opposite principles, who experienced the uprightness of his conduct in protecting their properties from the injuries incident to a civil war. Notwithstanding what Glengyle had suffered in the cause of King James VII., in 1715, he was among the first that joined Prince Charles's banner in 1745, and was appointed colonel and governor of Doune, Cardross, and Ballinton, and his commission as colonel, dated Holyrood Palace, 15 Oct. 1745, is still preserved. Glengyle, in 1745, took, with the assistance of twelve of his followers, the Fort of Inversnaid, and marched from that garrison eighty-nine soldiers prisoners to the Castle of Doune. He bore an active part in all the transactions of 1745, in favour of the Stewart family, and continued zealous and devoted to the interest of that Royal family to the day of his death. Gregor d. 21 Aug. 1777, and was s. by his eldest son,

* Gregor Boach was succeeded by his only son, Daniel MacGregor, of Inverarderan, capt. in the E. I. Co.'s service, who m. Miss Austin, niece of Lord Semple, by whom he had a son, Sir Gregor MacGregor, and two daus., Anne, m. to Doctor O'Reilly; and Jane, m. to John MacGregor, Esq. of Glengyle.

JOHN MACGREGOR, of Glengyle, b. in 1708, a man of great honour and integrity. By his attention to his domestic affairs he greatly improved his estate, which had been encumbered in consequence of the spirited actions of his father in favour of the exiled Stewart family. As soon as the clans took arms in the year 1745, he was secured by an order from government, and kept prisoner in Edinburgh Castle until the rebellion was over. This happily preserved the family estate, which was vested in his person for several years previous to 1745, but his house was demolished and his effects carried away. Rob Roy Macgregor of Craighrostan and Inversnaid.

ROBERT MACGREGOR, third son of Lieut.-Col. Donald Macgregor, of Glengyle, Perthshire, by a dau. of Campbell of Glenlyon, was known as the celebrated Rob Roy, a man of singular intrepidity and distinguished valour. He assumed the surname of his noble friend and patron, John, 2nd Duke of Argyll, who on all occasions promoted his interest. The achievements of Rob Roy, so universally celebrated, were everywhere extolled as the matchless deeds of unconquered Caledonia; and though his prowess could not be said, at all times, to have been displayed in actions strictly meritorious, cruelly forced on him in lawless times, yet the general tenour of his conduct was admired in his own country, as it accorded with an ancient Gaelic proverb, descriptive of the well-known character of the Highlanders, "That he would not turn his back on an enemy or a friend." Yet he neither boasted of his strength nor his courage, neither did he view his exploits with the pride of a victor, but with the honest exultation of having supported the valour of his clan, and opposed the overwhelming tide of oppression and injustice. Steady in these principles, he never wantonly engaged in a quarrel; and though conscious of his own superior strength, he was unwilling to engage in any personal dispute. He was, however, frequently challenged to single combat, and actually fought twenty-two battles of this description. Strongly attached to the interest of the Stewart family, he was attainted of high treason for the part he took in the rebellion of 1715, and his letter of submission to Major-General George Wade is inserted in the general's report to government, with other letters of the same class, all of which are dated in 1725. Rob Roy was possessed of considerable property, and the honourable manner in which he obtained it will be seen from the following extracts, copied from the records in the Register Office, Edinburgh:—Feu contract betwixt Archibald Graham, (formerly surnamed Macgregor,) of Kilmanan, heritable proprietor of the lands and barony of Craighrostan, and Robert Campbell, (formerly surnamed Macgregor,) of Inversnaid, in which the said Archibald, with the consent of his eldest lawful son, in consideration of the payment of 1200 merks, and 40 pounds Scots, entire money, he sells and disposes, and in feu farm, lets and demits to the said Robert Campbell, the town and lands of Knocheild, in the parish of Inchcoullach, sheriffdom of Stirling, dated at Buchanan and Killern, December 9 and 15, 1701, and signed by the parties.—Charter by Sir Humphry Colquhoun, of Luss, superior on the resignation of Archibald Graham, of Kilmanan, of the lands of Craighrostan, extending to a ten-pound land of old extent, comprehending the lands of Ruskenach, Knocheild, Rouchoishe, Coileish, Auchinroy, Ashland, Cluckbug, Inversnaid, Polchrae, &c., all lying within the regality of Lennox, and parish of Inchcoullach, and sheriffdom of Stirling, in favour of Robert Campbell, of Inversnaid, dated May 14, 1706.—Seisin in favour of Robert Campbell, of Inversnaid, on disposition of Archibald Graham, of Kilmanan, in the above-mentioned lands, dated 10 Jan. 1707. These lands, though of little value, were of considerable extent. They extended from the head of Loch Lomond, twelve miles along the eastern border, and stretched into the interior of the country, and partly round the base of the stupendous mountain of Benlomond. The Marquis of Montrose, his near neighbour, foreseeing the necessity of gaining Rob Roy's confidence, made a proposal of entering into partnership with him in the trade of cattle-dealing. In this plan Rob Roy readily acquiesced, and being considered a good judge of cattle, Montrose had every reliance on his abilities, and advanced him, as a partner, one thousand merks, besides the original sum laid out in the purchase of cattle. Montrose, at different periods, advanced him money on the security of his estate. They carried on the trade of cattle-dealing with success, till one of the name of Macdonald, an inferior partner, fled with a large sum of money, which loss greatly impeded Rob Roy's trading concerns, and rendered him incapable of paying Montrose. The partnership being dissolved, owing to this circumstance, Montrose immediately instituted a lawsuit against Rob Roy, by which the latter was compelled to give his lands in wadset, on condition that they should again be restored to him, provided he could pay the money. Sometime thereafter, Rob Roy's finances having improved, he offered to return the sum for which his estate was held, but it was pretended that, besides interest and various other expenses, the amount had greatly increased; and also that it would require a considerable time to look over the various accounts, in order to form a correct statement, and to see how matters stood between them. By this equivocal conduct Rob Roy was some time amused, and ultimately deprived of his property.* Mr. Graham, of Killern, the Marquis of Montrose's chamberlain, over-zealous in his master's service, had recourse to a mode of expulsion inconsistent with the laws of humanity, by insulting Mrs. MacGregor, and depriving her of her house and property in her husband's absence, an outrage which Rob never forgave, and which greatly justified the measures of retaliation which he afterwards adopted. Rob Roy, subsequently to his expulsion from his estate, had been a contractor for aiding the police of different districts on the borders of the Highlands, and made a special agreement with the proprietors, tenantry, and all classes of people in those districts, to protect their property from freebooters, who were in the habit of plundering and committing depredations on the more defenceless districts. The money paid for this protection was called black mail, and was paid agreeably to the conditions agreed upon by the two contracting parties. By his vigilance and activity, combined with justice and honesty of principle, peace was in a few years established throughout the country on a firm and lasting foundation, and continued to operate without the aid of contractors, watches, or guarantees. It is a remarkable trait in the character of Rob Roy, that he was always the strenuous opponent of every deed of cruelty, or breach of faith, especially if committed on those who were suffering under the pressure of misfortune. The orphan, the widow, and the poor were those for whom he stood boldly forward, and proclaimed himself their champion; and to supply their wants with the means of the rich, when his own resources failed, was his greatest delight, and an appeal to his generosity was never disregarded. Another feature in Rob Roy's character was an independence of mind, which raised him superior to every misfortune, and rendered him invincible, where ordinary courage, even with determined resolution, would have completely failed. When nearly worn out and exhausted by the untoward vicissitudes of a restless life, and confined to bed in a state of approaching dissolution, a person, with whom he had a quarrel, called upon him, and wished to see him. "Raise me up," said he to his attendant, "dress me in my best clothes, tie on my sword, and place me in the great chair; that fellow shall never see me on a deathbed:" with this they complied, and he received this visitor with cold civility. When the stranger had taken his leave, Rob Roy exclaimed, "It is all over now: put me to bed, call in the piper, let him play Cha phill mi tuilleadh," ("I will never return as long as I breathe.") He was faithfully obeyed, and calmly met his death, which took place at the farm of Inverloch-larig-beg, in the Braes of Balquhider, in 1735. He was m. to Helen-Mary, dau. of MacGregor, of Comar, a woman of an agreeable temper and domestic habits, active and economical in the management of her family affairs. By her he had five sons, viz.,

I. COLL.

ii. Duncan, who resided in Balquhider.

iii. James-More, who assumed the surname of Drummond: he accompanied his cousin, Gregor MacGregor, of Glengyle, with twelve men, in 1745, and took the Fort of Inversnaid; they found only nine soldiers in the garrison, the rest were working out at roads, but they secured them, in the name of Prince Charles Stewart, and marched them prisoners, eighty-nine in number, to the Castle of Doune. James afterwards fought bravely, as a captain in the MacGregor regt., at the battle of Preston. He d. at Paris, in Oct. 1754, leaving a numerous family; his eldest son, Gregor Drummond, resided at Edinburgh, and d. in 1817.

iv. Ranald, m. Jane, second dau. of Gregor MacGregor, of Glengyle, and resided in Balquhider; he had two sons: the eldest, Gregor, who was employed in the West Indian trade, m. a Miss Hamilton, at Greenock, by whom he had a son, Gregor, and a dau., who m. to — Laird, Esq. of Liverpool. Gregor s. his father at Greenock, and m.

Mary, dau. of Professor John Cook, of St. Andrew's, in 1811, by whom he had two sons, Gregor and John, and four daus., Janet, Mary, Jean, and Agnes. Gregor d. in 1831.

v. Robert-Oig (or junior), to distinguish him from his father. He m. 8 Dec. 1750, Jane Kay, of Edinbelly, parish of Balfrone, Stirlingshire, a rich young widow, of eccentric and inconsistent character, whose husband had been dead only six weeks before that time; he was accused of carrying her off by force, and after various occurrences which seemed to render the charge doubtful, he was executed, 4 Feb. 1754.

Rob Roy's eldest son,

COLL MACGREGOR, resided in Balquhider, a man of high character for every manly virtue. His chief study was to promote the interest of his friends and acquaintances, and to relieve the poor and needy in their distresses. He was an elder of the Church of Scotland, and proved of the greatest service in the parish where he resided. He m. a dau. of MacGregor of Gleucarnock, by whom he had one dau., and two sons, JOHN and Duncan. The elder,

JOHN MACGREGOR, a capt. in the 60th regt. of foot, served with much credit with that corps, in various hard fought battles, during the first American war. His name appeared repeatedly in General Murray's dispatches. He m. a dau. of John MacAlpine, Esq. of Edinburgh, by whom he had two sons,

i. JAMES, of whom presently.

ii. Robert, who was early appointed to a commission in the 15th regt. Native infantry, Bengal establishment, served with distinction at Seringapatam, and was present at many actions and storming of forts, both in Madras and Bengal presidencies, and owing to his superior education and talent, was appointed Persian interpreter in the field. He was military secretary to the commander-in-chief, Lord Lake, at the battle of Delhi, 11 Sept. 1803, where he was killed, while gallantly leading his regiment in a charge against the enemy's artillery. The Major's gallant conduct as an officer, interpreter, and military secretary to the commander-in-chief, was repeatedly mentioned in general orders, and his death much regretted by his friends, acquaintances, and particularly by his brother officers. He m. Sarah, dau. of John Graham, Esq. of Rednock House and Duchray Castle, Perthshire, by whom he had (with a younger son, John Graham, who d. a lieut. in the 49th regt. Native infantry, Bengal establishment, 30 Nov. 1825, unn.) an elder son, Robert-Stuart MacGregor, a capt. in the Stirlingshire regiment of militia, b. 8 Feb. 1800, who entered the navy early in life, where he had seen on various occasions severe and hard service, from 1812 to 1817. At that time he passed his examination at Portsmouth College, for a lieutenantancy in the navy, but peace being concluded, and having no prospect of an early employment or promotion, he accepted of a cadetship offered to him on account of his father's services on the Bengal establishment, and served as lieutenant in the Company's service, from 1817 to 1825, when he returned to Europe in consequence of ill health. He m. 18 June, 1835, Helen-Kea, dau. of Adam Bisset, Esq., merchant, of Leith, and grand-dau. of the celebrated and learned Doctor Bisset, late minister of Logierait, Perthshire, well known in that part of the country for his kind and good offices as a clergyman and gentleman; by her he has issue,

1. Robert, b. 24 Oct. 1840.

2. John-Adam, b. 24 Feb. 1843, d. 11 Nov. 1846.

1. Frances, b. at Sea-Side Cottage, Portobello, 1 April, 1839.

The elder son of Capt. John MacGregor,

JAMES MACGREGOR, was a major-general in the Hon. East India Company's service, and was present at the taking of Seringapatam, and various sieges and battles, where his gallant conduct was repeatedly mentioned in general orders. He m. 26 Feb. 1801, Catharine Wedderburn, dau. of Thomas Dunbar, of West Field, Caithness, by whom he had three sons and two daus.,

i. ROBERT-GUTHRIE.

ii. James.

iii. Thomas, who d. in India, a lieut. in the E. I. Co.'s service, Bengal establishment.

1. Isabella, m. to the late Capt. the Hon. Patrick Sinclair, brother to the Earl of Caithness.

ii. Barbara, d. at Portobello, unn.

Major-General James MacGregor d. at Monghyr, 7 Dec. 1818. His son,

ROBERT-GUTHRIE MACGREGOR, capt. in the Bengal artillery, served in the Burmese war, and was present at the capture of Rangoon and storming of Donabiew, where he was severely wounded. He was also present at the capture and storming of Bhurtpore, in 1827, where he was very severely wounded in the leg. He was b. in Jan. 1805, and m. 6 Jan. 1838, Alexandrina, dau. of Major-General Archibald Watson, Bengal establishment, by whom he has issue,

- i. EDWARD, b. 27 Oct. 1838.
- ii. Charles-Metcalf, b. 12 Aug. 1840.
- i. Ina, b. 29 Jan. 1841.
- ii. Isabella-Jane, b. 12 Oct. 1845.

MACGREGOR OF LERAGAN RANNOCH, PERTHSHIRE.

Lineage.

In the year 1500, the thirty-two merkland, on the north side of Lochrannoch, was in the possession of the MacGregors as crown tenants, and divided into three divisions, as follows, viz. :—

The western division, consisting of Dunan, Kinch-lacher, &c., comprehending eleven merkland, west of the river Erichd, was possessed by Alexander More, a younger son of MacGregor of Roro; and notwithstanding the charter granted to Sir Robert Menzies, on the 1st of Sept. 1502, of the said lands, for the payment of £30 Scots of fen duty annually, Alexander and his descendants maintained their right of occupancy until the 22nd of April, 1675, when Patrick MacGregor, in Dunan, took a wadset from Sir Alexander Menzies, of the two merkland of Dunan, and four merkland of Kinch-lacher, under reversion of five thousand merks, Scots.

The middle division, consisting of twelve merkland, comprehending Ardiarich, Kilchonan, &c., was possessed by Gregor MacGregor, who d. in the island of Lochrannoch, 31 July, 1526. He was the son of John MacEwine, Vick-Allester MacGregor, brother of Glenstray, who resided in Ardiarich in 1461. The last of this family was Captain Robert MacGregor, who commanded the MacGregor company of Prince Charles's army, raised in Rannoch, in 1745.

The eastern division, comprehending Leragan, Aulich, &c., extending to a nine merkland, lying between Althardie and Ciach-Glas, near the east end of Lochrannoch, was possessed by Duncan-Du, another of the younger sons of MacGregor of Roro, and of whom, with his descendants, it is proposed to give some account.

DUNCAN MACGREGOR, son of MacGregor of Roro, and known as Donnach du Lienoch, being from Glenlyon, settled in the lands of Leragan, Aulich, &c., in Rannoch, in 1490. From the lawless state of the Highlands at that period, and for more than a century and a half subsequent to the date of the charter of Rannoch, to Sir Robert Menzies, Leragan, and various other farms, continued to be occupied by Duncan and his descendants, without paying rent. Their chief, notwithstanding the said charter, claimed the thirty-two merkland on the north side of Lochrannoch, as his lawful property, by hereditary right of occupancy, as crown tenant. Sir Alexander Menzies, of that ilk, produced his charter in court, on the 24th of May, 1595, and gained a decree against Alexander-Roy MacGregor, of Glenstray, and his clan, sub-tenants, to remove from the north side of Lochrannoch. Several wadsets, rights, and charters, granted by the superior in favour of some of the Clan Gregor, from about 1660, will be noticed below. Duncan-Du is said to have been m. to a dau. of Macpherson of Nedmore Badenoch, a cadet of the family of Cluny, by whom he had several children. He was s. by his eldest son,

MALCOLM MACGREGOR, called Calum-Glas, who was a brave warrior and an excellent sportsman. In his time a large body of the Clan Gregor fought at the battle of Pinky, 10 Sept. 1547, under the command of their chief, where they suffered severely. In 1563, Queen MARY's privy council issued a proclamation against the Clan Gregor, representing them rebels and enemies to her majesty. A few years after this act was passed, some of those favourites, who then were in the privy council, declared her majesty an enemy to the state, imprisoned and impeached her, and, after eighteen years' confinement, she was at last beheaded, at Fotheringay, on Wednesday, 8 Feb. 1586. It may be here observed that the MacGregors did not resort to violence from disposition or by premeditation. It was only when the Laird of Glenorchy and others laid claim to their lands, in virtue of charters (unjustly as they thought) obtained from the crown, that this clan, in right of immemorial occupancy, rose up to defend their possessions from those intruders who, by secret influence at court, procured those acts, which they imagined would prove the ruin of the MacGregors, and secure to themselves their property. Malcolm-Glas was m. to — Stewart, an Atholl lady, by whom he had four sons, viz.,

- i. JOHN-BANE.
- ii. Gregor-Gar, mentioned in a commission of the privy council, 4 Feb. 1589.
- iii. Patrick-Gar, proposed as a pledge for some individuals of the clan, 12 Aug. 1600. His son, John-du-Gar, was a noted adventurer, and is frequently mentioned as such by SPALDING, in his History of the troubles in Morayshire.
- iv. Malcolm, who resided in Leragan in 1595, and had a numerous family.

The eldest son,

JOHN-BANE MACGREGOR, in Leragan, was, 2 Feb. 1590, one of several securities for Alexander-Roy MacGregor, of Glenstray, in bond of peace betwixt the Earls of Montrose and Monteith, Lords Drummond and Livingston, Sir Duncan Campbell, of Gemorely, and others of the Campbells, Robertson of Stronan, &c., on the one part, and the said Alexander-Roy MacGregor, of Glenstray, on the other part, and was as such, along with the said Alexander and others of the securities, charged for John du MacGregor, brother to the said Alexander-Roy MacGregor, and two others of the Clan Gregor, on account of having refused to apprehend these gentlemen for an alleged act of serious difference betwixt them and Graham of Fentrie. John accompanied his chief, Alexander-Roy MacGregor, of Glenstray, and had his share in the battle of Glenfrone, the 7th Feb. 1603, fought betwixt the MacGregors and the Colquhouns; the particulars respecting this battle are to be found in the History of the Earldom of Sutherland, published by Sir Robert Gordon, Bart. of Gordonstown, in 1630, page 246. John-Bane's first wife was a dau. of Macpherson of Broachie, in Badenoch, by whom he had one son,

i. ALEXANDER.

His second wife was Jean, dau. of Macpherson of Phones, by whom he had two sons,

- ii. Malcolm-Bane, who resided in Leragan, in 1618; his son Duncan purchased the wadset of the forty-shilling lands, part of the four merkland of Kinardochie, 30 April, 1649, under reversion of £1000 Scots, and, 1 Feb. 1675, purchased the wadset of the two merkland of Kilchonan Rannoch, under the reversion of £1000 Scots.
- iii. Gregor, known as Gregor Roy na Lurach, from his wearing a coat of mail, was killed at Invernahan Badenoch, whilst defending the Marquis of Huntly against the troops of the state; he left three sons,
 1. Alexander, who resided in Leragan in 1637; he m. a Miss Stewart, from Bun-rannoch, by whom he had five sons; those and their descendants are known in the country by the style of Clan Allaster Ruaidh.
 2. Malcolm, who was m. to Marjory MacGregor, from Glenlyon, and had by her one son, of whom are descended the MacGregors about Dunkeld, known as Clan Cullum Ruaidh.
 3. John, who, 16 April, 1658, entered with John, Earl of Atholl, into a contract of mortgage, by which he acquired a right, under reversion, to the two merkland of Drumcastle, and was enfeoffed, 11 June, 1658. He was, 30 June, 1660, enfeoffed in the three merkland of Leragan, in the barony of Rannoch, on a contract of mortgage with Sir Alexander Menzies, of that ilk, under reversion of £1000 Scots, and subject to an annual feu duty, as stated below.* John-Ray MacGregor, of Leragan and Drumcastle, was m. to Margaret, dau. of Strowan Robertson, by whom he had a son, who d. young, and two daus.

John-Bane was s. by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER MACGREGOR, of Leragan, who joined the Marquis of Montrose in his campaign, in 1645, under the command of Patrick MacGregor, of that ilk; and the orders issued on that occasion to the Laird of MacGregor is to be found in the History of the Clan Gregor, in DOUGLAS's Baronage of Scotland. Alexander m. a MacGregor, by whom he had issue, and was s. by his eldest son,

* Money rent, five merks at Martinmas, three veals, and three pints of butter, at Baltane, or 36 shillings Scots, for each veal with its pint of butter; three stones of cheese and three quarters of butter, at Lammass, or, at his option, £312s. Scots for each stone of cheese and quarter of butter undelivered.

DUNCAN MACGREGOR, styled Donnacha Du na Gealaich, which familiar style he acquired from having frequently expressed the rather singular wish to have the Michaelmas moon enclosed in a bag, for the purpose of depriving the thieves of the benefit of its light, particularly those who were in the habit about this time of the year of driving off his cattle, of which he had a great number, being wealthy, and so far as the non-payment of rent was concerned, the proprietor of the lands he occupied. Duncan was one of the several securities for his kinsman, Gregor MacGregor, in Liarone, in a bond of relief to Sir Alexander Menzies, of that ilk, dated 24 Nov. 1683, of which we shall have occasion to speak more particularly in the sequel. Duncan m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Duncan Stewart, of Drumvorlagan, by whom he had one son, Donald, who purchased the wadset of the three merkland of Leragan, from John-Roy MacGregor, as appears from a bond, dated 26 May, 1694, in which he is designed of Leragan. Duncan m. 2ndly, a dau. of Robertson of Bohespie, by whom he had four sons,

- I. JOHN. II. Malcolm.
III. Alexander. IV. Hugh.

Duncan was s. by his son,

JOHN MACGREGOR, who reside in Torrachridh, in the bounds of Leragan. When quite a youth, he went to the field for JAMES VII., under the command of Viscount Dundee, and fought at the battle of Killieranky, 27 July, 1689. He accompanied the MacGregors of Ardlarich and Dunan with their followers from Rannoch, to fight for JAMES VII., at the battle of Sheriffinoor, in 1715. The MacGregors of the family Leragan had a stone called Clach na Brattch, regarded in former days as a charm, to preserve from danger the individual who carried it, and those of Tigh Leragan, under his command. Its virtue was imparted by sprinkling the water, in which the stone had been immersed, upon each individual of the party in arms, previously to engaging the enemy in battle. JOHN MACGREGOR, who was appointed lieutenant in the Rannoch company of MacGregors, raised for Prince Charles's army, in 1745, and commanded by Captain Robert MacGregor, (Ardlarich,) leader of the Rannoch MacGregors on this occasion, and justly esteemed a gallant and able officer. Captain Robert MacGregor distinguished himself at the head of his brave men in the rapid and decisive charge of broadswords and targets, in the battle of Prestonpans, 21 Sept. 1745, and also in the battle of Falkirk, 17 Jan. following. After the conclusion of the latter affair, Lord George Murray (in whose regiment the Rannoch MacGregors, forming part of the force, furnished from the lands of which Menzies of that ilk was superior, had a place) publicly, in the field of battle, thanked Captain Robert MacGregor for his gallant conduct, and that of his men. This regiment suffered severely at the battle of Culloden, on the 16th of April, 1746. John MacGregor* was b. in 1720, and m. 10 Mareh, 1761, Elizabeth, only dau. of Hugh-Roy Stewart, Esq. Temper Rannoch, by whom he had (besides two daus., Janet, m. in 1796, to Peter-Robertson Edderton; and Barbara, m. in 1805, to John Robertson, in Strowan) three sons, viz.,

- I. ALEXANDER, b. 10 Dec. 1761, who was bred to the law in Edinburgh, but became afterwards a wealthy merchant at Long Branch, Shrewsbury, New Jersey, United States, America. early a lieut. in the Royal Clan Alpine regiment raised in 1798, and disbanded at the peace, in 1802; in 1803, he became lieut. in the Inverness-shire militia, and, 9 Feb. 1804, was appointed an ensign in the 79th regt.; promoted to a lieutenantancy, 25 Mareh, 1804, and to a company, 17 Aug. 1806. He served under the command of the Duke of Wellington, in Portugal, Spain, and France, and was promoted to the rank of major in the army, 12 Aug. 1819, and that of lieut.-colonel, 10 Jan. 1837; placed upon half-pay, in consequence of the reduction in the army, 25 Dec. 1821, and settled at Brighton-place, Portobello. He was one of the Royal Clan corps collected by Sir Evan-John-Murray MacGregor, Bart. of MacGregor, during the auspicious visit of his Majesty King GEORGE IV. to his ancient kingdom of Scotland, and employed, along with the corps of Celts, in (among other loyal services) escorting, previously to his Majesty's arrival, the regalia of Scotland from their depôt in the Castle of Edinburgh, to the palace of Holyrood House, and attended on the forenoon of Saturday, 24 Aug. 1822, when the regalia were carried hack from Holyrood Palace and re-deposited in the crown room, in the Castle. The procession moved in the following order:—

Flankers, Scotch Greys.
Flanking party of Celts.

Sir Evan MacGregor, mounted.
Banner and Pipes.
Lieutenant-Colonel Hugh MacGregor, and
Division of the Clan Gregor.
Sir Alexander Keith, Knight-Marshall, (attended by his Esquires)
in his carriage with the Regalia.
Major Donald MacGregor, and
Division of the Clan Gregor.

Flankers, Scotch Greys.
Flanking party of Celts.

After seeing the regalia deposited in the Castle, the MacGregors were permitted to return to their homes, highly gratified with the honourable duty which had been assigned to them, more particularly as this gallant but long most unfortunate race of the Clan Alpine consider themselves to have been connected with the regalia, from times of the most remote antiquity. Their bearing is, A sword, displayed, supporting an antique crown, and under it an old Gaelic verse, describing them as

"Children of those native Royal sires,
Who at Dunstaffnage* ancient spires
From first the crown of Albyn bore,
Which still they love because their fathers wore."

MACLACHLAN OF MACLACHLAN.

MACLACHLAN, ROBERT, Esq. of Strathlachlan, or Maclachlan, co. Argyll, convener of the county, m. Helen-C. Carruthers, dau. of William-A. Carruthers, Esq. of Dormont, co. Dumfries.

Lineage.

The Clan Lachlan, or Maclachlans, of which Maclachlan of Maclachlan, or Strathlachlan, is the chief, is one of great antiquity in Argyllshire, possessing the Barony of Strathlachlan, in Cowall, and other extensive possessions in the parishes of Glassrie and Kilmartin, which were separated from the main seat of the family by the arm of the sea, called Loch Fine.

The ancestor of the family, and from whom the clan takes its name, was LACHLAN MOR, who lived in the thirteenth century, and whose son, GILLESPIE, or ARCHIBALD, appears on record as in possession of the lands of Strath, or Strathlachlan, and which have remained in the family ever since.

LACHLAN MOR had two sons, GILLESPIE, or ARCHIBALD; and GILLAPADRUIG, or PATRICK, who s. his brother. The elder,

GILLESPIE, or ARCHIBALD, was in possession of the family estates, as appears by a document preserved in the treasury of H.M.'s Exchequer, endorsed, "Les petitions des terres qui sont demandees en Escocce." During the occupation of Scotland by EDWARD I., in 1296, appears the following entry—"Item Gillescep McLoghlan ad demande la Baronie de Molbride juvene qui est appele Strath qui fut pris contra la foi de Roi." The principal message of the Barony of Strathlachlan was the Castle of Kilhride, the same as Molhride, afterwards called Castle Lachlan.* In one of the rolls of charters, granted by ROBERT I., King of Scotland, shortly after the year 1306, there appears a grant to this Gillespie or Archibald Maclachlan, of the lands of Shirvan, and others, in the parish of Glassrie. Archibald died before 1322, and was s. by his brother,

PATRICK MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who m. a dau. of James, Steward of Scotland, and had a son, LACHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who m. Agnes, dau. of the Lord of the Isles, and had two sons, DONALD and JOHN.

DONALD MACLACHLAN confirmed to the friars of Glasgow the charter granted by Gillaspac Maclachlan, his predecessor, 16 July, 1456. He was s. by his brother,

JOHN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who m. 1st, Catharine, dau. of Duncan Lamond, of Lamond, (ancestor of that ancient family;) and 2ndly, Marion Campbell, and by the former had three sons, Kenneth and Patrick, both predeceased him, s. p.; and

* In 1314, Gillaspac Maclochlan, in Ergadia, granted to the preaching friars of Glasgow forty shillings out of his lands of Kilbryde, "juxta castrum meum quod dicitur Castellachlan."

ARCHIBALD MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who was served heir to his father in the whole lands of the family, 20 Nov. 1509, and was infeft 12 Dec. following. He m. one of the daus. and co-heirs of John Lamond, of Lamond, and left a son and successor,

LACHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who was infeft as heir to his father, in the lands of Strathlachlan, &c., 29 Oct. 1520. On the death of his maternal grandfather, John Lamond, of Lamond, he claimed the estate of Lamond, as heir of line of the family, from John Lamond, of Inverm, the heir male, but the right of the heir male was found preferable by a decree of the Court of Session, dated 16 Aug. 1546. Lachlan m. Katharine Tait, and had two sons,

ARCHIBALD, his heir.

Lachlan, who had a son,

LACHLAN OG, who s. his uncle, and of whom presently.

The elder son,

ARCHIBALD MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, s. his father, and was infeft 5 May, 1559. He m. a dau. of Lord Lyle, but dying s. p., was s. by his nephew,

LACHLAN-OG MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who was infeft in the estates of the family, 1 March, 1580. He was father of

LACHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who obtained a crown charter of resignation and novodamus, from King JAMES VI., of the lands of Strathlachlan, &c., dated 6 Jan. 1591. His son and heir,

LAUCHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, m. Anne MacNeill, and was s. by his son,

ARCHIBALD MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who was served heir to his father, 16 Jan. 1663, and obtained, 11 Sept. 1680, a crown charter, erecting his whole lands into a free barony, called the Barony of Strathlachlan, and appointing the manor place of Castle Lachlan, in Kilbride, to be the principal messuage of the barony. He m. the eldest dau. of Campbell of Lochneill, and was s. by his son,

LACHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Wallace of Ingleston; and 2ndly, Florence Campbell, relict of John Macdonald, of Largie: and by the former had two sons, LACHLAN, his heir; and Robert, of Kilbride. The former,

LACHLAN MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, was served heir to his father, 23 Sept. 1719. He m. Mary, dau. of Robert Stewart, of Appin, and had issue, a son, ROBERT, and a dau., Elizabeth. He was killed at the battle of Culloden, and s. by his only son,

ROBERT MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who received a charter of his lands, 12 Feb. 1747. He m. a dau. of Campbell of Airds, and was s. by his son,

DONALD MACLACHLAN, of Strathlachlan, who m. Susanna, dau. of Colin Campbell, of Park, and had issue,

i. ROBERT, his heir and present representative.

M'NEILL OF GIGHA.

M'NEILL-HAMILTON, THOMAS-MONTGOMERY, Esq. of Tainish, North Britain, representative of the M'Neills of Gigha.

Lineage.

The Macneills, or Clannell, are one of the most ancient clans in the West Highlands, and were at a very early period divided into two great families, the MAC-NEILLS OF GIGHA and the MACNEILLS OF BARRA.

The former of these families had their possessions in the southern part of Argyllshire, the latter in the Island of Barra, in Inverness-shire, and from the great distance which separated them, as well as from other causes, the two families were so disunited as almost to form distinct clans. There is, however, documentary evidence to show that the Macneills of Gigha were the senior family, and were, de jure, chiefs of the whole clan. The first of the Gigha family on record is,

TORQUILL MACNEILL, designated in his charter "filius Nigelli," who flourished in the early part of the fifteenth century, and received from Alexander, Earl of Ross and Lord of the Isles, a charter of the lands of Gigha and Tainish, with the constabulary of the Castle of Sween, in Knapdale. He had two sons,

i. NEILL, his heir.

ii. Hector, ancestor of the family of Tainish.

The elder son,

NEILL MACNEILL, of Gigha, s. his father, and obtained from John, Earl of Ross and Lord of the Isles, a charter confirming to him the grant of the lands of Gigha and Tainish, and keeping of Castle Sween to his father, which charter is dated 1 Nov. 1455. He was s. by his son,

MALCOLM MACNEILL, of Gigha, who is mentioned on record between the years 1478 and 1494, and was soon after slain. He had two sons,

i. NEILL, his successor.

ii. TORQUILL, who s. his brother in the chieftship, as we shall afterwards see.

The elder son,

NEILL MACNEILL, of Gigha, s. his father, and possessed the lands till the year 1530, when he was killed, with many gentlemen of the clan, in a feud with Allan M'Lean, of Torloisk, commonly called Allan-na-Sop. He had an only dau., Anabella, who made over the lands of Gigha, and others, to her natural brother, Neill, an illegitimate son of her father's, by whom they were conveyed to James Macdonell, of Dunyveg, in 1554. They were afterwards acquired by John Campbell, of Calder. Neill Macneill having no legitimate son, was s. in the chieftship and representation of the family by his brother,

TORQUILL MACNEILL, who, in 1530-1, obtained a grant of the non-entries of Gigha, in which he is designed "Torkill Maknell, chief and principal of the clan and surname of Makneills." On his death, without issue, the representation devolved on the Macneills of Tainish and Gigha.

HECTOR MACNEILL, second son of Torquill Macneill, first of the family of Gigha, was, on the death of his elder brother, Neill, appointed keeper of Castle Sween, and appears under that designation in the year 1463, and also in 1478. He had two sons,

i. NEILL, his successor.

ii. Hector, or Achynog, who obtained the lands of Gallochallie.

The elder son,

NEILL MACNEILL, commonly called Neill MacAchyn, appears as one of the vassals of the Earl of Argyll, in 1527. He had four sons.

i. NEILL, his successor.

ii. Archibald, who obtained from his uncle the lands of Gallochallie.

iii. John-Balloch.

iv. Hector-Boydach.

The eldest son,

NEILL MACNEILL, obtained the lands of Tainish and many other lands, on the death of Neill Macneill, of Gigha, which he resigned in favour of his eldest son in the year 1564. He had seven sons,

i. TORQUILL, who s. him, but d. without issue.

ii. NEILL, who s. his brother.

iii. Hector, who obtained from his uncle the lands of Gallochallie, but d. without issue.

iv. John og Macneill, who s. his brother Hector in the lands of Gallochallie, and had three sons,

1. Donald, ancestor of the Macneills of Gallochallie.

2. Hector.

3. Malcolm beg Macneill, of Arichonan, a man celebrated in Highland tradition for his extraordinary prowess and great strength. He was s. by his only son, Neill og Macneill, of Arichonan, who had two sons, JOHN MACNEILL, of Arichonan, ancestor of that family.

DONALD M'NEILL, of Crear, ancestor of the family of Collonsay, which family have now acquired the Island of Gigha, the ancient possession of the clan.

v. Malcolm McNeill, of Ardglangny, ancestor of that family.

vi. Lauchlan.

vii. Gow.

The second, but eldest surviving son,

NEILL MACNEILL, of Taynish, obtained in 1590, from John Campbell, of Calder, the Island of Gigha, for which he procured, in 1599, a crown charter, and was infeft in the same year. He had four sons,

i. HECTOR, who s. him.

ii. DONALD, who carried on the line of this family.

iii. Torquill.

iv. John, of Ardbeg, ancestor of that family.

HECTOR MACNEILL, the eldest, left no son, but two daus., his co-heirs, viz.,

i. ISABELLA, m. to Alexander Campbell, of Bariehibyan.

ii. MARY, m. to Neill Campbell, of Dunoon.

Hector's next brother,

DONALD MACNEILL, had three sons,

i. JOHN, who s. his uncle Hector in the lands of Taynish and Gigha.

ii. DONALD, who carried on the line of the family.

iii. Torquill.

JOHN MACNEILL, of Taynish, (the eldest son,) left an only dau., ELSPETH, m. to Donald Macneill, of Gallochallie. His brother,

DONALD MACNEILL, m. Maria, dau. of Campbell, and had one son,

NEILL MACNEILL, who s. his uncle, John Macneill, in the lands of Taynish and Gigha. He had two sons,

i. HECTOR, who s. him.

ii. Donald.

The elder son,

HECTOR MACNEILL, of Taynish, m. Ann Montgomery, by whom he obtained extensive estates in Ireland. He was s. by his son,

ROGER HAMILTON-MACNEILL, of Taynish, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Hamilton Price, Esq. of Raploch, by whom that estate came into the family, and the name of Hamilton added to that of Macneill. His son and heir,

ROGER-MONTGOMERY HAMILTON-MACNEILL, of Taynish, m. Catherine, dau. of — Chambers, Esq., and was s. by his son,

DANIEL-HAMILTON MACNEILL-HAMILTON, of Raploch and Taynish, who m. Jane, dau. of Thomas Bunbury Isaac, Esq., and was s. by his son, THOMAS-MONTGOMERY MACNEILL-HAMILTON, of Taynish, representative of the ancient family of Macneill of Gigha.

* * The estate of Gigha was sold by the Macneills of Taynish in 1780, and has now been acquired by the Macneills of Collonsay, a cadet of the family.

M'NEILL OF COLLONSAY AND GIGHA.

M'NEILL, JOHN, Esq. of Collonsay, North Britain, m. Hester, dau. of Duncan M'Neill, of Dunmore, and had issue,

i. ALEXANDER, younger, of Collonsay, b. 17 Jan. 1791, m. 24 June, 1830, Anne-Elizabeth, fourth dau. and co-heir of John Carstairs, Esq. of Stratford Green, Essex, and Warboys, co. Huntingdon, and has issue,

1. JOHN-CARSTAIRS, b. in March, 1831.

2. Alexander, b. in Feb. 1834.

3. Duncan, b. in July, 1836.

4. Malcolm, b. in March, 1838.

1. Cecil-Anne. 2. Helen. 3. Hester-Mary.

Mr. M'Neill, younger, of Collonsay, acquired Gigha, the ancient possession of his Clan.

MAESMORE OF MAESMORE.

LLOYD, CATHERINE-MARY-MARGARETTA, of Maesmore, co. Denbigh, m. 1st, John-Lewis Parry, Esq., Major of the Royal Marines, who d. 8 May, 1822; and 2ndly, John-Manners Kerr, Esq., Lieut.-General in the army, who is also deceased. This lady and her sisters inherit the estates of the Maesmores of Maesmore, and represent that ancient family.

Lineage.

This is a younger branch of the eminent house of Rûg in Edeirniôn, derived from the chivalrous OWAIN BROGYNTYN, Lord of Edeirniôn, Dinmael, and Abertanat, a scion of the dynasty of Powys, of which details are given under HUGHES of GWERCLAS, a leading line of that Royal house, vol. i. p. 603.

BLEDDYN, third son of Owain Brogyntyn, succeeded, on his father's death, to the lordship of Dinmael in Powys, comprised in the county of Denbigh, and was living 25 May, 2 HENRY III., 1218, when, as appears by a writ or precept, (RYMER's Fœdera, i. 227, A.D. 1218,) he did homage to that monarch in conformity with the treaty of the first year of his reign, entered into between him and Llewelyn ap Iorwerth, Prince of North Wales. By a dau. of Griffith, son of Gwenwynwyn, Prince of Powys-Wenwynwyn, the Lord of Dinmael was father of

OWAIN AP BLEDDYN, Lord of Dinmael, who had two sons,

i. GRIFFITH AP OWAIN, of whom presently.

ii. Howel ap Owain, from whom derived, fifth in lineal descent,

GRIFFITH AP DAVID, who m. Margaret, dau. of Badi, son of Howel ap Ievan Vychan, of Abertanat and Moelinrch, derived from Einion Efell, Lord of Cynllaeth, and had issue,

1. Owen ap Griffith, of Henlle, living 29 HENRY VI., father of John ap Owen, of Henlle, living 20 HENRY VII.

2. David ap Griffith, Vicar of St. Martin's, 15 HENRY VII. and 5 HENRY VIII.

3. Madoc ap Griffith, m. Isabel, dau. and heiress of David ap Einion, of Pentre Morgan, in the chapelry of Duddleston, and parish of Ellesmere, co. Salop, derived from Iddon ap Rhys Sais, and had issue,

David ap Madoc, of Pentre Morgan, who by Margaret, his wife, dau. of David ap Llewelyn, derived from Ithel Velyn, of Yale, was father of two sons, John Wynn, of Pentre Morgan, ancestor of MORGAN WYNNE, Esq. of Pentre Morgan, barrister-at-law, living in 1672, who m. Deborah, dau. of Sir Timothy Turnor, Knt., one of the judges of the council of the marches at Ludlow.

Richard Vaughan, solicitor to Queen ELIZABETH in the council of the marches at Ludlow, grandfather of

WILLIAM VAUGHAN, of Duddlestone, co. Salop, living in 1623, who by
• Anna, his wife, dau. of William Linde, of Lesbeck, co. Cambridge, had, with other issue, an eldest son, JOHN VAUGHAN, aged 13, in 1623.

John Vychan ap Madoc, ancestor of EDWARD LLOYD, of Ebnal, co. Salop, father, by Elizabeth, dau. of Rhys Lloyd, of Fferm, co. Flint, of a dau. and heiress, MARY LLOYD, who m. EDWARD LLOYD, of Llwynymaen, Esq.

The elder son,

GRIFFITH AP OWAIN, assigned the royalty of the lordship of Dinmael to Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, "that was all felonies except forfeitures," prior to which assignment malfactores were usually executed at a place called Bryn-y-crogwr, or the Hangman's Hill, in Maesmore. Griffith ap Owain m. Margaret, dau. of Madoc Grwpl, Lord of Glynddwrddwy, grandfather of Owain Glendower, and had issue,

I. HOWEL AP GRIFFITH.

11. Llewelyn, Offeiriad (priest), an eminent Bardic genealogist, whose records, entitled, "Book of Llewelyn, Offeiriad," are deposited at Jesus College, Oxford. In a disagreement with his family, Llewelyn sold his lands to the Earl of Lincoln, and accepted a grant from the earl, of thirteen pounds of land, for the yearly rent of thirteen pairs of gloves, which parcels of land his descendants, it is said, still possess as freeholders.

III. Generis, who ended her life in retirement at a place since called Newrian Generis, in Dwyfaen.

The eldest son of Griffith,

HOWEL AP GRIFFITH, m. Angharad, dau. of Kenrick Sais ap Ithel Vychan, of Tegaingl, and was father of

DAVID AP HOWEL, who m. twice: by his second wife, Angharad, dau. of Richard Puleston, Esq. of Emral, co. Flint, who d. about 12 RICHARD II., son and heir of Sir Roger Puleston, Knt. of Emral, he had three daus.; and by his first wife, Angharad, dau. of Rhys ap Robert, of Kinmael, co. Denbigh, derived from Ednyfed Vychan, Lord of Brynfflenig, (see LLOYD OF PLYMOG,) he was father, with other issue, of

RHYS AP DAVID, Lord of Rûg in Edeirnion, in the parish of Llangar, co. Merioneth, who m. Gwerfyl Hael, dau. and heir of Meredith ap Griffith ap Iorwerth Voel, derived from Tudor Trevor, Lord of Hereford, (see MOSTYN OF BRYNGWYN, under OWEN OF WOODHOUSE,) and by her (who is celebrated in the poems of Lewis Glyn-cothi) Rhys had two sons,

I. HOWEL AP RHYS, Lord of Rûg, who m. Margaret, dau. of John Eyton, hên, and had (with a younger son, Ellis, who m. and had issue) an elder son,

IEVAN AP HOWEL, Lord of Rûg, living 12 HENRY VIII., 1570, father, by Gwenhwyfar, his wife, of a dau. and heiress, Margaret, of Rûg, who m. Piers Salisbury, Esq. of Bachymbyd, co. Denbigh, eldest son and heir of John Salisbury, Esq. of Bachymbyd, fourth son of Thomas Salisbury, Esq. of Llewenny, co. Denbigh, 12 EDWARD IV., ancestor of the Salisburys of Llewenny, Barts., extinct, and the Salisburys of Llanwern, Barts. The direct male line of the Salisburys terminated with Major Salisbury, Esq. of Rûg, whose dau. and heiress, Mary, m. Rowland Pugh, Esq. of Mathavarn, and was father of a dau. and heiress, MARIA-CHARLOTTE, who m. THOMAS PRYSE, Esq. of Gogerddan, M.P. for the Cardigan boroughs. Of this marriage there was an only son, JOHN PUGH PRYSE, Esq., who d. unm. about 1768. The Gogerddan estate passed to the heir-at-law, Lewis Pryse, Esq. of Woodstock. The mother surviving her son, John Pugh Pryse, sold Mathavarn to the trustees of Sir Watkin-Williams Wynn, Bart., and Rûg and its dependencies she devised to Edward Williams Vaughan, Esq., col. of the 1st regt. of foot, (who assumed the name of SALISBURY,) second son of Sir Robert Howel Vaughan, Bart. of Nannau. Col. Salisbury dying unm. in 1807, Rûg devolved on his younger brother, Griffith Howel Vaughan, Esq., licut.-col.-commandant of the Royal Merioneth militia, who d. in 1848.

II. GRIFFITH AP RHYS.

By an inquisition taken after the death of Rhys ap David, at Cerregavel, co. Merioneth, for his manor of Rûg, 20 Nov. 19 EDWARD IV. (1479), it was found that his co-heirs were Howel ap Rhys and Griffith ap Rhys: the latter,

GRIFFITH AP RHYS, of Macsmore, in Dinmael, in the parish of Llangwm, co. Denbigh, to whom Lewis Glyn-cothi addressed one of his poems, (13th of the V. Doserth,) m. twice: by his second wife, Dyddgu, dau. of David Lloyd ap Howel, derived from Ririd Flaidd, he had a dau., Gwen. By his first wife, Margaret, dau. of Robert ap Griffith Goch, he had an elder son, ROBERT AP GRIFFITH, of Macsmore, who, by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Henry Salisbury, Esq. of Llanrhaidr Hall, co. Denbigh, brother of Sir Thomas Salisbury, Knt. of Llewenny, had, with other issue,

I. ROBERT WYNNE, of whom presently.

II. Thomas ap Robert, of Llywuneddydd, and Plas Morgan, who m. 1st, Elizabeth Anwyl, dau. and heir of Morgan ap John, of Gwynllwyd, derived from Ririd Flaidd, Lord of Penllyn, and was father, by her, of a dau. and co-heir, JANE, who m. John Wynne ap Cadwallader, of Rhiwlas, co. Merioneth, and was mother of Cadwallader Price, Esq. of Rhiwlas, M.P., for Merionethshire, A.D. 1584. He m. 2ndly, Mali, dau. and heir of Robert ap Griffith, of Llangwm, and by her had two daus. and co-heirs, Married Wen, m. to Ievan Lloyd ap William, of Melai; and Catherine, wife of Rydderch ap Robert ap Griffith.

Lineage.

This family, which settled in England at the Norman Conquest, has ever since, in its various branches, enjoyed opulence, rank, and influence. Its founder, WILLIAM, LORD MALLET DE GREVILLE, one of the great barons who accompanied the CONQUEROR, was charged to protect the remains of the fallen monarch, HAROLD, and to see them decently interred after the battle of Hastings. The son of this warrior, ROBERT, LORD MALLET, possessed at the general survey, according to Dugdale, thirty-two lordships in Yorkshire, three in Essex, one in Hampshire, two in Nottinghamshire, eight in Lincolnshire, and two hundred and twenty-one in Suffolk. The near kinsman of this Robert,

WILLIAM, Lord of the honour of Eye, in Suffolk, was one of the subscribing barons to Magna Charta; and from him lineally descended,

GEORGE MALLET, a younger son of Sir John Mallett, Knt. of Opton Mallett, co. Somerset. He settled in Devonshire, temp. HENRY VII., and marrying a dau. of Bleneconsop, of Bleneconsop, was father of

RICHARD MALLET, Esq., who acquired the estate of Ash by his marriage, temp. HENRY VIII., with the heiress of Vyell. That property devolved, in the course of time, on Richard's direct descendant,

WILLIAM MALLET, Esq. of Ash, who m. the dau. of James Veale, Esq. of Possaford, co. Devon, and left a son and successor, MARJORIBANKS OF MARJORIBANKS.

MARJORIBANKS, ALEXANDER, Esq. of Marjoribanks, in Mid-Lothian, b. 31 Oct. 1792; a magistrate for co. Linlithgow; s. his father, 8 Sept. 1830.

Lineage.

The original surname of the family was Johnstone, but at what period the alteration took place, cannot now be determined. It continues, however, to bear in part the arms of Johnstone. (From NISBETT's Heraldry. Arg., on a chief, gules, a cushion, between two spur-rowels, of the first, as in Pont's MS., who gives to others of that name, Arg., on a fesse, gules, between three spur-rowels, of the last, as many cushions, of the first.

The assumed surname, which is local, is said to have been thus derived:—When Walter, High Steward of Scotland, and ancestor of the Royal House of Stewart, espoused Marjorie, only dau. of ROBERT BRUCE, and eventually heir to the crown, the barony of Ratho was granted by the king as a marriage portion to his daughter by charter, which is still extant, and these lands being subsequently denominated "Terre de Ratho Marjorie-banks," gave rise to the name of Marjoribanks.

With the exception of the family of Lees, in Berwickshire, a junior branch of the family, the name is seldom found in Scotland. In Dumfriesshire a name somewhat similar is met with, but spelt Marchbank.

As is the case with many other private families, few records remain of the early history and intermarriages of the house of Marjoribanks, but several of its descendants are mentioned in the Histories of Scotland as members of the Scottish Parliaments.

In the Historical Account of the Senators of the College of Justice, published in 1832, and from other documents, we find the following notices of some of the ancestors of this family.

1549, Feb. 8.—Thomas Marjoribanks, of Ratho, was one of the ten advocates selected at the institution of the court "to procure" before the lords. On the 2 March, 1555, he was appointed advocate for the poor, jointly with Dr. Gladstones, the salary of £10 a year being by his consent given to the latter. He acquired the lands of Ratho, in the county of Renfrew,* in September, 1540, was commissioner for the burgh of Edinburgh to parliament in 1540 and 1546, provost of that city in 1540, and a lord of articles in 1546. He was admitted an ordinary lord and clerk register on the 8 Feb. 1549.

The first wife of the well known George Heriot, founder of the splendid institution which bears his name, was Christian Marjoribanks, who is believed to be the granddaughter of this Thomas Marjoribanks. She was m. in 1586, and was, as Sir Walter Scott, in his Notes to the Fortunes of Nigel, states, "daughter of a respectable burghess." A ring which belonged to her is in the possession of a relation of the family.

In the reign of JAMES VI., 1604, it appears that Thomas Marjoribanks, of Ratho, held those lands as follows:—"Thomæ Marjoribanks de Ratho et Mariæ Douglas, ejus conjugi villa et terrarum de Ratho extendendam ad triginta sexta bovatas cum mansione lacu et prato."

In the same reign, 1610, John Marjoribanks, of Ratho, appears to have got a charter as follows:—"Johannis Marjoribanks, de Ratho, triginta sex bovatas terrarum de Ratho."

In the reign of CHARLES I., 1645, Mr. Andrew Marjoribanks possessed certain property at Salt Prestons, or Preston Pans, described as follows:—"Magister Andræ Marjoribanks, quorundam tenementarium et acrarum in Salt Prestons."

There is still extant, in the possession of the Rev. Mr. Marjoribanks, minister of Lochmaben, a very curious account of the funeral expenses of Mrs. Margaret Marjoribanks, who was buried in Preston Pans, in 1697, supposed to be the granddaughter of this Andrew Marjoribanks. The amount is £1975, Scots money, and the document gives a good idea of the profuse expenditure which took place at the funerals of the gentry in those days.

Several other notices occur at different dates, of various individuals of the family.

* It may excite surprise that the lands of Ratho are described as lying in the county of Renfrew. This was, however, no uncommon occurrence at the period, and was frequently done for the accommodation of the gentry. For instance, Queensberry House, in the Canongate of Edinburgh, is in the county of Dumfries; and a part of the Low Calton, Edinburgh, is in the parish of St. Ninian's, and county of Stirling.

JAMES MARJORIBANKS, of Marjoribanks, (great-grandfather of the present representative,) had two sons, ANDREW, his heir; and George, a surgeon in Edinburgh, who afterwards went to Waterford, in Ireland, and m. the dau. of the Bishop of Waterford, by whom he had several daus., the eldest of whom m. Mr. Monypenny, of Pitmilny, and was grandmother of the present Lord Pitmilny. The elder son and heir,

ANDREW MARJORIBANKS, Esq. of Marjoribanks, m. in 1744, Mary Chalmers, and had three sons and two daus., of whom, ALEXANDER was his heir; and Christian, m. Mr. Wardrop, of Torbanchill, and was mother of James Wardrop, Esq., the celebrated oculist and surgeon in ordinary to GEORGE IV. The son, ALEXANDER MARJORIBANKS, of Marjoribanks, b. in 1750, convener for co. Linlithgow for above thirty years, was proprietor and superior of the barony of Bathgate. The superiority he relinquished voluntarily, that it might be created a burgh of barony, of which he was chosen first Provost. Mr. Marjoribanks also possessed the estate of Balbardie, co. Linlithgow, and sold that of Marjoribanks. He m. 2 June, 1790, Katherine, dau. of Gilbert Laurie, Esq. of Polmont, Lord Provost of the city of Edinburgh, and Katherine, his wife, dau. of the Hon. Thomas Erskine, son of Lord Cardross, and had issue, besides other children who d. in infancy,

MATHESON OF ACHANY.

MATHESON, JAMES, Esq. of Achany, co. Sutherland, and the Island of Lews, Ross-shire, lord, jointly with Lord Clinton, of the borough and manor of Ashburton, a deputy-lieutenant for the counties of Ross and Sutherland, and a vice-president of the Caledonian Asylum of London, and F.R.S., b. in 1796; m. in 1843, Mary-Jane, fourth dau. of the late Michael-Henry Perceval, Esq. Mr. Matheson sits in parliament as knight of the shire for the combined counties of Ross and Cromarty.

Lineage.

This family is descended from the ancient tribe or clan of Matheson, or clan Mathan, which at an early period had extensive possessions in the western part of Ross-shire, and in Sutherlandshire, and was divided into the two great branches of Matheson of Lochalsh, in Ross-shire, from which descended the families of Attadale, represented by ALEXANDER MATHESON, of Ardross, and of Bennetsfield, and of Matheson of Shinness, in Sutherlandshire, from which family JAMES MATHESON, Esq. of Achany, is descended.

The Mathesons derive their name from an ancestor and founder of the clan, whose name in ancient Gaelic is spelt Mathgamna, in more modern Gaelic, Mathan, hut pronounced Mahan. This name, which signifies originally a bear, has been usually considered equivalent to the English name of Mathew, and has always been so translated; and the clan, termed in Gaelic, Clan Mhic Mathgamna, or Clan Mathan, have always called themselves Mathewsons, or Mathesons; that is, the descendants of Mathgamna, Mathan, or Mathew.

The earliest possessions of the clan lay in the western part of present Ross-shire, and included Lochbals, Lochcarron, and part of Kintail. These districts formed originally part of the extensive province of Earragaël, or Argyll, and were granted for the first time to the Earls of Ross, by ALEXANDER II., King of Scotland, after his conquest of Argyll, in 1228; and as the Mathesons are derived by ancient genealogies from the same stock as the Earls of Ross, and their ancestor, Mathgamna, must have flourished, according to these genealogies, about this period, while his son, according to the same authority, actually appears on record in the subsequent reign, as a man of power and influence in the western part of Ross-shire, it seems probable that these districts were granted by the Earl of Ross to the founder of the clan, soon after he acquired possession of them.

Previous to the middle of the fifteenth century, the Mathesons, or Clan Mathan, were undoubtedly one of the most powerful clans in that part of the Highlands, and it was only when broken by the energetic measures of JAMES I., that they shared the fate of many other clans, and sunk before the power of the crown and the rapidly rising influence of the Mackenzies.

The founder of the clan was

MATHGAMNA, MATHAN, or MATHEW, whose original possession was probably the district of Strathbran, in West Ross, of which the Mathesons are the oldest inhabitants, and in which they have an ancient burying-ground. He appears to have received from the Earl of Ross a grant of Lochalsb, Lochcarron, and part of Kintail, and was s. by his son,

KENNETH, son of MATHGAMNA, or Kenneth Matheson, who is mentioned both in the Norse account of the expedition of the King of Norway against Scotland, in 1263, and in the Chamberlain's Rolls for that year, in connexion with that expedition. In the former document, it is said, that in the summer of 1262, "there came letters from the Kings of the Hebrides, in the Western Isles. They complained much of the hostilities which the Earl of Ross, Kiarnach, the son of Makanal, and other Scots, committed in the Hebrides, when they went on to Sky." In the Norse names, Kiarnach, son of Makamal, it is not difficult to recognise Kenneth, son of Mathgamna. The other notice in the Chamberlain's Rolls, for the year 1263, is in the following terms:—"Item Kernac MacMaghan, C. S. pro viginti vacc. de fine Comitit de Ross dat. eidem per Comittem de Buchan et Alanum Hostiarium habentes potestatem dni regis per literas suas patentes tempore aduentus regis Norwagie." The descendants of Kenneth Matheson, for four generations, were as follow—

MURDOCH, son of Kenneth.

DUNCAN, son of Murdoch.

MURDOCH, son of Duncan.

DUNCAN, son of Murdoch.

MURDOCH, son of Duncan, who flourished in the early part of the fifteenth century.

In the beginning of the reign of JAMES I., the attention of that energetic king was forcibly drawn to the state of the North Highlands, from the frequent feuds and sanguinary conflicts, which threw the whole country into division, and the battle of Drumneocub, fought in the year 1427, led to his taking the decisive measure of proceeding to Inverness in person, summoning the great Highland chiefs to a parliament, and then arresting them. Among those arrested, Fordun mentions this Murdoch, under the name of "Macmaken dun duorum milium;" from which it appears that the Mathesons at that time could raise a force of no less than two thousand men. He appears to have been afterwards liberated, and was at length slain by the Mackays, with four of his sons, in revenge for the death of the chief of the Mackays, who had been killed by Matheson in the battle of Drumneocub. He was s. by

RODERIC MATHESON, in whose time the clan appear to have lost much of their possessions. The western part of Ross-shire was at this time in the possession of the Lords of the Isles, including the superiority of Matheson's lands; and a great part of Lochalsb was granted by the Lord of the Isles, in the year 1463, to his son, Celestine, from whom it passed to the Mackenzies and Macdonells of Glengarry. He was s. by his son, ALEXANDER MATHESON, of Lochalsb. During the life of this chief a feud arose between the Mathesons and the Sutherlands, in the course of which the Sutherlands invaded the country of the Mathesons. They were opposed by Alexander Matheson, or, as he was called by the Highlanders, Alaster Mac Ruarie, at the head of his clan, and an engagement took place, in which the Sutherlands were defeated, and their leader slain. In consequence of this, Matheson was apprehended by the king, and brought to Edinburgh, where he was beheaded. By his wife, who was a dau. of Mackiutosh of Mackintosh, he had two sons,

1. JOHN, ancestor of the Mathesons of Lochalsb, in Ross-shire.

11. DONALD-BANE, ancestor of the Mathesons of Shinness, in Sutherlandshire.

DONALD-BANE MATHESON, second son of Alexander Matheson, of Lochalsb, who lived in the fifteenth century, after his father's death, and the marriage of his mother to Macleod, took refuge from the power of his stepfather in Caithness, where the chancellor at the time was a Matheson. He had, by the dau. of the Earl of Caithness, a son,

JOHN MATHESON, termed Ian Gallach, or John of Caithness, from the place of his birth. He settled in Sutherland, on the lands of Shinness, extending along the whole of the north-east side of Loch Shin, and became the head of the Mathesons of Caithness and Sutherlandshire, termed the Siol Mhathan, or race of Mathan or Wohan. He was s. by his son,

JOHN MATHESON, of Shinness, termed patronymically John MacIan mhic Dhonald Bane. He is mentioned by Sir Robert Gordon, in his History of Sutherlandshire, as chief of the Siol Mhathan, or Siel Wohan, in the year 1569, and again in 1579. His son,

GEORGE MATHESON, of Shinness, accompanied Sir Donald Mackay, of Farr, afterwards Lord Reay, into the service of GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS, King of Sweden, in which he attained the rank of colonel, and on his return his arms were matriculated, 5 Oct. 1639, as those of Col. George Matheson. His grandson,

DONALD MATHESON, was very active in the service of government during the attempt, in the year 1715, to replace the Stewarts on the throne. He was s. by

NIEL MATHESON, who was alive in the year 1745, but the duty of supporting the interests of government devolved upon his son,

DUNCAN MATHESON, who was wounded in a skirmish with the adherents of the Stewarts, from which he never recovered, and died of the effects of his wound in 1750. He m. Elizabeth,* dau. of William Mackay, of Moudel, and had by her two children,

MATHESON OF ARDROSS.

MATHESON, ALEXANDER, Esq., of Ardross, M.P. for the Inverness Burghs, and Deputy-Lieutenant for Ross and Cromarty, m. Mary, dau. of the late James Crauford Macleod, younger, of Geanies, which lady d. in 1841, without issue.

Lineage.

The early history of the clan Matheson or Mhathan, is already detailed under the head of MATHESON of ACHANY. We shall therefore now commence with

JOHN MATHESON, of Lochalsh, eldest son of Alister Mac Ruarie, and tenth in descent from Mathgamna. After the death of his father, his mother married a son of Macleod of Lewis (and the 1st Laird of Assynt), who, as the young Mathesons were under age, took possession of their lands of Lochalsh. The eldest Matheson fled for protection to his grandfather, the Laird of Mackintosh; and the younger, having taken refuge in Caithness, became the head of the Mathesons of Sutherland and Caithness. When John Matheson became of age, he succeeded, with the aid of the Mackintoshes, in dispossessing his stepfather, and recovering his patrimonial estate. He was constituted by John Mackenzie, ninth Laird of Kintail, constable of the Castle of Ellan Donan, which he was killed in defending against Donald Gorm Macdonald, of Slate, when he attacked it in the year 1537. By his marriage with the widow of Dugald Mackenzie, tutor of Kintail, he had an only son,

DUGALD MATHESON, of Lochalsh, who s. his father, and was commonly called Dugald Roy. The Mathesons at this time possessed only one-third part of Lochalsh, the other two-thirds being possessed by Macdonell of Glen-garry, and Mackenzie of Kintail, and this was the cause of a feud between the Mathesons and Macdonells, in the course of which Dugald Roy was taken prisoner by Glen-garry, and d. at Invergarry, leaving a son,

MURDOCH MATHESON, of Lochalsh, called Murdoch Buie, who s. him; and in order to induce Mackenzie of Kintail to assist him in revenging his father's death upon the Macdonells, resigned to him the whole of his portion of Lochalsh, with the exception of the estates of Balmacara and Fernaig. He had two sons, RODERICK, progenitor of the MATHESONS of Bennetsfield; and

DUGALD MATHESON, who inherited Balmacara, and had three sons, the eldest of whom,

JOHN MATHESON, alias John Og, m. a daughter of Mackenzie of Hilton, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER MATHESON, who m. Christina, dau. of Farquhar Macrae, of Inverinate, and sister of the first Mrs. Matheson, of Bennetsfield, by whom he had, with other issue, a son, JOHN, his heir; ii. Alexander, of Balmacara, progenitor of several families in North America; and, iii. Donald, of Duirnish.

JOHN MATHESON purchased the lands of Attadale and Corrichrubie, and m. 1st, a dau. of Mackenzie of Achilty, by whom he had two sons who died young; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Mackenzie of Pitlundy, by whom he had, with three daus., five sons,

- ii. Kenneth, killed at Ticonderago, under General Brad-dock, s. p.
- iii. ALEXANDER.
- iv. William.
- v. Farquhar, of Courthill, father of the late Capt. William Matheson, and of Farquhar Matheson, now a merchant in Calcutta.

He m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of Simon Mackenzie, of Allangrange, by whom he had a son, John, who left an only son, Capt. Alexander Matheson, who died in India, s. p. The eldest son,

DONALD MATHESON, of Attadale, m. Elizabeth, sister of Thomas Mackenzie, of Applecross; and dying without issue in 1763, was succeeded by his brother,

ALEXANDER MATHESON, of Attadale, who m. Catherine, dau. of A. Matheson, of Balmacara, and died in 1804, leaving an only son,

JOHN MATHESON, of Attadale, who m. Margaret, eldest dau. of Donald Matheson, Esq. of Shinness; and left at his decease in 1826, five sons and two daus.,

- i. ALEXANDER, who has lately acquired the lands of Ardross, Ardintoul, and Inverinate, in Rosshire, and was a merchant in China.

MAY OF HADLOW CASTLE.

MAY, WALTER BARTON, Esq. of Hadlow Castle, Kent, m. in 1822, Mary-Susannah, only dau. and heir of John Porter, Esq. of Fish Hall, Kent, and has issue, a son and a dau.

Lineage.

The old family residence of the Mays was at Tong, in East Kent, where they possessed a large and ancient mansion, and a fine estate, containing some of the best land in England. Hadlow Castle, the property of the Bartons, was originally called Court Lodge, but the present possessor, on erecting there the beautiful castellated structure, added the word Castle to "Court Lodge," thus rendering "Court Lodge Castle," the correct designation. The mansion, however, is generally called "Hadlow Castle."

The Bartons, Mr. May's paternal ancestors, are a family of high respectability and considerable antiquity. Their representative, at the close of the seventeenth century,

WALTER BARTON, Esq. of Hadlow, m. 26 July, 1722, Sarah, dau. of John France, Esq. of Fish Hall, Kent, and had, with junior issue, (see BARTON OF THREXTON HOUSE, p. 11,) a son and successor,

JOHN BARTON, Esq. of Hadlow, b. 23 June, 1723, who m. Jane, youngest dau. of RICHARD MAY, Esq., and had three sons: the eldest d. young; the second, John, who was deaf, dumb, and blind, d. unm.; and the third was

WALTER BARTON, Esq. of Hadlow, who assumed the additional surname of MAY, on succeeding to the estates of his maternal ancestors. He m. and left at his decease, in 1825, a son, the present WALTER BARTON-MAY, Esq. of Hadlow Castle, and a dau., Eliza, m. 1st, to the Rev. John Bosanquet Polhill, M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge; and 2ndly, 24 March, 1831, to Sir William Twysden, Bart. of Roydon Hall.

MONINS.

Lineage.

SIR SYMON DE MONYN, of the Castle of Mayon, in Normandy, was the founder of the family. He accompanied WILLIAM the Conqueror on his expedition against England, in 1066, and his descendants shortly after settled in Kent, in which county they have since remained. Sir Symon bore for his arms, Gules, three crescents, or, the coat-armour of the Monins at this present time. The orthography of the name has been De Monyn, Monyns, Moninges, Monyns, and latterly, Monins. Sir Symon de Monyn left two sons, Theobald, who d. without issue; and STEPHEN, both of Exhurst, in Sussex. The younger,

STEPHEN MONYN, m. Amabilia, dau. and heiress of Sir Hugh de Montford, Knt., by whom he had a son,

SIR ALEXANDER MONYN, Knt., who m. Joselyn, or Gosclin, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert de Poulton, Knt., and thus he became possessed of the estate of Poulton, near Dover; from this may, it is presumed, be dated the settlement of the family in Kent. Sir Alexander left by his wife, a son,

SYMON MONYN, of Dover, father of

ROBERT MONYN, of Dover, who m. one of the co-heiresses of Craythorne, by whom he had three sons, JOHN, Thomas, and Solomon, all of Dover. The eldest,

JOHN MONYN, of Dover, lived in the time of King EDWARD III., and in the Book of Aid, made in the 20th year of that reign, in 1247, was charged to it for lands in Linacre and North Poppyshall, Kent, and was of kindred to William Monyn, who was several times knight of the shire for co. Norfolk, in the reign of King RICHARD II. He m. Mabell, dau. and heiress of Bartholomew Pysynge, by whom he left a son,

JOHN MONYN, of Dover, who m. Joan, dau. and heiress of Sholden, by whom he had three sons, SYMON, his heir; Thomas, of Dover; and John, a priest, who was parson of Deal. The designation of Sholden was adopted by this family, from their residence and possessions in the parish of that name, near Upper Deal, Kent. The estate of Hull's Court, or Long Farm, in Sholden parish, belonged to the Monyn family, till alienated by one of them to Sir William Crayford, of Mongcham, Kent. The manor of Siberston, in the parish of Dover, had lords of the same name, and Hugh de Siberston alienated it to John Monyn, of Dover, anno 39 EDWARD III., 1366, in which family it remained to the latter end of the reign of King HENRY VIII., in 1547, or thereabouts, when it was sold to Thomas Pepper. John Monyn lived about the year 1399. His eldest son, SYMON MONYN, m. one of the heiresses of Halden, by whom he had, NICHOLAS; Symon, of St. Margaret's, at Cliffe, who d. in 1471; and a dau., Joanne.

NICHOLAS MONYN, eldest son of Symon Monyn, m. one of the heiresses of Beuxfield, by whom he had issue, JOHN, of Waldworthshire, or Waldershare; Richard, of Biddenden; and Stephen, of St. Margaret's, at Cliffe, which last is included in the list of gentlemen of the county, taken anno 12 HENRY VI., 1434, who were entitled to bear "Arma Antiqua," the ancient bearing or coat-armour of their ancestors.

JOHN MONYN, of Waldworthshire, eldest son of Nicholas Monyn, m. the dau. and heiress of Colby. The manor of Waldworthshire, or Malmains, was the lordship of Sir William Mamouth, at the time of the Conquest, in 1066. From him it passed, some time after, to the Malmains, a family of great esteem and repute, for John de Malmains was the standard-bearer of the Norman foot, at the fight of Battel, in Sussex. Henry Malmains, Esq. of Waldworthshare, (or Waldershare,) died seized of it in 46 King EDWARD III., 1373, leaving an only dau. and heiress, Alice, who it appears, however, only inherited a part of the manor and estate, which she carried in marriage to Henry Holland, of Solton, near Dover, Kent, and he died possessed of her interest in it, anno 19 King RICHARD II., 1396, without male issue likewise, so that Jane, his dau. and heiress, marrying Thomas Goldwell, of Goddington, in Great Chart, entitled her husband to it, and from him it descended to his grandson of the same name, who, in the beginning of the reign of King HENRY VI., in 1422, or thereabouts, alienated his part of it to John Monyn, Esq. His wife inherited the remaining portion of this estate from her father, who had it in right of his wife, dau. and heiress of Thomas, son of John Malmains, of Stoke, on whose death, anno 46 EDW. III., 1373, it descended to him, and thus John Monyn, became possessed of the whole manor and estate. He built a new mansion, about a mile south-eastward of the ancient house of Malmains, and afterwards resided there, as did his descendants. He left issue, three sons, ROBERT,

William, and Symon, and three daus., m. to Finneys, Crayford, and Evering.

ROBERT MONYN, of Waldershare, eldest son of John Monyn, lived during the time of King RICHARD III., and m. in 2 King EDWARD IV., 1463, Alice, dau. and co-heiress of John Greenford, by whom he became possessed of the manor of Swanton, in the parish of Liddon, in Folkestone hundred, Kent. In the time of HENRY III., its owners took their name from it, for William de Swane-town held it as half a fee in that reign. By a female heir it went in marriage to "Lutteridge," whose dau. and heiress, marrying John Greenford, entitled him to the possession of this manor, on whose death, without male issue, in 11 EDWARD IV., 1472, his dau., Alice, carried it by marriage to Robert Monyn, as before stated, with whose descendants it remained down to Sir Edward Monyns, Bart. of Waldershare. Sir John de Malmains gave, in 6 EDWARD III., 1333, the estates of Apulton and Southwoud, or Southwood, to Langton Priory, Kent, because its abbot had, by his mediation, saved his father's life, when he was attainted for assisting Simon de Montford against HENRY III., in 1264. The monks exchanged Southwood for other lands with Robert Monyn. He left issue, Richard, who m. the dau. and co-heiress of Petyt, (who was mayor of Dover in 1509,) and d. without issue; JOHN, who was of Swanton; and three daus., m. to Diggs, Warren, and Parker, which last was of Norwich, and d. 10 Jan. 1516. Mary (Mrs. Parker) was the mother of the celebrated Archbishop of Canterbury, of that name, in the time of Queen ELIZABETH, of whom he was a great favourite, and had been tutor. He was consecrated to the see at Lambeth, Sunday, 17 Dec. 1559, and d. 17 May, 1575.

JOHN MONYNs, of Swanton, son of Robert Monyn, resided at Swanton. He m. Battell Anstye, of Cambridge, and had issue by her, 1. EDWARD, of Waldershare; 11. JOHN, lieutenant of Dover Castle, (the latter end of the reign of King HENRY VIII.;) and two daus., one of whom m. Beddingfield. He compounded for ten marks, in 17 King HENRY VII., to be excused being made a Knight of the Bath at the creation of Henry, (then Duke of York,) Prince of Wales, Prince Arthur, the eldest son, being dead.

EDWARD MONYNs, of Waldershare, son of John Monyns, of Swanton, m. in 18 King HENRY VII., 1503, Parnel, only dau. and heiress of Anthony Leverick, Esq. of Herne, Kent. One of that gentleman's ancestors, Thomas Leverick, Esq., served in parliament, as member for Sandwich, in 43 King EDWARD III., 1370, and 1 RICHARD II., 1377, as did Henry Leverick, Esq., the possessor of the manor of this name, in 7 King HENRY V., 1420. After some time it descended to Anthony Leverick, Esq., father of the above Parnel, and she, carrying it by marriage to Edward Monyns, afterwards joined with her husband in disposing of it to the family of Peke, of Sandwich. The manor is situated in the parish of Ash, Kent. He also inherited Southwoud, or Southwood, from his grandfather, Robert Monyn, and HENRY VIII. seized upon the same, as having been part of the possessions of Langton Priory, Isle of Thanet, (when that institution was suppressed,) granting it to the then Archbishop of Canterbury, in whose hands it has since remained. Edward Monyns purchased from King HENRY VIII. in 1542, the manor of Cocklescombe, in the parish of Liddon, Kent. This manor had been part of the possessions of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, up to the period of the dissolution of their order, by an edict specially passed for the purpose, which also granted the property to his majesty and his heirs for ever. Edward Monyns procured his lands to be freed from the law of gavelkind, in 2 and 3 King EDWARD VI., 1549 and 1550. He was justice of the peace for co. Kent, in the latter end of the reign of King HENRY VIII., in 1547, or thereabouts. He d. in 6 EDWARD VI., 1553, leaving issue by his wife, four sons and four daus., which latter m. Brook, Engeham, Lane, and Hammoud, of St. Albans, Kent.

RICHARD MONYNs, of Saltwood, eldest son of Edward Monyns, of Waldershare, m. Katharine, dau. of Thomas Ayliff, of Coldhill, and became the owner of the manor and castle of Saltwood, Kent. This castle is said to have been built by ESCUSOR OERIC, surnamed OISE, King of Kent, who succeeded his father, HENGIST, in 489. After being possessed by numerous owners, it came at last to

Mr. Thomas Broadnax, of Hythe, who alienated it to Richard Monyns. He inherited the manor of Regway, in Herne, Kent, and other lands and tenements there, from his father, by his will, proved in 6 EDWARD VI., 1553. By his wife, Katharine, he had issue, several sons and three daus., who m. Norden, Sparke, and Baker. Richard Monyns d. in 3 Queen ELIZABETH, 1561.

JOHN MONYNS, of Swanton, eldest son of Richard Monyns, of Saltwood, possessed the manor of Owre, in Milton hundred, in Kent, holding it by knight's service. On his death, without issue, his brother,

SIR EDWARD MONYNS, Knt., second son of Richard Monyns, of Saltwood, succeeded. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Lovelace, and had issue by her, three sons, WILLIAM, Richard, and Thomas, and five daus., Martha, Elizabeth, Priscilla, Frances, and Mary. Of the sons, Richard and Thomas, and of the daus., Martha, d. without issue; Elizabeth m. Sir Henry Cryspe, Knt. of Queakes, Thanet; Priscilla, m. John Chamberlayne, Esq.; Frances, m. — Darcy, Esq.; and Mary, m. Richard Hurt, Esq. A portrait of this Sir Edward Monyns, taken in 20 Queen ELIZABETH, 1578, represents him in the costume of his order. Knights at that time were distinguished by a gold ring on the thumb, a chain of gold round the neck, and gilt spurs on the heels. The two former are depicted; the latter, from the picture being only three-quarters, are not. The undermentioned lines are painted on the picture—

"Aloft appears St. Phœbus force, in golden gleaming sphaere;
The moone succedes; then well in armes these moones may Moninges bear.
Both sweetest soyles, and swelling seas, the moone, their mistress have,
Moninges therefore in field of gules, three moonets golden gave."—Ætatis Sux, 26.

Sir Edward Monyns d. in 1601, and was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM MONYNS, Knt. and Bart. of Waldershare, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, who d. without issue, and was buried at Waldershare, 23 Feb. 1624; and 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Roger Twysden, Esq. of Roydon Hall, Kent: she was buried at Waldershare, 30 March, 1639. He alienated the seat of Colsal, now called Colson, inherited from his grandfather, Richard Monyns, of Saltwood, to Sir Justinian Lewin, of Otterden, who d. in 1620. Sir Dudley Diggs, of Chilham Castle, Kent, alienated part of the manor of Popyshall, (or Popeshall,) adjoining Waldershare, to Sir William Monyns, the latter end of the reign of JAMES I., in 1625 or thereabouts. The remaining part of this manor he had inherited from his ancestors, who had possessed it from the commencement of the reign of EDWARD III., in 1227 or thereabouts. Sir William was created a Baronet (to him and the heirs-male of his body) by patent, dated 29 June, 1611, and stood in the general order of creation, 69th on the list. He d. 24 Feb. 1643, and was buried at Waldershare, where there is a monument to his memory and that of his wife, Jane, by whom he had several sons and daus., of whom Anne, the eldest, m. Sir Richard Bettenson, Knt. and Bart. of Scadhury, Kent: she d. in 1621. It may not be out of place to relate here an anecdote of Jane, Lady Monyns, as it proves her to have possessed great presence of mind. Two men broke into her bedroom at night and blindfolded her, one holding her whilst the other ransacked the room, neither of them speaking during this time. The thieves were afterwards apprehended. It was out of the power of Lady Monyns to identify their persons, but on their trial she stated that, whilst held down, she had carefully passed her hand over those of the man who had done so; that on one of them were certain peculiarities, which she described, and this so clearly and so completely coinciding with one of the hands of one of the prisoners, that upon this evidence he was convicted and hanged; the other was acquitted.

SIR EDWARD MONYNS, Bart., eldest son of Sir William Monyns, Bart., succeeded to the title and estates on the death of his father in 1643. He served the office of sheriff in 21 CHARLES I., 1646, and was patron of the church of Eythorne. He also inherited the manor of Popyshall, but after his death it was alienated to Sir William Furnese, Bart. Adjoining the churchyard at Cliffe, near Rochester, was a capital messuage and estate, called Courtsole, for many generations the property of the Ropers. Christopher Roper, Lord Teynham, alienated it in 1645, to Sir Edward Monyns; he also sold to him the seat of Goshall, in the parish of Ash, Kent. Sir Thomas Monyns, by his will, in 1676, gave the estate of Courtsole to Dame Elizabeth, his wife, and she, in like manner, in 1705, bequeathed it to Mr. Thomas Short, who had m. Elizabeth, her niece. Sir Edward m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Style, Knt. and Bart. of Wateringbury; her will was proved 23 Nov. 1702, by her grandson, John, Lord Powlett. Sir Edward had issue, by his wife, four sons, who all d. infants; and five daus., viz., Jane, b. at Waldershare, in 1639, m. there, in 1659, John Knatchbull, son and heir of Sir Norton Knatchbull, Bart.; Elizabeth, b. in 1641, m. to John Percival, Esq. of Dover, son of Sir Anthony Percival, Knt.; Anne, b. at Waldershare, in Dec. 1643, m. to Sir Roger Pratt, Knt. of Riston, in Norfolk, and 2ndly, to Sigismund Trafford, Esq., in May, 1703; Susan, m. 2 March, 1673, Peregrine Bertie, son of Montague, Earl of Lindsey, and uncle to the Duke of Ancaster; and Frances. Elizabeth, Lady Monyns, held the manors of Swanton and Cocklescombe, in jointure, till her death in 1703, after which the heirs of her dau. Susan sold them to Sir Henry Furnese, Bart. of Waldershare. Sir Edward Monyns was buried at Waldershare, in 1663 or 1665.

SIR THOMAS MONYNS, Bart., second son of Sir William Monyns, Bart., succeeded to the title on the death of his brother, Sir Edward, without male issue. His widow, Elizabeth, proved his will 2 May, 1678, and Sir Thomas dying also without issue, the title became extinct, (his brothers having also died before him.) This may be deemed remarkable, as eight males being born in two generations, viz., four sons to Sir William Monyns, Bart., and four sons to Sir Edward Monyns, Bart., such a contingency seemed almost impossible. On the death of Sir Thomas Monyns, Bart., without issue, the manor and estate of Waldershare devolved upon his nieces, Jane, m. to John, son and heir of Sir Norton Knatchbull, Bart.; and Susan, m. to Peregrine Bertie, son of Montague, Earl of Lindsey. The latter left two daus., Mary, m. 1st, to Anthony Henley, Esq. of the Grange, in Hampshire, father of the Lord Chancellor, Earl of Northington; and 2ndly, to Henry Bertie, third son of James, Earl of Ahingdon; and Bridget, m. to John, Lord Powlet, afterwards created Earl Powlet. On the death of their mother, (who, it appears, at that time possessed the whole estate,) it became vested for the use of her two daus., and they, in the reign of King WILLIAM and Queen MARY, sold it to Sir Henry Furnese, Bart., who rebuilt the mansion, enclosing it in a park, which he planted with avenues, according to the taste of those times. The lessees of Waldershare Church were, 1st, Monyns; 2ndly, Furnese; and 3rdly, the Earl of Guilford, into whose possession it came, in 1790, having m. Catherine, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert Furnese, Bart., to whom this manor of Waldershare was allotted, as her share of her father's estate, he having left only one son, who d. unm., and the property devolved to this lady and her two sisters, since which, Waldershare has remained in the Guilford family. In the church (on the south side) is a large altar-tomb to the memory of the Hon. Susan Bertie, dau. of Sir Edward Monyns, Bart. of Waldershare, and wife to the Hon. Peregrine Bertie. There is also a monument to Sir Edward Monyns, Knt., and Elizabeth, his wife: also for Sir William Monyns, Bart., his son and heir, and for his wife and two of the children; and for Edward, eldest son of Sir Edward Monyns, Bart., who d. in 1640. Having now traced the Monyns family, through its leading members, from the date of the Norman Conquest, in 1066, down to the extinction, in default of male issue of the Waldershare branch, in 1678, it will be requisite to return to John Monyns, (lieut. of Dover Castle in the reign of HENRY VIII.,) from whom, in direct line, descend the present family of MONYNS.

JOHN MONYNS, lieut. of Dover Castle, m. Jane, dau. and co-heiress of Thomas Alde, of Chequer, in the parish of Ash, Kent, and by her had issue, two sons and four daus., viz., I. THOMAS, his heir; II. William, who m. Elizabeth Audley, by whom he had a son, Edward, m. to the dau. and heiress of Wolger, by whom he left issue; I. Battele, m. to William Hannington, of Dover; II. Parnel, m. to Edward Stockwith; III. Jane; and, IV. Catharine. John Monyns d. in 1554, and possessed the advowson of the church of Charlton, near Dover, which has remained to his descendants ever since. He devised his lands in the parish of St. Margaret's, at Cliffe, to his son and heir,

THOMAS MONYNS, of Dover, who was twice married: 1st, to Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Peyton, Knt., (by whom he had, Edward, who d. without issue, and a dau. Peyton, who m. John Toke, Esq. of Bere, Kent;) and 2ndly, Alice, dau. of William Cryspe, Esq., lieutenant of Dover Castle, by whom he had, STEPHEN, and several other sons, who d. without issue; and three daus., Mary, m. to Sir Cavilero Maycot, Knt.; Marian, m. 1st, to Goldwell Rogers, and 2ndly, to Sir Christopher Mann, Knt., and Frances, m. to Leonard Sprecklyn, Esq. of St. Dunstan's, near Canterbury. The eldest son, STEPHEN MONYNS, of Dover, m. Mary, dau. of Sir Charles Hales, of Thannington, Knt., by whom he had issue several sons and daus., of whom the eldest, Thomas Monyns, Esq., was of Fordwich, near Canterbury, m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Hales, Esq. of Thannington, in 1626, and d. without issue in 1629; Charles, aged 19, in 1619, d. without issue; Stephen, d. an infant; WILLIAM, of whom hereafter; and Richard, of Canterbury, (fifth son,) d. in 1701, and was buried at Harbledown, near Canterbury, having m. 1st, Elizabeth Marshal, also buried at Harbledown, and 2ndly, Mrs. Ann Spracklyn, in 1658, at St. George's, Canterbury, by whom he had a dau. Elizabeth, m. to Richard Glover, which last had issue, a son, Daniel, living in 1720. Of the daus. of Stephen Monyns, Mary, b. in Holy Cross, Canterbury, in 1602, m. John Rygate, 21 Sept. 1623, at Dover; Anne, b. in Holy Cross, Canterbury, m. Edward Warde, clerk; Jane, b. in 1605, in St. Alphage, Canterbury, m. to Thomas Fineux, of the Elms, in Hougham; and Dorothy, m. to Simon Dale, of Hollingbourne.*

WILLIAM MONYNS, of Dover, (fourth son, and at length heir, of Stephen Monyns, of Dover,) m. 10 Oct. 1644, Margaret, dau. of Thomas Toke, of Bere, by whom he had issue three sons and two daus., viz., THOMAS, of whom presently; Stephen, who d. young in 1656, and was buried in Lyddon chancel; and William, who left a son, William. Of the daus., Mary, m. Stephen Knowler, of Canterbury, Gent. William Monyns d. in 1686, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS MONYNS, of Dover, who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Nicholas Eaton, and sister of Sir Peter Eaton, Knt.; and, 2ndly, Antonia-Frances, of Bishopsbourne, Kent, (widow.) By his marriage he had several sons and daus. Of the sons, William, d. an infant; RICHARD, will be mentioned below; Thomas, was of London; and Peter, of Dover, merchant. This last m. 7 May, 1723, Ann, dau. of Robert Coulston, of Dover, and dying in 1738, was buried at Charlton, 15 Dec. of that year; as was also his wife. Their dau. Mary, baptized at St. James's Church, Dover, 10 March, 1724, m. the Rev. William Bateley. Of the daus., Catharine, baptized at St. James's, Dover, 8 Feb. 1692, m. Mr. John Hollingbury, in June, 1713; Mary, d. without issue; as did likewise her sisters, Frances and Margaret. Thomas Monyns d. in 1730, and was buried at Charlton, 12 April. His eldest surviving son,

* We may here mention a Captain Thomas Monyns, who upon the abolition of deans and chapters, and the sequestration of their revenues for the use of the state, by ordinance of parliament, in 1644, was appointed treasurer-general, the government committees (of which there were five, those of Maidstone and Canterbury being the chief) taking possession of the precincts and of the cathedral. Captain Monyns appears to have been a Royalist at heart, and chiefly owing to his influence the venerable building was saved from destruction, for he caused it to be maintained and kept constantly in repair. His office ceased in 1649, the state having passed another ordinance for the sale of all lands and tenements belonging to deans and chapters, and of their several cathedrals, that of Canterbury being valued, as well as the materials of it, and the charge of taking it down. By some means, however, it remained untouched, and at the restoration of monarchy, and the re-establishment of the Church of England, in 1660, it was restored to the dean and chapter—its rightful owners. Captain Monyns, on being removed from his office, was appointed to a troop of horse, which he held till the Restoration, when he petitioned the king, in regard to his having ever favoured the Royalists, and prevented much ill usage to them from time to time, for his having preserved the cathedral and other buildings belonging to it from ruin whilst treasurer, and for having secreted the church muni-ments and plate, and restored them at the Restoration, that he might be permitted to retain his troop of horse; his Majesty, however, refused his request.

THE REV. RICHARD MONINS, M.A., was prebendary of Bristol, thirteen years head-master of the King's School at Canterbury, patron of the churches of Charlton and of Ringwould, Kent, which last came to him by his marriage with Mary, dau. of John Daulinge, clerk, vicar of Alkam, and sister of John Daulinge, Esq. of Canterbury. He d. possessed of it in 1750, aged 57. He had issue, by his wife, three sons and five daus.: Thomas d. an infant, in 1731; Richard, clerk, M.A., took the name of Eaton, at the request of Peter Eaton, Esq. of Woodford, in Essex, and became rector of Charlton and Ringwould, after the death of his father: he d. unm. in 1770, and was buried at Ringwould; and JOHN, of whom hereafter. Of the daus., Grace and Maria d. unm., the first in 1764, the second in 1769, both buried at Ringwould; Frances, d. a minor in 1739, and buried at Charlton; Catharine, m. John Woodward, Esq., a captain in the 70th regt. of foot, in Sept. 1758: she was buried at Ringwould, having had issue, Catharine-Anne, d. an infant; and Mary-Albinia, m. Sir Thomas-Hyde Page, Knt. of the Royal engineers, d. in 1794, at Beaumaris, North Wales, having had issue several children; and Anne, m. to John-Hollingbury Mann, Esq. of Dover. The Rev. Richard Monins was buried at Charlton.

JOHN MONINS, of Canterbury, third son, and, on the death of his brother, the Rev. Richard Monins-Eaton, heir, to the Rev. Richard Monins, prebendary of Bristol, was b. 15 July, 1741. He served, in early life, a few years in the Royal navy, and was present, when midshipman, at Sir Edward, afterwards Lord Hawke's engagement with the French Admiral Conflans, off Belleisle, in 1759. During the same year he quitted the navy, having received a commission in the 60th regt., or, as they were then styled, the "Royal Americans," and afterwards exchanged into the 43rd regt., then also serving in America. After remaining a few years in the latter corps, he was about to purchase his company, but retired from the army on the death of his elder brother, and after residing some time on his estate at Woodford, in Essex, purchased, in 1777, a property at Canterbury called "The Archbishop's Palace," and building himself a mansion, still called the Palace, dwelt there till his death, 11 May, 1806. He m. 15 Sept. 1788, Sarah, (who d. 28 Jan. 1845,) dau. of Mr. John Trice, of Ashford, and by her left, with other issue,

WILLIAM, b. 20 Feb. 1792, the present representative of the family. He embarked with the 52nd regt. for the Peninsula, in 1808, and was present with the corps at the undermentioned engagements, fought between that year and 1811: Battle of Vimiero; retreat to Corunna; celebrated forced march of the light division to Talavera; at the affairs of outposts on the Agueda; at the combat on the banks of the Coa; the battle of Busaco; combats of Pomhal, Leyria, Redinha, Condeixa, Miranda do Corvo, Poz d'Aronca, Sahugal, and Fuentes d'Onor; served in the 18th Hussars during the campaign of 1815, and was present at the battle of Waterloo. He m. 7 Oct. 1812, Elizabeth-Anne, dau. of the late John Jull, Esq. of Wingham, Kent, and has issue,

WILLIAM-GODFREY-CLERK, b. 25 July, 1813, late a capt. in the 23rd regt., or Royal Welsh fusiliers, m. 14 Dec. 1841, Dorothy-Anne, eldest dau. of the late Rev. John-Raper Hunton, of Armathwaite Castle, co. Cumberland.

Elizabeth-Anne-Sarah, b. 4 Nov. 1822, m. 21 Jan. 1847, William Gatty, Esq.

MORRALL OF PLAS YOLYN.

MORRALL, EDWARD, Esq. of Plâs Yolyn, co. Salop, third surviving son of the late Charles Morrall, Esq. of Plâs Yolyn, s. to the estate on the decease of his elder brothers.

Lineage.

The Morralls have been seated in Salop from an early period, and they now represent the very ancient family of Edwardes of Kilhendre, which had resided in Dudleston antecedently to the date of any existing records.

TUDOR TREVOR, described in all the genealogical MSS. of the principality, as chief or head of the tribe of the Marches, was ancestor of IDDON SAIS, Lord of Dudleston, whose descendant in the tenth degree,

HUGH AP EDWARD, of Kilhendre, a merchant of eminence in London and Shrewsbury, assumed, according to the English custom, the surname of EDWARDES. This opulent citizen acquired on the 14 Dec. 1549, from King EDWARD VI., a considerable portion of the tenements in Shrewsbury, which had formerly belonged to the dissolved College of St. Chad, in that borough, and in 1551, principally through his influence at court, the grant was obtained, under which was founded the Royal Free Grammar School of Shrewsbury, now one of the most celebrated royal foundations for education in Great Britain. This Hugh Edwardes m. Alice, dau. of Thomas Keile, of Barkler, co. Dorset, and had two sons,

TIMOTHY, his heir.

Thomas, of Shrewsbury, who d. 19 March, 1634, aged 79, leaving, by Anne, his wife, dau. and heir of Humphrey Baskerville, Esq. of London, and relict of Stephen Duckett, a son and heir,

SIR THOMAS EDWARDES, of Shrewsbury, who was created a Baronet, 21 March, 1644, and was ancestor of the present Sir Henry Edwardes, Bart. of Shrewsbury, (see BURKE's Peerage and Baronetage.)

The elder son,

TIMOTHY EDWARDES, Esq. of Kilbendre, m. Alice, dau. of Adam Colefox, of Merrington, co. Salop, and had a son and heir,

FRANCIS EDWARDES, Esq. of Kilhendre, who m. Mary, dau. of John Figgs, Esq. of Twemlows, Salop, and was father of

THOMAS EDWARDES, Esq. of Kilhendre, who recorded his pedigree at the visitation of Salop, in 1663; he m. Frances, dau. of John Aldersey, Esq. of Aldersey and Spurstow, co. Chester, and had issue a son and a dau.,

THOMAS, his heir.

Judith, m. in 1669, John Morrall, of Plâs Yolyn, Gent., and had a son, EDWARD, of whom presently, as inheritor of the estates of the Edwardes.

The son,

THOMAS EDWARDES, Esq., M.D., of Kilhendre, (ninetieth in descent from Tudor Trevor.) m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Watkin Kyffin, Esq. of Glascoed, co. Denbigh, and had two daus., Frances and Anne, both of whom d. unm., (the last survivor, Frances, in 1730,) and the estates devolved by entail on

EDWARD MORRALL, Esq. of Plâs Yolyn, who then became also of Kilhendre. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Dymock, Esq. of Willington and Penley, co. Flint, and d. 16 Jan. 1741, when he was s. by his eldest son,

JOSIAH MORRALL, Esq. of Plâs Yolyn and Kilhendre, who m. Margaret, sister of Sir Edward Lloyd, Bart. of Pengwern, by whom he had six daus., but leaving no male issue, the estates were inherited by his brother,

WILLIAM MORRALL, Esq. of Plâs Yolyn and Kilhendre, who m. Susanna, dau. and heiress of John Bee, Esq. of Wendlebury, co. Oxon, and dying 11 March, 1756, was s. by his son,

CHARLES MORRALL, Esq. of Kilhendre and Plás Yolyn, who sold the Kilhendre estate in 1800. He m. Frances, only dau. of William Challenor, Esq., and sole heiress of her brother, William Challenor, Esq., who d. during his sheriffalty for Salop, in 1800. By this lady, who d. 7 Dec. 1823, Mr. Morrall had issue,

WILLIAM, his heir.

CHARLES, of New Hall, co. Salop, residing in Chester, J.P. and deputy-lieutenant for the latter county, m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Boates, Esq. of Liverpool, and had an only child, Emily, who m. the Hon. Michael-William-Bellew Nugent, younger son of Lord Riverstone, of the co. Galway.

EDWARD, present proprietor of Plás Yolyn.

CYRUS, of Liverpool, m. Margaret, dau. of the Rev. Richard Owen, M.A., of Bodsilyn, co. Carnarvon, and of Iy Obry, co. Merioneth, (rector of Rhoscolyn,) and had issue, i. Cyrus, M.A. of Brazenose College, m. Emily-Jane, dau. of the Rev. Francis Blackburne, M.A., late rector of Weston-super-Mare; ii. John-Charles; i. Margaret; and ii. Harriet-Lumley, deceased.

Thomas, d. unm.

Robert, m. Margaret, dau. of Michael Richardson, Esq. of Liverpool.

Henry, in holy orders, M.A.

Philip, d. unm.

John, in holy orders, M.A., late fellow of Brazenose College, m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Harding, Esq. of Liverpool.

Frances-Esther, m. to Thomas Jones, Esq. of Llanerchrugog Hall, co. Denbigh, J.P. and deputy-lieutenant.

Mr. Morrall d. in 1822, and was s. by his eldest son, WILLIAM MORRALL, Esq. of Plás Yolyn, sometime captain in the 9th foot, who m. Miss Sarah Thomas, and had an only child, Elizabeth-Essex, m. to William-Legh Hilton, Esq. (a captain in the army.) Mr. Morrall, dying without male issue, was s. in Plás Yolyn by his brother, CHARLES; then by the present EDWARD MORRALL, Esq. of Plás Yolyn and Plás Warren.

MOSTYN OF LLEWESOG.

MOSTYN, THOMAS-ARTHUR-BERTIE, Esq. of Llewesog, co. Denbigh, b. 11 July, 1801; s. his brother in July, 1840.

Tincage.

NYNAR AP CADFORCH, Lord of Both Maelors, Oswestry, and Whittington, in Powys, one of the Barons of that kingdom, was father, by Rhiengar, his wife, dau. and sole heir of Lluddoca ap Caradoc Vreichfras, Lord of Hereford, in South Wales, of a son,

TUDOR TREVOR, (so called, because born or nursed at Trevor,) Lord of Hereford, Whittington, and Both Maelors, and FOUNDER OF THE TRIBE OF THE MARCHES, an appellation derived from the numerous families seated in the MARCHES of England and Wales, descended from him. Tudor Trevor's chief seat was Whittington Castle, of which he is said to be the founder, and Welsh heralds assign to him as ensigns, "Party per bend sinister, ermine and ermures, over all, a lion, rampant, or," which, as chief arms, or quartered, have been borne by all his descendants. The Lord of Hereford and Whittington m. Angharad, dau. of Howell Dha, King of South Wales, A.D. 907, the celebrated lawgiver of Cambria, and had, (with other issue,)

LLYDOCK AP TUDOR TREVOR, Lord of Both Maelors and Oswestry, who m. Angharad, dau. of Iago ap Idwall, King of North Wales, A.D. 1021, and had a son and successor,

LLOWARCH GAM AP LLYDOCK, Lord of Maelor, Oswestry, and Whittington, father, by Lleiky, his wife, dau. of Gwerystan ap Gwaethroed Vawr, a Lord of Powis, of a son,

EDNYFED AP LLOWARCH, of Maelor, Oswestry, and Whittington, who m. Janet, dau. and co-heiress of Rhywallon ap Cynfyn, brother of Bleddyn ap Cynfyn, Kiug of Powys, and was s. by his son,

RHYS AP EDNYFED, commonly called RHYS SAIS, from being bred among the English, Lord of Oswestry, Whittington, and part of Both Maelors. He m. Efa, dau. of Griffith Hir, descended from Tudor the Great, of South Wales, and had an eldest son,

TUDOR AP RHYS SAIS, who m. Jane, dau. of Rhys Vychan ap Rhys ap Meredith Gethin, of Llan-yn-difri, in 1183, and was s. by his eldest son,

BLETHIN AP TUDOR, who m. Agnes, dau. of Llewelyn ap Iorwerth ap Meredith Hen, of Baulth, in 1222, ap Cadwgan ap Elystan, Prince of Ferlys, and had (with other issue) an eldest son,

OWAIN AP BLETHIN, who m. Efa, widow of Iorwerth, son of Owain Brogyntyn, Lord of Edeirnion, Dinmael, and Abertanat, ancestor, by her, of the HUGHES'S OF GWERCLAS, BARONS OF KYMMER-YN-EDEIRNION, and dau. and co-heiress of Madoc, Lord of Mawddwy, in Merionethshire, younger son of Gwenwynwyn, Prince of Powys Wenwynwyn. By this lady he had (with other issue) an eldest son,

IORWERTH GAM AP OWAIN, m. Angharad, dau. and co-heir of Griffith ap Meilir ap Elidyr, of the Tribe of the Lord of Hereford, and was father of

IORWERTH VYCHAN AP IORWERTH GAM, who m. Catherine, dau. of Llewelyn ap Griffith, Prince of North Wales, by whom he had a son, IORWERTH VOEL AP IORWERTH VYCHAN, who was witness to a deed of Hammer, 6th EDWARD II. He m. Gwladys, dau. and heir of Iorwerth ap Griffith, of Brochwel and Llowarch, derived through Gwyn ap Griffith, Lord of Guilsfield, from Brochwel Ysgrithog, Prince of Powys. Of this marriage there was (with other issue) a fourth son,

EDNYFED GAM AP IORWERTH VOEL, of Pengwern, who m. Gwladys, dau. and co-heiress of Llewelyn ap Madoc ap Einion, descended from Edwin, Lord of Tegaingl, Founder of the XII. Noble Tribe of North Wales and Powys, and had issue an eldest son,

IORWERTH DDU AP EDNYFED GAM, of Pengwern, who m. Angharad, dau. of Adda ap Ievan ap Adda, of the Tribe of Tudor Trevor, by whom he had a son and successor,

ADDA AP IORWERTH DDU, of Pengwern, who m. Isabel, sister of OWEN GLENDOWER, and dau. of Griffith Vychan, Lord of Glyndwrwy, co. Merioneth, representative of the Sovereigns of Powys. Of this alliance there was a son,

IEVAN AP ADDA, of Pengwern, who m. Angharad, dau. and co-heir of Ednyfed ap Sir Tudor, paternal uncle of Owen Tudor, and younger son of Sir Tudor ap Grono, Knt., (derived from Grono, Lord of Tref Castell, third son of Ednyfed Vychan, Lord of Brynffienigl,) by the Lady Margaret, dau. and co-heir (with her elder sister, the Lady Eleanor, mother, by her husband, Griffith Vychan, Lord of Glyndwrwy, of OWEN GLENDOWER) of Thomas ap Llewelyn, Lord of South Wales, representative of the Sovereign Princes of South Wales, by Eleanor Goch, his wife, dau. and heir of Philip ap Ivor, Lord of Caerdigan, by the Princess Catherine, dau. and heir of Llewelyn, last Prince of North Wales, (see HUGHES OF GWERCLAS.) By this marriage, Ievan ap Adda acquired the seat and estate of Trecastell, and other lands in Anglesea, and had, among other children, an elder son, IEVAN VYCHAN AP IEVAN, who was living in the reign of RICHARD II.: he m. Angharad, dau. and co-heir of Howel ap Tudor ap Ithel Vychan, of Mostyn, co. Flint, derived from Edwin, Lord of Tegaingl, with whom he obtained that property, which continued the chief seat of the principal line. Ievan had, in 1444, farmed Mostyn. He wisely determined to turn the lease into a perpetuity, and, gaining the lady's affections,— Connubio junxit stabili, propriamque dicavit.

Ievan's eldest son,

HOWEL AP IEVAN VYCHAN, of Mostyn, m. in 1460, Margaret, dau. and heiress of Griffith ap Rhys, of Gloddaeth, in Caernarvonshire, with whom he acquired that seat and property, and had issue a son and heir,

RICHARD AP HOWEL, who was of Mostyn. During the time that Henry, Earl of Richmond, was secretly laying the foundation of the overthrow of the house of York, he passed concealed from place to place, in order to form an interest among the Welsh, who favoured his cause on account of their respect to his grandfather, Owen Tudor, their countryman. While he was at Mostyn, a party attached to RICHARD III. arrived there to apprehend him. He was then about to dine, but had just time to leap out of a back window, and make his escape through a hole, which to this day is called the King's. Richard ap Howell joined HENRY at the battle of Bosworth, and, after the victory, received from the king, in token of gratitude for his preservation, the belt and sword he wore on that day; he also pressed Richard greatly to follow him to court, but he nobly answered, like the Shunamitish woman, "I dwell among my own people." The sword and belt were preserved at Mostyn until within these few years. (Pennant's Whiteford and Holywell, 4to, 1796.) He m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Salusbury, Knt. of Lleweny, co. Denbigh, and had two sons,

The name of Mules, or as it was anciently spelt, Molis, or Moels, is derived from the Castle of Mola, in Normandy, where Baldwin, the son of Gilbert, Earl of Brion, was born, whence he was called Baldwin de Molis. The family have been settled in Devon and Somerset since the Conquest, and at different periods of their history have held large landed possessions in the counties of Devon, Somerset, Dorset, Hants, Leicester, Herts, and Oxford. They trace their descent in lineal succession, from

GODFREY, EARL OF EWE, who was the natural son of Richard, first Duke of Normandy, the Conqueror's grandfather. His son was,

GILBERT, EARL OF BRION, who was murdered in Normandy. He had two sons, Richard; and

BALDWIN DE MOLIS, also called de Brion, de Sap, Baldwin the Sheriff, and sometimes, at a later period, Baldwin de Exeter, who came from Normandy with WILLIAM the Conqueror, and was one of his generals at the battle of Hastings. He had the barony of Okehampton, which was his chief seat. He held seventeen manors in demesne, and 164 manors were held by under-tenants of him. We find from the historian Ordericus Vitalis, that, "after the surrender of Exeter to WILLIAM the Conqueror, that monarch selected a spot for building a castle, and committed the oversight of the work and its future custody, to Baldwin de Molis, great-grandson of the first Duke of Normandy, who had married the Conqueror's niece; he was also called Baldwin de Sap, or de Brionis. The king made this Baldwin hereditary sheriff of Devonshire, and Exeter Castle became the place of his residence." He had with other issue,

Richard, surnamed de Redvers, who was created by King

HENRY I., Earl of Devon.

Robert, Governor of Brion.

ROGER, of whom we have to speak.

ROGER DE MOLIS, at the time of the Domesday survey, held Lewe, Waldexote, and Teigne, in Devon. He was s. by his son, NICOLAUS DE MOLIS, or MOELS, who was the father of JOELLUS DE MOELS, temp. HENRY II. His son was,

ROGERUS DE MOELS, who was s. by his son and heir,

NICHOLAS DE MOELS, or MULES, feudal Baron of North Cadbury, Somerset. In right of Hawise, his wife, dau. and co-heir of James de Newmarch, Lord of North Cadbury, he possessed the lordships of Cadbury and Sapeston, co. Somerset, part of the baronial lands of James de Newmarch. He had from King HENRY III., a grant of the manors of Carswell, Depeford, and West Allington, with the hundreds of Haytor and Standburgh, co. Devon. In 12 HENRY III., 1228, he was sheriff of Hampshire, and governor of the Castle of Winchester, and so continued to the 16 HENRY III., inclusive. In 18 HENRY III., 1234, he had the islands of Guernsey, Jersey, Serke, and Aureney (Alderney) committed to his care, with the shrievalty of Hants. In 19 and 20 HENRY III., was sheriff of Devon. In 23 HENRY III., was sheriff of the county of York, and so continued until the 25 HENRY III., inclusive. In 26 HENRY III., 1242, he went ambassador to France with Ralph FitzNicholas, for the purpose of denouncing war against the king of that realm, being at that time so highly regarded by the king, that James, his son and heir, was, by special command, admitted to have his education with Prince Edward; the prince's tutors, Hugh de Giffard and Berard de Savoy, having directions to receive him, with one servant, and to provide him. In the following year he was Seneschal of Gascoigne, where he remained until the 28 HENRY III., when he obtained a signal victory over the King of Navarre, and took him prisoner in the field. He was employed in the Welsh wars, and in 29 HENRY III., was made governor of the Castles of Caermarthen and Cardigan; 42 HENRY III., made constable of Dover Castle, and warden of the Cinque Ports, sheriff of the county of Kent, and governor of the Castles of Rochester and Canterbury; in 45 HENRY III., made governor of Shireburne Castle, co. Dorset, and 47 HENRY III., of Corfe Castle, in the same county. This celebrated and gallant person had issue,

I. James, 27 HENRY III., admitted to have his education with Prince EDWARD, d. v. p.

II. ROGER DE MOELS, or MULES, feudal Baron of North Cadbury, s. his father. He served in the wars against the Welsh, 5 EDWARD I., and 6 EDWARD I. had the Castle of Lampadervour, co. Cardigan, committed to his charge; 18 EDWARD I., he obtained a charter for free warren in all his demesne lands of Little Berkhamstead, co. Herts; Stoke Basset, co. Oxon; as also of Carswell, Deptford, and Little Langford, co. Devon. He m. Alice, dau. and heir of William le Preux,* by whom Gidleigh, or

* RISDON says Sir William Prouis ordained by his will to be buried amongst his ancestors, at Lustleigh, but his executors interred him at Holberton. The Lady Alice Mules, his dau.,

Gidley, Castle and manor, with the manors of Lustleigh, Aveton, Giffard, and Throwley, or Throuleigh, all in the co. of Devon, passed into the family of Mules. He possessed Ugborough, Devon, and had the power of life and death in the manor. He d. 23 EDWARD I., (1294) seized of the manors of Sapeston, Cadbury, and Halton, in Somerset, with other manors in several counties, parts of the barony of Newnarch, whereof he held a moiety; also the manors of Stanburgh, Langford, Kings Carswell, and Deppeford; the advowson of the church of Deppeford with the hundred of Heytore, in the co. of Devon: Berkhamstead, co. Herts; and Overton and Stoke Basset, co. Oxon. He was s. by his son,

JOHN DE MOELS, or MULES, Baron of North Cadbury, at his father's death, aged 24, had livery of his lands the same year. This feudal lord having distinguished himself in the Scottish wars of EDWARD I., was summoned as a baron to parliament from 6 Feb. 1299, to 16 June, 1311. He was one of the ninety-four barons, that in a parliament holden at Lincoln in the reign of EDWARD I., anno 1301, subscribed a letter* denying the Pope's pretended title to the kingdom of Scotland. His lordship m. the dau. of Lord Grey of Ruthyn, and dying in 1311, was s. by his son, NICHOLAS DE MOELS, or MULES, summoned to parliament from 19 Oct. 1311, to 6 Oct. 1315. This nobleman, like his predecessors, distinguished himself in the Scotch wars. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Hugh Courtenay, Knt., and sister of Hugh Earl of Devon, by whom he had issue,

1. ROGER, his successor.

2. JOHN, who s. his brother.

His lordship d. in 1316, and was s. by his elder son, ROGER DE MOELS, or MULES, who paying an hundred marks fine, and doing homage, had livery of his lands the same year, through the king's especial favour, being at the time not of full age. His lordship d. in 19 EDWARD II., s. p., and was s. by his brother,

JOHN DE MOELS, or MULES, who was not summoned to parliament. This nobleman was created a Knight of the Bath, 20 EDWARD II., and in 7 EDWARD III., he was in the expedition then made into Scotland. His lordship m. Joane, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Sir Richard Luvel, Knt. of Castle Cary, and had issue, Muriel, m. to Sir Thomas Courtenay, Knt., a younger son of the Earl of Devon, and had issue.

Isabel, m. to William de Botreaux, Lord Botreaux, and had issue.

III. JOHN, of whom presently.

1. Agnes, who m. William Brews, Baronis de Brember et Gower.

The second surviving son of Nicholas de Moels,

SIR JOHN MULES, of Ernsborough, in Swimbridge, Devon, m. the heiress of the Flavells, "who brought the manor of Ernsborough with a goodly patrimony to him." Risdon says, "Ernsborough, as the name imports, is a principal place, or court house, in the lord's manor, and so this seems by the ruins yet remaining." His lineal descendant,

JOHN MULES, of Ernsborough, living temp. RICHARD II., was father of,

I. JOHN (Sir), his heir.

II. THOMAS, of whom presently.

III. Joane, who m. Thomas Perott, or Perrett, of Pill, co. Devon.

after some time, coming to the knowledge that her father's will touching his funeral was not performed, petitioned the then Lord Bishop of Exeter, that the corpse might be taken up, and, according to his will, buried at Lustleigh, which was granted, and thereupon a mandatum was sent forth to that purpose; which, in regard to a matter so strange and unusual, some happily may desire to read it, whereof behold the transcript:—"Registrum venerabilis in Christo patris Domini, Johannis de Grandison dudum Exon Episcopi incepti in manerium ejusdem patris apud Chudleigh die Mercurii in festo sancti Luc. Evang. viz. 23 die mensis Octob. an. 1329, consecrationem suam ter insuperit. Mandat ad exhauriend. corpus Domini Willielmi Fruze, milit. quarto die calend. Novemb. apud Chudleigh invenerunt mandatum Domini Henr. Berry Decanus de Holbigiton, nunc Holberton sub hac forma. Ex parte nobilis mulieris Domini Alicie Mules vobis est intimatum quod cum nobilis vir Dominus Willielmus le Prouz, pater ejus Miles parochianus in ecclesia de Lustleigh corpus suum deposuit in ultima voluntate sua in ecclesia de Lustleigh sepeliri, quidam tamen corpus ejus in ecclesia de Holberton sepeliri minus volunt. performat. fecerunt. Volentes igitur et omnes pias et honestas voluntates exsequi defunctorum vobis committimus et mandamus quatenus corpus per legitimam inquisitionem, vocat. et vocand. Ita esse inveneritis ossa præfati militis, cum reverentia qua decet, faciatis exhumare ac apud ecclesiam parochialem de Lustleigh, quam primum poteritis transportare."

* Two authentic transcripts of this letter are preserved in the College of Heralds, London.

He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MULES, of Ernsborough. "The north aisle of Swimbridge Church was built by Sir John Mules, of Ernsborough, as the inscription in a window, and a proof there once fairly painted and gilded, with the arms and matches of that family make evident, unto the maintenance whereof, for ever, he gave his lands called Furze." He built a chapel at Ernsborough, which on the 22 Sept. 1432, was licensed in favour of John and Joan Mules. He had issue, two daus.,

Mr. Murray, who is an advocate at the Scottish bar, was appointed sheriff of Aberdeenshire in 1822, and continues to hold that office. He is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for Perthshire.

Tineage.

This family derives, in the male line, from the ancient family of GRÆME OF BALGOWAN, a branch of the noble house of Graham of Kincardine, represented by the Duke of Montrose, and, in the female, from that of Murray, Lord Balvaird, whose eldest son succeeded as Viscount Stormont. Of the Græmes of Balgowan was the late gallant Lord Lynedoch.

JOHN GRÆME, of Balgowan, second son of John Græme, of Garvock, and grandson of Archibald Græme, of Garvock, slain at Flodden, (see family of GRÆME OF GARVOCK, p. 491,) purchased the estate of Balgowan from James, Lord Invermeith, in 1584, and was thence designated. He m. in 1605, Margaret, eldest dau. of Andrew Rollo, of Duncruh, and was by her ancestor of

THOMAS GRÆME, Esq. of Balgowan, son of John Græme, of Balgowan, by Anne Drummond, his wife. From the eldest son of this Thomas descended the GRAHAMS OF BALGOWAN, whose late representative, THOMAS, Lord Lynedoch, d. in Dec. 1843, and from the younger son, PATRICK GRÆME, sprung the family of which we are treating. He m. Janet, eldest dau. and beiress of ANDREW MURRAY, of Murrayshall, eldest son of the Hon. Sir Andrew Murray, of Pitlochrie, brother of David, Viscount Stormont, and had (with a dau., m. to James Maxtone, of Cultoquhey) a son and successor, Family of Wray.

The family of Wray was anciently seated in the bishopric of Durham, and subsequently possessed estates in Richmondshire, co. York. The first who resided at Glentworth, in Lincolnshire, was

SIR CHRISTOPHER WRAY,* Knt., lord chief justice of England, descended from John Wray, of Richmond. This eminent person, who served for Boroughbridge, in all the parliaments called by Queen MARY, was, in the subsequent reign, chosen speaker of the House of Commons, and eventually constituted lord chief justice of the Queen's Bench. He m. Anne, dau. of Nicholas Girlington, Esq. of Normanby, in Yorkshire, and had issue,

WILLIAM, his heir.

Isabel, m. 1st, to Godfrey Foljambe, Esq. of Walton, sheriff of Derbyshire, 31 ELIZABETH; 2ndly, to Sir William Bowes, Knt. of Barnard Castle; and 3rdly, to John, Lord D'Arcy of Aston.

Frances, m. 1st, to Sir George St. Paul, Bart. of Snarford; and 2ndly, to Robert Rich, Earl of Warwick.

Sir Christopher Wray d. 8 May, 1592, leaving the character, says an old writer, "of an upright judge; for though he respected every man in his proper station, when he was off the bench, when he was on it, he had no such regard for the greatest of men, so as to bias his judgment. He sat on that bench seventeen years, and filled it with great credit to himself and satisfaction to others: his piety, probity, charity, and justice, rendering him revered by the greatest men of that age, and his death generally lamented. Her Majesty Queen ELIZABETH had so just a sense of his merits and services, that she gave him the profits of her coinage, till he had built that noble house now remaining at Glentworth." Sir Christopher was s. by his only son,

SIR WILLIAM WRAY, who received the honour of knighthood from Queen ELIZABETH, was chosen in the last parliament of her Majesty's reign knight of the shire for the county of Lincoln, and created a Baronet 25 Nov. 1612. WRAY SAUNDERSON, Esq. of Glentworth, who m. Mary, eldest dau. of Lewis Watson, Earl of Rockingham, but d. s. p.

Sir John Wray dying without male issue, the baronetcy devolved on (the grandson of his uncle, Sir Christopher Wray) his cousin,

SIR CHRISTOPHER WRAY, second Bart. of Ashby, who then became fourth baronet of the more ancient creation. Dying, however, issueless, the patent his father had obtained from CHARLES II. expired, while the old baronetcy of Glentworth reverted to (the son of his uncle, Edward Wray, Esq.) his first cousin,

SIR BAPTIST-EDWARD WRAY, fifth Bart., at whose demise, also s. p., the title was inherited by his uncle,

SIR DRURY WRAY, sixth Bart., b. in Lincolnshire, 29 July, 1633. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. and heir of Thomas Casey, Esq. of Rathcannon, co. Limerick, by Bridget, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Dowdall, Knt., and had, with several daus., three sons, CHRISTOPHER, his heir; William, who predeceased him; and CECIL, successor to his brother. Sir Drury d. 30 Oct. 1710, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER WRAY, seventh Bart., who was in arms for King WILLIAM, at the battle of the Boyne, served afterwards in the wars of Flanders, Spain, and Portugal, as lieutenant-col. in General Farrington's regiment, and eminently distinguished himself at the attack of Ostend. In 1710, he was again preparing to go to Spain; and being at Portsmouth, to embark with the fleet, died there, unn., 21 Nov. 1710, and was s. by his brother,

SIR CECIL WRAY, eighth Bart., who d. s. p. in 1736, and was s. by his cousin,

SIR JOHN WRAY, ninth Bart. of Sleningsford, who m. FRANCES, eldest dau. of FAIRFAX NORCLIFFE, Esq. of Langton, as already stated in the Noreliffe descent.

NORMAN OF SOMERSETSHIRE.

NORMAN, SARAH-ELIZABETH, relict of John Norman, Esq. of Iwood House, and of Claverham, Yatton, co. Somerset, is representative of the family of Paxton.

Lineage.

This family, originally of Danish extraction, (as the name implies,) is of considerable antiquity in the county of Somerset. It is recorded in Domesday Book, that the manor of Apelie, in the parish of Stawley, was held in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, by "Norman." In the year 1260, "Roger Norman" was prior of Montacute, and "John Norman" was confirmed prior of Barlinch, by Cardinal Wolsey, in the year 1526.

In 4 EDWARD VI., 1548, JOHN NORMAN (who possessed lands at Bridgewater and Wembdon, co. Somerset, Wool and Lulworth, Dorset, and Sutton Veney, Wilts, to the churches of which several places he bequeathed legacies, and who was also vicar of King's Clere, Hants) purchased of John Nethaway, Esq., the manor of Huish Champflower, co. Somerset, which at that time consisted of eight messuages, eight gardens, two hundred acres of arable land, thirty-four acres of meadow, eighty acres of pasture, eighty acres of alder wood, forty acres of furze and heath, and certain rents. He d. in 1555, leaving executor of his will, bearing date in the same year,

THOMAS NORMAN, of Donyatt and of Bridgewater, who d. in 1594, and was s. by

ROBERT NORMAN, Esq. of Huish Champflower, and of Bridgewater, Somerset. He m., 26 Nov. 1619, Frances, dau. of — Sherman, Esq., and by her had issue,

i. Henry, a lieutenant-col. in the service of the parliament.

ii. JOHN.

iii. Arthur, patron of the living of Backwell, co. Somerset, in 1660-5.

i. Gracia, m. to Thomas Raxworthy, Esq.

The second son,

THE REV. JOHN NORMAN, M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, rector of Bridgewater-cum-Chilton, co. Somerset, m. Eliza, supposed to have been dau. of Humphrey Blake, Esq. of Planesfield, in the parish of Over Stowey, and of Spaxton, co. Somerset, and sister of the celebrated Admiral Robert Blake: by her he had issue, Henry; Peter, d. s. p. in 1707; and

JOHN NORMAN, Esq., B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and of Bridgewater, co. Somerset, who m. his cousin, Mary, dau. of Arthur Norman, Esq. of Backwell, by whom he had issue,

HENRY NORMAN, Esq., who m. Sarah, dau. of John Blake, Esq. of Huish Episcopi, co. Somerset, (to whom descended extensive lands in King's Sedgemoor, acquired by the marriage of his ancestor, Thomas Blake, clerk, with Sarah-Venn, dau. of Sir Cornelius Vermuyden, temp. JAMES I.) By Sarah, his wife, Mr. Norman had issue, two sons, John; and

THE REV. HENRY NORMAN, thirty-five years rector of Bleadon, (to which he was presented by his friend, Hoadley, Bishop of Winchester, in 1745), and in the commission of the peace for the co. Somerset. He m. Mary, dau. of William Travis, Esq., of a Lancashire family, by whom he had issue, seven sons and two daus.,

The Rev. Mr. Paxton d. 27 Feb. 1795, aged seventy-four, and was buried at Saffron Walden. He was s. by his son,

* Mr. Eglesfield was a lineal descendant of John de Eglesfield, brother and heir of Robert de Eglesfield, founder of Queen's College, Oxford, and confessor to Queen PHILIPPA, wife of EDWARD III.

The family of Eglesfield, or De Eglesfield, is of very ancient descent.

Thomas De Eglesfield, and Hawisca, his wife, were possessed of considerable estates in Brougham, in Cumberland, in the time of HENRY III. They had issue,

JOHN DE EGLESFIELD, who, by Beatrice, his wife, had issue,

- i. JOHN DE EGLESFIELD, of whom presently.
- ii. Robert De Eglesfield, founder of Queen's College, Oxford, 1340. He was Bachelor of Divinity at the University of Oxford, rector of the church of Burgh-under-Stanmore, in Westmoreland, and confessor to Queen PHILIPPA, Edward, the Black Prince, and his brother, John of Gaunt, were brought up under his auspices. This Robert De Eglesfield, at his own expense, founded and endowed Queen's College, Oxford; and under the patronage of Queen PHILIPPA, 18 June, 1340, obtained a charter from King EDWARD III., dated in The Tower of London. In the deed of confirmation, it is styled "The College of the Queen," and the Queens-consort of England have since been its illustrious patronesses. Amongst the celebrated men educated at this college, were Cardinal Beaufort, son of John of Gaunt, and brother of EDWARD IV., and also King HENRY V. In the library of the college, with the statues, of EDWARD III. and Queen PHILIPPA, of CHARLES I., and his Queen HENRIETTA-MARIA, is that of the founder, Robert De Eglesfield, whose picture is also in the hall of the college. He d. in 1349, and was buried in the chapel of the college, a brass plate with his effigy being placed over his grave. He was s. by his brother and heir,

JOHN DE EGLESFIELD, from whom the present family branches are descended.

This family, besides the estates at Eglesfield, in the parish of Brougham, in Cumberland, which they had in the reign of HENRY III., came into possession, in the reign of EDWARD III., of Alneborough Hall, or Netherhall, in the parish of Cross Canonby, in the same county, which has at different times been represented in parliament by members of this family;

THE REV. HARRY PAXTON, M.A., of Baythorne and Great Yeldham, Essex, rector of Syderstone, co. Norfolk and vicar of Battisford, co. Suffolk, chaplain to Horace Walpole. Earl of Orford, m. Sarah, dau. of William Irish, Esq. of the Hermitage, and the River Head estates, Montserrat, (only son of William Irish, Esq., by Sarah, his wife,* dau. of Edward Wyke, Esq., lieutenant-governor and president of the council of that island :) by her he had issue, five daus., of whom the eldest, SARAH-ELIZABETH, m. John Norman, Esq. of Iwood House, and of Yatton, co. Somerset.

Arms—Or, two chevrons, sa., between three mullets, impaled, gu.

NORRIS OF HACKNEY.

NORRIS, THE REV. HENRY-HANDLEY, of Hackney, co. Middlesex, b. 14 Jan. 1771; m. 19 June, 1805, Henrietta-Catharine, dau. of David Powell, Esq. of Hackney, and has issue, one son, HENRY, m. Ellen, dau. of the Rev. Lloyd Crawley, of Heyford, co. Northampton, son of Sir Thomas Crawley, Bart. of Flaxley Abbey.

Mr. Norris s. his father in 1804.

Lineage.

This family has resided at Hackney, co. Middlesex, for six generations. The present residence was built by Henry Norris, Esq., great-grandfather of the present proprietor, on the site of the ancient house of Thomas, Lord Wentworth. The family pedigree commences with the year 1500.

HENRY NORRIS, Esq. of Hackney, to whom we have just referred, as having erected the mansion there, was a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for co. Middlesex. He m. 1st, 13 March, 1702-3, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Brookes, Esq. of Hackney; and 2ndly, 3 March, 1718-19, Sarah, dau. of John Sawyer, Esq. of Charterhouse-yard, and by the former was father of

HENRY NORRIS, Esq. of Hackney, who m. 2 May, 1733, Elizabeth Handley, descended of the ancient family of Handley, of Handley, co. Somerset, and had a son, and here they lived in high estimation in the time of PHILIP and MARY.

The elder line of this family is now represented by that of Senhouse of Netherhall, in whose possession the above family estates still continue, having inherited them, by the marriage of Elizabeth, eldest sister and co-heir of Richard Eglesfield, son of Gawen Eglesfield, of Alneborough Hall, high-sheriff of Cumberland, with John Senhouse, of Senhouse, co. Cumberland. (See SENHOUSE pedigree.)

Thomas De Eglesfield was provost of Queen's College in 1432.

James Eglesfield was admitted fellow of this college in 1625, and was vicar of Chewton, in Somersetshire.

Gawen Eglesfield was presented to the living of Weston, in Oxfordshire, in 1632, being a descendant of the family; at which time a lady, one of the Eglesfield family, was maid of honour to Queen HENRIETTA-MARIA, wife of CHARLES I. A beautiful picture of her, painted by Vandyke, is in possession of the Paxton family.

In 1674, George Eglesfield graduated as Master of Arts, at Queen's College, Oxford.

George Eglesfield m. a dau. of Robert Boulter, Esq. of Harewood, (and sister of Edmund Boulter, Esq. of Harewood, and Gawthorp Hall, co. York; Bawlings, co. Lincoln; Hasely Court, co. Oxford; and Wherwell Park, Hants; M.P. for Boston, who inherited the extensive estates of his uncle, Sir John Cutler, Bart., after the decease of his daus., Elizabeth, Countess of Radnor, and Lady Portman, wife of Sir William Portman, of Orchard Portman, co. Somerset,) and left issue, Ann Eglesfield, m. to John Singleton, Esq., of the family of Mendlesham, co. Norfolk, and had issue, Mary-Elizabeth Singleton, m. to the Rev. William Paxton, of Baythorne Park. This Mrs. Paxton was named in the will of her cousin, John Boulter, of Gawthorp Hall, who d. in 1737.

* Mrs. Irish m. 2ndly, Samuel Martin, Esq. of Antigua, and had issue,

I. HENRY (Sir), Bart. (See BURKE'S Baronetage.)

II. Josiah, colonel in the army, and Governor of North Carolina, m. and had issue.

III. William-Byam, of White Knights Park, co. Berks, m. and had issue.

HENRY-HANDLEY NORRIS, Esq. of Hackney, who m. 17 Oct. 1768, Grace, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Hert,* vicar of Warton, co. Lancaster, and had issue, HENRY-HANDLEY, his heir.

One dau., m. to the Rev. Daniel Everard, rector of Burnham Thorpe and Stanhoe, Norfolk, and d. 1 Jan. 1811.

Mr. Norris d. in 1804, and was s. by his son, the present HENRY-HANDLEY NORRIS, Esq. of Hackney.

- II. Radulphus, R.N., b. 29 June, 1827.
- III. Richard, b. 7 Aug. 1830.
- IV. Aldred, b. 19 July, 1835.
- I. Alicia. II. Adeline.

Colonel Oldfield served on the staff at the Battle of Waterloo.

Lineage.

Tradition gives this family a Saxon origin, and a descent from the OLDFIELDS of Yorkshire and Lincolnshire. The name has been at different times variously written, Aldfeldt, de Aldfeld, Aldfeld, Oldfeld, Oldfield, &c. Aldred and Radulphus de Alfeld were benefactors to Fontibus Abbey, as appears by the Monasticon. Alfeld, near Ripon, is stated to have taken its name from this family, which was connected, by marriage, with the Moncktons, Viscounts Galway, the Trollopes, Thorolds, Wingfields, and several ancient and noble houses in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire, as well as in other parts of England. In 1660, a baronetcy was conferred on SIR ANTHONY OLDFIELD, of Spalding, (see BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies), and the armorial bearings of the baronet were similar to those borne by the ancestors of the branch of the family now settled in Sussex. The pedigree, as recorded in the Heralds' College, commences with the REV. EDWARD OLDFIELD, who, in 1655, was settled at Uttoxeter, co. Stafford. He m. Catherine Aston, dau. of an ancient family of that name in Staffordshire, and had (with other issue) a son, HUMPHREY OLDFIELD, Esq., who m. Miss Lettice Wood, and was father of EDWARD OLDFIELD, whose son, by his wife, Miss Bull, was

HUMPHREY OLDFIELD, Esq., b. in 1722, who served in America during the American war, and there died, having had by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Thomas Nicholls, Esq. of Market Drayton, co. Salop,

1. EDWARD, who d. young and unm.

II. JOHN-NICHOLLS, of whom presently.

III. Thomas, b. in 1756, who, after serving several campaigns in a colonial regiment, and on the staff during the American war, joined the Marines, and in that corps fell, as major on the 7th April, 1799, in the enemy's trenches before St. Jean d'Acre, during the ever-memorable defence of that fortress, where Napoleon received the first, and for a long time the only check to his brilliant career. The French official dispatch thus speaks of Major Oldfield:—"The body of Major Oldfield was carried off by our grenadiers; they brought him to our head-quarters; he was at the point of death: when he arrived, he was no more. His sword, to which he had done so much honour, was also honoured after his death—it remains in the hands of our grenadiers. He was buried amongst us, and carried with him to the grave the esteem of the French army."

I. Jane, who d. young.

The eldest surviving son,

JOHN-NICHOLLS OLDFIELD, Esq., b. in 1751, served several campaigns in America, but subsequently retired from the army, and settled in Sussex. He m. in 1787, Elizabeth, dau. of William Hammond, Esq., lieut. R.N., and dying in 1793, left a son, the present COLONEL JOHN OLDFIELD, lieut.-col. R.E., K.H., &c.

Tincage.

In vol. ii. p. 968, we have given a full history of the ancient and illustrious sept of O'REILLY, whose chiefs were for a considerable period Princes of Brefny.

The O'Reillys of Annagh belong to the Clonmahon branch, and can deduce an unbroken pedigree of nineteen generations. On the walls of Annagh Abbey a stone may still be seen, bearing the inscription—"Johannes O'Reilly, fecit 1590." From this house is visible the hill of Shan Thomond, where the clan used to elect "The O'Reilly," and Tully Mongem, where the chieftain was subsequently inaugurated. The immediate ancestor of the present representative,

OWEN O'REILLY, Esq. of Annagh Abbey, m. Margaret, daughter of O'Reilly of Tullaghmongen, and had issue, WALTER and Owen. The former,

WALTER O'REILLY, Esq., M.D., m. in 1759, Marie, dau. of Valentine O'Reilly, Esq., (a lieutenant-colonel in the French army.) by Margaret, his wife, dau. of De Gernon, of Gernonstown, co. Louth, (now Castle Bellingham,) and had issue, HUGH, of whom presently; Edmond, M.D.; and Margaret, m. to Capt. Thomas Frazer, 67th regt., a descendant of Frazer of Lovat. The eldest son and heir,

HUGH O'REILLY, Esq. of Annagh Abbey, m. in 1787, Margaret, only child of John M'Gran, Esq. of Corcamdos, co. Cavan, and heiress of Patrick M'Gran, Esq. of Llewellyn Hall, North Wales, and by her had issue, WALTER.

JOHN-EDWARD, present representative.
 Elizabeth, m. to Bernard-Constantine Smyth, Esq. of Lavagh.

Mr. O'Reilly was unanimously elected in 1793, and in 1811, a delegate for the Catholics of the co. Cavan to the conventions then held in Duhlin. His elder son and heir, WALTER O'REILLY, Esq. M.A., of Annagh Abbey, har-rister-at-law, d. s. p. in 1839, and was s. by his brother, the present JOHN-EDWARD O'REILLY, Esq. of Annagh Abbey.

Chamberlaine of Dee House.

CHAMBERLAINE, GEORGE-JOHN, Esq. of Dee House, co. Chester, Hope Hall, co. Flint, and Tranmere, co. Chester, b. in 1815, s. his father.

Lineage.

The family of Chamberlaine is one of great antiquity in the palatinate of Chester. So far back as the year 1120, we find Phillipus Camerarius in the suite of Randle, Earl of Chester; and again, in the reign of EDWARD I., Richard Chamberlaine occurs as disposing of the manor of Little Barrow to Hugh le Despencer, 1st Earl of Winchester, who also purchased the interests therein of Robert le Chamberlaine, senior, and Beatrice, his wife, as well as the interest of John, the son of Robert le Chamberlain. The annals of Chester attest that this ancient family has successively given its members to fill many places of honour and confidence in the palatinate,

RICHARD CHAMBERLAINE, Esq. of Great Saughall and Mollington, m. one of the four daus. of Captain Wilson, of Parkgate, and first cousin of Bishop Wilson, of the Isle of Man, and by her was father of

THOMAS CHAMBERLAINE, Esq. of Great Saughall, who m. Martha Heylin, and had issue, ORME OF ABBEYTOWN.

ORME, WILLIAM-HENRY, Esq. of Abbeystown, co. Mayo, B.A. Oxon, an officer in the 3rd Light-dragoons, s. his father, 12 June, 1826, and is representative of this ancient family in Ireland.

Lineage.

It appears from the Domesday Book, and the Testa de Neville, that Orme, called Ormus Magnus, having been ejected at the Conquest from his possessions in Cheshire, established himself at Halton, in Lancashire, and by his marriage with Alice, dau. of Herveus, (a Norman noble, ancestor of Theobald Walter,) obtained large estates in that county, and was founder of the church, and gave his name to the parish of Ormskirk. Of this Orme, the representation in land and blood passed from Orme Fitz Ailward to the Lathoms, by marriage, about the close of the thirteenth century, and thence to the noble house of Stanley, but the junior branches spread through Lancashire, Northamptonshire, and Staffordshire. Of these, the Northamptonshire Ormes bore distinct arms, by grant, which was registered at Vienna in 1555, and borne quarterly by the Staffordshire Ormes for many generations. From this latter branch we find in lineal descent, in the sixteenth century, as appears from the family pedigree, compiled and registered by the Heralds' Office in Ireland,

WILLIAM ORME, Esq. of Hanse Hall, by Longdon Green, in Staffordshire, b. circ. A.D. 1567, m. in 1612, Grace, eldest dau. of Nicholas Hurt, Esq. of Casterne, in Staffordshire, by his wife, Ellen, dau. of John Beresford, Esq. of Newton Grange, in Derbyshire, and dying in 1623, left, with a dau., Dorothea, who d. unm., an only son and successor,

WILLIAM ORME, Esq. of Hanse Hall, a zealous and devoted Royalist, who suffered long imprisonment and such heavy fines from the parliament as greatly impaired his property. His paternal coat-armour was confirmed by Dugdale, Norroy king-at-arms, at his visitation of Staffordshire, in 1663. He m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Brudenell, Esq. of Staunton Wivil, in Leicestershire, d. 14 Aug. 1665, and was buried at Longdon, leaving issue,

i. THOMAS, of Hanse Hall, his heir, M.P. for Lichfield in many parliaments, high-sheriff of co. Stafford, and capt. in the Princess Anne of Denmark's own regiment. He, with his father and maternal grandfather, suffered heavy fines and long imprisonment, for several years, during which time the family estates were sold. He m. Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of William Marshall, Esq. of Pocklington, in Yorkshire, and d. at an advanced age, in 1716, without surviving issue, the senior branch of the Staffordshire family thus becoming extinct.

II. William, a colonel in the French service, d. s. p., at Strasburg, in 1676.

III. JAMES, of whose line we treat.

IV. Robert, d. a minor, s. p.

JAMES ORME, third son of William Orme, of Hanse Hall, by his wife, Anne Brudenell, went to Ireland, and finally settled in the county of Mayo, circ. 1671, where he purchased considerable estates. In the records of the Heralds' Office in Ireland, his signature appears to an address of "The commissioners of array, magistrates, and gentry of the county of Mayo to the King's (CHARLES II.) excellent Majestie," in 1682. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Barrow, Esq. of the co. Cork, and sister to Robert Barrow, of Hampton, Middlesex, colonel in the King's army, and d. in 1707, leaving issue, two sons,

i. ROBERT, of Carne, co. Mayo, his heir.

II. William, of Ballintober, co. Mayo, whose will bears date, 21 Nov. 1627. He m. Dorothea, dau. of Robert Fleming, Esq. of Achonry, co. Sligo, and by her had an only son, William Orme, Esq. of Ballintober, aforesaid, (major in the army, and high-sheriff of co. Mayo in 1775, who d. unm. in 1791,) and one dau., Elizabeth, m. to William Orme, Esq. of Falgariff, co. Mayo, third son of Robert Orme, of Carne.

The elder son and heir,

ROBERT ORME, Esq. of Carne, co. Mayo, m. in 1703, Elizabeth, dau. of James Johnston, Esq., and by her left issue, four sons and two daus.,

i. THOMAS, his heir.

II. James, of Fairfield, co. Mayo, m. Catherine, dau. of Robert Hillas, Esq. of Sea View, co. Sligo, and d. without male issue.

III. William, of Falgariff, co. Mayo, m. in 1759, Elizabeth, dau. of William Orme, Esq. of Ballintober, by his wife, Dorothea, dau. of Robert Fleming, Esq. of Achonry, co. Sligo, and by her (who d. 1 Jan. 1818, aged 87) left issue.

IV. Robert, who settled in America, in Jones's country, and became a member of Congress.

i. Mary, m. to John Leech, Esq. of Frankford, co. Sligo.

II. Margaret, m. to Thomas Paget, Esq. of Knockglass, co. Mayo.

The eldest son and heir,

THOMAS ORME, Esq. of Carne, b. in 1705, m. in 1754, Elizabeth, dau. of William Atkinson, Esq. of Forgney, co. Longford, and sister of Colonel Atkinson. He d. in Jan. 1780, (his will dated 1 Jan. 1767, was proved 5 Feb. 1780,) leaving an only son and successor,

WILLIAM ORME, Esq. of Abbeystown, co. Mayo, b. in 1757, m. 19 June, 1785, Anne, second dau. of George Jackson, Esq. of Enniseoe, co. Mayo, (by Jane, his wife, dau. of James Cuff, Esq. of Ballinrobe and Elm Hall, co. Mayo, M.P. for that county, and father of the Right Hon. James, Baron Tyrrawley,) and had issue,

I. THOMAS, of Abbeystown, co. Mayo, his heir.

II. WILLIAM, of Glenmore, co. Mayo, (see ORME OF GLENMORE.)

I. Jane, m. 5 Dec. 1803, Samuel, eldest son and heir of Samuel Westby Handy, Esq. of Bracca Castle, co. Westmeath, by Catherine, his wife, dau. of Mathew Fleming, Esq. of Old Rock, co. Sligo, and has issue.

II. Elizabeth, m. in 1804, William, eldest son and heir of William Fetherston, Esq. of Carrick, co. Westmeath, by Susanna, his wife, dau. of Godfrey Wills, Esq. of Wills Grove, co. Roscommon, and has issue.

POWELL OF CLONSHAVOY.

POWELL, CALEB, Esq. of Clonshavoy, co. Limerick, b. in 1793; m. in 1838, Georgina-Frances, third dau. of the late George Waller, Esq. of Prior Park, co. Tipperary, great-nephew of Robert Jocelyn, 1st Viscount Jocelyn, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and has issue,

- i. EYRE-BURTON, b. 16 July, 1839.

- i. Seliua-Henrietta.

- ii. Eliza-Augusta.

Mr. Powell, who s. his father in 1800, represents the county of Limerick in parliament, and was, until 1843, in the commission of the peace for that county.

Lineage.

The Powells of Limerick traditionally derive from the Powells of Park, near Oswestry, co. Salop, who descended from a common ancestor with the Edwards's of Ness Strange, (see that family.) viz., IYAN VYCHAN, of Abernatan, who, beside his son Howel, ancestor of the Edwards's of Ness Strange, had also a son, GRIFFITH, father of HOWEL AP GRIFFITH, of Oswestry. The son of this Howel was called ROBERT AP HOWEL, otherwise ROBERT POWELL, and became seated at Park. He m. Katherine, dau. of John Edwards, Esq. of Chirk, and relict of Tudor Lloyd, Esq. of Yale, and was by her father of THOMAS POWELL, Esq. of Park, who d. in 1588, leaving, by Mary, his wife, dau. of Sir Robert Corbet, Knt. of Moreton Corbet, a son and heir, ROBERT POWELL, Esq. of Park, who m. Anne, dau. of Robert Needham, Esq. of Shavington, and was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS POWELL, Esq. of Park, who d. in 1618, leaving, by Mary, his wife, dau. of Thomas Atkins, Esq., an only son and heir, ROBERT POWELL, Esq. of Park, who d. s. p. in 1653, and was s. by his uncle, EDWARD POWELL, Esq., who m. Mary, dau. of William Barnham, Esq. of London, and by her (who d. in 1674) left a son and heir, the REV. ROBERT POWELL, D.D., of Park, who d. in 1680. His line terminated in an heiress, JANE POWELL, who sold the Park estate to Sir Francis Charlton, Bart., and hence it passed to the Kinchant family, now of Park, (which see.)

The immediate ancestor of the Limerick family of POWELL was one of two brothers, GILES and ROBERT POWELL, officers in the English army previous to 1649, and settled subsequently in co. Limerick. The former, GILES, (Cornet,) who was one of the trustees for the 49 officers, received a grant of ten thousand acres of rich land in the barony of Castles, co. Limerick, and served as high-sheriff in 1676. He m. a dau. of Sir George Herbert, of Durrow, King's County, and left posterity. The other brother,

ROBERT POWELL, a lieutenant in the Republican forces, was ancestor of the family of which we are treating. He resided at Moneymore, co. Tipperary, of which county he was a commissioner for assessing the poll-tax in 1665, and d. in 1674, leaving, by Barbara, his wife, a son and heir,

ROBERT POWELL, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Capt. Hugh Massy, of Duntrileague, (the first of the family who settled in co. Limerick,) and had issue, two sons and three daus., viz., RICHARD, of whom presently; Robert, who m., and was father of Thomas, coroner for co. Limerick; Barbara, m. to Rowls, and left issue; Elizabeth, m. to George Black, Esq.; and Mary, m. to Godfrey Green, Esq. of Scartara. The elder son,

RICHARD POWELL, Esq., b. in 1668, Capt. in the County Limerick militia, m. in 1694, Martha, dau. of Robert Minnitt, of Knygh Castle, and Annabeg, co. Tipperary, and by her (who d. in 1740) had an only son, ROBERT, of whom hereafter. Capt. Powell first resided at Clogherviller Castle, co. Limerick, but subsequently acquiring the lands of Garrynoe, in the liberties of Limerick, he built thereon the house of "Newgarden" in 1706, and continued to reside there till his death in 1747. His only child,

ROBERT POWELL, Esq. of Newgarden, b. in 1694, d. v. p. : his will, dated 3 Dec. 1738, was proved at Dublin, 12 Feb. 1742. He m. in 1717, Anne, dau. of Col. Samuel Eyre, M.P. for the co. of Galway, by Anne, his wife, sixth dau. of Robert Stratford, M.P. for Baltinglass, ancestor of the Earls of Aldborough, and had issue,

1. Richard, b. in 1718, high-sheriff of the co. of Limerick in 1753, and lieutenant-colonel of militia cavalry, raised in the liberties of Limerick, and commanded by Col. Stepney, in 1765, m. in 1748, Ellen, dau. of the Rev. George Roberts, and had, besides three daus. (Mary, m. to Thomas Houghton, Esq. of Kilmannock, co. Wexford; Eleanor, m. to the Rev. PRINGLE OF WHYT BANK.

(Representing PRINGLE OF SMALHOLM AND GALASHIELS.)

PRINGLE, ALEXANDER, Esq. of Whytbank, co. Selkirk, m. in 1830, Agnes-Joanna, dau. of Sir William Dick, Bart. of Prestonfield, by Joanna, his wife, dau. of William Douglas, of Garvald-foot, and has an only son, ALEXANDER, younger, of Whytbank.

This gentleman was educated for the law, and was admitted an advocate at the Scotch bar in 1814, where he continued to practise till 1830. In that year he was chosen member of parliament for the county of Selkirk, at the general election which followed the death of GEORGE IV., and after the dissolution in 1831 he was re-elected. At the general election after the Reform Act, in 1833, he was opposed by Robert Pringle, of Clifton, and defeated by a majority of nine; but recovered his seat against the same opponent by a large majority at the general election in 1835. He was again elected by a still larger majority in 1837; and again in 1841, without a contest. In that year he was appointed one of the Lords of the Treasury, in the ministry of Sir Robert Peel, and also a Commissioner of Revenue Inquiry, when he was again unanimously returned to parliament for the county of Selkirk. He continued to hold office till July, 1845, when he resigned, on account of his inability to support the ministerial measure for increasing the endowment of the Roman-catholic College of Maynooth. In Jan. 1846, he was appointed Keeper of the General Register of Seisins in Scotland, on the vacancy occasioned by the death of the Right Honourable William Dundas, when he retired from parliament. In 1812, he was appointed a captain in the 2nd regt. of Roxburghshire local militia, commanded by Sir John-Buchanan Riddell; and in the following year, when the Selkirkshire contingent was severed from that of Roxburghshire, and united to that of Peeblesshire, he was appointed major of the regiment under the command of Lord Elibank. He afterwards for several years commanded the Selkirkshire yeomary cavalry, till the corps was disbanded in 1828. He was appointed vice-lieutenant of the county of Selkirk in 1830.

Lineage.

The name of Pringle, (or Hop-Pringle, as in ancient times it was more frequently, though not uniformly, written,) is peculiar to the southern counties of Scotland, where it is met with amongst the landed proprietors from an early period. As to its etymology, there is a general agreement amongst antiquaries that it is a corruption of Pelerin, or Pilgrim, the prefix Hop being synonymous with the British Ap, or Irish O, signifying son or descendant. Thus in Wales we have the common names of Pryse, Pugh, Powell, which are evidently contracted forms of Ap-Rhys, Ap-Hugh, Ap-Howell. Hop-Pringle may, therefore, have meant the son of the Pilgrim, and was probably assumed at the time when pilgrimages to the Holy Land conferred renown on those who successfully accomplished them. It may be added, in further confirmation of this, that the pilgrim badge, the scallop-shell, forms a part of the armorial bearings of all the families of the name.

Of these families there were two races in the south of Scotland, probably sprung from a common ancestor, but as their connexion could not be traced, each was accustomed to claim precedence, though they appear to have been at all times in friendly alliance with each other. The Pringles of Torsonce, on Gala Water, were the head of one race, settled in Mid-Lothian, and the adjoining portions of East-Lothian and Berwickshire. To them belonged the families of Burnhouse, Lawtree, and Glengett, and those of Rowchester, and Lees, down in the Merse. Their main line failed on the death of John Pringle, of Torsonce, in 1738, when his estates went into the Stichill family, through his only daughter, Margaret, who married Gilbert Pringle, one of that family, but had no children. John Pringle, of Lees, then became heir-male, but that race have also failed, and it is not known by whom they are now represented.

The other race were the descendants of the Pringles of Whitsun, in Berwickshire, afterwards designed, sometimes of Smailholm, and sometimes of Galashiels. Their lands lay chiefly in the lower parts of Gala Water, and on Cadon Water, in Selkirkshire, and in various parts of Roxburghshire, especially near the Cheviot Border.

The earliest notice that has been traced of this family is in the chartulary of the Abbey of Soltray, where

ROBERT HOP-PRINGLE, of Whitsun, is mentioned in a donation to the monastery, confirmed by King ALEXANDER III. In the civil wars occasioned by the disputed succession to the crown of Scotland, which followed the death of that monarch, the Pringles of Whitsun appear to have attached themselves to the interests of the Bruce family, against those of the Baliols, and on that account to have incurred a forfeiture of their lands of Whitsun, which were bestowed by King JOHN (Baliol) upon John De L'yle, and confirmed to him by a charter from King EDWARD I. of England, 13 October, 1295. When the fortunes of the Bruce prevailed, they were restored to the Pringles, in the person of

ROGER HOP-PRINGLE, of Whitsun, by a charter from King ROBERT I., in 1315. Again, we find a mandate of King EDWARD III. of England, to restore them in 1333, to Walter de L'yle, "Walter de Insula," son of John De L'yle; but when the Bruce power was finally established, the right of the Pringles must have revived, for we find them in possession of

THOMAS HOP-PRINGLE, of Whitsun, so designed in a charter from King DAVID BRUCE, in 1336. In 1362, this Thomas had safe-conduct to go into England, with his son, and twelve persons in their retinue; and in 1368, his name occurs as one of the witnesses in the marriage contract of Alexander Cockburn with the heiress of Lindsay of Ormiston.

ROBERT HOP-PRINGLE, of Whitsun, was the next representative of the family. His name occurs in various charters and public documents, especially in connexion with the House of Douglas, of whom he was a constant adherent. He was present as Squire (Scutifer) to James, Earl of Douglas, at the battle of Otterburne, in 1388, where that hero lost his life; and he appears afterwards to have held the same office under Archibald, Earl of Douglas, Lord of Galloway, from whom he got a charter of the lands of Smailholm, in Roxburghshire, in 1408. The grant is, "Roberto Pringle dilecto suo scutifero et Isabellæ ejus uxori." From the same earl he had, also, in the same year, a grant on similar terms, of the lands of Pilmuir and Blackchester, in Lauderdale, which remained for nearly three centuries in possession of the family; and, as the Douglasses were then Lords of Ettrick Forest, he got from them the forest steids of Galashiels and Mosalee, which he and his descendants held as their kindly tenants till their great forfeiture in 1455, after which they held them as kindly tenants of the crown till the year 1587, when, with many others in Selkirkshire, on the occasion of JAMES VI. coming of age, they were feudalized by charter and seisin. This Robert Pringle built the Tower of Smailholm; and having dropped the designation of Whitsun, he assumed that of Smailholm, by which his descendants were afterwards generally distinguished, and occasionally by that of Galashiels, from their Ettrick Forest lands. In 1406, he had a safe-conduct from HENRY IV., to go into England, along with Sir Thomas Murray and others; and in 1419, he and John Wallace had a similar safe-conduct from HENRY V., in order to pay to the Duke of Bedford, custos of the kingdom of England, the ransom of James de Douglas, afterwards seventh Earl of Douglas, best known as James the Fat. He afterwards accompanied his patron, Archibald, the fourth Earl and Duke of Turenne, on his famous expedition into France, where they both lost their lives at the battle of Verneuil, in 1424. By his wife Isabella he left a son and successor,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Smailholm, who, like his father, was a follower of the Douglas chiefs in their wars; and in the charter from Archibald, Earl of Douglas, to David Hume, the first of the house of Wedderburn, he, as a witness, is designed scutifer to the said earl. He had various charters of the family estates, and amongst them one of Smailholm, in 1451. He is said to have been the baron who erected the singular bridge over the Tweed, near Melrose, described in Gordon's Itinerarium Septentrionale, from which Sir Walter Scott took his description in the Monastery. On the tower, in the middle of the river, there was a stone containing his coat of arms, with this inscription:

"I, Robert Pringle, of Pilmore steid,
Gave a hundred nobles of the gowd sae reid,
To bygge my Brygge upon the Tweed."

He m. Elizabeth Dishington, dau. of Sir James Dishington, of Ardross, in Fife, whose progenitor, Sir William Dishington, had married one of the sisters of King ROBERT BRUCE. This lady appears to have built the old house of Galashiels, from an inscription over the ancient doorway:

"Elspeth Dishington builit me,
In syn lye not,
The thyng thou canst not gette
Desyr not.
1457."

They had four sons and three daus.,

Robert Pringle was s. by his eldest son,

DAVID PRINGLE, of Smailholm, who had various charters of the family estates. After the rebellion of the Douglas family, and their great forfeiture in 1455, all their rights in Ettrick Forest were annexed permanently to the crown, and their rentallers, or kindly tenants, became rentallers of the king. The county was then divided into three wards, corresponding to the dales of the three great rivers, Tweed, Ettrick, and Yarrow, to each of which a ranger (cursor) was appointed, for the purpose of collecting the rents and attending to the interests of the crown. For the ward of Yarrow, the first ranger was Robert Liddell, of Halkerton, in whose family the office continued for two generations. They were succeeded by John Murray, of Touchadam, and he by Sir Alexander Hume, of that ilk, afterwards the 1st Lord Hume. The first ranger of Ettrick ward was David Scott, of Buccleuch, who was succeeded by his son, William; but the next having succeeded in minority, the office was transferred to the Scotts of Tushilaw. The first ranger of the ward of Tweed, as we learn from the Exchequer Rolls of 1456, was David Pringle, of Smailholm, who appears to have held it till 1467, when he was succeeded by his son James. Each of the rangers appears to have enjoyed possession of a forest steiding, in virtue of his office, which was probably his remuneration for discharging the duties. In the Exchequer Rolls, the lands of Redhead and Whytbank are generally set down as occupied by the ranger of the ward of Tweed, pro officio cursoris, and they are still in possession of the family. David was s. by his son,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Smailholm and Galashiels, who appears to have held the office of ranger of the ward of Tweed from 1457 till 1495. His name occurs in various charters and crown tacks, down to the year 1495. His wife was Isabella Murray, of the family of Falahill, now Philiphaugh, and by her he had several children. Amongst the sons were,

DAVID, his heir.

WILLIAM, progenitor of the Torwoodlee family.

John, progenitor of the Pringles of Blyndlee, who were well connected, and held considerable property in the eos. of Selkirk and Roxburgh for about two centuries.

James Pringle must have d. about the year 1495, when he was s. by his son,

DAVID PRINGLE, of Smailholm and Galashiels. He continued to hold the office of ranger of the ward of Tweed, in succession to his father, from 1495 to 1505, when we find Alexander, Lord Hume, great chamberlain of Scotland, ranger or chamberlain of the whole forest. David Pringle, however, seems to have retained the lands of Redhead and Whytbank, not under tack, like the other forest tenures, for he obtained a charter of them, in 1510, to himself and to Margaret Lundie, his second wife, and their heirs. In the seisin of Margaret, queen of JAMES IV., in her jointure lands in Ettrick Forest, taken at Galashiels, as the principal message, 1 June, 1505, David Pringle, of Smailholm, and his brother, William, are subscribing witnesses. He had various charters of the family estates, and amongst them one of the lands of Dawick and Woodhouse, in Peeblesshire, on the resignation of James Veitch, 27 Aug. 1534, to himself and his wife, Margaret Lundie, and the heirs of their marriage. He appears to have been twice married; by his first wife, Marian, he had a son and a dau.,

DAVID, younger, of Galashiels and Smailholm.

Isabella, m. to Sir David Home, of Wedderburn, and mother of the Seven Spears of Wedderburn; her husband and their eldest son, George, were killed at Flodden, in 1513.

David Pringle m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Thomas Lundie, of that ilk, an ancient family in the county of Fife, by whom he had a son and two daus.,

JAMES, of Woodhouse and Whytbank, from whom the Whytbank family are descended.

Janet, m. in 1536, to George Brown, of Coalston, in East-Lothian.

Margaret, m. to Gordon of Craighlaw.

David Pringle d. about the year 1535, and was s. by his grandson, JOHN, son of DAVID PRINGLE, younger, of Smailholm, who went, with four of his sons, to the fatal battle of Flodden, in 1513, where they were all slain. He was survived by his youngest son,

JOHN PRINGLE, of Smailholm and Galashiels, who was served heir to his father, David, in 1557, and succeeded his grandfather in his lands of Smailholm, Galashiels, Pilmuir, and others. He was at the battle of Pinkie, in 1547, and was afterwards surety to the English for 100 gold nobles, the ransom of Hugh Rose, of Kilravock, along with George Pringle, of Torwoodlee, and William Pringle, of Wolfhousebyre. His name occurs in a variety of deeds, public and private. He m. Margaret Gordon, dau. of Sir James Gordon, of Stichill and Lochinvar, by whom he had three sons and a dau., i. ANDREW. ii. James. iii. David.

1. Margaret, m. in 1561, to Andrew Rutherford, of Hundedale.

John Pringle d. about 1566, and was s. by his eldest son,

ANDREW PRINGLE, of Galashiels and Smailholm. He was served heir to his father, John, in his Berwickshire lands, in 1577. In 1585, he made an entail of his estate in favour of the heirs of his own body, failing whom, on James Pringle, his natural son, failing whom, on his cousin, James Pringle, of Whytbank, as his next heir-male, his brothers having predeceased him without male descendants. He m. Marian Borthwick, dau. of John, 5th Lord Borthwick, by whom he had two sons and one only dau.,

JAMES, his heir.

ROBERT, of Howlatstown.

Isabella, m. in 1591, to George Pringle, of Blyndlee.

Andrew Pringle d. in 1585, as appears from his tomb in Melrose Abbey, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES PRINGLE, of Smailholm and Galashiels, who had at one time a very extensive property in different parts of the country. He took an active part in public affairs, and held various offices of trust. In 1610, we find him baillie of the regality of Stow; in 1622, he had a commission under the great seal, as sheriff-principal of Ettrick Forest; and in the parliament of 1633, he was chosen representative for the county of Selkirk, along with George Pringle, of Torwoodlee. He was much in favour with King JAMES VI., who conferred the honour of knighthood upon him, but being much about court, he lived in an expensive manner, which compelled him to alienate a considerable portion of his estate, and to leave the remainder encumbered with a heavy debt. He m. Jean Kerr, a dau. of Kerr, of Linton, in Roxburghshire, by whom he had four sons and four daus., i. David. ii. James.

iii. JOHN. iv. George.

1. Jean, m. Hugh Scott, of Deuchar, third son of Walter Scott, of Harden, by Mary Scott, of Dryhope, the Flower of Yarrow. From them the Scotts of Gala are sprung.

ii. Isabella, m. to Sir John Murray, of Philiphaugh.

iii. Margaret, m. to the Rev. Mr. Thomas Campbell, a clergyman in England.

iv. Ann, m. to the Rev. Mr. James Hamilton, one of the ministers of Edinburgh.

David, the eldest son, m. in 1621, Margaret, dau. of Walter Scott, of Harden, by his second wife, Margaret Edgar, of Wedderlee, but he must have d. shortly afterwards, s. p., for she remarried, in 1625, Sir William Macdougall, of Makerston. After his death, his next brother, James, becoming heir-apparent of Smailholm, m. in 1629, Jean, dau. of Sir John Scott, of Scottstarvet, but he also predeceased his father, in 1631, s. p., for his father was served heir to him in that year. Sir James Pringle d. in 1635, at the age of 60, as we learn from his tomb in Melrose Abbey, and was s. by his third son,

JOHN PRINGLE, of Smailholm, who succeeded to only a small portion of his father's large estate. The lands in Lauderdale had been previously alienated to the Duke of Lauderdale. Galashiels passed, on Sir James's death, into the hands of Hugh Scott, of Deuchar, who had married his eldest daughter, and had claims upon it; and, Smailholm alone remaining to him, heavily burdened by his father's debts and his own, was ultimately carried off, through legal diligence, by Sir William Scott, of Harden. John Pringle having d. in 1650, s. p., and his youngest brother, George, having predeceased him, s. p., his nephew, James Scott, son of his eldest sister, Jean, from whom the present Mr. Scott, of Gala, is descended, became heir of line of the family. The male representation then devolved upon his uncle,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Howlatstown, in Gala Water, youngest son of Andrew, and brother to Sir James, but he also d. s. p., when the four daus. of his brother were re-toured, in 1653, as heirs-portioners to him, and Whytbank then becoming the male representative of this ancient house, matriculated his arms in the Lyon Office accordingly. We now, therefore, return to this branch of the family.

JAMES PRINGLE, of Woodhouse and Whytbank, son of David Pringle, of Smailholm, by his marriage with Margaret Lundie, succeeded to these estates in terms of the destination contained in the charter of Whytbank, in 1510, and of that of Woodhouse, part of the barony of Manour, in Peeblesshire, in 1534, on the death of his father, David, in 1539. He accompanied his sovereign, JAMES V., to the battle of Solway Moss, in 1542, where he was taken prisoner, but afterwards liberated, on paying a ransom of 400 merks sterling. He m. Margaret Kerr, of Linton, who, after his death, had for her second husband, Sir David Home, of Wedderburn, but had no family by him. She d. in 1580, as appears from her tomb in the family burial-place, a ruined chapel, adjoining the nave of the Abbey Church of Melrose. By her James Pringle had four sons and a dau.,

- i. JAMES, his heir.
- ii. George.
- iii. Robert
- iv. William.
- i. Marian, m. 1st, in 1561, George Pringle, of Blyndlee, and 2ndly, in 1568, William Home, of Bassendean, brother of Sir James Home, of Cowdenknowes, and had issue to both.

James Pringle d. before 1567, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Woodhouse and Whytbank, a great loyalist, who attached himself to the cause of Queen MARY, for which he suffered many hardships and losses, including his Peeblesshire estate. In the act of parliament in 1574, "anent the making of wapingshawinges," he is named commissioner for holding wapenshawes in the county of Selkirk. He was twice married: 1st, in 1566, to Marion Murray, only dau. of Andrew Murray, of Blackbarony, by his first marriage with Elizabeth Lockhart, of Lee, who d. in 1592; and 2ndly, in 1605, to Juliane Home, dau. of Sir David Home, of Wedderburn, who had been previously m. to Sir John Kerr, of Hirsell and Littledean. By the second marriage he had no issue, but by the first he had two sons,

- i. JAMES, apparent of Whytbank.
- ii. Robert.

James Pringle survived his eldest son, but had d. some time before 1622.

JAMES PRINGLE, younger, of Whytbank, in 1600 was served heir to his mother, Marion Murray, in some property in Edinburgh, which she had inherited through her mother, Elizabeth Lockhart. In 1592, he m. Christian Lundie, dau. of William Lundie, of that ilk, by whom he had several children,

- i. JAMES, afterwards of Whytbank.
- ii. GEORGE, of Balmungo, from whom the present Whytbank is descended.
- iii. Thomas.
- i. Catherine, m. to the Rev. Mr. William Penman, of Hagbrae, minister of Crichton.

Christian Lundie d. in 1602, as appears from her tomb in Melrose Abbey, and her husband in 1616.

JAMES PRINGLE, of Whytbank, was served heir to his father in the lands of Langshawe, in 1616, and afterwards succeeded his grandfather in those of Whytbank. In early life he served for some years in France, as an officer in the Scotch guards; but most of his life was spent in his own country, where he appears to have taken an active part in public affairs. He represented the county of Selkirk in the Scottish parliament of 1633, along with James Murray, of Philiphaugh; and in the national distractions which followed, he was a great loyalist, adhering firmly to the interests of King CHARLES I., for which he was heavily fined by the parliament, in 1646. He was a skilful manager of his own estate, to which he added the lands of Yair, Blackhaugh, &c., in Selkirkshire, and Brockhouse, in Mid-Lothian. On the extinction of the direct line of the Pringles of Galashiels and Smailholm, at the death of Robert Pringle, of Howlatstown, in 1653, he became their male representative, and assumed their arms without a difference, by authority of the Lord Lyon. He m. in 1622, Sophia Schöner, a Danish lady, maid of honour to Queen ANN of Denmark, on which occasion the queen presented her with her portrait, enamelled on mother-of-pearl, and set with small rubies and emeralds, suspended by a massy gold chain, a relic still preserved by the family. This lady d. in 1626, at the early age of 22, leaving an only son. Her husband survived till 1667, as their tombs at Melrose show, but he never married again. He was s. by his son, ALEXANDER PRINGLE, of Whytbank, who was served heir to his father, 11 July, 1667, and, like him, took an active part in public affairs, during the chief portion of a long life. We find him as sheriff-principal of Selkirkshire in 1652, facilitating the progress of General Monk, when he effected the Restoration. He was warmly attached to the Presbyterian form of church government, and a frequent member of the ecclesiastical courts. He was twice married: 1st, in 1648, to Ann, dau. of James Pringle, of Torwoodlee, by his second wife, Janet Craig, of Riccarton, who d. in 1680; and 2ndly, to Ann, dau. of John Murray, of Philiphaugh, who survived him, and had for her second husband, Robert Rutherford, of Bowland. He had no issue by either marriage, and, therefore, at his death in 1695, he was s. by JOHN, the grandson of his father's next brother, George, then in minority. To this branch, therefore, we now return.

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Balmungo, second son of James Pringle, apparent of Whytbank, by Christian Lundie, entered the Swedish army under GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, in which he rose to the rank of major, and served with considerable reputation during the Thirty years' War. On his retirement, he settled on his little estate of Balmungo, near St. Andrews, having m. Elizabeth Ruthven, one of the four daus. of Sir Patrick Ruthven, an eminent general of GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, and afterwards created by King CHARLES I., for his services in the civil wars, Earl of Forth in Scotland, and Brentford in England. This lady, with her three sisters, the wives of Sir Thomas Ogilvie, of Inchmartin, Lord Forester, and Sir Thomas Kerr, of Fairnilee, (their brother, Alexander, Lord Ettrick, having predeceased his father,) would have been considerable co-heiresses, but his affairs were much embarrassed by his attachment to the royal cause, and he himself driven into exile, in Sweden, till the termination of the Commonwealth. His lands were, therefore, attached by creditors, and those of Yair, in Selkirkshire, where he had his residence, passed to James Pringle, of Whytbank, who had advanced considerable sums to the family in their difficulties. George Pringle had an only son,

THE REV. JOHN PRINGLE, minister of Fogo, an elegant scholar and assiduous pastor, who m. Jean Shaw, dau. of the Rev. Patrick Shaw, minister of Selkirk, whose father, John Shaw, was a brother of Shaw of Sanchie. They had two sons and three daus., none of whom were married.

- i. JOHN.
- ii. George, who d. while a student at Leyden.
- i. Ann.
- ii. Jean.
- iii. Janet.

JOHN PRINGLE, of Whytbank, s. his father's cousin, Alexander, and was served heir to him in 1695, and shortly after he came of age, in 1699, m. Christian, eldest dau. of Sir Patrick Scott, of Ancrum, by Margaret Scott, of Harden, by whom he had one son and two daus.,

- i. ALEXANDER.
- i. Margaret, d. young.
- ii. Joanna, d. unm.

He was a young man of great promise, but was cut off by a fever, in 1703, at the early age of 25, survived by his widow, who lived to a great age. He was s. by his only son, ALEXANDER PRINGLE, of Whytbank, who m. in 1740, Susanna, eldest dau. of Sir John Rutherford, of Edgerston, by his first marriage with Elizabeth Cairncross, heiress of Langlee. They had a numerous family of four sons and eight daus.,

- I. JOHN, his heir.
- II. ALEXANDER, afterwards of Whythank.
- III. Patrick, in the medical service of the E. I. Co., who d. in India, s. p.
- IV. William, in the navy, s. p.
- I. Elizabeth, d. young.
- II. Christian, m. Robert Pasley, of Craig and Mountannan, and had issue.
- III. Eleanor, s. p.
- IV. Joanna, m. Alexander Hay, of Mordington, and had issue.
- V. Susanna, s. p.
- VI. Charlotte, m. Thomas Mayne, of the family of Powis, in Clackmannanshire, an eminent merchant in Lishon, and had issue.
- VII. Cairncross-Mary, s. p. VIII. Elizabeth, d. young.

The pressure of so large a family, and other burdens, compelled him to alienate the chief part of his estates, but at his death, in 1772, he was s. in his lands of Whytbank by his eldest son,

JOHN PRINGLE, of Whytbank, a lieutenant in the army, then serving on the staff of his relative, the Hon. General James Murray, who, after the death of General Wolfe, commanded the forces in Canada; but his health having given way under the fatigues of severe military service, he d. in that country in 1774, and was s. by his next brother,

ALEXANDER PRINGLE, of Whytbank, then in the civil service of the E. I. Co., on the Madras establishment, from which he retired in 1783; and, some years afterwards, re-purchased from the Duke of Buccleuch the family estate and residence of Yair, where he built a new mansion-house, and devoted himself to the improvement of his property, and the public duties of the district. During the war he commanded the Selkirkshire volunteers, until they were disbanded at the peace of Amiens, and he held the appointment of vice-lieutenant of Selkirkshire, from the time that it was established, by act of parliament, in 1802, till his death, in 1827. In 1812, he obtained the patent office of chamberlain of Ettrick Forest. He m. in 1789, Mary, dau. of Sir Alexander Dick, of Prestonfield, by whom he had five sons and six daus.,

- I. ALEXANDER, his heir.
- II. John-Alexander, of Castledykes, who purchased that property after his return from the Bengal civil service, having m. in 1828, his cousin, Christina-Ann, dau. of Lieut.-General Alexander Dirom, by his wife, Magdalen Pasley, eldest dau. and heiress of Robert Pasley, of Mountannan, (who d. in 1830.) He d. at his residence of Castledykes, near Dumfries, in 1839, s. p.
- III. William-Alexander, late of the Bengal civil service, who m. Ann-Elizabeth, dau. of John Dawnay, of Aylesbury, co. Buckingham, by whom he has had a numerous family of six sons and six daus., viz.,
 1. Alexander, d. young.
 2. Alexander, now a cadet at Addiscombe.
 3. William-John. 4. Robert.
 5. George. 6. David.
 1. Mary-Ann, m. Archibald Speirs, of the Bengal civil service, third son of the late Peter Speirs, of Culcreuch, and has issue.
 2. Frances, d. young.
 3. Anna-Charlotte, m. Edward-Alexander Samuells, of the Bengal civil service, and has issue.
 4. Susanna. 5. Elizabeth. 6. Jane-Esther.
- IV. Robert-Keith, in the Bombay civil service, and now chief secretary to the government of that Presidency.
- V. David, in the Bengal civil service, m. Frances, dau. of Alexander Tod, of Alderston, by whom he has had one son and four daus., viz.,
 1. Alexander-David.
 1. Mary-Charlotte, d. young. 2. Christina, d. young.
 3. Amy-Elizabeth. 4. Frances.
- I. Mary-Agnes.
- II. Susanna, m. Robert Scott-Moncrieff, of Fossaway, d. in 1841, leaving a numerous family.
- III. Jane, d. in 1844.
- IV. Elizabeth, m. Charles-M. Christie, of Duric, and d. in 1837, leaving a numerous family.
- V. Charlotte.
- VI. Margaret-Janet, m. to William Elmsley, a Chancery barrister.

Alexander Pringle d. in 1827, and was s. by his eldest son, the present ALEXANDER PRINGLE, Esq. of Whytbank.

Lineage.

This family are a branch of the ancient stock of the Pringles of Galashiels and Smailholm. The first was

WILLIAM PRINGLE, a younger son of James Pringle, of Smailholm, by his wife, Isabella Murray, of Falabill. He had a tack of the forest steid of Caddonlee, in 1488; also one of Torwoodlee, in 1509, to him and his son, George; and, in the same year, a charter of one fourth part of the Barony of Cliftoun, in Roxburghshire. In the two last, he is designed as son of James Hop-Pringle, of Smailholm. His name occurs, along with that of his eldest brother, as one of the witnesses to the seisin of Queen MARGARET of England, in her jointure lands of Ettrick Forest. He was slain at the battle of Flodden, in 1512, and left two sons,

- I. GEORGE, his heir.
- II. David, whose son, George, was tutor of Torwoodlee during the minority of his cousin, George, the son of William Pringle, in 1581.

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who was b. in 1505, being a minor at the death of his father in 1518, Adam Nisbet, of that ilk, had a gift of the ward of his lands. He was at the battle of Pinkie in 1547, after which, along with John Pringle, of Smailholm, and William Pringle, of Wolfhousebyre, he became surety for the ransom of Hugh Rose, of Kilravock, who was taken prisoner in that battle. The name of this George Pringle occurs in various deeds and public documents. In 1568, his house of Torwoodlee was attacked by John Elliot, of Copshaw, with a party of rieurs from Liddesdale, consisting of Elliots, Armstrongs, and other lawless clans on the West Border, to the number of three hundred, who plundered and burned it, and put him to death. In the then distracted state of the kingdom, and weakness of the government, there does not appear to have been any attempt made to punish them at the time; but in 1607, the survivors were called upon to answer for the crime, on the prosecution of Torwoodlee's grandsons, and, having failed to appear, were outlawed. From the inventory of the plundered goods, recorded in PITCAIRN'S Criminal Trials, this Torwoodlee seems to have been a wealthy man, and to have lived in greater splendour than might have been expected, when security was so precarious. By his wife, Margaret Creighton, he had five sons, and two daus., Agnes, who d. unm.; and Margaret, m. in 1564, to Oliver Edgar, of Monkkrig. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who had a seisin of Clifton in 1569. He m. in 1571, Alison Heriot, dau. of James Heriot, of Trabroun, by whom he had three sons, I. GEORGE, his heir; II. James; and, III. David. William Pringle d. in 1581, and his wife, Alison Heriot, who survived him, had for her second husband David Renton, of Billie, whose dau., Agnes Renton, m. James Pringle, of Buckholm. William Pringle was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who succeeded in his minority, and had for his tutor and guardian, George Pringle, son of David, the brother of George, who was murdered. For his lands of Torwoodlee, Caddonlee, Tofts, and Gengaber, which "he and his forefathers had held as kindly tenants or rentallers beyond the memory of man," he obtained a feudal title, by charter and seisin, in 1587. He purchased the lands of Cooslee adjoining to Torwoodlee, in 1624, and about the same time parted with his property of Cliftoun, in Roxburghshire. In 1607, we find him, along with his brothers, James and David, endeavouring to bring the murderers of his grandfather to justice. In the parliaments of 1617 and 1621, he was one of the representatives for the county of Selkirk. He m. Ist, Margaret Stewart, by whom he had six sons, I. JAMES, his heir; II. Alexander; III. Thomas; IV. David; V. William, who went to Ireland, and had a son, Henry;

and, vi. John, surgeon in Edinburgh, to whose son and dau., George and Margaret, their uncle, James of Torwoodlee, was served tutor-at-law in 1641. George Pringle had for his second wife, Elizabeth, dau. of James Pringle, of Torsonce, and widow of William Borthwick, of Crookston, by whom there was no issue. He was s. about 1637, by his eldest son,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who m. 1st, in 1610, Jean, dau. of Sir Richard Cockburn, of Clerkington, lord privy seal, by whom he had one dau., Margaret, m. in 1649, to George Pringle, of Buckholm. He m. 2ndly, in 1628, Janet, dau. of Sir Lewis Craig, of Riccarton, by whom he had three sons and three daus., i. GEORGE, his heir; ii. James, of Craigend; iii. Alexander; i. Ann, m. in 1648, to Alexander Pringle, of Whytbank; ii. Janet, m. in 1649, to Walter Pringle, of Greenknowe; and, iii. Sophia, m. to John Riddell, of Haining. He was s. about 1657, by his eldest son,

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who was a man of great integrity and force of character. During the civil wars he adhered steadily to the Royal cause, and was in most of the engagements fought at that time in Scotland. He was strongly attached to Protestant principles, and to the presbyterian form of worship and church government, on account of which he was a great sufferer both in person and property. Though warmly attached to the cause of the Covenanters, he took no part in their struggles at Pentland and Bothwell Bridge, but from 1662 till 1681, lived in retirement in his house at Torwoodlee, which was an asylum to many of the sufferers from the distresses and persecutions of these unhappy times. In 1681, when the Earl of Argyle, after sentence of death, escaped from his prison in Edinburgh, he took refuge in the house of Torwoodlee, who supplied him with horses and a guide, to escape into England. When this transpired, he was obliged to quit his own house, and for a long time to lurk in concealment, until the pursuit for him ceased; but he continued an object of suspicion, and was more than once heavily fined for what were called church irregularities, at the instance of Urquhart of Meldrum, and others. At length, on a charge of being concerned in the Rye-house plot, warrants were again issued against him, along with his neighbours, the Earl of Tarras, Murray of Philiphaugh, and Scott of Galashiels. His friend, Robert Baillie, of Jerviswoode, was taken up, tried, and executed; and, with much difficulty, he and Sir Patrick Hume, of Polwarth, escaped and took refuge in Holland. In the first parliament of King JAMES VII., his estates were confiscated, and a grant of the forfeiture was bestowed on General Drummond, of Cromlix. At the Revolution, he hastened back to his own country, was a member of the Convention of Estates which invited King WILLIAM to assume the government, when his attainder was removed, and his estates restored, by a special act of parliament. He m. in 1654, Janet Brodie, of Lethin, in Morayshire, a family whose principles, religious and political, were in unison with his own. She was a woman of great spirit and fortitude, well qualified for the faithful discharge of her duties under the trying circumstances in which she was placed. They had one son and two daus.,

i. JAMES, his heir.

i. Ann, m. to Alexander Don, of Rutherford.

ii. Sophia, m. to James Pringle, of Greenknowe.

George Pringle d. in 1689, and was succeeded by his only son,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee. He was a youth of only sixteen years of age when his father escaped to Holland, and though he had been absent during the events which led to that exile, he was seized and imprisoned in Edinburgh for three months, and then released, on finding the exorbitant bail of £5000 sterling. Some years afterwards, King JAMES being on the throne, and the country again in a disturbed and unsettled state, when the Earl of Argyle's descent on the coast was frustrated, and the estates of his father and of many others were forfeited, James Pringle was again taken up, and imprisoned in Blackness Castle, where he suffered great hardships. After the Revolution, we find him taking an active part in public affairs, much trusted by the government, and holding various offices of trust and authority in his own district. He m. in 1690, Isabel Hall, dau. of Sir John Hall, of Dunglas, by whom he had three sons and seven daus.,

i. GEORGE, his heir.

ii. John, d. in early youth.

iii. JAMES, of Bowland, of whom hereafter.

i. Katherine, m. Sir Robert Pringle, of Stichill, and had issue.

ii. Janet.

iii. Isobel.

iv. Ann.

v. Sophia.

vi. Marion, m. to John Ker, of Littledean.

vii. Margaret.

James Pringle was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE PRINGLE, of Torwoodlee, who was bred an advocate, but, being a man of retired habits, took little or no part in public affairs. He lived a bachelor, at Torwoodlee, with his maiden sisters, and was s. in 1780, by his nephew, JAMES, son of his youngest brother,

JAMES PRINGLE, of Bowland, who was bred a writer to the signet, and latterly held the office of one of the principal clerks of Session. He purchased the lands of Bowland and Windydoors, in 1722, and afterwards those of Catha, from which time he took an active part in country affairs. He m. Elizabeth Nimmo, by whom he had one son, JAMES, and five daus., i. Mary, m. to Andrew Plummer, of Middlestead, s. p.; ii. Elizabeth, m. Adam Fairholme, of Chapel, and had issue; iii. Anne, m. Major George Macmurdy, and had issue; iv. Janet; and, v. Sophia. James Pringle d. in 1778, and was s. in his lands of Bowland, and others, by his only son,

JAMES PRINGLE, who, in 1780, also succeeded to his uncle's estates of Torwoodlee, &c. He afterwards sold Bowland, and acquired the lands of Buckholm and Williamlaw, in Roxburghshire. He had his education at Cambridge and Leyden, but on succeeding to Torwoodlee, he gave up the pursuit of the law, for which he had been preparing, and devoted himself entirely to country pursuits. He built a new mansion-house at Torwoodlee, and otherwise greatly improved his property. He devoted himself with great assiduity to all matters of local business, and held the office of convener of the county of Selkirk for more than fifty years. In 1797, when the yeomanry corps were raised, he was appointed commandant of the Selkirkshire troop, and so continued for about twelve years. From 1827 to 1830, he was vice-lieutenant of that county. In 1782, he m. Elizabeth, one of the two daus. and co-heiresses of Lieut.-Col. Charles Tod, of Dryburgh, by whom he had four sons and one dau., i. JAMES, his heir.

ii. Charles, who d. young.

iii. George, who m. Miss Ann Stewart, by whom he had a dau., Mary, who d. young, and two sons, James and Charles.

iv. Alexander, who was lost in the William Pitt, East Indiaman, in 1813.

i. Frances.

James Pringle, of Torwoodlee, d. in 1840, and was s. by his eldest son, REAR-ADMIRAL JAMES PRINGLE, who is now tenth Laird of Torwoodlee.

PRINGLE OF CLIFTON, AND PRINGLE OF HAINING.

PRINGLE, MARGARET-VIOLET, of Haining, co. Selkirk, s. her brother, the late Robert Pringle, Esq. of Clifton, in 1841; m. Archibald Douglas, Esq. of Adderston, and has an only dau.,

ANNE-ELIZABETH PRINGLE-DOUGLAS.

In compliance with her brother's settlement, the heiress of Haining and her husband assumed the name and designation of PRINGLE OF HAINING, in addition to that of DOUGLAS.

Lineage.

In the southern parts of the county of Roxburgh, and chiefly on the river Kale, there have been several families of the name of PRINGLE, holding land since the fifteenth century. There were Pringles of Hownam, of Tofts, of the Bents, of Aikhope, and others, at this early period. There is reason to believe that most, if not all, were descended from the Smailholm family, though it is doubtful if there are now any means of tracing the connexion. Some branches of that house certainly did hold land in that neighbourhood. The Pringles of Newhall, from whom the Stichill family are sprung, held the lands of Hut, on Kale Water, and a part of Whittoun, in 1484; and William Pringle, first of the Torwoodlee family, a younger son of James Pringle, of Smailholm, had a charter of a fourth part of the barony of Clifton, in 1509; in the seisin following which there are several witnesses of the name of Pringle, resident in that neighbourhood. This portion of Easter Clifton remained in possession of the Torwoodlee family, through four generations, for about a century, when it was sold in lots to others of the name. The other half of Easter Clifton was acquired from the Glendinnings, a few years afterwards, by the Pringles of Hownam. Wester Clifton, in like manner, the other half of the barony, belonged at one time to the Tweedies of Drummelzier, and afterwards to the Murrays of Hallmyre, till one of that family sold it in lots to several individuals of the name of Pringle. The progress of these portions is not easily traced, for not only were the owners for the most part Pringles, but the confusion is increased by the same set of Christian names having prevailed amongst them. At length we find one family gradually consolidating the whole portions of the ancient barony. The first of these was called "MARK PRINGLE, in Sprouston, servitor to the Earl of Roxburgh," who, in 1619, acquired one of the lots of Easter Clifton, which had been shortly before sold by Torwoodlee. In 1623, he purchased the quarter share belonging to the Pringles of Hownam, and in the course of a few years, succeeded in obtaining all the remaining lots of Easter Clifton. Though he is styled servitor to the Earl of Roxburgh, he appears to have been a person of some wealth and consequence, and was probably a member of one of the families settled in this quarter, but of which of them cannot be ascertained from the Clifton papers. He m. Janet Bennet, sister of Mr. William Bennet, parson of Ancrum, whose son, Sir William Bennet, was the first baronet of the Grubet family. She was related, by the mother's side, to the Elliots of Stobs and Douglas's of Cavers. By her he had two sons and two daus.,

- I. ROBERT, his heir.
- II. ANDREW, of Linton, afterwards of Clifton.
- I. Margaret, m. John Haliburton, of Muirhouselaw, and had issue.
- II. Jean, m. Thomas Scott, of Todrick, and had issue.

Mark Pringle d. in 1644, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT PRINGLE, who was first designed of Easter Clifton, but afterwards, having acquired all the portions of Wester Clifton, he was designed generally of Clifton. In 1660, he m. Christian Murray, dau. of Sir Walter Murray, of Livingston, who was brother to Patrick, the first Lord Elbank. They had one only dau., Janet, who m. her cousin, Robert, son of Andrew Pringle. The estates which had been acquired by Mark Pringle appear to have been settled by him on his heirs-male, which destination was repeated in Robert's marriage contract. On his death, therefore, he was succeeded, as heir of provision, by his brother,

ANDREW PRINGLE, of Clifton, who was retoured in that character, by service, in 1686, while Janet Pringle was served heir to her father in all that passed to female heirs. In 1699, he acquired the barony of Linton, in Roxburghshire, by purchase, from Henry Ker, of Linton, and Andrew, his son. He m. Violet, dau. of John Rutherford, of Edgerston, by his wife, Barbara Abernethy, a dau. of the Bishop of Caithness. They had three sons and several daus.,

- I. ROBERT, his heir.
- II. JOHN, of Haining.
- III. MARK, of Crichton.
- I. Barbara, the eldest dau., m. Sir James Naesmyth, of Posso.

Andrew Pringle d. in 1702, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Clifton, who m. 1st, in 1687, his cousin, Janet, only dau. of his uncle, Robert Pringle, of Clifton, by which marriage all the family estates were united. They had one son, and several daus., of whom the eldest m. Robert Elliot, of Harwood, and had a very numerous family. His second wife was Margaret, eldest dau. of George Rutherford, of Fairnington, by a dau. of Haliburton of Newmains. He d. about the year 1755, and was s. by his only son, ROBERT PRINGLE, of Clifton, who, in 1755, was served heir of the marriage of Robert Pringle with his cousin, Janet, in the several portions of Clifton, united into one barony. In 1760, he made an entail of his lands of Clifton, together with those of Linton and Priorraw: first, on the heirs of his body; then, on the several sons of his uncle, Lord Haining, and the heirs-male of their bodies; then, on the heirs-male of JOHN, son of his uncle, Mark Pringle, of Crichton; and failing them, on a series of other substitutes, beginning with his eldest sister, Mrs. Elliot, of Harwood. Robert Pringle d. unm. in 1780, and was s. by his cousin, JOHN PRINGLE, of Haining, second son of his uncle,

JOHN PRINGLE, second son of Andrew Pringle, of Clifton, by Violet Rutherford. He was called to the bar in 1698, and got early into good practice. In 1702, he purchased the estate of Haining, in the county of Selkirk, from which time we find him taking an active and prominent part in all the affairs of that county. In 1729, on the death of Lord Pencaitland, he was raised to the bench, by the title of Lord Haining. He m. Ann, eldest dau. of Sir James Murray, of Philiphaugh, by his wife, Ann Don, of Newton, and by her he had three sons and three daus.,

- I. ANDREW, afterwards Lord Alemoor.
- II. JOHN, afterwards of Haining.
- III. Robert, a doctor of medicine.
- I. Ann, who m. Robert Rutherford, of Fairnilee, and had two daus.; of whom the eldest was m. to her cousin, John Pringle, of Crichton, and the other to Adam Cockburn, of Ormiston.
- II. Helen, unm.
- III. Violet, unm.

Lord Haining d. in 1754, at the age of 79. His eldest son,

ANDREW PRINGLE, did not take up his father's succession to Haining, as the affairs were embarrassed, but allowed it to pass, by purchase, to his younger brother, JOHN. He afterwards acquired the properties of Hartwoodburn and Easter Alemoor, in Selkirkshire; but his usual residence was at his villa of Hawkhill, near Edinburgh. He was admitted an advocate in 1740, and was very eminent at the bar, being particularly distinguished for his eloquence. In 1750, he was appointed sheriff of Wigtonshire; and in the following year, sheriff of Selkirkshire. In 1755, he was appointed his majesty's solicitor-general for Scotland, and shortly afterwards was a candidate for the representation of the county of Selkirk, against his cousin, John Murray, of Philiphaugh, by whom he was defeated, after a severe contest. In 1759, on the death of Lord Kilkerran, he was raised to the bench, by the title of Lord Alemoor, and was at the same time appointed a lord of justiciary. During the later years of his life, his health was impaired, and his usefulness impeded, by frequent attacks of the gout; and, dying at Hawkhill, in 1776, unm., he was s. in all his landed property, by his next brother, JOHN PRINGLE, of Haining, a merchant in Madeira, where he made an ample fortune, which enabled him, on his father's death, to purchase the estate of Haining, and relieve it of the embarrassments. After he had retired from business he lived many years on his property, where he was a most useful and public-spirited country gentleman, and for a long time represented the county of Selkirk in parliament. On the death of his cousin, Robert Pringle, of Clifton, in 1780, he was served heir of provision to him, under his entail, and thereafter assumed the designation of PRINGLE OF CLIFTON, with the arms of the elder branch of the family, undifferenced. He never married, and, dying in 1792, was succeeded by his cousin and grand-nephew, MARK PRINGLE, of Fairnilee, grandson of Mark, third son of Andrew Pringle, of Clifton, to whom we now return.

MARK PRINGLE, was third and youngest son of Andrew Pringle, of Clifton, by Violet Rutherford, of Edgerston. On 2 Oct. 1707, the day of the Head court at Selkirk, he had a quarrel after dinner with Walter Scott, of Raeburn, and next morning they fought with swords, in a meadow near the town, when Raeburn was unfortunately slain, and Mark Pringle fled the country. He then became a Spanish merchant, and went through many hardships and adventures, in the course of which he was taken captive by the Moors, and detained by them for a time in slavery. At length, having made a considerable fortune, he returned to his native country and purchased the estate of Crichton, in Mid-Lothian, in 1738. His wife was a dau. of Strachan of Thornton, an ancient family in Kincardineshire: they had three sons and a dau., I. JOHN, his heir; II. Andrew, in the Bombay civil service; and, III. Robert, a colonel of engineers. The daughter became the second wife of Robert Rutherford, of Fairmile, who had been previously m. to Ann Pringle, of Haining: they had no issue. Mark Pringle d. in 1751, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN PRINGLE, of Crichton, who continued to be engaged extensively in mercantile transactions, till the house with which he was connected unfortunately failed. He was then forced to part with his lands, and his father-in-law, Fairmile, being involved along with him, had to sell some of his estates. He m. Ann, eldest dau. of Robert Rutherford, of Fairmile, and had by her one son, MARK, and one dau., Ann, who never married. He was s. by his son,

MARK PRINGLE, first designed of Fairmile, having succeeded to that estate through his mother. He afterwards, on the death of his grand-uncle, John Pringle, became possessed of the estates of Haining and Clifton: the former, as heir of line, through his grandmother, Ann Pringle, the wife of Fairmile; and the latter, as heir-male, through the entail executed by Robert Pringle, of Clifton. After this he assumed the designation of CLIFTON. He was bred to the Scottish bar, but did not practise long. At the general election, in 1790, on the retirement of his uncle, he was elected member of parliament for the county of Selkirk, which he continued to represent for two parliaments, till the dissolution in 1802. He m. in 1795, Ann-Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Chalmers, Esq., by Margaret, dau. of John Forbes, of Newhall. They had two sons and one dau.; I. JOHN, his heir; and II. ROBERT, of Fairmile. His dau., MARGARET-VIOLET, m. Archibald Douglas, of Adderston. Mark Pringle d. in 1812, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN PRINGLE, of Clifton, who succeeded in minority, and, after receiving a university education at Christchurch College, Oxford, entered the army, at the close of the war, as a cornet in the 7th Hussars. He served in the army of occupation in France, but when the general reduction took place in 1819, he was forced to go on half-pay, and never served again. He was for a short time in parliament as member for the Selkirk district of boroughs, having been elected, on the death of Sir John Riddell, in 1820. In 1831, he met with a violent death, having been thrown out of his open carriage, near his own house at Haining. He never was married, and was therefore s. by his brother,

ROBERT PRINGLE, of Clifton, first designed of Fairmile, having had that property left to him by his father. Like his brother, he entered the army in the 7th Hussars, and served with them for some years. He represented the county of Selkirk in the first parliament after the Reform Act, having been elected, after a severe contest with Alexander Pringle, of Whytbank, with whom he again contested it, unsuccessfully, at the general election in 1835. He d. at Haining, in 1841, when the estate of Clifton passed, under the provisions of the entail, to Robert Elliot, of Harwood, whose father was eldest son of the eldest sister of the entailer, Robert Pringle, of Clifton, which made him heir of line of that family. Haining, and the other estates of Robert Pringle, then descended to his only sister, MARGARET-VIOLET PRINGLE, now of Haining, who had m. Archibald Douglas, Esq. of Adderston, whose family are cadets of the house of Cavers.

RAINES OF WYTON.

RAINES, WILLIAM, Esq. of Wyton, co. York, barrister-at-law, of Lincoln's Inn. Mr. Raine is the Judge of the Hull circuit of the Yorkshire and Lincolnshire County Courts, and a magistrate of the East and North Ridings of Yorkshire, the borough of Hull, and the county of Lincoln.

Lineage.

The patriarch of this ancient house, ROGER DE RAINES, came into England with the CONQUEROR, and had several manors in Essex given to him by WILLIAM. Two adjoining places, Great Rayne (near Braintree) and Little Rayne, (both written in records Raines, Raynes, Reynes, Rayne, Ranes, and Rains,) are comprehended in Domesday Book under the name of RAINES. Here were two chief lordships in this parish, Rayne Hall and Old Hall, which at the time of the general survey were holden by Hugh de Montfort and his under-tenant, Alcher, and by Roger de Raines. A very full account of the first establishment of this family in England is given by MORANT, in his History of Essex, under the heads of Missing and Little Rayne. He records that, at the time of the general survey, the whole of Little Rayne belonged to Roger, one of WILLIAM's companions in his conquest "of this kingdom, who took the surname of Raines, or Raneis, from this parish, at which the family resided for several ages at or near the manor of Old Hall, and that this Roger de Raines was rewarded with several manors in this county, which were erected into a barony, called the barony of Raines, consisting of ten knights' fees, whereof the manor of Old Hall in Little Rayne was the head. In 1140, Roger de Raines was amerced forty marks for making a park without the king's leave. In 1167, William de Raynes paid a mark for each knight's fee to HENRY II., when his daughter Matilda was married to Henry, Duke of Saxony. William and Richard paid twenty shillings for each knight's fee for the war in Ireland, in 1172; and in 1194, twenty shillings for each knight's fee for the redemption of King RICHARD out of captivity. Robert, Richard, and William, descendants of Roger de Raines above mentioned, were brothers. Robert, the eldest, dying without issue, the barony descended to Richard, who, dying about the end of King JOHN's reign, left this barony to his three daus. and co-heirs, Alice, Amicia, and Joan. William continued to reside within this manor, and the barony remained in the family until sold by WALTER, son of GEOFFREY DE RAINES, in the 13th century. Their descendants settled in Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire, and from them sprung the family of REYNES of CLIFTON REYNES, (long since extinct,) and in Yorkshire, from whom sprung the family of Raines of Wyton."

RALSTON OF WARWICKHILL.

This branch of the Ralston family is from the Ralstons of Auchentorlie, descended from Hugh, vi. chieftain in the genealogy of the Ralstons of Ralston. This Hugh obtained the lands of Woodside, in the parish of Beith, Ayrshire, in 1551, from Gavin, commendator of Kilwinning, from which the name of Gavin became a favourite one in the family. He had two sons, GAVIN, who s. him as Ralston of that ilk; and

WILLIAM RALSTON, the first of this branch. His son,

JOHN RALSTON, of Honeybog, was s. by his son, GAVIN RALSTON, the first of Auchentorlie, near Paisley, who, being a man of somewhat singular opinions with regard to religion, acquired the soubriquet of the Pagan. He had three sons, WILLIAM, Gavin, and James; of whom, the eldest,

WILLIAM RALSTON, m. Jane, dau. of Robert Ralston, of Auchengrainmont, near Hamilton, by whom he had three sons, ROBERT; Gavin; and William, a major in the army. The eldest,

ROBERT RALSTON, of Auchentorlie, m. Susannah Simpson, dau. of the deputy-keeper of the palace of Holyrood, by whom he had several children.

WILLIAM-HENRY RALSTON, the eldest, a captain in the army, purchased the lands of Warwickhill, and was s. by his nephew, ALEXANDER-MACDOUGAL RALSTON, now in possession of the estate, who m. the dau. of Colonel Fullarton, of Fullarton and Bartonholm, and has issue.

RAWLINSON.

Lineage.

The family of Rawlinson is of great antiquity in Westmorland and Lancashire, the whole country in Furness being at one time possessed by the Rawlinsons, Penningtons, Sawreys, and Sandys. The several branches of the Rawlinson family of Graythwaite, Cartmel, Holyer, Graysdale, Graysyard, and Greenhead, in Colton, were all connected together in the fifteenth century. They were severally descended from two brothers, Walter and Henry Rawlinson, who fought under HENRY V. at Agincourt. From Walter descended Thomas, father of the last abbot of Furness Abbey, temp. HENRY VII.

Pennington, the Antiquary of the Muncaster family, connected by marriage with the Rawlinsons, states, that the whole of the family papers in the keeping of Sir Walter Rawlinson were destroyed by fire. Amongst them was a very scarce old print of the battle-field of "Azincour," in the margin of which were inscribed (with others who had distinguished themselves in that action) the names of the above-named brothers, Walter and Henry. There are several monuments yet in existence to members of the family; the most remarkable being one in Hendon Church, Middlesex, of a recumbent figure, large as life, of Sir William Rawlinson, who was born at Graythwaite in 1648, and died at Hendon in 1700: he was one of the commissioners of the great seal in 1688. In Cartmel Church, Lancashire, is one to Robert, justice of the peace and quorum for the counties of Lancaster and Chester, appointed at the Restoration vice-chancellor of the city and county of Chester; in St. Dionis' Church, London, to Sir T. Rawlinson; in the abbey church of St. Albans, to Christopher, (an eminent antiquary and Anglo-Saxon scholar,) son of Curwen Rawlinson, M.P. for Lancaster; in the churchyard of Lancaster, to Henry Rawlinson, M.P. for Liverpool; and at Ellel, to Abram Rawlinson, M.P. for Lancaster.

The portrait of Daniel Rawlinson, born at Graysdale, in 1614, is in Hawkshead school. He was father of Sir Thomas Rawlinson, lord-mayor of London in 1706, who had issue, amongst others, the celebrated Doctor Richard Rawlinson, an antiquary, and benefactor to the University of Oxford; and another son, Thomas, a collector of books, who died in 1725.

While some branches of the family adhere to the original arms of the scallop-shell and double bars, which were retained by Sir Thomas, (named above,) the lord-commissioner (Sir William Rawlinson) adopted the arms granted to his father, Captain William Rawlinson, for services in the civil wars, when the gallantry of his ancestors (Walter and Henry, at Agincourt) was commemorated with his own, by assigning three swords as armorial bearings.

The representatives of two branches of the family at this time are, J. RAWLINSON, of Graythwaite, Westmoreland; and A.-T. RAWLINSON, of Graysyard, Lancashire, and Chadlington, Oxfordshire.

Arms—Gu., two bars, gemelles, between three escallops, arg.

Crest—A drake, ppr., in its beak an escallop, arg.

RAYMOND OF BALLYLOUGHRANE.

RAYMOND, ANTHONY, Esq. of Ballyloughrane, co. Kerry, b. in 1816; s. to the paternal estates, on the death of his grandfather, in 1827.

Lineage.

This family claim descent from Raymond le Gros, who accompanied Strongbow to Ireland in 1171, and being mainly instrumental in the reduction of that kingdom, obtained an extensive tract of land in the co. of Kerry. He was appointed chief governor of the kingdom, upon the death of Strongbow. He also obtained a considerable grant of lauds in Kerry from DERMOT M'CARTHY, King of Cork; all of which he settled upon his son, Maurice, whom he had by his wife, Bassilla, sister to Strongbow. Maurice obtained further grants in Kerry from RICHARD I., and by his first wife, Johanna, dau. of Miles Fitz Henry, chief governor, he got more possessions in that county; insomuch, that a barony therein was called after him, the barony of Clanmaurice, and his eldest son, Thomas, who assumed the surname of Fitzmaurice, became Baron of Kerry and Lixnav.

The family of Raymond of Ballyloughrane still retain possession of considerable portions of the lands acquired by Raymond and his son Maurice, in Kerry, especially in the baronies of Clanmaurice and Iraghticonnor.

SAMUEL RAYMOND, who, in 1614, was, after much discussion, censured by the Irish House of Commons, on the complaint of Mr. Robert Blennerhassett, M.P. for Tralee, for serving him with a subpoena out of the Star-chamber, in contempt of the privileges of the house, left issue, by his wife, Elizabeth,

i. Samuel, who d. without issue.

ii. ANTHONY, his heir.

i. Mary, m. to Samuel Morris, ancestor of the family of Morris, of Ballybeggan, co. Kerry.

ANTHONY RAYMOND, at the breaking out of the great rebellion in 1641, was serving abroad, and his father and brother having died during the troubles, their estates were seized upon and disposed of to different English officers. The widow of Samuel, the younger, preferred several petitions and complaints to the Court of Claims, but without effect, until the return of Anthony, who prosecuted the claim to his rights with vigour, and at length, in 1657, obtained a decree from the courts of Dublin, restoring him to the possession of his paternal estates, which in his absence in distant parts, were supposed to be forfeited as belonging to Irish papists. Raymond claimed as a protestant. He afterwards got patents of the lands in 1667 and 1682. He appears to have been an active man, and to have taken a considerable part in the arrangements made for the settlement of the country after those turbulent times. He m. in 1650, Anne, dau. of Captain Philip Taylor, of the army of the parliament of England, and got, as portion with her, lands in the co. Limerick. By her he had issue,

- i. SAMUEL, his heir.
 - i. Anthony, LL.D., a senior fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and a man of great learning, who translated into English the learned Geoffrey Keating's "History of Ireland," the copy of which was by surreptitious means obtained from him by Dermot O'Connor, also a native of Kerry, who published it in his own name.
 - iii. James, of Ballyegan, the ancestor of the Dromin and Riversdale families: by his wife, Elizabeth, he had issue,
 1. Anthony, d. s. p.
 2. William, d. s. p.
 3. JAMES, his heir, who m. Honoria Gun, and had issue,
 1. WILLIAM, his heir; 2. Samuel, who had issue, James, John, George, and Samuel; 3. George; 1. Elizabeth; 2. Sarah, m. to Maurice Hewson, Esq.; 3. Mary, m. to the Rev. Christopher Julian; 4. Martha, m. to James Shewel, Esq. The eldest son, WILLIAM, m. Sarah Morris, and had issue, 1. James-William, his heir; 2. William, m. Anne Reeves; and, 3. Samuel Stephen, M.D. James-William, the eldest son, m. Letitia Chute, and had issue, 1. RICHARD, the present head of that branch of the family; 2. James; 3. Frank; 1. Elizabeth, m. to H. Clements, Esq.; 2. Agnes, m. to the Rev. Mr. Harvey; 3. Letitia, m. to James Croshie; 4. Kate, m. to Thomas Gilman, Esq.
 4. Samuel, of Dublin.
 - iv. William, who got a commission in Colonel Hastings' regiment of foot in 1689.
 - v. Edward.
 - vi. Philip.

The eldest son,

SAMUEL RAYMOND, Esq., m. in 1686, Maria Tennison, dau. of the Lord Bishop of Killala, and had issue,

II. Elizabeth-Joanna.

Mr. Robinson is the second surviving son of the late, and brother of the present Thomas-Robinson Grey, Esq. of Norton, (see that family), and by a Royal licence, dated 22 Sept. 1838, he and his issue were authorized to take and thenceforth use the surname of ROBINSON only, and also bear the arms of Robinson. Mr. Robinson is in the commission of the peace for the co. of Durham.

Lineage.

GREY.

(See THOMAS-ROBINSON GREY, OF NORTON.)

Mr. Robinson, through his paternal ancestor, GEORGE MIDDLETON, Esq., (subsequently mentioned,) traces his descent in an uninterrupted line, through twenty-five generations, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, King of England; GUNDEDA, the fifth dau. of that monarch having married WILLIAM DE WARREN, Earl of Warren and Surrey, one of whose descendants, through the blood, in the interval, of many noble and illustrious families, was the above mentioned George Middleton, Esq. A pedigree illustrating this fact is regularly recorded in the Heralds' College.

ROBINSON.

THOMAS ROBINSON, Esq. of Sunderland, near the Sea, co. Palatine of Durham, m. in 1727, Margaret, (eldest dau. and co-heir, with her sister Anne, the wife of Sir William Middleton, Bart., M. Mr. Roch s. to the representation of the family in 1792.

Lineage.

The family of ROCH of Woodbine Hill exhibit an unbroken line of twenty-three descents, from the period of the English Conquest; and during the greater part of eight centuries have been distinguished by their military fame and feudal honours. As Lords Roch and Fermoy, they were ennobled in the Irish peerage.

LE SIRE DE ROCHVILLE, called also, "DE LA ROCHE," and "DE RUPE," was descended in a direct line from the ruling house of Lorraine. He accompanied the Duke of Normandy to England, on the invasion of 1066, and his name appears among the knights who fought at the battle of Hastings. For his gallantry in this engagement he received from the Conqueror, three lordships in Wales: one of which, near St. David's, yet retains the name of "Roch." When a conference was held at Kells, in Ireland, in 1111, with the Irish princes, DE RUPE was selected to represent his sovereign, and discharged his difficult diplomacy with singular address and ability. He d. soon after his return to England, and was s. by his son,

HENRI DE RUPE, of whom no particular account has come down to us, save that he was father to

ADAM DE RUPE, who in 1170, formed one of the band of Anglo-Norman adventurers, under the Earl of Pembroke (Strongbow), Robert Fitz-Stephen, and Miles de Cogan, in their conquest of Ireland. On the subjugation of the southern districts, de Rupe received for his portion, the cantred of Rosse-lihir, called also, Rosse-Alithri, i. e., the Field of Pilgrimage (now Ross Carbery), with all its appurtenances, except the episcopal demesnes, by the service of five knights.* De Rupe soon after relieved Fitz-Stephen from his critical position, when he was closely besieged in Cork, by MacCarty, King of Desmond. He now turned his attention to the improvement of his acquired territory; and in 1178, erected a magnificent castle on the river Bandon, adjoining Kinsale, called Castletough, in Irish, Poul-ne-long, i. e., Ship-pool. The ruins of this edifice even now attest its feudal splendour; and the arms of de Rupe, Gules, three roaches naiant, are still visible on the grand chimney, (SMITH'S Cork, vol. i. p. 213.) When Prince John, in 1185, went to Ireland as lord-deputy, he was attended by de Rupe, from Waterford, where he had landed, to Lismore and Ardinnan. On this occasion, the prince conferred on him some new grants of land, and joined with his gifts a patent confirming de Rupe's former acquisitions. O'Cleary, in his Irish MSS., tells us (art. ROCH), that de Rupe, in the year 1200, founded at his lordship in Pembrokehire, the priory of Pilla Rose, and that here, at his death in 1210, he was buried with much solemnity. He was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD DE RUPE, or DE LA ROCHE, baron of Poole Castle, who erected on the Bandon river, a second stately castle, called Dunderrow. He m. Amy, only dau. and sole heiress of Sir William Flemming, Lord of Armoyn, or Fermoy, and with his bride he received the district, which, being raised to a harony, gave the title of Lords Roch, to himself and his descendants. The union is said to have originated in the following romantic circumstances. The Lord of Armoyn, having no male issue, had constituted Amy the sole inheritor of his large possessions; and in consequence, he found many suitors ready to prefer their claims. Sir William Cauntoun, or Condon, among the rest, made overtures for the lady's hand; and when refused, vowed he would lay waste with fire and sword, the whole of her father's territories. For this purpose he joined with himself two Irish chiefs, O'Keefe and O'Corgra, and advanced with a large army against the Flemmings' castle of Glanworth. Appeals for aid were made to Sir Richard de Rupe, and in a single combat with Condon, the gallant knight mortally wounded him by a cross-bow shot, where the rising up of his cuirass had left his body exposed. He received for his reward the hand of the fair Amy, and the whole of her father's district (six thousand Irish acres) as a bridal portion, together with, on the death of Flemming, the noble castle of Glanworth, which he had erected for his chief seat.* In the centre of this barony, in our own day, popularly called "Roch's country," de Rupe founded his fortress, and round it grew the town of Castletown Roch. Sir Richard de Rupe d. in 1230, and was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD FITZ-RICHARD DE RUPE, of Poole Castle, lord-justice of Ireland for six years, 1261—1267, when he was recalled by HENRY III., and summoned to assist the king in England, where public matters were much disturbed (CLYNN'S Annals). At Glanworth, in the vicinity of his father's fine castle, he founded, in 1227, an abbey of Dominicans or friars-preachers, which still remains in an almost perfect state. He also erected, and largely endowed, at Fermoy, a Cistercian abbey, ealled "Our Lady de Castro Dei," probably about the same time, since the prior is mentioned by Archdall,† in 1226, though an Irish MS. would assign its foundation to a much later period, viz., 1270. The monks were brought from Suir Abbey, in the county of Tipperary, and received an accession to their numbers from Furness Abbey, in Lancashire. Sir Richard de Rupe d. in 1270, and was s. by his son,

LORD HUGH DE RUPE, of Poole Castle, Baron Roch of Fermoy. In a return of the great English lords in this county, with their incomes or other possessions, made by order of HENRY IV., we find Lord Roch set down as seised of £1000 per annum, besides havens, creeks, and ferries, and all exclusive of his Fermoy barony.‡ The greater part of Lord Hugh's lifetime was spent in conflicts with the Irish chieftains; and on his death, in 1300, his eldest son succeeded,

DAVID FITZ-HUGH ROCH, of Poole Castle, Baron Roch of Fermoy, and so summoned to the parliament held in Dublin at the commencement of King EDWARD II.'s reign. In 1308, he defeated in a pitched battle, and slew, Sir Maurice Cauntoun, or Condon, who had murdered Lord Roch's intimate friend, Sir Richard Taloun; in revenge, (we are told by Camden,) his son, William Roch, was three years after, treacherously assassinated in Dublin, by a gallowglass hired by the Condons for that purpose. Lord Roch d. in 1314, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE FITZ-DAVID ROCH, of Poole Castle, Baron Roch of Fermoy. Having been summoned to parliament, and refusing to attend, he was fined 200 marks; but this penalty was afterwards in great part remitted. On the invasion of Ireland, in 1315, by the Seots, under Edward Bruce, Lord Roch displayed signal bravery; he united his forces with those of Sir Richard de Mortimer, the lord-justice, and materially contributed to the defeat of the invaders. He d. in 1325, or perhaps in 1330, and was s. by his son, ALEXANDER-FITZ-HUGH ROCH, Lord Roch of Fermoy, of whom the MS. annals relate that he obtained from the king, by pleading his hereditary claims, the reduction to ten pounds, of the penalty imposed on his father, for not attending the parliament of 20 EDWARD II. In 1314, he founded at Bridgetown, (in Irish, Ballindroghed,) near the confluence of the rivers Awbeg and Blackwater, co. Cork, an abbey of regular canons of St. Augustine, or of St. Victor, according to some historians. This house was

* SMITH'S History of Cork, vol. i. p. 37. Some chroniclers assert that the Fermoy district, having successfully resisted the attacks of De Braosa and Wigorne, two valiant English captains, the king commissioned de Rupe to reduce the rebellious septs, and, on his success, bestowed on him the district, raised to a barony.

munificently endowed by the Roch family, and opposite the great altar is the founder's tomb, having the armorial bearings, but destitute of inscription; the whole being compassed by an arch of beautiful construction.* Here, on Lord Roch's death, in 1335, he was buried, being s. by his son,

DAVID-FITZ-ALEXANDER ROCH, Lord Roch of Fermoy, who built the Castle of Ballyhorley, on the river Blackwater. In 1330, King EDWARD III. commanded his appearance at the English court, with a competent retinue, to assist at the ceremonial of the knighthood of the Prince of Wales. His presence was ere long again ordered at the marriage of the princess-royal, when he attended with so gallant a company, that the king, to mark his favour, bestowed on him the castle and land of Guynes. In 1335, he fought at the battle of Allo, where DERMOT OGE-M'CARTY, King of Cork, was slain.† At his death, in 1361, his son succeeded,

WILLIAM-FITZ-DAVID ROCH, Lord Roch and Fermoy. In 1370, he was made sheriff of the co. Cork, seneschal of Imokilly barony, and governor of Youghal. Four years after, by virtue of his office, he attacked and discomfited the Clangibbons, and other marauders, who were wasting the Imokilly barony. He d. in 1383, and was buried in his father's tomb at Bridgetown, being s. by his eldest son,

JAMES-FITZ-WILLIAM ROCH, Lord Roch and Fermoy, who d. s. p. in 1422, and was s. by his next brother,

MAURICE-FITZ-WILLIAM ROCH, Lord Roch and Fermoy, appointed sheriff of the co. Cork in 1423. He erected several castles in various parts of his extensive districts, viz., Shiau's Castle and Glynn, near Carrick-on-Suir; Tourin and Cappoquin, on the river Blackwater. In 1445, he was summoned to Dublin, for the purpose of testifying to the Earl of Ormond's conduct when lord chief-justice of Ireland. He gave in a testimonial in Ormond's favour, which had been signed not only by himself, but by the corporations of Cork and Youghal, by the Bishop of Cork and Cloyne, and many others.‡ In 1461, on the death of the lord-deputy, the Duke of Clarence, brother to the king, (EDWARD IV.,) the native Irish rebelled—in the north, under O'Neil, Lord Tyrone; and in Munster, under Morrogh O'Brien, Prince of Thomond. The latter overran the greater part of Munster and Connaught, destroying everywhere the castles of the English, and plundering the walled towns.§ He was at last encountered at Mallar by Lord Roch, when a terrible battle ensued, which checked his further progress. Lord Maurice had several sons: the two eldest, along with eight knights of his family, were slain in England, during the war of the Roses; and it is recorded of the father that, although he lived to an advanced age, he never ceased to mourn for them. His third and fourth sons successively enjoyed his title and estates; and the youngest, James-Fitz-Maurice Roch, was, in 1474, governor of the city of Cork. At this time lived Lord Maurice's near relative, if not brother, William Roch, Archdeacon of Cork, and Bishop of Cork in 1479. This eminent divine was celebrated among his contemporaries, no less by reason of his profound literary acquirements, than for religion and piety. He continued bishop until 1496, in which year he resigned his see. Clancy, in his MS. lives of the Roch family,|| states that the king's great lord (Sir Richard Edgecomb) arrived in Kinsale harbour, 27 June, 1488, to take new oaths of allegiance from the great men of Ireland, after the rebellion of Lambert Simnel. He was magnificently entertained by Lord Roch at the Castle of Poolne-long, where he continued until he had executed his mission, and thence sailed for Waterford. Lord Maurice d. in 1493, and was s. by his third son,

ULICK, or ALEXANDER ROCH, Lord Roch and Fermoy, who, in consequence of injuries received by a fall from his horse, d. s. p. in 1500, and was s. by his next brother, || Clancy was antiquary and laureate of the Roch family, who from time immemorial retained their own chroniclers, and set apart for their maintenance the castle and estate of Rathgoggan. These seanmachies, as they were called by the Irish, were also heralds, and accompanied their lords in all military expeditions, for the twofold purpose of witnessing their heroic deeds, with a view to record them, and of stimulating their ardour by the recitation of panegyrics.

GEORGE ROCH, Lord Roch and Fermoy, who on his brother's untimely decease had but recently returned from England, where he had acquired great military skill. He m. in 1506, at Limerick, the Princess Mary O'Brien, dau. of Tirlough Roe O'Brien, hereditary Prince of Thomond, and by this marriage had two sons. Lord Roch was waylaid and assassinated near Liscarroll, in 1517; or according to some, was killed in endeavouring to force a pass among the mountains in that neighbourhood. His lady, who was devotedly attached to him, died soon after of grief, and bequeathed her two orphan boys to the care of their uncle Maurice, afterwards Lord Fermoy.

JOHN ROCH, surnamed "the Happy," was the elder of the two sons, and it seems the only one who grew up to maturity. He was b. in 1507, and being a mere child, as we have seen, at the decease of both his parents, the vassals, by the law of tanistry, elected Maurice, his uncle and guardian, to be their chief, until such time as their young lord should himself come of age. To this determination the intestine commotions of the country, which threatened the very existence of the hereditary property, compelled them; but the youthful chieftain never succeeded to the family honours, which remained in his uncle's possession. He was placed under a faithful ward and two learned tutors, in the Castle of Tourin, and there continued until he arrived at man's estate. In 1521, in his fourteenth year, he was present at the battle of Mourne Abbey, under his uncle's care, who desired to have him familiarized to such encounters. Maclaire, in his MS. poem, states that the lord-deputy, travelling from Waterford to Cork, was greatly attracted by the appearance of the young possessor of Tourin; he offered him a lordship conditionally on his supporting the Reformation, but the honour was declined. The deputy, continuing his journey to Limerick, was attended by all the great English proprietors, and was entertained in Thomond with great splendour by the O'Briens, the maternal relations of young Roch, a favour which he sought to recompense by knighting him, very much against the youth's wishes, as some annalists relate. Sir John Roch m. in 1535, the Lady Johanna Fitzgerald, dau. of the Lord of Strancally, by whom he had an only son, JAMES. In 1555, he was present at the festivities consequent on the marriage of his cousin, the Lady Mary Roch, (or Joan), to James, the fifteenth Earl of Desmond.* The pageant lasted during thirty days; and in the tilting, the Knight of Tourin displayed so much address, as to vanquish every competitor. The delighted vassals immediately offered him the restoration of his ancestral style and dignities, but his unambitious spirit prompted him to decline their proposition, and he alleged for a plea his unwillingness to disturb the union just concluded between the houses of Fermoy and Desmond, which gave them the sway of South Munster. About this time Sir John Roch d. suddenly, and was s. by his son,

JAMES ROCH, of Tourin, who m. the Lady Margaret Butler, of the house of Ormond, and dying in 1567, left by her a son,

THEOBALD ROCH, of Tourin and Cregg, who m. in 1566, the Lady Ellen Fitzgerald, of the Desmond family, (of the house of Kerrycurryhy,†) and had issue, five sons,

At this period of Irish history, owing to the continued insurrections, the uncertainty of tenure was so great that the heirs of the Roch family were wont to reside at the castle of Glynn until the decease of the actual representative, who retained Nourin in his possession when they moved to the latter castle. This was done to protect the two most vulnerable extremities of the estate.

* This union was, however, dissolved, on the plea of consanguinity, after the birth of a son, Thomas; and the Earl of Desmond subsequently constituted Gerald, his son by a second marriage, and subsequently the 16th earl, his heir. Thomas, being thus set aside, built for himself the Castle of Conna, on the river Bride. He m. Alice, dau. of Poer, Lord Curraghmore, and had issue, James, the sugan earl; John, and Gerald; and one dau., Margaret. He d. in 1593, and was buried in the South Abbey, Youghal.

† The barony of Kerrycurryhy was originally possessed by the MacCarty's: it was granted at the Conquest to Richard de Cogan, and came with him to the Earls of Desmond. James, the 15th earl, devised it to Sir Maurice Fitzgerald, his brother, with whom it remained until it was forfeited to the crown, in the reign of Elizabeth.—SMITH'S Cork, vol. i. pp. 32, 50, 207.

Maurice, the third son, sided with his unfortunate kinsman, Sir James Fitzgerald, Lord of Strancally, and in the revolt lost his life. It does not appear that his father was in anywise, at least actively, concerned in this transaction; yet his son's connexion afforded sufficient pretext to deprive him of his estates in great part, and they were bestowed on Sir Walter Raleigh. By an inquisition held at Shandon Castle, in Cork, 9 Sept. 1588, "Theobald Roch, of Cregg," was found to have been among those concerned in the Earl of Desmond's rebellion; he escaped, notwithstanding the attainder issued against others, and was only heavily mulcted and deprived of some lands. In 1598, he sent Geoffrey Mac Sweeney with a purse of gold to the relief of James-Fitz-Thomas Fitzgerald, the titular (or, as he was called by the Irish, sugan) Earl of Desmond. He d. at an advanced age in 1635, and was buried at Bridgetown, where in one of the side-chapels his monument is yet to be seen in a very perfect state. His eldest son succeeded,

GEORGE ROCH, of Tourin and Glynn. At the breaking out of the rebellion of 1641, we find the disposition made by the brothers for the maintenance of the remaining family property, to be as follows:—George and Ulick were settled at Glynn; John, at Tourin; and David, on the Cork estates. The brothers were all present at the several conflicts of Cappoquin, Knockmourne, Mothill, Lismore, and Dungarvon, and at all these showed themselves devoted adherents of the Stewarts, which drew upon them the hostility of the Lord Protector, and eventually their attainder by the English parliament. Two only, George and John, survived these disasters. They withdrew in exile to Flanders, where they found their prince, for whom they had undergone so much, also a fugitive and wanderer. It is recorded of them that, along with their kinsman, Maurice, Lord Roch and Fermoy, (also attainted,) they shared their military pay with CHARLES, service which that monarch wholly overlooked at the period of his restoration. George Roch d. of his wounds, in exile, about the year 1658, and bequeathed to his brother's care his only son,

JAMES ROCH, colonel in King WILLIAM's army at the relief of Derry, who was b. at Kinsale, 29 Sept. 1657. His uncle, who never married, adopted and educated him; and his military talents were so well known, that in 1688, Lord Tyrconnell sent a special messenger, inviting him to assist JAMES II. in his struggle for the succession. Remembering what his family had suffered from the Stewarts, Mr. Roch not only peremptorily refused, but directed Trant, the officer who had come on the negotiation, to announce to Lord Tyrconnell his resolve to take up arms immediately for the Prince of Orange. In the Williamite army he soon attained the rank of colonel, and at the memorable siege of Derry distinguished himself by his almost Roman heroism.* When Kirke, the general, sent to the relief of the beleaguered town, arrived off Lough Foyle, he found a strong boom, or barricade, stretched across the harbour's mouth, so as effectually to preclude the passage of his ships. In despair, he would have sailed away without any communication with the defenders of Derry, when Colonel Roch offered to swim to the town, bearing dispatches. He did so, having attached bullets to the letters, that he might sink them in the event of his own capture, and returned to his companions; but having been repeatedly fired upon by the Irish troops who lined the banks, his jaw-bone was broken, and three musket-balls were lodged in different parts of his body. For this heroic feat he was, during the remainder of his life, honourably called "the Swimmer," and he received from the king the more substantial reward of the ferries of Ireland, along with fifteen of the forfeited estates. The latter were lost to him by the Act of Resumption, and parliament, in lieu, voted him a sum of money. But the funds from which this grant was to be derived fell so far short of the stipulated sum, that Colonel Roch did not receive above one-third of the voted money. This sum hardly covered the charges he had put himself to, in the raising and drilling of men; for in his enthusiasm for King WILLIAM, he had wholly dedicated to his service, not only his private means, but also a considerable fortune he had acquired with his wife. Colonel Roch m. 1st, in 1693, Elizabeth Gough, dau. of the Bishop

The Rev. Mr. Neville-Rolfe m. 2ndly, 5 Jan. 1833, Dorothy, widow of the Rev. T.-T. Thomason, chaplain to the Hon. East India Company.

Lineage.

It appears by old documents that the Rolfe had possessions at Heacham, in the beginning of the sixteenth century. In 1560, Eustacius Rolfe was m. at Heacham Church, to Joanna Jenner, and in 1593 he died, leaving a son, John, b. at Heacham, in 1562, who m. in 1582, Dorothea Mason, and d. in 1594. By the loss of the parish register, we do not meet with the family again till 1639, when FRANCIS ROLFE, son of Henry Rolfe, of Norfolk, m. Margaret, dau. of William Horsnell, of London, and after filling the office of town-clerk of Lynn, in 1662, was buried in the chapel of St. Nicholas, in that town, in 1678, having had issue,

1. JOHN, b. in 1641, who d. in 1706, leaving, by Dorothy, his wife, a son, William, b. in 1669, who m. Thomasine, dau. of John Ringall, Esq. of Easton, and dying s. p., at the age of 84, was buried in Norwich cathedral, in 1754.

II. Francis, b. in 1643.

III. Henry, b. in 1644, d. in 1647.

IV. William, b. in 1645, d. in 1649.

V. EDMUND, of whom presently.

1. Margaret, b. in 1646.

II. Susannah, b. in 1648.

III. Sarah, b. in 1650.

IV. Mary, b. in 1652.

The fifth son,

EDMUND ROLFE, town-clerk and sometime mayor of Lynn, m. in 1675, Elizabeth, dau. of Jonas Scott, alderman of Lynn, and d. at Lynn in 1726, having had issue, a son, JONAS, and nine daus., viz., Elizabeth, who d. an infant; Susan, m. to Charles Keene, Esq., mayor of Lynn, by whom she had Sir Benjamin Keene, and Dr. Edmund Keene, Bishop of Ely; Catherine, m. to Robert Cobb, Gent.; Mary, m. to the Rev. Thomas Pyle, of Lynn; Margaret, m. to William Allen, Esq. of Lynn; Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Phillips, Esq.; Frances, m. to James Gyles; Sarah, m. to Frances Botcher, Esq.; and Anne. The only son,

JONAS ROLFE, b. in 1677, m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Benjamin Keene, Esq. of Lynn, by whom he had issue, a son, EDMUND, and a dau., Bridget. He m. 2ndly, Lucy Pett, widow, youngest dau. of Charles Smith, Esq. of Colkirke, Norfolk, and by her had issue, a son, Jonas, and two daus., Catherine, m. to Dr. Stephen Olley; and Theodosia, m. to William Emperor, Esq. Jonas Rolfe d. before his father, in 1725, and is buried at Heacham. His son,

EDMUND ROLFE, Esq., b. in 1700, s. to the estates of his grandfather at Heacham, Lynn, &c., in 1726. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Humfrey Smith, Esq. of Brancaster, by whom (who d. in 1739) he had issue, a son, EDMUND, b. in 1738, and five daus., Elizabeth, m. to Edmund Elsdon, Esq. of Lynn; Anne; Bridget, m. to Peter Finch, Esq. of of Limerick, and had issue a son and dau., who were named after the king and queen, and had the honour of having their majesties for sponsors,

I. William, b. in 1695, d. at Glynn, of consumption, 29 July, 1723, having had a son, James Roch, who d. on the day following, aged nine months. He was buried, with his infant, in the family vault of Churchtown, co. Waterford.

II. Mary, b. in 1694, bapt. at St. Bride's Church, Dublin, 27 Oct. in that year. She was m. 17 Nov. 1709, to Capt. Benjamin Greene, (of the Kilmanahan family,) the son, by a previous marriage, of her father's second wife.

He m. 2ndly, 20 July, 1700, Mrs. Hanbury,* relict of John Hanbury, Esq., and by her (who d. at Dungarvan, 28 Dec. 1755) had a son and successor,

III. JAMES, of whom hereafter.

Colonel Roch was high-sheriff of the co. of Waterford in 1714; and on the 10th of Aug. in that year, by virtue of his office, he proclaimed King GEORGE I. at Dungarvan and Carrick-on-Suir. On 21 Dec. 1722, he was taken ill at Dungarvan, and d. there next day, in his sixty-fifth year. He was buried at Churchtown, in the vault beneath the family pew. His son of the second marriage succeeded,

JAMES ROCH, Esq. of Glynn Castle, near Carrick-on-Suir, and afterwards of Dungarvan, b. in 1702, and was twice married. By Anna-Maria, his first lady, (who d. 9 July, 1725, and was buried at Churchtown,) he had issue,

I. JAMES, his heir.

Mr. Roch m. 2ndly, at Cork, 3 March, 1730-31, Melian, dau. of Holmes, Esq., and by her (who d. in Nov. 1755) had further issue,

II. William, of Lehard, m. Mary, dau. of Ambrose Lane, of the co. Tipperary, by whom he had,

Sampson, m. his cousin, Melian, dau. of James Roch, Esq. of Odell Lodge.

William. Ambrose. Luke.

Elizabeth, m. 1st, Mr. Thomas; and 2ndly, Mr. Wogan. Johanna.

III. Luke, lieut. in the army, and collector of Kilkenny city, m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Waring, Esq., who predeceased him, s. p. He d. in 1781.

IV. Melian, m. Beverly Usher, Esq. of Canty, co. Waterford, and had issue, John Usher.

Melian, m. to George Boate, Esq. of Duckspool.

V. Andriah, m. in May, 1757, to Edward Jones, Esq., collector of Youghal, and d. 26 Feb. 1819, having had issue, Maria Jones, d. unm., 31 Oct. 1791.

Melian, m. in 1782, Samuel Hayman, Esq. of Youghal, (see HATMAN OF SOUTH ABBEY,) and d. in 1835.

VI. Susannah, d. unm.

He d. at Dungarvan, 28 Jan. 1740-41, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES ROCH, Esq. of Odell Lodge and Woodbine Hill, who, as a mark of respect to the memory of his gallant grandfather, Colonel Roch, was invited by the corporation of Londonderry to visit their city, upon which occasion he was entertained at a public dinner, and received from them his freedom, in a gold box valued forty guineas. He m. Isabella, elder dau. of John Osborne Odell, Esq. of Mount Odell, co. Waterford, (see ODELL OF CARRIGLEA,) and had issue,

I. John, deceased. II. James, deceased.

III. GEORGE, now of Woodbine Hill.

IV. Melian, m. to her cousin, Sampson Roch, (refer to William, of Lehard.)

He m. 2ndly, Mary, relict of Thomas Welch, of Killongford, co. Waterford, but had no further issue. At his death, 2 Dec. 1792, he was s. by his third son, the present representative of this very ancient and lordly house.

Captain Ryder s. his father in 1830, and is a claimant of the Barony of De Rythre.

Lineage.

This ancient family is derived from the Rythres, (the original orthography of the name,) who were formerly settled at Rythre, from which the patronymic was taken, in the hundred of Barkstone, co. York. From monumental inscriptions and the armorial bearings on certain portions of Harewood Castle, it appears, and reference is also made to it by Camden, that this "time-honoured edifice," which at present forms a picturesque ruin, was at one period the principal residence of the family.

Monastic memorials, and evidence derived from other sources, show that in the "olden time" the De Rythres exhibited an unusual degree of liberality in the endowment of religious establishments.

In the reign of RICHARD I., Sir William de Rythre had been a munificent benefactor of the monastery of Nun-Appleton, in Yorkshire, to the foundation charter of which his name, and that of his daughter Agnes, were amongst those of other witnesses subscribed, as the subjoined extract testifies:—

"Testibus Osverto archidiacono, Henrico, et Godfrido monachis de Pontefracto, Gilleberto filio Fulconis, Rainero Canonico, Ernaldo presbytero, Nicholao filio suo, Willielmo de Rythre chevalier, Agneta filia ejusdem, domino de Sancto Quintino, Richardo Mouetario."

In the following reign, his son and successor, Sir William, who appears to have been a baron by tenure, conveyed certain lands, together with the church of Rythre and the appurtenances thereof, "in libera elemosina," or frank alms, to the same monastery, evidence whereof is supplied by the confirmatory charter of King JOHN, which is entitled, "Carta Regis Johannis donationes diversas lecitans, et confirmans," and in which the following words occur:—"Ex dono domini Willielmi de Rythre chevalier, ecclesiam de Rythre, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis."

His grandson and successor, William, Lord de Rythre, was summoned as a baron to parliament from 21 EDWARD I. until 1 EDWARD II. His lordship was in "that expedition then made into Gascoigne," and in 26 EDWARD I., in the Scottish wars. So likewise, in 29, 31, and 32, of the same reign, Lord de Rythre had previously distinguished himself in the wars of the Crusades, as appears from the roll of Karloverok, which gives the names and describes the banners and achievements of the barons and knights, who, in 1300, attended EDWARD I. in his expedition into Scotland. "Nomina et insignia gentilitia, nobilium equitumque, sub Edwardo primo Regis militantium." His monument, which is situate in the south aisle of Rythre Church, in the Ainsty of York, is also declarative of the same circumstances, inasmuch as it exhibits a cross-legged knight, that position being the badge of a crusader. In the east window of the chancel, the De Rythre arms—Azure, three crescents, or—are repeatedly represented, and likewise in the east window of the south aisle, as well as in sculpture on his tomb. He m. Maud, dau. of William, Earl of Warwick, and sister of Guy, second earl of the family of Beauchamp. He appears to have been maternally descended from Eudo, Earl of Britany, through his son, Alan, first Earl of Richmond, who commanded the rear of the CONQUEROR'S army at the battle of Hastings; and also from Godfrey, Duke of Lorrain, through his dau., Adeliza, widow of HENRY I., who remarried William D'Albini, to whom she carried the castle and county of Arundel, which she had in dowry from the king; as his lands of Hazlewood and Addington seem to have been inherited through the Fitzalans.

His lordship was succeeded by his son, John, second baron, who was governor of Skypton Castle, Yorkshire, and in 17 EDWARD II. obtained a charter for free warren in all his demesne lands of Hazlewood and Addington, in co. York. He appears also to have obtained some grants in Ireland, as in vol. i. pars. 1, page 18, of Rotulorum Patentium et clausorum cancellariat Hiberniæ Calendarium, reference is made to him as a landed proprietor, on the occasion of the appointment of an agent or attorney, in the following words:—"114. Joh' Ba' de Rythre, att' Gil' d'e Stockbrigg—27 Oct. 1311." His tomb, which is in Rythre Church, immediately adjoins his father's, and is highly elaborate in sculptured devices and armorial bearings. He was s. by his son, William, third Lord de Rythre, who m. Sybilla, sister and co-heir of William, Lord Aldeburgh, whose other sister, Elizabeth, became the wife of Sir Bryan Stapleton, brother of Lord Stapleton, of Bedal, co. York, in right of his mother, Agnes, dau. and heir of Bryan, Lord Fitzalan. This nobleman would seem to have been connected by descent with the Royal line of Baliol, and to have endowed, as appears by the Monasticon Anglicanum, the monastery of Beauvale, in Nottinghamshire, with "a large and notable sum of money," as also with lands for ever, in his manors of Kyrkeby and Kereby, for the appointment of two priests to pray for ever for the souls of himself, his wife Sybilla, and Edward Baliol, chevalier. His descendants were repeatedly appointed to the shrievalty of Yorkshire, in the reigns of HENRY VI. and HENRY VII.

SIR WILLIAM DE RYTHRE, of Rythre, the lineal descendant and representative of Lord de Rythre, m. Lucy, dau. of Sir William Fitzwilliam, of Sprotborough, co. * The life of this celebrated man, "the president of nobleness and chivalrie," from its commencement to its close on the memorable field of Zutphen, may be regarded as the impersonation of the "poetry of action." To glance, however briefly, within these limits, at the leading incidents in the career of this eminent personage were impossible. He was born at Penshurst, 29 Nov. 1554, and, according to Camden's testimony, was "the great glory of his family, the great hope of mankind, the most lovely pattern of virtue, and the darling of the learned world." Thomson, in the following beautiful lines, thus apostrophises him, "at whose great birth all the muses met,"—

"Nor can my muse the gallant Sydney pass,
A plume of war, with early laurel crowned,
The lover's myrtle, and the poet's bay."

The exquisite character of the subjoined stanzas, which are extracted from a poem of really great power and brilliancy, entitled "Gerbino," will, perhaps, apologize for their insertion—

"Whilome there were ages
Upon this very earth—this clouded earth,
When stainless chivalry, and knightly worth
Were not as fables, and inventions fine;
When honour was alive, and daily seen
Sunning the light, where swords or sceptres shine,
When its awards were deemed the goodliest wages
For daring deeds. Oh! that unwint'ry season Few now believe, that such could e'er have been,
So dwarfed are men, so fallen in sorry treason,
'Gainst the old worship of the statelier scene.
Ye scoffers, has not Bayard lived—and died?
Has not the saint of honour, and full fame,
Sydney, displayed the marvel of his life
Upon the very soil where, far and wide,
The money-changers pant in their poor strife,
As though the land ne'er brightened with his name?"

It is, perhaps, hardly necessary to observe that the celebrated Countess of Pembroke was the sister of Sir Philip Sydney—

"Sydney's sister, Pembroke's mother,
Death e'er thou shalt slay another,
Fair, and good, and chaste as she,
Time shall throw a dart at thee."

The Lady Dorothy Sydney, daughter of his brother, the Earl of Leicester, was the Sacherissa of the poet Waller; her second brother, the Hon. Algernon Sydney, who was born at Penshurst, and so eminent in patriotism, suffered death by decapitation, on Tower Hill, 7 Dec. 1683. A curious corroboration of the doctrine which holds the hereditary transmission, though often interrupted during intervening generations, of mental as well as physical resemblances, occurs in the fact of Percy Bysshe Shelley, the poet, being, in the maternal line, a descendant of the Sydneys. On the left of the communion-table, in Christ's Church, Dublin, the following inscription is engraven on a handsome marble tablet, partly embedded in the wall, and surmounted by four well sculptured figures, two of which are those of children, and two represent adults, male and female, respectively, in an attitude of genuflection:—

"Hic situs est Franciscus Agardus Armiger, quondam cohortis equitum in Scotia sub domino Seimor de Sydley, Angliæ admiralio, præfectus, postea comitatus Weffordiae præpositus, in bello contra O'Nealum civitum equitum ductor. Provinciae mononæ commissarius primarius. Regionem

"Here lyeth entombed lady Cecilia Harrington, daughter and coheyre of Francis Agarde, Esq., most deare and loving wyfe of Syr Henry Harrington, knight, with whom when she had lyved 7 yeares most virtuously, and had brogtht forth two sonnes, James and John, she ended this lyfe the 8th of September, in the yeare 1584. For whose memorie, and her father's, Syr Henry Harrington, knight, hir lovinge hysbande, and his successor in office, erected this monvment att his own charges."

The Harrington family combines in its descent a considerable portion of affinity to the Saxon and Norman kings of England, and, through an heiress of the Courtenays, has equal pretensions with that illustrious house to a descent from the Capetian kings of France. It is also allied to the Royal blood of Scotland, on which account it was that King JAMES raised Sir John Harrington to the peerage, by the title of Baron Harrington of Exton. It appears also, according to Harrington's Oceana, the inscription engraven on the tomb of Sir James Harrington, and another on an elegant marble monument in the church of Zafra, in Spain, that Margaret, sister of Sir Henry Harrington, already alluded to, married Don Benito Cisneras, Duke of Fantasquo, in Spain, by whom she had an only child and heiress, who, marrying the Duke of Ferio, became by him the mother of a daughter, afterwards Queen of Portugal. Sir John Harrington, in his notes to the twelfth book of Ariosto, which he translated, relates the following anecdote:—"Rorie Oge, a notable rebel of Ireland, having taken in a vile and treacherous parley, Sir Henry Harrington, prisoner, had one night his cabin, or little hovel where he lay, beset with one hundred soldiers of the said Sir Henry's band, meaning to rescue their captain by force, sith the rebel's demands for his liberty were such as Sir Henry himself, being his prisoner, would not condescend unto, but would rather, as he knew he should, hazard his life. I say these one hundred men, being well appointed, beset the house strongly, which was made of nothing but hurdles and dirt; yet the villain, ere they could get in, got up in his shirt and gave the knight fourteen wounds very deadly, who after got through them all without hurt, though a mouse almost could not have got between them; and I have heard it affirmed in Ireland, that it was with mere witchcraft." To Sir Henry Harrington were granted the abbey and lands of Castledermot, and to his son Sir John, those of Baltinglas, who erected at Grange-Con, formerly the Grange of the Abbey of Baltinglas, a spacious castle, which continued to be the residence of his posterity, until the death, in 1843, of his great-great-grandson, the late Henry Harrington, Esq., when the male line of Sir Henry became extinct. Mr. Harrington erected at Grange-Con, two magnificent galleries, for the reception of paintings, curiosities, and objects of virtue, to the accumulation of which he devoted a large fortune, and upwards of sixty years of his life.

* After "jam secundo," tempore is understood, meaning that Sir H. Sydney was then, for the second time, Viceroy of Ireland.

SAUNDERS OF WENNINGTON HALL.

SAUNDERS, WILLIAM-ALLEN-FRANCIS, Esq. of Wennington Hall, co. Lancaster, b. 22 Aug. 1818; m. 30 Dec. 1841, Dorothy, dau. of the late Josias Morley, Esq. of Beamsley Hall, West Riding, and Marrick Park, North Riding, co. York, and has issue, II. Frances-Debonnaire.

III. Adeline-Cleere.

Mr. Saunders is a magistrate for the counties of Lancaster, Westmoreland, and the West Riding of the county of York.

From the earliest records we learn that Wennington Hall, together with the manor of Wennington, was held by a family of the name of Morley. At a period antecedent to the time of EDWARD II., William de Wennington was in possession of this estate, which, about 4 EDWARD III., (1330,) passed to the family of Morley, on the marriage of Margaret, only dau. and heiress of Gilbert de Wennington, with Richard de Merley, or Morley, of Great and Little Morley, co. Lancaster. The property remained in the possession of the Morleys until 1673, when, on their removal to Beamsley Hall, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, it was sold to the Marsdens of Gisburn. It was subsequently purchased by

RICHARD SAUNDERS, Esq. of Fair Lawn, co. Lancaster, eldest son of WILLIAM SAUNDERS,* and Elizabeth Rudd, his wife. Mr. Saunders m. in 1808, Anna-Maria, dau. of the late John-Leaper Newton, Esq. of Mickleover Hall, co. Derby, and has issue, Colonel Saunderson is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county of Cavan, and served as its high-sheriff in 1818.

Lineage.

In 1723, James, Earl of Castleton, dying without issue male, the family honours became dormant, and his great estate of Sandbeck, by will, was left to Thomas Lumley, Earl of Scarborough, who thereupon, by act of parliament took the surname of Saunderson.

This family is descended from Alexander de Bedick, alias Saunderson, of Waslington, in the bishopric of Dur-

SAY OF TILNEY, CO. OF NORFOLK.

SAY, FREDERIC-RICHARD, Esq. of Harley-street, Cavendish-square, the present representative of this branch of the distinguished family of that name, which has been connected with the county of Norfolk from a very early period, and has allied itself with the houses of Seymour, Wentworth, Tilney, Clopton, Cheney, Calthorpe, Hussey, Gore, and Brewster. Mr. Say m. 6 April, 1848, Henrietta, dau. of Richard-John Thompson, Esq. of Kirby Hall, co. York.

Lineage.

The first member of this ancient and noble family known in England was

PICOT DE SAYE, who accompanied the CONQUEROR from Normandy, where the family still exist. After the Conquest, he was one of the principal persons in the county of Salop. He m. Agnes, dau. of the renowned Hugh de Grentesmaisnill, and granddaughter of Ivo, Count of Bellemonte. To Picot succeeded THEODORIC DE SAYE. His dau. and heiress m. Hugh Fitz-Osborne. The Shropshire estates, and Richards' Castle, Herefordshire, also belonging to the Sayes, were carried eventually by marriage into the Mortimer family.

ENGELRAN DE SAYE d. in 1154. He was one of the staunchest adherents of King STEPHEN, and was made prisoner with him at the battle of Lincoln. To Engelran succeeded

STEPHEN, LORD SAYE, whose successor was

WILLIAM DE SAYE. He m. Beatrix, dau. of William de Magnavil, Count of Magnavil, Essex, and D'Aumale,† and sister and heiress of Geoffrey de Manneville, and by her, (who d. in 1201) had two sons, William and GEOFFREY. William, who d. in his father's lifetime, had two daus., Beatrix and Maud: the former m. to Geoffrey Fitz-Piers, from whom descended the Fitz-Piers' who subsequently succeeded to the Earldom of Essex. This William held the manor of Sayes, in the parish of Long Stratton, co. Norfolk. The second son,

GEOFFREY DE SAYE, m. Lettice, dau. of Walkelin de Maminot, by Julian, sister of Aubrey de Vere, Earl of

* In 1800, the barony of Castleton was offered to be renewed to Francis Saunderson, of Castle Saunderson, whose son and heir, Colonel Alexander, of the Cavan militia, lays claim to the viscounty of Castleton.

† From this marriage there is a direct line of male descent by the Counts de Magnavil, in Normandy, (whose family name is Say,) down to Stephen-Joseph, who died during the French revolution.

Oxford. She was subsequently heiress of her father and brother. Geoffrey was one of the barons chosen to proceed with William Longchamp, chancellor of England, with the 70,000 marks for the release of RICHARD I. He d. in 1215, and was s. by his son,

GEOFFREY DE SAYE, who m. Alice de Cheney. He was one of the twenty-five barons appointed to enforce the Magna Charta. His lands in the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Lincoln, Northampton, Cambridge, Essex, and Hereford were seized, but in the next reign he had full restitution, and levying the scutage of Montgomery, HENRY III., answered for forty-two knights' fees. He was co-founder with Sir John de Cheney, of Coxford Priory, and d. in 1230. His successor,

WILLIAM DE SAYE, governor of the Castles of Dover, Rochester, and Canterbury, and lord of Berling and Sele, in Kent, was at the battle of Lewes, on the king's part, fled thence, and d. in 1272. He held the manor of Hamsay, near Lewes, and in the church is an ancient monument, surrounded by an elegant gothic canopy, erected as a cenotaph for members of the Saye family. He m. Sybil, dau. of John Marshall, of Lenton, and had a son,

WILLIAM DE SAY. This feudal lord had summons to parliament, with other barons, 8 June, 1294, 22 Edward I., to advise with the king on the important affairs of the realm. He d. in 1295, leaving, by Mary, his wife, an only son,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, summoned to parliament 7 Edward II. He m. Joanna, dau. and heiress of Thomas, Lord Leyburne, and d. in 1322, leaving a son and heir,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, summoned to parliament in 1326, who obtained the king's charter for free warren in all his demesne lands within his lordships of Greenwich, Deptford, Codham, and Berling, in Kent. He was admiral of the king's fleet from the Thames, westward, and constantly employed in the wars of France and Flanders, where he is said to have done gallant service. He was also a knight-banneret, and had in his retinue four knights, &c. He m. Maud, dau. of Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and had, with three daus., (Idonea, m. to Sir John Clinton; Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Aldone; and Joane, m. 1st, to Sir W. Fiennes, 2ndly, to Stephen de Valomes,) one son,

WILLIAM DE SAY, summoned to parliament in 1362. By his wife, Beatrix Bruce, he had, with a dau., one son,

JOHN DE SAY, who d. in minority, a ward to the king, leaving his sister, ELIZABETH DE SAY, sole heiress. This lady, m. 1st, Sir John de Fallesey; 2ndly, Sir W. Heron, but d. without issue,* whereupon her aunt, IDONEA DE SAY (Lady Clinton) became the heiress of the estates of William, Lord Say and Baron of Sele, and the title fell into abeyance between the descendants of Lady Clifton and Lady Fiennes. In 1447, Lord Clinton gave up his claim, and Sir J. Fiennes was created BARON SAY AND SELE.

From the Fiennes' the title and estates of this branch of the SAYS passed into the Twisleton family. This family became connected with the Fiennes by marriage: they bear the title of Say, but the arms of Fiennes and Twisleton. To return to the Norfolk branch. In 1319,

GILBERT DE SAY, was seated at Clenchwarton, in that county, and had considerable property there. A branch of the family settled at Tilney Islington, the adjoining parish. In 1460,

ROBERT SAY possessed large estates in the parish of Tilney Islington and Tilney All Saints, and was s. by his grandson,

ROBERT SAY, who m. in 1540, Joan Lyndham, and had issue,

NICHOLAS SAY, who m. in 1566, Anne Stratholt, and had three sons and four daus. He d. in 1590, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT SAY, b. in 1574, who by Grace, his wife, had five sons, ROBERT; RICHARD, of whom presently; WILLIAM; Thomas, and Nicholas. The eldest,

* Sir W. Heron had summons to parliament as Lord Say, but dying without issue, an important manor and seat of the family of Sawbridgenorth afterwards came into the possession of John de Say, and upon his death, to Sir John Say, Knt. Sir Henry Wentworth m. Anne, dau. of Sir John Say; Margery, dau. of Sir H. Wentworth, m. Sir John Seymour, and was mother of Edward, Duke of Somerset, the Lord Protector, and Jane, second wife of HENRY VIII., mother of EDWARD VI.

ROBERT SAY, m. Frances Selby, and had only one dau. and heiress, Elizabeth, who m. 12 Aug. 1658, Thomas Wright, Esq. (whose mother was a Drury of Hawsted) of Sandy Downham, co. Suffolk. Her uncle,

RICHARD SAY, of Wreham, co. Norfolk, had possessions at Tilney Islington. By his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, he was father of

THOMAS SAY, b. in 1641, who m. Anne, and had two sons, NICHOLAS and Stephen. The elder son, NICHOLAS SAY, of Crimbleham, co. Norfolk, m. in 1696, Bridget Bellamy, and had issue, ROBERT and Nicholas, and daus. He d. in 1736, and was s. by his eldest son, ROBERT SAY, b. in 1697, who m. in 1724, Lydia Alderton, and had issue, five children. The youngest son,

WILLIAM SAY, Esq., b. in 1741, m. Catherine, dau. of Francis Grint, Esq., and had issue two children, WILLIAM; and Catherine, m. to T. Kersley, Esq. of Norwich. The son, WILLIAM SAY, Esq., b. in 1768, m. in 1791, Eleanor, dau. of Gray Frances, Esq. of Elmton, co. Essex, and d. in 1834. He had issue five children, the only surviving one is FREDERIC-RICHARD SAY, now of Harley-street.

SCARISBRICK OF SCARISBRICK.

SCARISBRICK, CHARLES, Esq. of Scarisbrick, co. Lancaster. This gentleman, whose patronymic was Eccleston, assumed the surname of Dicconson, on succeeding to the Wrightington estates, which surname he exchanged for that he now bears, on succeeding to the Scarisbrick estates in 1833. He served as sheriff of Lancashire in 1839.

Lineage.

HENRY ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, the first of the name recorded in the visitation of 1567, was grandfather of

ROBERT ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, living temp. HENRY III. His son,

RICHARD ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, was father of ALAN ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, who was s. by his son,

ROBERT ECCLESTON, of Eccleston. He m. Isabell, and had two sons, I. ALAN, whose son, Thomas, d. v. p.; and II. RICHARD. The second son,

RICHARD ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, was s. by his son, JOHN ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, who m. Ellen, dau. of Sir Robert Langton, Baron of Newton, and was father of HENRY ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, who by his wife, Ellen, dau. of Sir Peter Gerard, of Bryn, had a son,

JOHN ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, temp. HENRY V. His wife was Ellen, dau. of Bold, of Bold, by whom he had a son and successor,

RALPH ECCLESTON, of Eccleston, who held the manors of Eccleston and Rainhill, which were extended to six carucates of land, worth £20, by the service of half a knight's fee and a rent 5s. 1d. He m. Agnes, dau. of William Leyland, Esq. of Morley, and had a son, HENRY, who m. Ellen, dau. of Robert Downes, of Shrigley, co. Chester, and d. v. p., leaving a son JOHN.

Ralph Eccleston was s. by his grandson,

JOHN ECCLESTON, Esq. of Eccleston, who m. Katherine, dau. of Sir Henry Halsall, of Halsall, and had,

I. THOMAS.

II. Henry, who m. Grace, dau. and heir of John Parre, Esq., a younger son of Parre, of Parre.*

I. Anne, m. to Thomas Rixton, Gent. of Sankey.

II. Elizabeth, m. to John Lathom, Gent. of Mosborough.

III. Margaret, m. to Robert Fazakerley, Gent. of Walton.

IV. Alice, m. to Roger Walker, Gent. of Liverpool.

V. Ellen, married.

The eldest son,

THOMAS ECCLESTON, Esq. of Eccleston, m. Ellen, dau. of Peter Leghe, Esq. of Bradley, and had issue,

* This John Parre d. in 1531, and by Inq. post mortem, was found to have held lands in Parre and Lathom, by knight's service under Edward, Earl of Derby.

- i. HENRY.
i. Katherine, m. to William Parr, Esq. of Parr, (see p. 1004.)
ii. Anne.
iii. Dorothy.

The eldest son,

HENRY ECCLESTON, Esq. of Eccleston, was living at the time of the visitation by William Flower, Norroy, in 1567. He m. Margery, dau. and co-heir of Ralph Birkenhead, Esq. of Croton, co. Chester, by whom he had two sons, EDWARD and Richard. The elder son, EDWARD ECCLESTON, Esq. of Eccleston, s. his father.

By an ordinance of parliament, in 1645, the estates of THOMAS ECCLESTON, Esq., (who appears to have been grandson of the above Edward,) were sequestered: one-fifth being allowed to his widow and children for their maintenance. These estates, however, were subsequently restored to the family, and regularly descended to the late proprietor,

THOMAS ECCLESTON, Esq. of Eccleston, who sold the estate of Eccleston to Col. Samuel Taylor, of Moston, whose son is the present proprietor Mr. Eccleston m. the heiress of the Scarisbricks, and assumed, in consequence, the additional surname of SCARISBRICK. He also inherited the estate of Wrightington, on the decease of his uncle, Edward Dicconson, Esq. of Wrightington. He had issue,

- i. THOMAS, who assumed the surname and arms of SCARISBRICK only.
ii. CHARLES, who assumed the surname of Dicconson, and s. to Wrightington.
i. Anne, m. in 1807, to Sir Thomas Windsor Hunloke, Bart.
ii. Eliza, m. in 1819, to Edward Clifton, Esq.
iii. Maria.
iv. Catherine.

On the decease of Mr. Eccleston-Scarisbrick, his son,

THOMAS SCARISBRICK, Esq., s. to the Scarisbrick estates. He m. Sybella-Georgiana, dau. of William Harrington, Esq. of Shaw Hall, but d.s.p., 11 July, 1833, when he was s. by his brother, the present CHARLES SCARISBRICK, Esq. of Scarisbrick.

Arms of ECCLESTON—Arg., a cross, sa., in the dexter chief a fleur-de-lis, gules.

Dicconson of Wrightington.

The lordship of Wrightington was part of the extensive barony of Manchester, and was given by Albert de Gresley, to ORM, son of Edward, progenitor of the Ashtons of Ashton. His son, ROGER DE WRIGHTINGTON, gave lands to the Abbey of Cockersand. His descendant, JOHN WRIGHTINGTON, an officer of militia in the reign of Queen MARY, was one of those conscientious magistrates whose remonstrance on the subject of the Sabbath, in Lancashire, had the effect of producing the ecclesiastical high commission in the reign of ELIZABETH. ANNE, dau. and heir of JOHN WRIGHTINGTON, Esq., m. ROBERT DICCONSON, Esq., and their grandson, WILLIAM DICCONSON, was convicted of high treason in the reign of WILLIAM III.

WILLIAM DICCONSON, Esq., who m. Meliora, dau. of Thomas Stanley, of Little Eccleston, d.s.p., and the property passed to his brother, EDWARD DICCONSON, Esq., in 1812. He was s. by his nephew, THOMAS ECCLESTON, Esq., as before noticed.

 Wrightington Hall was the first house, north of the Trent, into which sash-windows were introduced.

Scarisbrick of Scarisbrick.

In an inspeximus of 17 EDWARD II., contained in the chartulary of Burscough, a charter without date is recited, by which WALTER, Lord of Scarsbrek, grants to that house two acres of land, formerly belonging to his brother, Adam de Hokenhead. From him descended JAMES SCARESBREKE, who by Ing. p. m., 4 HENRY VII., was found to have held the manor of Scarsbreke, with other lands in the neighbouring parishes. HENRY SCARISBRICK, of Scarisbrick, m. a dau. of Parker, of Bradkirk; and their son,

EDWARD SCARISBRICK, of Scarisbrick, d. about 1653, leaving, by his wife, Frances, dau. of Roger Bradshaigh, of Haigh, a son,

JAMES SCARISBRICK, of Scarisbrick, aged 29 years, at 288

the visitation of Sir William Dugdale, in 1664. He m. Frances, dau. of Robert Blundell, of Ince Blundell, and had a son, EDWARD SCARISBRICK, aged 6 years, at the visitation above mentioned.

The estates eventually passed to the Eccleston family, before noticed.

JAMES SCOTT, of Brotherton b. in 1719, d.s.p. in 1807, and was s. by his nephew, JAMES SCOTT, of Brotherton, b. in 1776, who d. 22 Sept. 1844, and was s. by his brother, the present DAVID SCOTT, Esq. of Brotherton.

Arms—Arg., on a fesse, crenelle, betwixt three lions' heads erased, gu., a star, to denote the third son.

Crest—A lion, rampant, with a sword in the dexter paw.

Motto—Paterno robore tutus.

Seat—Brotherton, near Bervie, on the German Ocean.

*. It is a curious fact that there was no birth in the house of Brotherton for 118 years, from 1725 until 1843, the last having been that of David Scott, of Nether Benholm, father of the present proprietor, in 1725; the next in 1843, that of the eldest child of Mrs. Diekson: nor any marriage for 111 years, from 1735 till 1846, the marriage in 1735 having been that of Miss Scott, to Mr. Mill, of Old Montrose; that in 1846, Miss Scott, to the Rev. Walter Butler.

The Chevalier St. George was concealed in the garden of Brotherton a short time previously to his embarkation from Scott of Logie's house, in Montrose, where he slept the last night he was in Scotland, in 1716.

The marriage settlement of Hercules Scott and Helen Ramsay, signed by seventeen witnesses, and given at Fasque in 1706, is still in Mr. Scott's possession, and is a most curious old document.

SCOTT OF MALLENY.

SCOTT, CARTERET-GEORGE, Esq. of Malleny, in Mid-Lothian, late a Captain in the Hon. East India Company's service, m. 1st, in 1830, Charlotte, dau. of the late Colonel M'Dougal, and grand-niece of George, Marquis of Tweeddale, which lady d. in 1831; and, 2ndly, in 1833, Emily, dau. of Admiral Frederick-Holmes Coffin, R.N., of the ancient family of Coffin, of Devon. Captain Scott s. his uncle, the late General Scott, of Malleny, and is a magistrate and deputy-lieut. for Mid-Lothian.

Lineage.

THE SCOTTS OF MALLENY, an ancient branch of Buccleuch, appears to have separated from the parent stock during its residence in Lanarkshire. The first of the family that settled in Mid-Lothian was

JAMES SCOTT, of Scotsloeh, who lived in the reigns of Queen MARY and JAMES VI. He was father of

LAURENCE SCOTT, of Clerkington, a distinguished person in the time of CHARLES I., who was appointed clerk to the privy council, and one of the principal clerks of session. From several charters under the great seal, it appears that his possessions were extensive in Edinburghshire. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Hop Pringle of Torsonce, and had (with two daus., one m. to Lauder of Hatton; and the other, to Houstoun) three sons, viz.,

WILLIAM, his heir.

James, who received from his father the lands of Bonnytown, in West-Lothian.

Laurence, ancestor of the Scotts of Bavelaw.

The eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, of Clerkington, received the honour of knighthood from CHARLES I., and was appointed, in 1642, one of the senators of the College of Justice. He m. 1st, a dau. of Morrison, of Preston Grange, and had a son, LAURENCE, his heir. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Sir John Dalmahoy, of that ilk, and had by her three sons and three daus., viz.,

I. JOHN, successor to his brother.

II. James, of Scotsloeh.

III. Robert, dean of Hamilton.

I. Barbara, m. 1st, to a son of Stewart, of Blackhall; and 2ndly, to Sir William Drummond, of Hathornden.

II. Agnes, m. to Sir John Heme, of Renton.

III. —, m. to Ogilvie, of Muckle, in Angus.

Sir William Scott was s. by his son,

LAURENCE SCOTT, Esq. of Clerkington, who m. a dau. of Sir John Dalmahoy, and had two daus. only: the elder, the wife of George Winram, Esq. of Egemouth; and the younger, of Robert Kennedy, Esq., comptroller of the Customs, at Borrowstones. Dying thus without male issue, he was s. by his brother,

JOHN SCOTT, Esq., who received from his father, in patrimony, the lands and harony of Malleny, in Mid-Lothian, which has ever since been the chief title of the family. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir Thomas Nicolson, of Cockburnspath, and had (with two daus., the elder, m. to Sir William Calderwood, of Polton, one of the senators of the College of Justice; and the younger, to her cousin, Laurence Scott, of Bavelaw) two sons, viz.,

I. THOMAS, his heir.

II. William, an advocate at the Scottish bar, who m. 1st, Magdalen, dau. and heiress of William Blair, Esq. of Blair, and had one son,

1. WILLIAM, who inherited the estate and assumed the surname of BLAIR. He d. without issue in 1732, when he settled his lands upon the children of his father's second marriage.

William Scott (the elder) m. 2ndly, Catherine, only dau. of Alexander Tait, merchant, in Edinburgh, and had five sons and six daus., who all assumed the surname of BLAIR, viz.,

2. HAMILTON BLAIR, Esq. of Blair, major in the Scots Greys, who m. Jane, youngest dau. of Sydenham Williams, Esq. of Herrington, co. Dorset, and dying in 1782, left (with two daus., Agatha, m. to Lieutenant-General Arvane; and Jane, m. to Robert Williams, Esq. of Cerne Abbas, in Dorsetshire) a son and successor,

WILLIAM BLAIR, Esq. of Blair, colonel of the Ayrshire regiment of Fencible Cavalry, who m. Magdalen, eldest dau. of the late John Fordyce, Esq. of Aytoun, in Berwickshire, and had five sons and seven daus. Of the latter, the eldest, Catherine, m. Matthew Fortescue, Esq. of Stephenstown, co. Lowth; and the third, Jane-Louisa, was wife of Colonel Jackson, of Enniscoe, co. Mayo.

3. Alexander Blair, surveyor of the Customs at Port Glasgow, who m. Elizabeth, only dau. of John Hamilton, Esq. of Grange, in Ayrshire, and had issue.

4. John Blair, captain of Foot, who fell at Minden, in 1759.

5. Thomas Blair, a cornet in the Scots Greys, killed at the battle of Vald, in 1747.

6. William Blair, a lieutenant of Foot, killed at Oswego, in India, in 1756.

1. Anne Blair, m. David Blair, of Adamton, and had a dau., Catherine, the wife of Sir William Maxwell, Bart. of Monreith.

2. Magdalen Blair, m. Sir William Maxwell, Bart. of Monreith, and had, with other issue, a dau., Jane, wife of Alexander, Duke of Gordon.

3. Janet Blair, m. Alexander Tait, Esq., one of the principal clerks of Session, and had issue.

4. Barbara Blair, m. William Fullarton, Esq. of that ilk, and had issue.

5. Catherine Blair, d. unm.

6. Mary Blair, m. Sir John Sinelair, Bart. of Stevenston, and had issue.

John Scott d. in 1709, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS SCOTT, Esq. of Malleny, who m. Isahel, dau. of Sir John Lauder, Bart. of Fountain Hall, one of the senators of the College of Justice, and had a son and successor,

JOHN SCOTT, Esq. of Malleny, who m. 22 Aug. 1742, Susan, dau. of Lord William Hay, of Newhall, third son of John, 2nd Marquess of Tweeddale, and had issue,

I. THOMAS, of Malleny.

II. James, who commanded a ship in India, and d. there.

III. Alexander, who served in the Scots Brigade, in Holland, and attained the rank of major in the British army. He resided at Lymphoy, on the estate of Malleny.

IV. Archibald, who was in the military service of the E. I. Company, and fell in action.

V. Francis-Carteret, who went in 1774, collector of Customs, to Montego Bay, in Jamaica, and returned in 1800. He m. in 1801, Charlotte-Elizabeth, eldest dau. of the late Major-Gen. George Cunningham, of the Scots Brigade, and had six sons and five daus., viz.,

1. Thomas, b. at Ravelrig, co. Mid-Lothian, in 1802, and d. in 1832.

2. CARTERET-GEORGE, now of Malleny.

3. George, in the island of Jamaica.

4. Alexander, captain in the 53rd regiment.

5. John, lieutenant in the same regiment.

6. Stair-Primrose, bred to the law.

1. Isabella-Frances, m. in 1824, to George-More Nisbett, Esq. of Cairnhill, co. Lanark, and has issue.

2. Charlotte, d. in 1814.

3. Jane.

4. Charlotte-Elizabeth.

5. Lavinia-Cockburn.

VI. Hamilton, in the military service of the East India Company, killed in action.

VII. George, who after serving in the West Indies, and attaining the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the British army, retired from the line, and is now lieutenant-col. of the Edinburgh regiment of North British Militia.

I. Margaret.

II. Jane.

III. Susan.

IV. Molly.

The eldest son,

THOMAS SCOTT, Esq. of Malleny, a general in the army, b. 25 Dec. 1745, obtained an ensigncy in the 24th regiment, 20 May, 1761, and his career was highly distinguished. He served under Prince Ferdinand during the whole of the campaign of 1762, and carried the colours of his regiment at the battle of Welfenstall, and at the attack of the British picquets on the Fulda. In 1763, returning home, he was stationed in Ireland, and obtained his lieutenantancy in 1765. In 1776, he accompanied his regiment to America, served two campaigns under General Burgoyne, with a company of marksmen attached to a large body of Indians, and acquitted himself so much to the satisfaction of his commanding officer, Brigadier Fraser, that he twice received thanks in public orders. After the battle of the 19th Sept. 1777, the critical situation of Burgoyne rendering it indispensably necessary to communicate with Sir Henry Clinton, the commander-in-chief, two officers were selected, who should take different routes, to apprise Sir Henry of the perilous position of the British forces. Captain Scott, who was well known as an excellent pedestrian, was chosen as one of the envoys, and accomplished his journey with great address and courage. In 1788, he returned to Europe; in 1791, served, during the Spanish armament, with a detachment of the 53rd regiment, for six months on board his majesty's ship Hannibal, commanded by Sir John Colpoys, and proceeding, in 1793, to the Continent with Sir Ralph Abercromby, assisted at the sieges of Valenciennes and Dunkirk, and in the attack in which the Austrian General D'Alton was killed. He was also at the siege of Newport, and received the commission of major for his exertions in its defence. During the three days that Prince William of Gloucester commanded the brigade, which consisted of the 14th, 37th, and 53rd regiments, Major Scott was attached to the staff of his royal highness, was present at the attack of the village of Premont, and participated in the action of the 24th May, being wounded that day in the inside of the right thigh by a musket-ball. In 1794, he was appointed lieutenant-col. of one of the battalions of the 94th, and in the following year proceeded with it to Gibraltar, and in 1796, to the Cape of Good Hope. He served the whole of the campaign of 1799, in the Mysore country, and was at the capture of Seringapatam. In 1800, Colonel Scott, in consequence of ill health, deemed it expedient to return to Europe, and left Hindostan. The Indiaman, however, in which he was a passenger, being boarded and taken by a French privateer, in the British Channel, close to the Isle of Wight, Colonel Scott was detained some weeks at Cherbourg, until exchanged, in consequence of an application to the French government by the desire of the Duke of York. In 1801, he was appointed colonel by brevet; in 1802, inspecting field-officer of the Edinburgh recruiting district; in 1803, deputy inspector-general of the recruiting service in North Britain; in 1804, brigadier-general; in 1808, major-general on the staff, and, in 1813, lieutenant-general. It is a remarkable circumstance in the history of General Scott's life, that from the time he was appointed ensign to his promotion to the rank of general, a period of no less than fifty-two years, he had served without ever being on half-pay or unemployed. Since his retirement from his staff appointment, the general chiefly resided at Malleny, where, after a long and severe military career, he enjoyed a well-earned repose, alike distinguished for his benevolence, hospitality, and kindness to his tenants. His nephew and heir is the present CARTERET-GEORGE SCOTT, Esq. of Malleny.

SCRIMGEOUR.

The ancient and distinguished family of Scrimgeour, in which vests the dignified office of Hereditary Standard-Bearer to the Kings of Scotland, may be traced as Knights Bannerets in the earliest records of North Britain, and have held the important office to which we have just referred for full seven centuries. "They derive their origin" (we quote George Crawford's Peerage) "from one Sir Alexander Carron, a brave and valiant knight, (the first Knight we read of in Scottish History),* who, in the 1st of ALEXANDER, A.D. 1107, signalized his valour against the northern rebels, who attempted no less than the murder of the king, for which, continue they, he had the name changed to Scrimgeour; that is, a Hardy Fighter. Wherefore, he had a special grant from the king to himself and the heirs male of his body to be hereditary standard-bearers to the Kings of Scotland, and for his coat of arms—Gules, a lion rampant, or, in the dexter paw, a crooked sword proper, and the Latin word 'Dissipate' for his motto. (Supporters, borne by the chief of the family—Two greyhounds, ppr., collared, gu.) Mr. Johnson, the poet, has left us the following verses to the honour of his memory:—

"Quid trepidas? Da Signa mihi, superahimus amnem, Terreat an pavidos nos fugitiva Cohors?
Dixit, et arreptis Signis, ruit acer in hostem
Nil rapidi metuens agmina torva vadi;
Hinc decus augusto surgit sub principe, ab armis
Scrimigeræ genti, fama decusque manent;
Arma alius jactet nos scimus fortibus armis
Utimur, haud dici, malumus esse viri."

TRANSLATED 1847.

What sudden dread has seized upon our host?
They fly! or stand unnerved—their vigour lost!
Give me the standard! Let us pass yon flood,
And dye its foaming waves in traitors' blood!
Then hore the standard fierce towards the foe,
Nor checked him the deep stream, that roared below:
Thus first in arms the Scrimgeours earned their name,
And still rank honoured on the roll of fame:
Though chief in fight, they other weapons wield,—
To act, and counsel, skillful as in field:
Others, to show and semblance hound their aim;
These prove them men!—They seek no gilded name.

"This name has been remarkable in our Scots history on several other occasions; particularly, Sir Alexander Scrimgeour was among the first who took the field for King ROBERT BRUCE, and faithfully adhering to him, in consideration of which, when that valiant prince came to be established on the throne, he gave him sundry lands about the burgh of Inverkeithing, then in the crown, by the attainder of Sir Philip de Moubray, Knight. Also, Sir John Scrimgeour was killed at the battle of Halydon-hill, A.D. 1333; and another, Sir James Scrimgeour, Constable of Dundee, his successor, was slain in the Governor's army against Donald, Lord of the Isles, at the battle of Harlaw, A.D. 1411. I need not be at much pains to show you the several matches they have made with some of the noble families of this kingdom, since the whole course of this book makes mention thereof; only I shall take notice that, in process of time, after to have flourished long in the state of Barons, they came to the honour of Peerage, in the person of Sir James Scrimgeour, Constable of Dundee, who was raised to the honour of Viscount Dudhope by King CHARLES the First, in the year 1641. Upon the breaking out of the civil war, he accepted of a command of those forces that were sent from Scotland to the aid of the English parliament against the king, and lost his life at the battle of Marston Moor, on the 2nd of July, 1644—a person, says one, who, for the nobleness of his extraction, and many personal endowments, deserved a better fate, at least to have died in a better cause. He left a son, John, by Mary or Margaret, his wife, daughter of Robert, first Earl of Roxburgh, who succeeded him in honour.

"This Lord put himself in arms in behalf of King CHARLES the Second, and marched with him to the battle of Worcester, on the 3rd of September, 1651, after which he suffered much for his loyalty; but, living to see the Restoration, he received some part of amends, being created Earl of Dundee, A.D. 1661, and made one of the privy council: his wife, Mary, daughter of William, first Earl of Dalhousie; but dying without issue in 1668, by reason of an entail of his estate, which, purely through inadvertency, terminated in his heirs male (heirs male of his body), the king succeeded thereto as ultimus hæres, and the honour became extinct. In 1688, however, the title of Viscount Dundee, a new creation, was bestowed on General Graham (Claverhouse), who descended from Sir Robert Graham, who was married to Marjory, daughter of Sir James Scrimgeour, Constable of Dundee."

The office of Standard-Bearer has been claimed at all the coronations since that of GEORGE III., for the purpose of a salvo jure, by the descendants of James Scrimgeour, Esq., formerly of Foxhall, Kirkliston, West Lothian, N.B., against the Lauderdale family,* and every other competitor. The present senior male heir of that gentleman,

ROBERT-SHEDDEN SCRIMGEOUR, Esq., resident at Totteridge, Herts, claims to be male representative of the Lord Scrimgeour, Viscount Dudhope, his eldest brother, James Scrimgeour, having died s.p.na., of wounds received in battle, in the gallant affair of Fuente Guinaldo, in Portugal, during the Peninsular war. He fell from the effects of a gun-shot wound received whilst rallying and leading on, as acting adjutant, the last, but successful charge of a small band of the 11th Light Dragoons, (in which regiment he was seeking distinction and promotion,) and a small party of the German Legion, against a far superior force of the French cavalry, through which, after repeated charges, they succeeded in cutting their way. He was borne off in his dying triumph, and buried by his comrades with military honours.†

JAMES SCRIMGEOUR, Esq., the father of these two brothers, as well as of two younger sons and four daughters, by Janet, his wife, youngest dau. of Robert Shedden, Esq., of Morris Hill, near Beith, N.B., was eldest son of James Scrimgeour, Esq. of Foxhall, near Kirkliston, West-Lothian, N.B., by his wife, Dorothy Hill, a near relative of Principal Hill, of the College of St. Andrews. The father of the last-named James Scrimgeour, of Foxhall, married a lady of the Cameron family, a near relative of Lochiels', and espoused, like that gallant chief, the unsuccessful cause of the Stuarts. He was Hereditary Royal Standard-Bearer of Scotland, being male heir and representative of the family of SIR JAMES SCRIMGEOUR, Constable of Dundee, Royal Standard-Bearer, whose son was ancestor of the Scrimgeours, Viscounts Dudhope and Earl of Dundee, and whose dau., Marjory, wedded to Graham of Balargus, was progenitrix of the gallant John Graham, of Claverhouse, who, in remembrance of his descent from the Scrimgeours, took, when elevated to the peerage, the title of Viscount Dundee.

ROBERT-SHEDDEN SCRIMGEOUR, the present representative of this long descended line, married Margaret, eldest daughter of the late James Wilson, Esq., F.R.S., Professor of Anatomy to the Royal College of Surgeons, and many years Lecturer in the Hunterian School of Windmill-street, and has issue, CHARLES-JAMES; Margaret-Elizabeth; and Janet-Shedden.

SCUDAMORE OF KENTCHURCH.

SCUDAMORE, JOHN-LUCY, Esq. of Kentchurch Court, co. Hereford, b. 20 Feb. 1798, m. at Norton, in Radnorshire, in Oct. 1822, Sara-Laura, elder dau. of Sir Harford-Jones Brydges, Bart. of Boultonbrooke, and has had issue, a son, born at Florence, 24 Nov. 1823, who d. in infancy, and a dau., Laura-Adelaide. Mr. Scudamore, who is a captain in the Hereford militia, and a deputy-lieutenant for the county, s. his father, 12 April, 1805.

* At the decease of the Earl of Dundee in 1668, Charles II. allowed the office to be exercised by his favourite, the Duke of Lauderdale. For some account of the singularly inequitable, cruel, and ungrateful proceedings of the Duke of Lauderdale, by which the family were deprived of their entailed estates, labouring then only under some remaining temporary embarrassments, incurred solely in the service of the Crown, see Nisbet's Heraldry, ed. 1816, vol. ii. App. p. 48. These estates are still held under the Crown by some noble Scotch families, subject, however, at any time to alterable or chargeable tenure.

† One who also fought in the affair of Fuente Guinaldo, wrote thus:—"He and I were excellent friends:—we studied Euclid, or played together, every evening, hits at backgammon for amusement or relief. I can offer no consolation; but it may be gratifying to add, that I am a veteran and have been in many an action; this was his first, and his post the most important. I have, in my time, seen many a brave man die; but never did I witness one fall, covered with more glory."

The newspapers of the day, on this our first brush with the French cavalry, generously, and at once, retracted all their previous sarcasms on our untried cavalry; and pronounced that this little affair, of a small reconnoitring party saving themselves, though opposed to the body of the French cavalry, had never been surpassed in gallantry, either in ancient or modern times.

The SCUDAMORES, one of the most eminent families in the West of England, have been established at Kentchurch for many centuries. At an early period it became divided into two distinct families, the Scudamores of Kentchurch and the Scudamores of Home Lacy,* but the exact period when the branches separated has not been accurately ascertained.

SIR ALAN SCUDAMORE, Knt., living 4th of WILLIAM RUFUS, m. Jane, dau. and heir of Sir Alexander Ketchmey, (Catchmay,) Lord of Troy and Bigsweat, in Mounmouthshire, and left a son and successor,

SIR TITUS SCUDAMORE, Lord of Troy and Bigsweat, who m. Joyce, dau. of Sir Robert Clifford, Lord of Clifford, and had two sons, WILCOCK (Sir), who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of Sir Brian Trowhek, Knt.; and

JENKIN SCUDAMORE, who m. Alice, or Agnes, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Ewyas, Knt., and had two sons, JOHN (Sir), his heir; and Philip, who was, according to some authorities, ancestor of the Home Lacy branch. The elder son,

SIR JOHN SCUDAMORE, m. Jane, dau. of Sir Walter Baskerville, of Erdisley, co. Hereford, and was father of

SIR JOHN SCUDAMORE, who m. Joyce, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Marbery, Knt., and left a son and successor,

SIR JENKIN SCUDAMORE, who m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Sir Walter Pedwarden, or Bredwarden, Knt., and had two sons, JOHN (Sir), his heir; and Philip, who, on the authority of most of the ancient pedigrees, was ancestor of the Scudamores of Home Lacy. The elder son,

SIR JOHN SCUDAMORE, Knt. of Kentchurch, living in the reigns of EDWARD II. and HENRY IV., m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of the celebrated Owen Glendower, and left a son and successor,

JOHN SCUDAMORE, of Kentchurch, by some styled a knight. He m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Brytt, and was father of

SIR JOHN SCUDAMORE, Knt. of Kentchurch, living 13 EDWARD IV., (1473,) who m. Joan, dau. of John ap Harry (Parry), of Boston, in Herefordshire, and had two sons, viz.,

i. JAMES, or JOHN, his heir.

ii. Richard, of Rowleston, m. Jane, dau. of Richard Monington, Esq. of Brinsop, co. Hereford, and had a son,

John, of Rolleston, who m. Anne, dau. of Philip Scudamore, Esq. of Home Lacy, (Pedigree of the Home Lacy family, by Cooke, Clar.) According to other accounts, she was called Joyce, but her surname is not given. John Scudamore was father of PHILIP, of Rowlstone, of whom presently, as continuator of the family, and possessor, jure uxoris, of Kentchurch.

Sir John's elder son,

JAMES SCUDAMORE, or (according to Harl. MSS., 1545, fol. 42,) JOHN SCUDAMORE, of Kentchurch, m. Eleanor, dau. of Griffith ap Nicholas, of Newton, in Carmarthen-shire, by Alice, his wife, dau. of Sir Thomas Perrot, of Heraldston, co. Pembroke, and had (with a dau., Catherine, wife of Richard Monington, Esq. of Sarnsfield) a son,

THOMAS SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Kentchurch, who left, by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Morgan Jenkin ap Philip, of Pencoyd, in Monmouthshire, two sons, JAMES, his heir; and Nicholas, ancestor (according to the Harl. MSS.) of the Scudamores of Llancillo, co. Monmouth. The elder son,

* SIR JAMES SCUDAMORE, of Home Lacy, in the time of ELIZABETH, is celebrated as "Sir Scudamore," in SPENSER'S Fairy Queen. He left, at his decease, (with a daughter, Mary, the wife of Sir Giles Brydges, of Wilton Castle,) a son and successor,

JOHN SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Home Lacy, created VISCOUNT SCUDAMORE, of Sligo, in 1628, an honour which expired with his great grandson,

JAMES, 3rd Viscount Scudamore, who d. in 1716, leaving an only dau. and heiress,

THE HON. FRANCES SCUDAMORE, b. in 1711, m. 1st, to Henry Somerset, Duke of Beaufort, and 2ndly, to Charles-Fitzroy Scudamore, Esq. By the latter she left an only child.

FRANCES SCUDAMORE, of Holme Lacy, who m. Charles, late Duke of Norfolk, but dying issueless, in 1820, Holme Lacy passed to the present SIR EDWIN-F. SCUDAMORE-STANHOPE, Bart., the descendant of Mary Scudamore, wife of Sir Giles Brydges.

JAMES SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Kentchurch, lived in the reign of HENRY VII. He m. Joane, or Sibell, dau. of Sir James Baskerville, Knt. of Erdisle, in Herefordshire, and had two daus., his co-heirs, of whom Eleanor, became the wife of Miles ap Harry, Esq. of Newcourt; and

JOAN SCUDAMORE, inheriting Kentchurch, m. her cousin, PHILIP SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Rowllstone, and left a son and successor,

JOHN SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Kentchurch, who leases lands in Langua, in 1562, and is a party to his son's marriage settlement, in 1575. He m. Margaret, or Mary, dau. and co-heir of Sir William, or Sir John Pollard, Knt. of Oxfordshire, and had,

i. THOMAS, his heir.

i. Alice, m. to Anthony Elton, Esq. of The Hazell, in Herefordshire.

ii. Mary, m. to Rees Morgan, Esq. of Trillegh, in Llanvihangel, Kilcorney, in Monmouthshire.

The son,

THOMAS SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Kentchurch, m. 1st, Jane, or Joan, dau. of William Scudamore, Esq. of Holm Lacy; 2ndly, (marriage settlement dated 1575,) Agnes, dau. and co-beir of Henry White, Esq.; and 3rdly, Anne, dau. of — Middlemore, living a widow in 1616. Mr. Scudamore left, at his decease, which occurred previously to the 44th ELIZABETH, (with a younger son, Philip, named in the entail of settlement, 42nd of that queen,) a successor,

JOHN SCUDAMORE, Esq. of Kentchurch, who m. before 16 March, 1600, as appears by settlement after marriage of that date, Amy, dau. of John Starkey, Esq. of Darlie Hall, co. Cbeater, and by her (who m. 2ndly, Thomas Cavendish, Esq.) had eight sons and one dau., viz.,

i. JOHN, his heir.

ii. Philip, m. Margery, dau. of Edmund Weaver, alderman of Hereford, and had two sons, Philip and John, and one dau., Elizabeth, m. to John Hoskyns, Esq.

SHORTT OF DUMFRIESSHIRE.

The surname of this family appears, from the public records, to have been spelled at different periods, Schorte, Schort, Short, and Shortt; and there is reason to believe that they came to Scotland from Holland. The date of their transmigration is uncertain, but so far back as 1491, tradition states ARCHIBALD SCHORT to have been the proprietor of all, or part of Cambus Barron, co. Stirling. Leaving, however, doubt for certainty, we can trace on record,

JAMES SCHORTE, of Stirlingshire, the immediate ancestor of the family of which we treat. This James m. Agnes, sister of John Cowan, of Stirling, and had issue, JOHN, Andrew, James, and Agnes, m. to William Dempster. The eldest son,

JOHN SCHORT, was, 25 April, 1628, served heir to his father, which service was duly retoured to Chancery; and, 6 Nov. 1639, he was served heir to his uncle, Alexander Cowan, in the lands and barony of Ednain, Cum Molenidinis, &c., together with a farther portion of Cambus Barron, also the lands and barony of Lecky, commonly called Wester Lecky, and the house and lands of Cornetown and Southfield. He m. Mary Scott, and had issue,

ALEXANDER, who was served heir to his father, 17 April, 1653: the greater portion of his fortune he sacrificed for the protection of the civil and religious liberty of his country, and was eventually obliged to fly to Holland, when his whole property, real and personal, was forfeited. His brother Robert, who went to Dumfriesshire, was for years hunted night and day, and the whole of his property was partly seized and partly burned by Graham of Claverhouse. Alexander Schort m. the sister of William Stirling, of Harbertshyre, co. Stirling, and had three daus., Elizabeth, m. to Sir Andrew Birnie, of Salin, one of the Lords of Session; Anna; and Catherine.

ROBERT, of whose line we treat.

Agnes, m. to John Browne, of Stirling.

The second son,

ROBERT SHORTT, to whose sufferings, from the persecution of Claverhouse, we have just alluded, m. in 1664, Janet, dau. of Matthew Kirkpatrick, brother of the Laird of Closeburn, and by her (who d. in 1735) had issue, Thomas, physician to GEORGE II., and author of many learned works. He was named after his mother's uncle, Sir Thomas Kirkpatrick, Bart. of Closeburn, and d. at Rotheram, co. York, in 1772.

Robert. James. MATHEW.

The fourth son,

MATHEW SHORTT, of co. Dumfries, m. Isabel Brown, and had issue, Robert, John, THOMAS, and Mathew. The third son,

THOMAS SHORTT, m. Margaret, second dau. of Francis Carruthers, of Hartwood, youngest son of John Carruthers, of Dormont, Annandale, and had an only son,

FRANCIS SHORTT, Esq. of Courance and White Laird, co. Dumfries, who m. 20 Aug. 1787, Bridget, eldest dau. of Andrew Smith, of Crochmore, in Galloway, and had issue,

Thomas, physician to the forces, b. 17 June, 1788, m. Henrietta, dau. of Alexander Young, Esq. of Harburn, and left at his decease, four sons and one dau., viz.,

Francis-Henry, lieut. R.N.

Oxford, and co-heiress of her brother, Captain William-Frederick Browne, of Launton, and North Berwick, in Scotland, and has issue,

I. RICHARD-THOMAS STAPLES-BROWNE, Esq. of Launton, b. 6 Oct. 1814, m. 5 July, 1843, Ann, dau. of Robert-Brittle Bate, Esq. of Hampstead, and has a son, Frederick-John, b. 1 Nov. 1844.

Mr. Staples-Browne s., on the decease of his uncle, Captain Browne, without issue, in 1842, to the entailed estates of his maternal grandfather, Dr. Browne, in Oxfordshire, and assumed by Royal licence, the surname and armorial bearings of Browne, pursuant to the limitations contained in the will of Dr. Browne.

II. William-Frederick-Browne, barrister-at-law, b. 21 April, 1823, m. 12 May, 1846, Janet-Helen-Alexandrina, dau. of Colonel Alexander Mackenzie, formerly of the 36th regt., lineally descended through George, 2nd Earl of Seaforth, from the Mackenzies, Barons of Kintail in Ross-shire, and whose only surviving son, Alexander Mackenzie, Esq., of the Bengal army, claims to be the representative of that ancient and noble family, and heir to the Scottish honours.

III. Charles-John, b. 13 Feb. 1825.

I. Frances-Bridget-Anne.

Lineage.

This family is of considerable antiquity, and has been supposed to be of Norman descent; but it is more probable that it is of British origin, and that its patronymic was derived from a locality in the west of England; where, at the time of the Domesday survey, the Earl of Moreton held Staple, in Somersetshire, which was taxed in King EDWARD's time, for ten hides of land; and there was the hundred of Staple, in Wiltshire, which is described in the Exon Domesday. The name, which was in olden time variously written Staple, Stapel, Stapelle, and Stapul, may be traced through ancient documents to a remote period in those and the adjoining counties. It was not until the sixteenth century that the final letter, with which the name is now spelt, was added. The Staples have held offices of trust and importance. Thomas de Staple was sergeant-at-arms to EDWARD III., and had a grant of the bailiwick of the hundred of Rochford, in Essex. He m. Margaret, dau. of Robert de la Ward, by his wife, Ida, dau. of Robert Lord Fitz Walter, by whom he left issue. In 1377, Adam Staple, lord-mayor of London, was removed from his office, at the instance of the Duke of Lancaster, who had been insulted by the citizens, in consequence of his having taken part with Wicliffe, and threatened the Bishop of London, at the synod held at St. Paul's, to which Wicliffe had been cited on a charge of heresy.

ALEXANDER STAPLES, Esq. of Yate Court, co. Gloucester, m. 1st, Ann, dau. of Richard Browne, Esq. of Marlborough, co. Wilts; and 2ndly, Elizabeth—, and d. 22 Aug. 1590, seised of divers manors, messuages, and lands, in Wiltshire; at Boreham, Westbury, Westburyleigh, Penleigh, Highwood, Southwick, Wauborough, Stoeck, Stockley, Calne, Durrington, and Millston; and left a brother WILLIAM, and six sons,

i. George, who, in 1599, purchased the manor of Fovant, co. Wilts, and m. Anne, dau. of Henry Tutt, Esq. of West Meon, co. Southampton.

ii. Richard, of Boreham, who m. Edith, dau. of John Gifford, Esq.

III. Alexander, of Nottingham.

IV. Edward, d. in 1602, unm.

Lineage.

This most ancient family deduces its descent from OLIOL OLLUM, King of Munster, who is said to have reigned in the second century of the Christian era, and whose lineage the Hibernian Chronicles trace from Heber Fionn, one of the sons of Milesius.

MURTOGH O'SULLIVAN-MORE, a chieftain of very extensive possessions in the counties of Cork and Kerry, left a son,

BERNARD O'SULLIVAN, Lord of his country, from whom lineally descended,

DANIEL O'SULLIVAN MORE, of Drominagb Castle, who was slain, A.D. 1652, in defending his castle against the forces under Lord Broghill. He was son of Roger O'Sullivan, of Drominagb, by his wife, Julian McCarthy, of Dri-shane, and fifth in descent from Bernard, son of Mortogh. By Helen McAuliffe, his wife, Daniel O'Sullivan had a son, JOHN, who also fell in the defence of Drominagb, leaving a son,

TIMOTHY O'SULLIVAN, of Clonfert, co. Cork, who became chief of the family of O'Sullivan. He m. Joan O'Callaghan, and was father of two sons, PHILIP, his heir; and Cornelius, bapt. 6 Aug. 1683, who m. Ellen, sister of Stephen Galway, of Cork, and had Stephen, Procureur-general of the Benedictines at Toulouse and other issue. Timothy O'Sullivan d. 4 Aug. 1706, aged 54, and was s. by his son,

PHILIP O'SULLIVAN, of the city of Cork, bapt. 12 May, 1682, who d. in Nov. 1737, leaving by his wife, Elizabeth Erwin, two sons,

i. JOHN, whose male line terminated with his son, Philip O'Sullivan, Esq., capt. H. E. I. Co.'s service, "the O'Sullivan More," who d. unm. 7 Oct. 1793.

ii. BENJAMIN.

The second son,

BENJAMIN SULLIVAN, Esq. of the city of Cork, b. 15 June, 1720, discontinued the prefix "O" to his surname, and was appointed, in 1752, by letters patent, clerk of the crown for the counties of Cork and Waterford. He m. in 1742, Bridget, dau. of the Rev. Paul Limric, D.D., and had, with five daus., (Margaret, m. to Lieut.-Gen. Gordon Forbes; Elizabeth, wife of Patrick Lawson, Esq.; Sophia, m. to John Otto Bayer, of Antigua; Henrietta, m. 1st, to Col. Alexander McLallen, and 2ndly, to John Balfour, Esq., M.P.; and Anne, wife of Lieut.-Col. George Hallam,) four sons, viz.,

i. BENJAMIN (Sir), his heir.

ii. John (Rt. Hon.), of Richings Park, Bucks.

iii. Richard-Joseph (Sir), Bart. of Thames Ditton, co. Surrey.

iv. Henry-Boyle, capt. H. E. I. Co.'s service, d. unm.

The eldest son,

SIR BENJAMIN SULLIVAN, Knt. of Wilmington, b. 23 April, 1747, as head of the family, became entitled to the designation of O'SULLIVAN MORE. He was subsequently constituted one of the puisne judges of the Supreme Court of Madras, and received the honour of knighthood in 1801. Sir Benjamin m. Eliza, dau. of Admiral Sir Digby Deut, Knt., and had issue,

GEORGE-JAMES, his heir.

Robert, of Montagu-square, London, barrister-at-law, m.

Margaret, dau. of Major Filmer, late of Bath, and eldest sister of Sir Edmund Filmer, Bart.

Margaret-Mary, m. to Robert Ashworth, Esq., capt. 1st Life-guards.

Harriet, m. to Francis de Visme, capt. in the army.

Sir Benjamin d. 11 Oct. 1810, and was s. by his elder son, the present GEORGE-JAMES SULLIVAN, Esq. of Wilmington.

SYDNEY OF BOURN BRIDGE LODGE.

SYDNEY, SIR WILLIAM-ROBERT, Knt. of Bourn Bridge Lodge, Bray, co. Berks, b. 22 May, 1799; m. 18 July, 1824, Sarah-Ann, dau. of Isaac Blight, Esq. of Topsham, co. Devon, and of Hawthorn, Dale, co. Berks. Sir William was knighted in 1827.

Lineage.

JOHN SIDNEY, of the Court Lodge, Yalding, Kent, (who is stated in the Peerage Claim of Paul-Algernon Sidney, to have been son of Jocelyn, 7th Earl of Leicester, and to have been disinherited by his father) assumed, at one period, the hereditary title to which he believed himself entitled; but, being of the Roman-catholic religion, he did not petition the crown for a writ of summons to parliament, and finding his circumstances much straitened by a large family of fourteen children, and by the overwhelming and expensive litigation in which he was, during the greater period of his life, engaged, in the endeavour to recover the Sydney estates, he latterly discontinued to use the title. He d. 15 Dec. 1812, leaving issue by his wife, a dau. of the Rev. John Apsley, D.D., PAUL-ALGERNON, his eldest son, who claims the Earldom of Leicester; SIR WILLIAM-ROBERT SYDNEY, now of Bourn Bridge Lodge; and other children.

Lineage.

The family of Thornton was settled, at a remote period, in the co. of York.

THE REV. ROBERT THORNTON, M.A., rector of Birkin, co. York, was eminently distinguished during the civil conflicts of the reign of CHARLES I. for his loyalty and attachment to the church of England. His great and manifold privations in those distressing times are fully related in Walker's "Sufferings of the Clergy." Mr. Thornton, who was removed from his rectory during the Protectorate, but reinstated at the Restoration, died in 1665, and lies interred in the church of Birkin, where a monument is erected to his memory. His son,

THE REV. ROBERT THORNTON, A.M., rector of Birkin, "who," as the inscription on his tomb relates, "having lived happily about forty-five years with his wife, Mrs. Clare Thornton, a virtuous, charitable, and hospitable housekeeper, by whom he had nine children, buried her, 3 Dec. 1696, aged 65, and himself was laid with her, 2 Feb. 1697, in his 74th year." Of his issue, JOHN, we treat of; William, in holy orders, A.M., rector of Birkin, d. in 1718; Margaret, m. to the Rev. Robert Banks, M.A., prebendary of Stillington; and Elizabeth, d. unm. The eldest son,

JOHN THORNTON, Esq., merchant in Hull, erected the monument in Birkin Church to his ancestors, with the following inscription:—

"En Filium, Patrem, avum hujus Ecclesiæ, successionè Rectores, Quorum in Societate Amænitas, facilisque accessus, in Amicitia fides, in Pauperes Munificentia, in omnes Hospitalitas, Studiumque pacis ita suis Delectos reddiderunt Parochianis ut nomen Thorntonianum bene audiat."

Mr. Thornton d. in 1790: to his benevolence, and munificent character, the Poet Cowper bears honourable testimony:—

"Some men make gain a Fountain, whence proceeds
A stream of liberal and heroic deeds;
The flow of Pity, not to be controll'd
Within the narrow limits of the Soul,
Disdains the bank, and throws the golden sand,
A Rich deposit, o'er the neighbouring Land.
These have an ear, for his paternal call
Who made one rich, for the supply of all
God's gifts with pleasure in his praise employ,
And Thornton is familiar with the joy."

The antiquity of this family, chief of the name in Scotland, is proved by the most undeniable evidences, such as Royal charters, sasines, decreets, &c. &c. NISBET says, in his MS. Genealogical Collections, in the Advocates' Library, Edinburgh, that "the old families in the Merse, or Berwickshire, of Nisbet, Swinton, Redpath, Duncie, Gordon, and French, who carry boars' heads for their arms, are all believed, and upon good grounds, to be descended from the same stock, but which was the principal stem is uncertain." "By old tombs, seals, and paintings, we find, 'Azure, a chevron, between three boars' heads, erased, or, with helmet and volets befitting their degree; and on a wreath of their colours, for crest, a wolf, passant; with motto, Nec timeo nec sperno,' the blazon of that ancient family of French of Thornidykes, represented by Frenchland, and therefrom supposed a cadet of the Gordon, whose bearing they carry both in tincture and figure, the additional chevron being considered by antiquaries a mark of cadency." There is, however, also, in the Advocates' Library, the copy of an ancient MS., containing the arms of the Scottish nobility, wherein those of "French of Frenchland and Thornidykes" are set forth, in which they are styled, "Galliæ Origines." This certainly seems the obvious etymology of the name; and the family of French of French Park, in Ireland, claim their descent from Rollo, Duke of Normandy, but as the primogenitor of the Gordons is likewise said to have been an Anglo-Norman, both accounts may be in the main correct. It must, nevertheless, have been at a remote period, if the French parted from the Gordon, for as early as King WILLIAM the Lion, who began his reign in 1165, we find William French (Will. Franc.) witness to a deed in the chartulary of the Abbey of Melrose; and again, to others, in that of his successor, ALEXANDER II. The name also occurs as holding lands in Roxburghshire, in 1296; and King ROBERT BRUCE grants a charter to another of the same name, of the lands of Sproustoun, in that county.

ROBERT FRENCH, the first Laird of Thornidykes on record, got a principal charter from George Dunbar, Earl of March and Lord of Annandale, (who flourished in the days of King DAVID THE BRUCE, whose reign began in 1329,) upon his resignation of these lands into the hands of that earl, for a new charter to himself and his wife, Elizabeth French, and their heirs; he is called by the earl, "Clarissimus consanguinus noster." He was s. by his son,

ADAM FRENCH, of Thornidykes, who got a new charter of these lands, (temp. King ROBERT III., who mounted the throne in 1390,*) in favour of himself and his spouse, Janet Rule, and their heirs, to which Robert de Rule is a witness; and also another charter of the same contents, on the resignation of his mother. By the said Janet, a dau. of the ancient family of Rule, in Forfarshire, (descended from St. Regulus, who brought the relics of St. Andrew into Scotland, and was canonized,) he had a son,

ROBERT FRENCH, of Thornidykes, to whom the last named king granted a charter of his father's lands, including Tbornidykes, Pitcocks, and others, which were held immediately of the crown by ward and relief; and to whom King JAMES I. granted a charter in confirmation of the above rights, 19 Jan. 1433, when he was served heir to his father Adam. He had two sons, ROBERT and James. The eldest,

ROBERT FRENCH, of Thornidykes, s. his father, and attested a deed of the Abbot of Kelso, in the chartulary of the Abbey of Melrose, in 1460, in which he is styled, "Nobilis Vir." In the year 1478, he (with James French and others) is sentenced, by a decree of the Lords of Council and Session, for "contempt shown to the king's highness," by an attack on the Canon of Dryburgh, to enter his person in ward, in the Castle of Blackness, there to remain at his own expense, until freed by the king. His son,

ROBERT FRENCH, of Thornidykes, being party to signing a brief of inquest respecting the lands of Smallholme, without the consent of John Cranstoun, of that ilk, baron thereof, is adjudged by the Lords of Council, 8 March, 1490, to pay ward of his person, if required, should it please the parties concerned "to take briefs of the king's chapel to a new day." He had issue,

1. ROBERT, his heir.

11. John, who on the death of his brother Robert, obtained a letter of the privy seal, with the gift of the relief of the lands of Thornidykes and Pitcocks, together with the gift of the marriage of Adam, son and heir of Robert, and failing of him by decease, of that of any other heir, or heirs, male or female, dated in Jan. 1548. He was probably the father of John and Hew French: the former groom of the stable to King JAMES VI.; and the latter, comptroller of the horse to the same monarch. The will of Hew, styled therein, "servitor to the King's majesty," is recorded, 29 March, 1577, to which he appoints Christopher Murray, constable of the Castle of Stirling, and Adam French, the laird of Thornidykes, executors, and mentions in it his sisters, Elspeth and Janet French; his half-brother and sister, David and Janet Swinton; his niece, Janet French; and his nephews, James, John, Robert, Thomas, and Alexander French; several of whom appear to have enjoyed a considerable portion of the king's favour, to judge by the many posts and benefices conferred, in these names, under the privy seal register.

* About this period, Alexander French held the lands of Aytoun in the Merse, which continued in his posterity for several descents. In the rental of the Abbey of Coldingham, "the Laird of Aytoun" pays a considerable sum; and in 1404, "Alexander French" has part of the customs of Berwick granted him.

111. George, designed "of Thornidykes," in a summons by Walter Scott, of Branxton, "for violent spoliation, in company with Patrick, Lord Grey, lieutenant of the north parts of England, and an army of old enemies of England, of his lands in Selkirkshire," 3 Dec. 1549.

The eldest son,

ROBERT FRENCH, of Thornidykes, entered heir according to the Chaucery books, in 1526, and is also mentioned in a subsequent charter, (noticed hereafter,) in favour of Adam, son of Robert French, of Frenchland, confirming to him the lands of Thornidykes. He was one of the barons of Berwickshire who found surety, 18 May, 1530, to enter when required, before the justices, "to underlye the law," for all crimes to be imputed to them. He m. Aune Hume, dau. of Patrick, 4th Baron of Polwarth, ancestor to the Earl of Marchmont, by Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Patrick Hepburn, Knt. of Waughton, and bad issue,

I. ADAM, his heir.

11. Henry, who acquired fisheries of some extent in the River Spey. His will, in which he is styled "brother-german to the Laird of Thornidykes," is recorded in Nov. 1570; in it he mentions his brothers, sisters, and nephews, and bequeaths "ane coat of franch hlak quhillk he got fra my Lord of Orkney, and ane velvet cap," to the Abbot of Kinloss, and charges him to deliver the same to the Laird of Thornidykes; and gives "a' the siller in his purse" to those who shall carry his "hanes to the mouldis of Bassenden." Sir Andrew Currie, vicar of Bassenden, is a witness to this quaint document.

111. Alexander, party to a marriage contract between Nisbet and French, in 1549, and witness to a charter of John Learmonth, vicar of Gogar, 2 July, 1567.

IV. Sir Patrick, so styled as witness to the will of his brother, Adam, dated in 1570, and recorded in 1578.

I. Janet, m. 1st, to Robert Watson, of Yiffie; and 2ndly, to Robert Cranston, who is party to an action, 7 Dec. 1552, by Robert Watson, as son and heir to his father, Robert, against Robert Edgar, of Wedderlie, "for violent ejection furth of the lands of Yiffie."

11. Margaret, m. to George Nisbet, of Randleugh. In the Acta Dominorum Concilii, there is an entry, 23 June, 1549, in these words, "in presence of the Lordis of Counsaile, comperit these honorable men and parteis, yat are to say, Alexander Franche, John Franche, brethir to umquhile Robert Franche, Lard of Thornidilkis, Margaret Franche, and others, on that ane part; and George Nesbit, in ye Randleugh, on that other part; that the said George Nesbit, God welland, sall comperit and fulfill the holy hands of matrimony with the said Margaret French," to which compact the witnesses are, John Hume, of Blackadder, Adam French, of Thornidykes, Thomas Hume, John Hoppringle, Patrick French, and others.

ADAM FRENCH, of Thornidykes, the eldest son, succeeded by entries in the Responde Books, before April, 1549, and is also spoken of in the above-mentioned charter to Frenchland. In his time there arose a broil, in which William Halyburton, of Gogar, was slain; for which he, with James and Peter French, obtained a precept of remission, 13 Nov. 1552. He got a charter under the great seal, 8 Feb. 1555, from Queen MARY, "Adamo Franche de Thornidykes et Margareta Hoppringle ejus sponsa," of these lands, the lands of Pitcocks and others, in the shires of Berwick, Haddington, and Edinburgh, in conjunct fee; and his will, dated at Thornidyke Castle, 3 Oct. 1570, was recorded in Feb. 1578, to which Sir Patrick French, his brother, and Robert Hoppringle, his brother-in-law, are two of the witnesses. By the said Margaret Hoppringle, his wife, dau. of the Laird of Blindlee, (who d. 21 March, 1582, and whose will, appointing her brother-german, the above Robt. Hoppringle, of Blindlee, guardian to her younger children, was recorded, 19 Oct. 1584, in the commissariat books, wherein she is styled, "Umquhile ane honourable lady, Margaret Hoppringle, Lady Thornidykes,") he had issue, six sons and two daus.,

- I. ROBERT, his heir.
 - II. James,* who instituted proceedings against the Abbot of Jedburgh, in 1583, and d. s. p. before 25 Sept. 1604.
 - III. John, tutor of Thornidykes; the Inquisitionum de Tutela, dated 25 Sept. 1604, whereby he was retoured "frater germanus quondam Roberti Frenche de Thornidykes, propinquor agnatus seu consanguineus ex parte patris Adamo Frenche de Thornidykes, filio legitimo dicti quondam Roberti." He was served heir to his brother James, 4 April, 1605; and 6 May, same year, was one of the jury on the service of Thomas Cranston, of Morriston. He d. s. p. between the years 1609 and 1612.
 - IV. Alexander, who succeeded as tutor, or guardian, of Thornidykes, on the death of his brother John. He seems to have been a very lawless man; and it will be found, from the register of the privy seal, that he and his brother John (with Alexander, Earl of Home, and Sir John Home, Knt. of Hutounhall) obtained a precept of remission, 17 Nov. 1606, for being concerned in burning the tolbooth of Lauder, whereby the baillie, William Lauder, commonly called "William at the West Port," lost his life in May, 1598, and from PITCAIRN'S Criminal Trials, that they were both again remitted, 17 Nov. 1607, and that the former was also indicted, 17 Nov. 1609, (together with John French, a natural son of his late brother, the laird,) for "hunting and maiming George Home, of Bassenden, and Andrew Home, his brother;" and, 13 March, 1612, he, with his nephew, James Wicht, of Gordonmill, (his sister's son,) suffered death on the Castle Hill, Edinburgh, for having slain Patrick Cranston, of Corbie. He d. s. p.
 - V. Peter, a legatee in the will of his uncle Henry, in 1570.
 - VI. George, sometime designed, in Holyrood House; a legatee in the will of his uncle Henry, in 1570, and witness to a contract between his cousin, Robert French, of Frenchland, and others, and John Wardlaw, minister of Moffat in 1572.
- I. Margaret, } both named in their mother's will, and one
II. Christian, } of them wife of Wicht of Gordonmill.

ROBERT FRENCH, of Thornidykes, s. his father Adam; and entered heir (after the death of his mother) in 1583. He was a juror on the service of Robert Lauder, of that ilk, 7 April, 1584; and in his time, a feud sprang up between the Frenches and the Spottiswoodes, when Ninian Spottiswoode, of that ilk, was slain; for which the Frenches got a respite under the privy seal, 19 Feb. 1594. He d. in 1603, according to an inquisition taken, 20 May, 1617, on the death of his son and heir; and by Margaret Home, his wife, a dau. of the family of North Berwick, (who survived him, being mentioned in a letter of the privy seal, 23 Dec. 1603; and was living in 1616,) he left issue, one son and three daus.,

- I. ADAM, his heir.
- I. Jane, m. to John, brother to William, Lord Cranston, who, after the decease of her brother, was, with her two sisters, served heir-portionary to Robert, her father, in the lands of Thornidykes and Pitcocks, 20 May, 1617, and to Adam, her brother, in those of Ancrum Spittal, in Roxburghshire, 8 Feb. 1625.
- II. Alison, m. 1st, to Thomas Cranston, of Huntliewood, and had a son, William Cranston, heritor of those lands, who bound himself in a bond, 17 Feb. 1659, to pay out of them an annual rent to his mother, and William Marjoribanks, of Staincrig, her 2nd spouse, in consideration of a tack dated, 10 Jan. 1655.
- III. Margaret, wife of Robert Brownfield, of ———, (of which intermarriages, three are evidenced by a decret registered 22 July, 1623, much litigation having about this period arisen between the heirs of Thornidykes and the Laird of Frenchland.) (See MORRISON'S Dictionary of Decisions. Haddington, &c.)

ADAM FRENCH, of Thornidykes, b. in 1599, s. his father, Robert, in 1603. By a retour in Chancery, 4 and 17 Feb. 1607, he is served heir, "ex conquestu," to his uncle James, and m. at about fourteen years of age, Jane, dau. of Sir Patrick Chernside, Knt. of East Nisbet, as will be found from PITCAIRN'S Criminal Trials, (vol. iii. p. 402,) wherein it is stated, that on 8 Nov. 1616, Sir Patrick Chernside, of East Nisbet, Alexander Cranston, of Burn Castle, John, brother to William, Lord Cranston, William Home, of Hardiesmill, and William Moffat, his tenant, were tried for "the violent rape, ravishing, and detaining of Adam French, of Thornidykes, a young baron, scarce past fourteen years, furth of the town of Haddington, where he was at school, and therefrom transporting him to Rymmler-Land; and therefrom, as a captive, to East Nisbet; and therefrom to Berwick, where, without the consent of Sir John Home, of North Berwick, donator to the gift of his ward and marriage, he was married to Jane Chernside, dau. to the said Sir Patrick, in the month of Nov. 1613." On the trial, the young laird stated, that he had gone freely out of the house of Mr. William Bowrie, his schoolmaster, with William Home, his maternal uncle; and though he was "sequestered" with James, Archbishop of Glasgow, after the trial, yet he was allowed to see his wife, and the marriage was eventually gifted by the king; but there was no issue of it; and the young husband, dying in Feb. 1617, his sisters above named were served his heirs, and the chiefship devolved upon his cousin, the Laird of Frenchland, who, with his successors, we find from this time designed "the male representers of Thornidykes:" we therefore proceed to the mention of his lineal ancestor,

* There is a summons for treason in the Parliamentary Record, 24 May, 1592, against Dame Margaret Douglas, Countess of Bothwell, Francis, sometime Earl of Bothwell, her spouse, — French, brother to the Laird of Thornidykes, and others, which, from the date, must relate to one of these younger sons.

ROBERT FRENCH, of Frenchland, living in the reign of King JAMES IV., who, it appears, from much circumstantial and oral evidence, was grandson to the third Laird of Thornidykes, through his younger son, James; but the first who acquired the estate of Frenchland is uncertain, the family papers, which contained the proofs, having fallen into other hands. These lands (to which the Frenches clearly gave name) are situated in the stewartry of Annandale and sheriffdom of Dumfries, and were held, in capite, of the crown by the military teure of ward and relief, which holding entitled the heads of the house, according to the laws of Scottish beraldry, to claim supporters to their arms. This laird enters his name as pledge in the Register of Adjournal, 13 Aug. 1504; and from a record in the Justiciary on the southern district, is found to be the father of ADAM FRENCH,* of Frenchland, who s., but d. in non-entry, before 16 Feb. 1536, when Robert French, of Gilbertrig, or Kirkbertrig, and John French, of Gillfoot,† his brothers, procured a letter under the privy seal, 19 May, 1537, with the gift of the ward of the lands of Frenchland, and the relief thereof, together with the gift of the marriage of Robert, son and heir of Adam, and him failing, of that of any other heir or heirs. Besides the said ROBERT, his heir, he had also a natural son, William, on whose decease, s. p., his brother obtained, under the privy seal, a gift of the escheat of all his goods and gear, 20 April, 1534.

ROBERT FRENCH, of Frenchland, s. his father Adam. His name is entered in the Responde Books, 24 Oct. 1555, the lands having lain above seventeen years in non-entry; and there is in the custody of Mr. Hope Johnstone, at Raehill, an instrument of sasine upon his special service, as heir to his father, dated the November following. In 1572, is recorded the previously mentioned contract between him and others, and John Wardlaw, minister of Moffat,‡ to which his kinsman, George French, (son of Thornidykes,) is a witness; and also in the Books of Caution and Consignation are letters of suspension against him, and other heritors, as portioners of Moffat, 1 Feb. 1576, at the instance of the same minister; and, 17 Sept. 1583, there is a letter of the privy seal in his favour, with "the gift of the escheat of all goods, moveable and immoveable, which pertained to John Johnstone,§ of that ilk, warden of the West Marches of Scotland."

* In 1566 are letters against Sir Adam French, chaplain of the altars of the Holyblude and our Lady, in the parish of Sanguhar, Dumfriesshire, but nothing to show whether he was of this family or not.

† There is a sasine of the lands of Gillfoot, 27 April, 1654, in favour of Margaret French, spouse to Robert Murray, of the family of Drumcrueich, to which James Johnstone, "apparent of Corhead," is a witness.

‡ Sir Walter Scott, in his introduction to the second canto of Marmion, thus describes the situation of Moffat:—

"Just on the edge, straining his ken,
To view the bottom of the den,
Where deep, deep down, and far within,
Toils with the rocks the roaring linn;
Then issuing forth one foamy wave,
And wheeling round the Giant's grave,
White as the snowy charger's tail,
Drives down the pass of Moffatdale."

§ The Johnstones very frequently occur as connected with the Frenches. The family of Johnson of Corhead held the

ROBERT FRENCH, of Frenchland, s. his father Robert. He was one of the jury on the service of John Dalgleish, of Deuchar, 21 July, 1593, which took place at Selkirk, Sir Philip Scott, of Dryhope, being his procurator; and again on that of James Johnstone, of Johnstone, 20 Sept. 1605. There is reason to believe the wife of this laird was sister to Christopher Halyday, of Rachill, in Annandale—a family derived from the patriot Thomas Halyday, of Annandale, whose mother was sister to the renowned Sir William Wallace, (see pedigree of WALLACE OF KELLY.) His will, “done in ye Frenchland in Kirkbrydrig,” is dated the 11th, and recorded 19 June, 1607, in which he mentions three sons and three daus.,

I. ROBERT, his heir.

II. ADAM, a juror on the service of Robert Johnstone, of Corhead, 5 Nov. 1608, and again on that of James Johnstone, of Smallgillus, 31 Oct. 1616, [apparently the same with “Adam French,” who, 4 Sept. 1638, was served heir-portionary (with Robert and John Blacklock) to Christopher Halyday, in Rachill, his maternal uncle; (avunculo) William French, of Frenchland, being one of the gentlemen of inquest.]

III. JAMES.

I. Katherine, wife of Gavin Johnstone, of Middlegill; the contract of marriage, (which is still at Rachill,) dated 4 Aug. 1588, to which Robert French, junior of Frenchland, and Rodger French, of Kirkbrydrig are two of the witnesses.

II. MARIAN.

III. AGNES.

The eldest son,

ROBERT FRENCH, of Frenchland, was served heir to his father Robert, 20 March, 1610, the lands having lain upwards of two years in non-entry. There is a disposition to him, during his father's life, from Gavin Johnstone, of the lands of Kenshucks, 14 April, 1598, in which he is called “younger of Frenchland;” and also as one of the jury on the trial of William Maxwell, of Gribton, for attacking the tower of Newby. After his father's death, he appears as cautioner, (with Robert Glendonning, of Partoun, James Johnstone, of Benholme, and William Irving, elder of Kirconnell,) 24 June, 1613, for John Johnstone, of Westeraw, in an instrument to infest Andrew, son and heir of William Scott, of Bowhill, in one half the lands of Croceant. He m. Isabell Scott, a dau. of the family of Bowhill,* in Selkirkshire, (derived from the fifth son of the first laird of Thirlestane, a cadet of Buccleuch,) the marriage contract, (which is still at Rachill,) dated 7 Feb. 1598, and had issue, nine children, mentioned, with their mother, in a letter of the privy seal, 12 Feb. 1631; but of these we can give an account of only two sons and two daus.,

I. WILLIAM, his heir.

II. ADAM, who afterwards acquired both Frenchland and Thornidykes, of whom more hereafter.

I. MARGARET, who eventually became co-heir, and m. her kinsman, William French, thereafter styled “Captain” on succeeding to the chiefship, and whose posterity carried on the line of the family, as will be shown in due course.

superiority of Moffat before the year 1600, and from original papers in the custody of the late Dr. Angus Macdonald, it appears that James, son and heir of Herbert Johnstone, (who founded the town of Moffat about the middle of the sixteenth century, and was of the Wamphrey branch,) m. a dau. of the Frenchland family, and had, amongst other issue, a dau., who m. her cousin, Robert French; and from these intermarriages descended a numerous posterity of the names of Johnstone, French, Lesley, Murray, Moffat, Grig, Boyd, Macdonald, the Lords Rollo, and others; amongst whom may be numbered the celebrated General Robert Douglas, governor of Riga in 1640, who m. the sister of Count Steinbeck, (the diploma of the general's birth and rank being in the Doctor's keeping,) and was ancestor of the Douglasses in Sweden and Russia, having settled in those parts when his uncle was ambassador in Sweden. The Maxwells, Earls of Nithsdale, in Scotland; and the houses of Townshend, Beresford, and Montgomery, in Ireland, may likewise be numbered amongst their distant connexions.

* Sir Walter Scott says—

“Nor hill nor brook we paced along,
But had its legend and its song;
All silent now—for now are still,
Thy Bowers untenanted Bowhill.
No longer from the mountain's dun,
The yeoman hears the well-known gun;
And while his bonest heart grows warm,
At thought of his paternal farm,
Round to his mate a brimmer fills,
And drinks “the Chieftain of the hills!”

II. MARIAN, likewise eventually co-heir, who became second wife of David French, the father of her sister's husband; of whom also more below.

The elder son,

WILLIAM FRENCH, of Frenchland, succeeded. He appended his seal, during his father's life, as “apparent of Frenchland,” on the service of Ewart of Bodesbeck, 23 Jan. 1613, and being under age at his father's death, a letter of the privy seal was made to Mathew French, merchant, burghess of Edinburgh, 24 March, 1615, with the gift of his marriage. On the demise of his cousin, Adam French, of Thornidykes, (the young laird who was carried off from school,) he became chief; and having obtained letters of gift under the privy seal, 20 March, 1617, as donator to the marriages of the three sisters and co-heirs, then unmarried, of the said Adam, offered himself in marriage to Jane, the eldest; and his brother Adam to Alison, the second, on the 17th of April following; and required them to repair to Edinburgh on the 22nd of the same month, “to confer anent the said marriages;” but the ladies “making no appearance,” he claimed 5000 merks for the single avail, and 10,000 merks for the double avail, of each of their marriages—a demand the Court of Session greatly reduced the amount of, and the litigation that had arisen brought him under such a load of debt as obliged him to give up the estate to his creditors, who had sasine therein in 1630 and 1631, from whom his brother Adam acquired it by the transfer of their rights to himself. He had likewise become bound as principal in a bond for a considerable sum for the daughters of Sir William Douglas, Knt. of Toshgill, to which their father was cautioner, in 1618, (one of whom it is believed he married.) He had a son and heir,

JAMES FRENCH, designed “now of Frenchland,” in a charter of Robert, son of Thomas Moffat, in 1627; which being during his father's life, and his own minority, appears as if the estate had been made over to him before it was seized by the creditors, but dying without issue, the fee fell to his uncle.

ADAM FRENCH, of Frenchland and Thornidykes, who first got a charter of confirmation under the great seal, 20 May, 1619, (“Adami French filio quondam Roberti French de Frenchland,”) of the lands and barony of Thornidykes, the lands of Pitcocks, and others,* in the counties of Berwick, Haddington, and Edinburgh, which he sold, in 1633, to George Brown, second son of the Laird of Colston; and next, having got possession of Frenchland, by the transfer to himself of the rights of the creditors of his elder brother William, he granted a wadset thereof, 11 March, 1634, to his kinsman and brother-in-law, David French; notwithstanding which, it is stated in a decret that he afterwards made a “pretended” right and disposition of the same lands, in favour of James, Earl of Annandale and Hartfield, to whom there is a letter of the privy seal, 15 July, 1661, with the gift of the wards, non-entries, mailles, &c., of these lands, “quhilkes formerlie pertained to umquhile Adam French, of Frenchland,” together with the gift of the marriage of his son and heir. There is recorded, 30 Jan. 1669, an action (proceeding upon the aforesaid wadset) raised by this Adam against certain of the Frenches, to obtain exhibition of all writs in his favour, preparatory to serving himself heir to “his father, his brother, and his son,” but being, in an apprising of 1643, called “umquhile,” as well as in this privy seal letter, it is evident the registration of this deed (the date of which is not given) must have been long after his death. He m. Janet, dau. of James Gih, of Carriber, an ancient laird in the shire of Lincithgow, the contract, (which is preserved at Rachill,) dated 31 Aug. 1633, and had a son and heir,

JAMES FRENCH, of Frenchland, the gift of whose marriage is given in the privy seal letter of 1661, to the Earl of Annandale, as just stated. In 1665, he appears as cautioner for one of the Johnstones in Moffat; but issue failing in him, or in his posterity, the fee of Frenchland went to his father's sisters, and the male representation of the family fell to William French, his nearest agnate, (the husband of Margaret, the eldest,) whose grandfather was

* Amongst them probably were included the lands of East Gordon, Larniggis, Fawnis, Jordanhill, &c., all old possessions of the family.

ROGER FRENCH, of Kirkbertrig, son and heir of Robert French, warden of Frenchland in 1537, as above set forth. He is sometimes designed of Middlegill, and had rights also in Frenchland, Arrickstaine, Auldtoun, and Moffat, as appears from the subsequent apprising of those lands in 1643, (previously spoken of,) at the instance of James Johnstone, of Corhead, against his grandson, the aforesaid William, as will be particularized below. He was one of the jury on the service of Moffat of Knock, 10 Feb. 1607; and in a charter, 4 July, 1611, granted by Robert Johnstone, of Corhead, to Herbert, James, and John Johnstone, to which he is evidently a chief party, he is called by him, "Insuper dilectus meus." In the register, Secreti Concilii, he is denounced "his Majesty's rebel," 25 Jan. 1616; but wherefore does not appear, and no evil seems to have resulted from it. He was the father of

DAVID FRENCH, of Frenchland, (so ultimately, as holder of the wadset designed,) who had sasine of his lauds in Moffat, 20 Aug. 1618, and, 3 Sept., same year, there is a sasine in his favour from James Johnstone, of Thorik, following upon a charter granted conjointly between this David and Mathew Moffat, of one half the lands of Moffat, the lands of Newton-Corhead, &c., redeemable by Robert Johnstone, of Corhead, in terms of a deed of reversion; in which sasine David French is expressly described the son of Roger. He had sasine of the lands of Arrickstaine, 24 April, 1619, proceeding upon a charter of John, Lord Herries, also a wadset of Auldtoun, and acquired additional rights in Kirkbertrig, by purchasing, 20 July, 1620, the Templelands, called the Chapel of Kirkbrydrig, or Cuthbertrig,* which he afterwards disposed, in 1636, to John Johnstone, of Vicarland; and finally got the aforesaid wadset of Frenchland, in 1634, from Adam French, of Frenchland and Thornidykes, of which his posterity afterwards got the fee. He d. before 15 Aug. 1643, having been twice married: 1st, to Margaret Johnstone, an heiress of the family of Corhead, of the House of Annandale, sasine following the contract of marriage, (of which the date is not given,) 20 Aug. 1618, by whom (who d. in Jan. 1627) he had a son,

WILLIAM, his heir.

He m. 2ndly, his kinswoman, Marian French, dau. and eventually co-heir of Robert French, of Frenchland, and sister to his son William's wife, to whom her brother Adam granted a bond, 20 Oct. 1634, and had by her two sons,

- i. Robert, who inherited Frenchland, and raised an action against his elder brother of the half blood, William, registered 18 July, 1663, but the date unknown, to obtain exhibition of all writs in his favour; it having been especially provided that any lands acquired during the second marriage of his father, David, should go to the issue of it—a provision which caused disputes and litigation for above half a century afterwards; and he was not served heir of the said second marriage until 21 March, 1685. He is (with his mother, and his brother Roger) a defendant in the action raised by his maternal uncle, Adam French, of Frenchland and Thornidykes, above mentioned. He m. Sarah, sister to Adam Donaldson, in Auldtoun, who paid "dott and tocher" down with her, the discharge dated in 1675; and she had sasine of an annual rent out of Frenchland, with the Tower for her residence, 29 Dec. 1688. He had two sons, 1. William, named in a decret at the instance of the Earl of Annandale, 14 Dec. 1698, and against whom David French, the lineal heir-male of his father's half-brother, William, obtained a decret of removing, (after his father, Robert, had resigned the lands,) in 1705; 2. Robert, witness to a charter of adjudication in favour of his uncle Roger, 22 July, 1687.
- ii. Roger, who got from his brother-german, Robert, the charter of adjudication of Frenchland, just mentioned, to which John, his son, is another witness; but which he reconveyed to his brother Robert, 25 April, 1688, who finally, by an instrument of resignation, dated in June, 1700, conveyed Frenchland to the aforesaid David French, reserving to himself a life-interest only, as will be fully particularized below.

WILLIAM FRENCH, of Frenchland, eldest son and heir of the first marriage of his father David, is styled "Captain," after succeeding to the male representation of the family, and having got from his father a right and disposition of Frenchland, notwithstanding the provisions whereby his half-brothers, Robert and Roger, held the lands, assumed it for his designation, but does not seem ever to have gained actual possession. He was served heir to his mother, Margaret Johnstone, 10 Jan. 1635, and also had sasine in Arrickstaine, Moffat, and his father's other lands; but there is an inhibition against him by James Johnstone, of Corhead, in 1642, which seems to relate to lands acquired from Corhead, called afterwards, "Frenche's Merkland," at whose instance, also, 15 Aug. 1643, the lands of Arrickstaine, Auldtoun, Frenchland, and others, are appraised from him, as nearest apparent heir, to his "sire and guidshire." There is a bond in favour of himself and his spouse, 22 Oct. 1661, from Ambrose Johnstone, of Powdein, and he is party to a bond and discharge, 22 July, 1670, between which time and 25 June, 1680, he died. He m. (as has been previously set forth) Margaret, dau. and eventually co-heiress of Robert French, of Frenchland, the sister of his father's second wife, and had by her four sons,

- i. David, who, 6 Oct. 1665, bound himself, as cautioner for his father, in a bond for 780 merks, to David Glendinning, to which his brother, Samuel French, is a witness, but d. s. p.
- ii. THOMAS, who became his heir.
- iii. Robert, who obtained from his father a right and disposition to certain of his lands, and against whom his nephew, William, (mentioned below,) raised an action, 25 June, 1680. He d. s. p. before 25 Jan. 1684.
- iv. SAMUEL, who carried on the male line of the family, and of whom hereafter.

THOMAS FRENCH, portioner of Moffat, s. as chief, and got a right and disposition of Frenchland both from his "sire and guidshire," but never appears to have assumed the style, his paternal half-uncles, Robert and Rodger, still holding the lands. He is another of the defendants in the action raised by his maternal uncle, Adam French, of Frenchland and Thornidykes, and his name occurs in other deeds up to about 1679, at which date he was dead. He m. Marian Johnstone, sister to David Johnstone, merchant-burgess, of Edinburgh, (who survived him, and m. 2ndly, John Thomsone, in Moffat, with whom and others she is party to an act in reduction—"The Earl of Annandale against Graham," 10 Feb. 1698,) and had two sons and one dau.,

- i. WILLIAM, his heir.
- ii. Robert, one of the defendants in the action raised by his brother William, 25 June, 1680. He d. before 28 Jan. 1684, s. p.
- i. Margaret, the only dau., was wife of James Henderson, in Moffat, and having been served heir after the decease of her elder brother, William, to his lands of Arrickstaine, 28 Jan. 1684, had letters of homing against the tenants to "uplift the mailles and profits" thereof, 13 March, 1685; but her cousin-german, David French, the son of her uncle Samuel, obtained decret of adjudication to enter heir to Frenchland against her, 25 Jan. 1700.

WILLIAM FRENCH, of Moffat, and afterwards of Arrickstaine, the eldest son, s. to the representation, and bound himself and his heirs, by contract, 24 April, 1679, to dispose to his uncle Samuel, and his heirs, one half of the lands of Frenchland, or of so much thereof as he could recover as heir to his "sire, guidshire, and grandsire," his uncle Samuel, in like manner, becoming bound to dispose to him and his heirs the lands of Arrickstaine; and 25 June, 1680, he raised an action, before the Lords of Council and Session, to obtain inspection of all charters, contracts and writs, in favour of himself and his authors, in order to enter heir; but dying before 28 Jan. 1684, s. p., his sister, Margaret, was then served his heir, while the male representation of the family devolved upon the posterity of his said uncle,

SAMUEL FRENCH, of Arrickstaine, who got from his "sire and guidshire" a right and disposition of those lands, and also of some parts of their other lands. In the action raised by his maternal uncle Adam French, of Frenchland and Thornidykes, he is expressly stated to be "the son of William," as likewise, in 1674, in a joint discharge from Acheson of Bodesbeck, and Sir James Johnstone, of Westerrall; and in 1679, was party to the contract just named, whereby his nephew William became bound to convey to him and his heirs one half of Frenchland in exchange for Arrickstaine. He m. Helen Johnstone, a dau. of the family of Grantoun, in Annandale, who was, after his death, party to the act in reduc-

* Cuthbertrig is held to be the original name of these lands, derived from the Chapel of St. Cuthbert, the ruins of which still remain; Glibertrig, Kirkbertrig, &c. &c., are all considered orthographical corruptions.

tion before mentioned, in 1698, and had a son and two daus.,

DAVID, his heir.
Isobell. Margaret.

DAVID FRENCH, of Frenchland, writer in Edinburgh, is styled "Captain," and "lineal representer of Thornidykes," after succeeding as heir male, on the death of his cousin-german, William, without issue, in 1684, and obtained decret of adjudication to enter heir to Frenchland against Margaret French, the sister and heir of William, 25 Jan. 1700, and also procured an instrument of resignation of those lands, in June, 1700, from Robert and Roger French, his father's half-uncles, followed by a charter under the great seal, from King WILLIAM III., which was afterwards ratified in parliament by Queen ANNE, 21 March, 1707, confirming to him "the town and lands of Frenchland, with the tower, fortalice, manor, place, &c." In 1701, there is likewise a decret of sale in his favour of the lands of Carden for 60,000 merks; in 1703, he was elected M.P. for the borough of New Galloway; in 1717, he got a charter of the lands of Dumerief and Girthead, in Dumfriesshire; in 1718, there is a contract of feu between him and the Marquess of Annandale, of the lands of Walls; and in 1719, a charter of the lands of Wester-Balgillie, Culdham, and Braidland, in the parish of Kinghorn, Fifeshire, heretofore the property of David Boswell,* of Balmuto. He was three times married: 1st, to Eupham Scott, a dau. of the family of Scott of Bristo, who was party to an inhibition, 26 March, 1694, against Alexander, Viscount Kenmuire, respecting the lands of Greeland and Armuid, in Kirkeudbrightshire; 2ndly, to Elizabeth Thomsone, the contract of marriage, 22 April, 1703, with sasine following thereon, in which she is called "ane discreet, virtuous, gentlewoman;" and 3rdly, to Isabella Brown, who survived him, and was living in 1736, and who states in her Bible that she was b. 19 Jan. 1673; that her first husband, Somerville, d. 7 July, 1711, and that she m. her second husband, French, 4 Aug. 1712, having the consent of "the Lady Marquis of Douglas" for both her marriages. By the second of these wives (who d., aged 36, and was buried at Moffat in 1712, where her tomb may still be seen) he had two sons,

David, b. in 1704, and buried at Edinburgh in 1713.
ROBERT, his heir.

This gentleman d. of dropsy, 19 Aug. 1720, leaving his affairs in a very dilapidated state, when most of the original family papers passed into other hands.

ROBERT FRENCH, the last of Frenchland, and male representer of Thornidykes, was b. in 1705, and is called in his father's testament-dative "his only son and heir," hut owing to a sudden and irremediable reverse in whose fortunes, just antecedent to his death, he finally lost his estates; the decret of ranking of the creditors, dated 23 July, 1730. A judicial sale took place, and Frenchland was purchased by the family of Veitch, (Lord Ellioch, of Session.) He d. 23 July, 1758, in London, where by commerce he had acquired a respectable fortune; and having m. Elizabeth, dau. of Christopher Hull, of Brampton-Gillesland, in Cumberland, (who predeceased him, 8 June, 1756, aged 47,) had issue two sons, who d. in infancy; and an only surviving dau.,

ELIZABETH FRENCH, heiress and last of the house of French of Frenchland and Thornidykes, b. 1 Jan. 1746, and made a ward of Chancery by her maternal uncle and guardian, Christopher Hull, of Sedcop House, in Kent, solicitor in London. She m. John, second son of Thomas Wallace, of Asholme, and dying in 1813, the family being

* The name of Boswell of Balmuto occurs in some other of the Frenchland evidences, and some of their deeds are dated at Kinghorn, which makes it probable that Thomas French was of this family, who held the office of town-clerk of Kinghorn from 1650 to 1664, and m. Christian, dau. of David Boswell, of Balmuto, by Nichola, his wife, dau. of Sir Peter Young, Knt. of Seaton and Auldbar, eleemosynary to King JAMES VI.

N.B. There is a charter, 14 March, 1694, in favour of "Thomas French," of the lands of Kingledors, an estate of considerable value in Peeblesshire, in which mention is made of two sons, David and Thomas, and three daus., Isobell, Elspeth, and Margaret.

In 1715, the Jacobites passed Moffat, and dispersed at Arrickstaine; and amongst the troops of the Duke of Douglas is the name of a "Captain Thomas French."

extinct in the male line, is now represented through the female, by her fifth hut eldest surviving son, as in the text.

Family of Colville.

The family of Colville came from Normandy to England with WILLIAM the Conqueror, in 1066, and went to Scotland with King DAVID I. in 1124. The first that is found on record, is

PHILIPPUS DE COLVILLE, who flourished in the reigns of King MALCOLM IV. and King WILLIAM the Lion. He d. in 1180, leaving a son,

THOMAS DE COLVILLE, who d. in 1219. He was father of WILLIAM DE COLVILLE, lord of the barony of Kinnaird, who d. in 1250, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE COLVILLE, lord of the lands of Oxnam and Ochiltree, who d. in 1296, and was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS DE COLVILLE, styled Dominus de Oxnam, who d. in 1324. He was father of

ROBERT DE COLVILLE, styled Dominus de Oxnam, et Baro Baronie de Ochiltree, circa 1354. His son,

SIR THOMAS DE COLVILLE, Dominus de Oxnam et Ochiltree in 1384, had a son,

SIR ROBERT COLVILLE, Dominus de Oxnam et Ochiltree, who m. Margaret Colville, and was one of the hostages for King JAMES I.'s ransom in 1424. His son,

SIR ROBERT COLVILLE, designed of Ochiltree, by a charter under the great seal, "Roberto filio Roberti de Oxnam terrarum de Ochiltree in vicecomitatu de Air," &c. There is an indenture between Sir Robert Colville, lord of Oxnam, and Andrew Ker, of Auldtounhurn, whereby they are mutually bound to stand by, assist, and defend one another, against all mortals, the King and the Earl of Douglas alone excepted, dated Jedburgh, 1453. Sir Robert's descendant, ROBERT COLVILLE, ancestor of Lord Colville of Ochiltree, got a charter under the great seal, "Roberto Colville, filio Jacobi Colville de Easter Wemyss militis," of the barony lands of Cleish and Crombie. He m. Frances Colquhoun, dau. of Patrick Colquhoun, of Drumkeith, hy Elizabeth, his wife, dau. and co-heiress of Sir William Colville, of Ochiltree, and had a son,

ROBERT, his heir.

He was killed at the siege of Leith in 1560, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT COLVILLE, 2nd Baron of Cleish, who m. Margaret, dau. of James Lindsay, Esq. of Dowhill, and had a son,

ROBERT COLVILLE, 3rd Baron of Cleish, who got a charter under the great seal, "Roberto Colville de Cleish de Carbonibus inter terras de Torriburn et torrentes earundem," &c. He m. Beatrix, dau. of John Haldane, Esq. of Gleneagles, and had two sons and a dau.,

I. ROBERT, his heir.

II. David, (father of Robert, 2nd Lord Colville of Ochiltree.)

I. Margaret, m. to David Wemyss, of Fingask.

He d. in 1631, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT COLVILLE, 4th Baron of Cleish, a great loyalist during all the civil war, who was created a Baronet by King CHARLES I., raised to the Peirage by King CHARLES II., by the title of Lord Colville of Ochiltree, by patent to his heirs male, dated 4 Jan. 1651. He m. Janet, dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of that ilk, ancestor of the Earls of Wemyss, but d. without issue, in 1662, and was s. by his nephew,

ROBERT COLVILLE, 2nd Lord of Ochiltree, who m. Margaret, dau. of David Wemyss, of Fingask, and had a son, ROBERT, his heir; and two daus., of whom the elder, MARGARET, m. SIR JOHN AYTON, of that ilk, in Fifeshire.

ROBERT COLVILLE, 3rd Lord of Ochiltree, d. unm., whereby the honours appear to be extinct.

ANDREW AYTON, son of Sir John Ayton, of Ayton, by Dame Margaret Colville, eldest sister of Robert, last Lord Colville of Ochiltree, had a dau., Margaret Colville, who m. Andrew Blackburn, Esq., and was mother of a dau., Isabella Colville, of Ochiltree, heiress of Crombie, &c., m. to JAMES WEDDERBURN, second son of Sir J. Wedderburn, Bart.

WHITBREAD OF SOUTHILL.

WHITBREAD, WILLIAM - HENRY, Esq. of Southill, co. Bedford, b. 4 Jan. 1795; high-sheriff in 1837, and M.P. for Bedford in the parliaments of 1818, 1820, 1826, 1830, 1831, and 1832; s. his father, 6 July, 1815.

Lineage.

"The Whitbreads are said by family tradition, as appears by an inscription on the monument of the present Mr. Whitbread's grandfather, in Cardington Church, to have been of great antiquity in the county of Bedford; but their name does not occur in the list of gentry of the reign of HENRY VI., nor is there any pedigree of the family in the Heralds' Visitations. It is certain, nevertheless, that Ion House, in Gravenhurst, which, in the inscription above alluded to, is said to have been the ancient seat of the family, was sold by William Whitbread, Gent.

in 1630, as appears by the title-deeds of the present possessor." Such is the reference to the house of Whitbread to be found in LYSONS' Magna Britannia. Its extensive influence may be traced, however, to the successful exertions in business of

SAMUEL WHITBREAD, Esq., M.P., the eminent brewer. This gentleman, son of Mr. Whitbread, who resided at the Barns, near Cardington, co. Bedford, and younger brother of Henry Whitbread, Esq., ancestor of the Whitbreads of Loudham Park, Suffolk, (see vol. ii. p. 1571,) realized a very considerable fortune, and purchased large estates in Bedfordshire; among others, the manor of Cardington, where his ancestors had been settled from the year 1650, and the lands of Southill, in the hundred of Wixamtree, whereon he fixed his residence, at a splendid seat erected by Holland, in 1795. He also became proprietor of Bedwell Park, Herts, and served as high-sheriff of that county in 1767. Mr. Whitbread, whose name stands high in the list of those who have been distinguished for works of benevolence and public utility, d. 8 June, 1796. A very splendid monument, the design of Bacon, the sculptor, was placed to his memory in Cardington Church, in 1799. The principal figure represents Mr. Whitbread as a dying man, supported by Religion, who points to the glories of heaven: Benevolence is weeping at his feet. Mr. Whitbread m. 1st, Miss Haytor, by whom he had a son and heir, SAMUEL; and 2ndly, 13 Aug. 1769, Lady Mary Cornwallis, dau. of Charles, 1st Earl Cornwallis, which lady d. in childbirth, 27 Dec. 1770. The son and successor,

SAMUEL WHITBREAD, Esq. of Cardington and Southill, succeeded to his father's vast wealth. This distinguished senator was b. in 1758, and received his education at Eton and Cambridge. In 1790, he entered parliament for the borough of Bedford, and from his first entrance into public life, warmly attached himself to the party of Charles-James Fox. The following is a fair summary of his career:—"Mr. Whitbread's life may be said to be before his countrymen, for, though they witnessed only his exertions in the senate, they will be well aware how many of his private hours must have been consumed in informing himself upon every question of general policy, or even private interest, that came before the house; for upon almost all these he was a constant speaker; and however others may have differed from him in their views of the various matters upon which he interested himself, none could charge him with ignorance of his subject, insincerity in the opinions which he adopted, or the want of a manly eloquence and undaunted courage in the enforcement of them. He was the ready advocate of the aggrieved and persecuted of every nation who thought proper to lay their complaints before the British parliaments; the active investigator of corruption, malversation, and neglect, in all our own public offices, so that the extent of his utility is to be contemplated, not only with a view to the good which he performed, but to the evil also which he prevented. The character of Mr. Whitbread's eloquence was bold, nervous, and decisive. He was thought by many to be more powerful in attack than in defence, but so prompt in his observations, that it will be long before his party will find any one to fill his place. His heart and mind were wholly devoted to the amelioration of the state of society, to the maintenance of the rights which our forefathers acquired, and to the commination of those blessings to others which we ourselves enjoy. His views were all public. He could not be diverted from the right path by any species of influence, for he was inflexible alike to flattery and corruption. He was the warm, liberal, and enthusiastic encourager of universal education, from the pure feeling of benevolence that actuated all his life. He was convinced that to enlighten the national mind, and to make a people familiar with the holy Scriptures, was to make them strong, moral, and happy. He was no bigot to forms of worship, and therefore was friendly to those institutions, the object of which is to instruct the mind in the precepts of Christianity according to the tenets which the mature judgment or predilection of the parent might wish to impart on the child. In his friendship, no man went greater lengths, or was more ready to sacrifice time, ease, and comfort, than himself. This was conspicuously shown in the arduous undertaking in the re-establishment of Drury-lane theatre, which will ever remain a monument of his disinterested labour and perseverance, as well as of the high confidence which was reposed in his power and integrity by the public. He continued, with the utmost punctuality, that system of private charities which his father established, and which have been estimated as high as £4000 a year, principally in the shape of annuities." Mr. Whitbread m. in 1789, Lady Elizabeth Grey, eldest dau. of the 1st Earl Grey, and had issue,

1. WILLIAM-HENRY, now of Southill.
11. Samuel-Charles, of Cardington, co. Bedford, at one time M.P. for Middlesex, m. and has issue. His eldest dau., Juliana, became, in 1843, the wife of Thomas-William, present Earl of Leicester.
1. Elizabeth, b. in 1792, m. 10 Aug. 1812, the Hon. William Waldegrave, (now Earl Waldegrave,) and d. 1 March, 1843, leaving issue, William-Frederick, Viscount Chewton, two other sons, and four daus., (see BURKE'S Peerage.)
11. Emma-Laura.

On 6 July, 1815, Mr. Whitbread, in a paroxysm of mental aberration, terminated his existence. His elder son and successor is the present WILLIAM-HENRY WHITBREAD, Esq. of Southill.

WOOLRYCHE OF QUATFORD LODGE.

WOOLRYCHE, STEPHEN, Esq. of Quatford Lodge, co. Salop, b. 3 June, 1770. This gentleman joined the army in Spain at the conclusion of the battle of Salamanca, and remained in the Peninsula and South of France until the end of the war, being in medical charge of the 7th Division of the army, and taking part in the battles of Vittoria, the Pyrenees, &c. On the renewal of hostilities, he joined at Brussels, and was appointed to the direction of the field duties, in which situation he was at Quatre Bras and Waterloo.

Lineage.

The first named in the family pedigree is stated in the year 1324 to have taken certain lands from the Lord Prior of Wenlock; he m. and had issue, ADAM WOOLRYCHE, of Much Wenlock, who, by Editha, his wife, had a son, ROGER WOOLRYCHE, of Shrewsbury, living in 1378, who gave to the corporation of that town certain lands lying without the walls, now laid out in public walks. His wife's name was Joan, and by her he had a son, RICHARD WOOLRYCHE, who m. a dau. of John Lenthall, and was father of JOHN WOOLRYCHE, of Much Wenlock, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of R. Bethe, Esq., and had several children: the eldest was ROGER WOOLRYCHE, who m. Margaret, dau. of William Upton, Esq. of Upton, and had a son and successor, WILLIAM WOOLRYCHE, who m. Margaret, sole dau. and heiress of Hugh de Dudmaston, and had issue a son, ANDREW WOOLRYCHE, of Dudmaston, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of T. Watton, of Weaton-Aston, co. Stafford, by whom he had issue; and 2ndly, Margaret, sister of Boeius Hampton, Esquire of the body to HENRY VI., but had no issue by this marriage. The result of the first marriage was a son, THOMAS WOOLRYCHE, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William Rowley, of Wootton, and had issue, I. HUMPHRY; II. WILLIAM; III. Rowland, a priest; and three daus., one a nun. The second son, WILLIAM WOOLRYCHE, accompanied the Earl of Kent into Suffolk, was knighted, and became the immediate ancestor of the Suffolk and Huntingdonshire branch of the family, (see STANSFELD OF BURLEY WOOD, vol. ii. p. 1285.)

HUMPHRY WOOLRYCHE, the eldest son, m. Joice, third dau. of Sir Hugh Peshall, by Isabella, his wife, dau. of John Stanley, son of Sir Humphry Stanley, of Pipe, co. Stafford, Knight of the body to HENRY VII., and had issue, JOHN, EDWARD, HUMPHRY, Roger,* and others. Of these, JOHN, m. Mary, the dau. of Robert Gataerc, of Gataerc, co. Salop, and was progenitor of the line of the baronets, now extinct, (see vol. ii. p. 1286.) EDWARD WOOLRYCHE, Esq., second son of Humphry, is the immediate ancestor of the Dimmore branch, co. Hereford, several of whom are now living in London and its neighbourhood.

HUMPHRY WOOLRYCHE, Esq. of Wootton, the third son, m. Eleanor, dau. of John-Collinson Rowley, and had issue, THOMAS, William, and Edward. The eldest son, THOMAS WOOLRYCHE, had, by Aliee, his wife, four sons, WILLIAM, Jerome, Francis, and Edward. The eldest son,

WILLIAM WOOLRYCHE, Esq., had, by Isabel, his wife, WILLIAM, Thomas, Richard, and George. He had lands at Mose Stackfield, &c.; he and his wife are interred at Enfield. His eldest son,

* Roger followed his uncle Sir William into Kent, and m. the sister of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk.

WILLIAM WOLRYCHE, m. and had, by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, a son, WILLIAM; and by his 2nd, Anne, dau. of E. Haughton, Gent., a dau., Elizabeth. The son, WILLIAM WOLRYCHE, m. Hannah, dau. of Samuel Conway, Gent. of Whitgrave, and had a son, SAMUEL, and a dau., Anne.

SAMUEL WOOLRYCHE, Esq., the son, m. 1st, Martha, without issue; and 2ndly, Elizabeth Sawyer, dau. of S. Sawyer, Gent. of Saredon, by whom he had issue, WILLIAM, Thomas, and John, and three daus. The eldest son,

WILLIAM WOOLRYCHE, Esq. of Mithams par Walsall, bapt. at Cannock, m. Anne, dau. of T. Green, Gent. of Wyrley, and had issue, WILLIAM, Samuel, and John. The eldest son, WILLIAM WOOLRYCHE, Esq. of Mithams, m. Miriam, dau. of Stephen Falknor, Esq. of Neterton, and d. in 1785, having had issue, William, STEPHEN, and Benjamin, and a dau., Miriam; of whom STEPHEN, the only survivor, is Inspector-General of Military Hospitals.

WORLEY OF LONG COPPICE.

WORLEY, HENRY-THOMAS, Esq. of Long Coppice, Iver, Bucks, b. in 1807, a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county. Mr. Worley is author of "Borgia" and other publications.

Lineage.

The family of Werlay, Wirlay, Wyrley, Wirley, or Worley, (for it has been spelt at different periods in all these ways,) derives its descent from William de Werlay, who came over with the CONQUEROR, and whose name is inscribed in the celebrated roll of Battle Abbey. William de Werlay and his son, Robert, commonly called Robert de Parva Wirley, had extensive grants of land in Staffordshire, to which they gave the names of Great and Little Wyrley. ADAM DE WYRLEY, son of Robert, appears to have exchanged (temp. HENRY I.) his paternal lands at Wyrley for the manor and estate of Honnesworth, or Hamsted, in the same county, where he built a manor-house, which continued in existence until the latter end of last century. The fourteenth in lineal descent from Adam de Wyrley, as traced by ERDESWICKE, in his Survey of Staffordshire, (see HARWOOD's edition of 1844, page 414,) was HUMPHRY WYRLEY, anno 1593. The Staffordshire male line of this ancient family terminated in the person of SIR JOHN WYRLEY, Knt., who d. in 1736, leaving two daus., the youngest and eventually the survivor of whom m. Thomas, son of Sir Thomas Birch, Knt. of Birch, Lancashire, who assumed the name and arms of WYRLEY jointly with those of BIRCH. John Wyrley-Birch, Esq., the grandson of this marriage, high-sheriff of Staffordshire, (44 GEORGE III.,) sold the ancient estate of the Wyrleys at Hamsted to the late Earl of Dartmouth, in whose family it still continues.

The Northamptonshire branch of the Wyrleys was founded by GUIDO DE WYRLEY, second son of Sir Cornelius Wyrley, of Hamsted, co. Stafford, who m. (anno 1513) Jane, only dau. of Sir Humphrey Stafford, and Eleanor Aylesbury, his wife, of Grafton, co. Worcester, and Dodford, Northamptonshire. JOHN WYRLEY, Esq., the grandson of this marriage, purchased (anno 1546) the estate and manor of Dodford from his second cousin, Humphrey Stafford, Esq. of Kirby. FRANCIS WYRLEY, Esq., his eldest son and successor, had issue by his wife, Jane Duffield, of Medmenham, co. Bucks, six sons, viz., JOHN, Thomas, RICHARD, Valentine, Eusebius, and Edward. JOHN, the eldest of these, m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of William Duncombe, Esq. of Battlesdon, Bedfordshire, by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Bridget, dau. and sole heiress of Baldwin de Montford, Esq. of Tamworth, (who d. in 1637,) by whom he had issue, one son, Francis, (who d. in 1643, during his father's lifetime,) and two daus., who survived him. By the marriage of these ladies, the estate of Dodford passed into the possession of the families of Colley of Glaiston, co. Rutland, and Benson of Charwelton, and is now the property of Sir Charles Knightley, Bart. of Fawsley. RICHARD, third son of the first-named Francis Worley, (who d. in 1592,) purchased lands at Moulton, co. Northampton, and dying in 1630, was s. in them by his son, JOHN, whose son and successor, GEORGE, d. at Moulton in 1696.

JOHN WORLEY, Esq.,* son of the above George, m. Mary, sister and co-heir of William Pickering, Esq. of Wood-end and Blakesley, co. Northampton, by whom he had issue,

JOHN WORLEY, Esq., who d. at Moulton, in 1772, leaving a son,

THOMAS WORLEY, Esq. of Moulton, b. in 1765, who m. bis cousin, Anne-Elizabeth Worley, of Sywell, co. Northampton, and had two sons, HENRY-THOMAS, his heir.

Edward, who entered the service of his Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Austria, at the age of sixteen, and was appointed aide-de-camp to his Serene Highness the Arch-Duke Regnier, viceroy of Lombardy. On the breaking out of the Sikh war in India, he obtained a commission in her Majesty's 3rd regt. of Light-dragoons, and fell at the battle of Moodkec, 18 Dec. 1845, in an attack on the enemy's batteries.

Mr. Worley d. at Brighton, in 1839, and was s. by his son, HENRY-THOMAS WORLEY, Esq. of Long Coppice.

Arms—Arg., three bugle-horns, stringed, sa.

Crest—Out of a ducal coronet, two wings, arg.

Motto—A Pleasaunce.

Seat—Long Coppice, Iver.

WORMLEY, NOW RICHARDSON, OF RICCALL HALL.

RICHARDSON, WORMLEY-EDWARD, Esq. of Riccall Hall, co. York, s. to that property at the death of his mother in 1843; m. 4 Nov. 1846, Isabel, fifth dau. of Sir Henry Boynton, Bart. of Barmston.

Lineage.

Few families in England ascend to a higher antiquity than that of WORMLEY, which can be authentically traced to the middle of the 13th century, being then possessed of the lands whence the name is derived. A very curious and elaborately emblazoned pedigree, still preserved by Mr. Richardson, of Riccall, gives the descent from the earliest period, and includes the intermarriages of the various generations. The last male representative of this long descended line,

CHRISTOPHER WORMLEY, Esq., lord of the manor of Riccall, m. Jane Farrah, but having no issue, devised his property to his widow, who wedded, for her second husband, TOFT RICHARDSON, Esq., and by him was mother of an only son, the present WORMLEY-EDWARD RICHARDSON, Esq. of Riccall Hall.

Arms—Gu., on a chief, indented, arg., three lions, rampant, sable.

Crest—A demi-lion, holding a thistle.

Motto—Firmus infirmis.

Seat—Riccall Hall, Yorkshire.

Mr. Wylde is lieut.-col. of the 2nd or Southwell regiment of Nottinghamshire militia, a magistrate for the county of Nottingham, a deputy-lieutenant for the county, and for the county of the town of Nottingham, and one of the two still surviving verderers of the Royal forest of Sherwood, an office filled by his ancestors for three hundred years.

Lineage.

The family of Wylde, originally of Mansfield, co. Nottingham, became possessed of the manor of Nettleworth, a hamlet in that parish, before the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, in whose time the estate and mansion there were possessed by

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, to whom arms were granted in the third year of Queen ELIZABETH. He m. 1st, Ellen, dau. of Anthony Staunton, Esq. of Staunton, (by his wife, Sith, second dau. of Robert Nevill, Esq. of Ragnell,) by whom he had issue, six sons. He m. 2ndly, Alice Walker, of Mansfield, by whom he had no issue, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

RICHARD WYLDE, Esq., lord of the manor of Nettleworth in 1583. He d. s. p., and was s. by his next surviving brother,

GERVAS WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth. This gentleman was, in his younger days, an Andalusian merchant, living in London, and as such he rendered important services to Queen ELIZABETH, at the time of the threatened invasion of England by the Spanish armada, supporting the queen's party among the citizens, and providing and manning a vessel at his own expense, of which he took the command. Some very curious arrows used on this occasion are still preserved by the family; and they have a tradition that on one occasion the queen paid him the compliment of saying, that "she would not have a feather ruffled by her Drake's tail, or her Wylde-duck's wing." He m. Margaret, widow of Anthony Burgess, of Nottingham, and by her had issue, six sons and three daus. He d. at Nettleworth in 1640, aged ninety-three, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, b. in 1595, m. Ruth Hodson, of Bailings, co. Lincoln, and by her had issue, six sons and four daus. Of the sons, Gervas, the second, was mayor of Nottingham, and very instrumental in procuring the surrender of the charter to King JAMES II. He d. at Nettleworth in 1670, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, b. in 1629, m. Martha Hayes, of London, by whom he had issue,

- I. WILLIAM, his heir.
- II. Gervas, m. Miss Heron, of Newark, by whom he had one son, John, d. s. p.
- I. Catherine, m. to Giles Knightley, Esq. of Hinton, co. Northampton, and d. s. p.

Mr. Wylde d. in London, in Aug. 1683, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, b. in 1669, m. in 1691, Elizabeth, dau. of the Rev. John Chappel, prebendary of York, and rector of Matlock, Derbyshire, by whom he had issue,

- I. William, b. in Feb. 1693, d. an infant.
- II. WILLIAM, his heir.
- I. Elizabeth, m. to John Greaves, Esq.

Mr. Wylde d. at Nettleworth, in March, 1696, and was s. by his only surviving son,

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, b. 23 Dec. 1695, m. 4 Feb. 1730, Hannah, dau. and co-heiress of Joseph Bright, Esq. of Staveley Woodhouse and Totty Hall, co. Derby, by whom he had issue (with two daus. who d. unm.),

- I. WILLIAM, his heir.
- II. Robert, b. 4 Feb. 1736, a captain in the 36th regiment, d. s. p. at Madras, 18 Oct. 1784.
- III. Gervas, b. 19 Aug. 1738, m. Catherine Sludall, of London, by whom he had issue,
 1. Gervas, b. 1 Dec. 1775, m. Sophia, dau. of Thomas Plasket, Esq., and d. 18 Feb. 1821, leaving issue, two daus.
 2. William, b. 12 March, 1788, a colonel in the Royal artillery, C.B., and groom of the chambers to H.R.H. Prince Albert, m. Eleanor MacCutcheon, by whom he has issue, three sons and three daus.; of whom, the eldest, William-Henry, is in the Foreign Office, and has issue by his wife, Elizabeth-Mary Macey, one son, Everard-William.
 1. Catherine-Ann.

IV. Charles, D.D., b. 2 Jan. 1747, in holy orders, prebendary of Southwell, rector of St. Nicholas, Nottingham, and official of the archdeaconry of Nottingham, m. 20 Sept. 1785, Esther, only dau. and heiress of the Rev. George-Staunton Brough, (see STAUNTON OF STAUNTON,) rector of Staunton and Wollaton, co. Nottingham, by whom he had issue,

1. Harriott-Hestber, d. an infant.
2. Harriott, m. 22 June, 1809, to Henry Fynes, Esq., M.P., (now Fynes-Clinton,) and d. s. p. 2 Feb. 1810.
3. Charlotte, m. 13 July, 1809, the Rev. John Storer, of Hawkestone, co. Nottingham, and d. 29 Jan. 1816, leaving issue, three sons, (see STORER OF HAWKESTONE.)
4. Emma, m. 27 Sept. 1819, Francis Sherlock, K.H., col. of the 4th regt. of Dragoon-guards, (fourth son of William Sherlock, Esq. of Sherlockstown, co. Kil-dare, and of his wife, Helena Pakenham, dau. of Thomas, Baron, and Elizabeth, Countess of Longford,) by whom she has had issue twelve children; of whom survive one son, Charles-Wylde, and seven daus.

Mr. Wylde d. at Nettleworth, 11 Jan. 1779, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Nettleworth, b. 19 Sept. 1734, m. 14 Oct. 1771, Jane, dau. and co-heiress of the Rev. Gilbert Hall, rector of Kettlethorpe, co. Lincoln, by whom he had issue, WILLIAM, his heir. Jane, d. s. p.

Mr. Wylde d. 11 March, 1787, and was s. by his son, WILLIAM WYLDE, Esq. of Southwell, Arms (granted by Queen ELIZABETH)—First, 16 Oct., 3 ELIZABETH: Or, a fesse, between three harts' heads, erased, sa., horned and langued, gu. WYNDHAM OF SARUM.

CAMPBELL-WYNDHAM, JOHN-HENRY, Esq. of the College, Salisbury, and of Corhampton House, Hants, b. 26 July, 1798; m. 7 Feb. 1839, Urania-Mary-Anne, dau. of the late Lieut.-Col. King-ton, by his wife, the Marchioness of Clanricarde. This gentleman, only son of John Campbell, Esq. of Dunoon, co. Argyll, by Caroline-Frances, dau. of the late Henry-Penruddock Wyndham, Esq., M.P. for Wilts, assumed the surname and arms of WYNDHAM on inheriting the estates of his maternal ancestors. He is a deputy-lieutenant for Hampshire, and has sat in parliament for the city of Salisbury. He is 17th in a direct descent from EDWARD I., King of England. (See BURKE'S Royal Families.)

Lineage.

This is a branch of the ancient and eminent family of Wyndham, of Orchard Wyndham, co. Somerset.

SIR WADHAM WYNDHAM, Knt. of Norrington, Wilts, one of the judges of the Court of King's Bench, ninth son of Sir John Wyndham, Knt. of Orchard Wyndham, by Joan, his wife, dau. of Henry Portman, Esq. of Orchard Portman, m. Barbara, dau. of Sir George Clerk, Knt. of Watford, Herts, and by her (who d. in 1704, aged 78) left at his decease in 1668, five sons, viz.,

Tincage.

This family derives, in common with those of Price of Giler, Price of Foxley, Price of Rhiwlas, Ellis of Plas Yolyn, and with the House of Berain, from MARCHWEITHIAN, Lord of Ys Aled, Founder of the XI. Nohle Trihe of North Wales and Powys, whose armorial ensigns were, "Gu., a lion, rampant, arg." In an account of the Trihes of North Wales, in the Cambrian Register for 1796, it is stated that the lands of this chieftain were "Carwed Fynydd, Dincadfael, Prees, Berain, Llyweni, and many other townships within the hundred of Is Aled, as appears by the extent of the Lordship and Honour of Denbigh, made in the 8th year of EDWARD III., at which time Cynwric Fychan, being the 9th in descent, from Marchweithian, lived." From this chieftain descended JANE WYNNE, heiress of the Wynnes of Voelas, dau. of Watkin Wynne, Esq., m. in 1778, the Hon. Charles Finch, second son of Heneage, third Earl of Aylesford, and had issue, Henrietta.

Mr. Yaldwyn, a magistrate and deputy-lieut. for Sussex, and also a magistrate for Kent, s. his father in 1807.

Tincage.

The family of the Yaldwyns is no doubt of Saxon extraction, and probably came over with Ella, and his three sons, who founded the kingdom of the South Saxons, including Surrey, Sussex, and the New Forest. Blackdown, a very poor and barren part of the co. Sussex, was at that period a wild and almost inaccessible place, and on this spot the ancestors of this family, not being, perhaps, leading men in the expedition, took up their abode, and subsequently escaped the pillage of the Norman Conquest, in consequence of the insignificance and inaccessibility of their abode. Many deeds and documents still remain in the possession of the present Mr. Yaldwyn. Among the earliest are some in Latin, of EDWARD III. in 1330, and one of EDWARD IV., naming William Yaldwyn, and Aleyce, his wife; the documents continue in Latin till the time of HENRY VIII., at which time they are written in English. The family got through the troubles of the Commonwealth by espousing the cause of the Protector, who appears to have been personally acquainted with the William Yaldwyn of that day, whom he made commissioner for the co. Sussex, and also sheriff. The mansion-house, built in 1640, and a considerable part of the estate, was sold to James Henry, Esq., in 1844.

THE REV. JOHN YALDWYN, of Blackdown, the grandfather of the present representative, m. Frances Whitehead, and had two sons, RICHARD and John; and three daus., Frances, Ann, and Jane. The elder son,

RICHARD YALDWYN, Esq. of Blackdown, m. in 1798, Martha Searle, and had issue,

WILLIAM-HENRY, his heir.

Richard, in holy orders, d. unm. in 1835.

John-Whitehead, lieut.-colonel E. I. Co.'s service, m.

4 June, 1833, Ellen, youngest dau. of — Hinds, Esq., and has issue, four sons and two daus.

Harriett-Matilda, m. to George King, Esq., capt. R.N.

Mary-Anne, m. to Thomas Lees, Esq.

Caroline, m. to James Cowan, Esq.

Jane, m. to the Rev. John-Francis Cole.

Catherine, m. to Robert Logan, Esq.

Frances, and Martha, both d. young.

Mr. Yaldwyn d. in 1807, and was s. by his eldest son, the present WILLIAM-HENRY YALDWYN, Esq. of Blackdown.

Arms (as granted in 1651, to William Yaldwyn, son of William Yaldwyn, Esq.)—Arg., on a chev., between three cinquefoils, gu., a leopard's head, or, between two bezants.

Crest—On a chapeau, sa., a sword, hilt and pomme, or, between a pair of wings, arg.

Motto—Moriendo vivo.

Seat—Blackdown, parish of Largschall, Sussex.

* * The Arms of YONGE.—"In this grant of arms, in 1725, to James and William YONGE, brothers of this family, the name is spelt both Yonge and Young. At this time, the parties to whom the grant was made had failed in proving their right to arms; but it clearly appears, from documents in the Heralds' College, that the ancestors of the Yongs, then of Landsend, in Colebrook, had proved their arms from time to time."—Vide LYSONS' Devon, p. cix.

This accounts for the arms differing from the other Yongs.

YOUNG OF KINGERBY.

YOUNG, JAMES, Esq. of Kingerby, co. Lincoln, b. in 1802; s. his father, in 1823.

Lineage.

This family of Young, according to the records of the Heralds' College, has for its original ancestor, Tudor Trevor, Lord of Whittington, Founder of the Tribe of the Marches.

Honourable mention is made of Young, as early as the time of EDWARD II. About the same time, Ierworth, son of Morgan, third son of Tudor Trevor, assumed the name and arms of YONGE, on the marriage of the dau. and heiress of Willi le Yonge, of Shirawarden, co. Salop. Morgan Yonge accompanied John of Gaunt into Spain, took a Spanish gentleman prisoner, and had given him as augmentation to his arms—On a canton, gu., a torse, or. Richard Young, in the reign of HENRY VII., had lands given him in Maelor. Edward, his son, succeeded to the entailed estates at Brynyorkyn, in Hopedale, co. Flint, and was father of Ellis Younge, of Hopedale, whose eldest son,

SIR RICHARD YONGE, Miles, was gentleman of the bedchamber to King JAMES I., and by him was made a Knight for the following remarkable circumstance:—"After dinner, ryding on horseback abroad, his horse stumbled and cast his Majestic into the New River, where the ice brake; he fell in so that nothing but his boots were seene. Sir Richard Yonge was next who alighted, went into the water, and lifted him out. There came much water out of his mouth and body."—Original Letters, vol. iii. p. 117. King CHARLES I. created him a Baronet, and appointed him, 25 Aug. 1634, clerk of the Hanaper in Chancery. He d. in 1650.

The Protestant branch became extinct on the death of the wife of the late Dean Shipley, of St. Asaph, he having married the last heiress Yonge. The Brynyorkyn estates are in the possession of his grandson, William-Shipley Conwy, of Bodryddan, co. Flint. A branch of the Brynyorkyn family eventually settled at West Rasen, co. Lincoln, soon after the Restoration. On the occasion of the death of the first JOHN YOUNG, Popish recusant at West

Rasen, the parish register records that the parson took oath of his death and burial, before the magistrate. His son, by his wife, Alice Weaver, the second

JOHN YOUNG, of West Rasen, d. in 1719. Soon after his burial, a pleasing incident is related. A flight of bees descended and swarmed upon his grave; the simple but well-intentioned villagers proclaimed it a happy and felicitous prognostic of the future prosperity and exaltation of his family, that they should again become both numerous and prosperous. Mr. Young's will, in the registry at Lincoln, is sealed and impressed with the family arms. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Thornburgh, Esq. of Kendal, Westmoreland, and had two sons,

- I. John, who m. Jane, dau. of Dr. Vavasour, brother of the Baronet, of Yorksbire, and was father of Ann, who m. Thomas Martin, Esq. of St. Marylebone, and was mother of Mary Martin, wife of her cousin, James Young, Esq. of Kingerby, co. Lincoln.
- II. DAVID, of whom we treat.

DAVID YOUNG, Esq. of Normanby, co. Lincoln, the second son, m. Mary, dau. of Isaac Farebrother, Gent. of Worksop, Notts, and d. in 1793, leaving a son and heir,

ISAAC YOUNG, Esq. of West Rasen, who, when the act of parliament of 1780 permitted Catholics to buy landed property, purchased the parish and estate of Kingerby, with the manor, and all its rights and privileges, viz., Chase, fishery in the River Ancholme, market tolls, advowson, and right of presentation to the vicarage, &c. The hall is moated, and has outer entrenchments. Mr. Young m. Ann, dau. of Thomas Champney,* Esq. of West Rasen, and left at his decease, in 1793, a son and successor, JAMES YOUNG, Esq. of Kingerby, co. Lincoln, who m. in 1798, Mary, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Martin, Esq. of the co. Middlesex, and had issue,

- I. JAMES, now of Kingerby.
- II. Thomas-Arthur.
- I. Maria-Theresa.
- III. George.

Mr. Young d. in 1823.

Arms—Per bend, sinister, erm. and erminois, over all a lion rampant, or.

Crest—A wolf, sejant, regardant, sa., holding between its fore-paws the head of King EDMUND.

Motto—Toujours jeune.

Seat—Kingerby Hall, Lincolnshire.

* Champney is a family of great antiquity: all their property was sacrificed to their recusancy, at the time of the Scottish rebellion, in 1715. Mr. Thomas Champney was steward to Sir Marmaduke Constable, who, after the escape from York Castle of the Baronet, was nearly seized by officers dispatched for the purpose; he succeeded in effecting a concealment beneath a heap of loose hay on the farm, and though the officers made many stabs with their piked staves, which pierced the sides of Mr. Champney, he, like a good steward, patiently endured, rather than betray his beloved master.

ARMISTEAD OF LEEDS.

Lineage.

The family of Armistead, variously written Ermystead, Ernestead, Armistead, Armestead, Armystead, and Armistead, is of considerable antiquity in the co. of York. Dr. Whitaker, in his History of the Deanery of Craven, says—"Skipton has long enjoyed the benefit of a well-endowed grammar school, founded in the second year of EDW. VI., by William Ermestead, canon residentiary of St. Paul's, who vested for this purpose in Sir Ingram Clifford, Knt., William Tankard, Stephen Tempest, Esqrs., Tristram Bolling Lancelot Marton, Thomas Lister, of Westby, Gentlemen, and others, divers lands in Addingham, Skipton, and Eastby. The charter of foundation bears date 1 Sept. 1548, and it accords exactly with the state of the national worship at the time. Images had been removed out of churches, and the communion book introduced, but with this exception, the rest of the popish service was sung as usual in the choir. The first liturgy of EDWARD VI. was not published until the 16th of June following." He was also chaplain to Queen MARY, and then styled Sir William Ermystead, and left by will, dated 20 Aug. 1555, an estate, situated at Wike, in the parishes of Harewood and Bardsey, "for the finding one priest sufficiently learned to teach a grammar school in the town of Leeds," &c. The Rev. William Armystead, rector of Adel, and vicar of Birstal, founded and endowed at the latter place, in 1556, a similar school.

JOHN ARMISTEAD, or Armitstead, of Settle, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, born about 1590, had by Alice, his wife, a son,

JOHN ARMISTEAD, who was father of

BAYLEY OF ALLERTONSHIRE,

HEIR-GENERAL OF HODILOW OF ESSEX AND NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

Lineage.

THE leading and most important links in the following Pedigrees, including the heir-generalship, of the ancient arms-bearing families of Burren, Hodilow and Pycheford, have been proved and recorded in the English Herald's College, and the entries, made there in 1618, 1634 and 1687, brought down to the year 1841.

These Bayleys have been two centuries settled in North Yorkshire, and trace to the time of Oliver Cromwell. The surname of the present family, however, was originally Barry, that of Bayley having been taken by it in 1785, pursuant to the will of its maternal relative, the last male of the old stock. This old stock of Bayley, which is of much inferior extraction to the family on which it conferred its name, (and of which hereafter,) traditionally migrated from the "west country," and derives from

JOHN BAYLEY, of Easingwold, in North Yorkshire, living during the Commonwealth, father, by Anne, his wife, who d. in childbirth, and was buried there, 28 Jan. 1661-2, of a son, William, their only child, bapt. there, viz., 9 March, 1661-2, and clearly, inter alios, of an elder son, viz.,

SIMON BAYLEY, with whom the line of Bayley, as recorded in the Herald's College, commences, Easingwold parish registry, from 1653 to 1659, having been made void at the Restoration, so that his baptismal certificate is not now forthcoming, and of whose, and the above John's position or occupation, no record whatever gives information, all simply recording the names of the parties.* He m. at Easingwold, 12 Nov. 1689, Margaret Scott, and by her, who was buried there, 23 June, 1720, he dying in Feb. 1722-3, had issue, (all bapt. at Easingwold,) i. John, bapt. 24 March, 1690-1; ii. Simon, bapt. 30 May, 1693; iii. Thomas, bapt. 24 Aug. 1696; iv. RICHARD, of whom presently; i. Margaret, bapt. 9 Nov. 1700, m. there by licence, 7 Jan. 1728-9, to Thomas Darby; ii. Elizabeth, bapt. 20 Nov. 1702.

RICHARD BAYLEY, 4th and youngest son, bapt. 5 March, 1705-6, made a fortune in trade, at Easingwold, being described buckmaker in 1741-4, lincendrapier in a deed of 1748, and mercer in deeds of 1754 and 1763. He m. about 1728, Elizabeth, eldest sister and co-heiress (with Anne, wife, first of John Metcalfe, afterwards of Mr. Turnbull, of the city of York,) of John Batchelor, of Easingwold, styled Gentleman in deeds of 1745-7-8, and 1754, in which last year he conveyed the reversion of his estate at Easingwold to the Bayleys, and dau. of George Batchelor, of the same place, styled Gentleman in a deed of 1732, but barber-chyrurgeon (his family profession) in 1720; by his wife, Mrs. Jane Nelson, of York, and whose ancestor, John Batchelor, of Boroughbridge, is recorded in the Yorkshire Visitation of 1584, as having m. the sister of 'Squire Morley, of Normanby in Cleveland, who entered his pedigree and arms, with quarterings, therein.† By her the said Richard Bayley, who eventually became representative of his family, and lies buried under an altar-tomb at Easingwold, had issue, bapt. there, i. John, bapt. 7 Feb. 1731-2, who d. aged 9, of the small-pox, and was buried at Easingwold, in July, 1741; ii. JOHN, (second so named,) of whom presently; i. ANN, of whom hereafter.

JOHN BAYLEY, of Easingwold, only surviving son and heir, by property qualified for the commission of the peace, and, according to modern acceptation, an esquire, yet under whose name the family's business of mercer and wine-merchant was sometime perpetuated, was bapt. 5 May, 1744, but dying unn. 21 March, 1781, by his will, dated 27 March, 1780, proved at York, 21 April, 1781, left a portion of his landed estate at Easingwold, with an amount of personality, to his nephew, William-Batchelor Barnet (or Barry), remainder, in default, to his other nephew, St. John Barnet (or Barry), with injunction to take the name of Bayley, viz., at the age of 23, and appointing Robert Yates,* Esq. of Easingwold, Stephen Fetherstone, Gent. of the same place, surgeon and apothecary, and testator's brother-in-law, William Barnet (or Barry), Gent., executors in trust. Thus the issue of his sole sister and heiress at law, the aforesaid,

ANN BAYLEY, bapt. at Easingwold, 18 June, 1737, s. to the Bayleys' property. She had been m. 3 Oct. 1760, at Easingwold, to William Barnet (or Barry), comedian but styled Gentleman in his marriage licence and register and in other contemporary documents, previously William Barry, Esq. of Hampstead, and East-street, St. George-the-Martyrs, Middlesex, medical student, and eldest son and heir of Mr. William Barry, of Fleet-street, London, citizen and woollendrapier, and free of the Haberdashers' Company, but a gentleman by birth, by Susanna, his wife, eldest of the daus., and eventually co-heiresses, and only one who married, of Anthony Burren, Esq., an eminent merchant of London, temp. JAMES II., and one of the Court of Assistants of the Russia Company, who entered his arms and pedigree in the London Visitation of 1687, and his wife, SUSANNA HODILOW, heiress and representative of the ancient and gentle house of HODILOW OF ESSEX AND NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, (see HODILOW Pedigree, at foot.) The heiress of Bayley d. 15 Nov. 1786, and is styled in her monumental inscription, "a dutiful daughter, an affectionate sister, a fond mother, and a good wife." Her husband surviving her, m. 2ndly, 31 Dec. 1789, also by licence and at Easingwold, where he had settled as a merchant, Mary, widow of Robert Barugh, of Dishforth, co. York, sister and co-heiress, with Mrs. Store-saker, of Ripou, of the Rev. Henry Pont, alias Seal, A.M. of Christ Church, Oxon, rector of Bury St. Edmund's, co. Suffolk, they being the natural,† but only children, of Samuel Henry Pont, Esq., the distinguished and learned Recorder of Cambridge,‡ from 1742 to 1757, and Judge of Ely, temp. GEORGE II., whose ancestor, Samuel Pont, Esq., Mayor of Godmanchester, and Principal of Bernard's Inn, entered the Pont arms and pedigree in the Hunts Visitation of 1684. By her, who d. aged 77, 2 Feb. 1804, Mr. Barnet (or Barry), had no issue; but by his former wife, Miss Bayley, he, dying aged 73, 11 April, 1803, had three sons and one dau.,

- i. William Barnet, (or Barry,) d. young, and was buried at Easingwold, 13 April, 1762.
- ii. WILLIAM BATCHELOR BARNET, (or BARRY,) who took the name of BAYLEY. Of him presently.
- iii. Saint John Barnet, or Barry, of Easingwold, afterwards of Dalton Hall, co. York, Gent., bapt. at Easingwold, 7 Aug. 1772, being named after his paternal uncle, Saint John Barry, of London, goldsmith. He m. 30 April, 1793, Charlotte Barugh, dau. of his stepmother by her former husband, the said Robert Barugh, of an old Yorkshire yeomanry family, and sister of the wife of Mr. Scott, surgeon, of Easingwold. By her, who d. of the Cholera Morbus, 1832, he, deceasing at Blackheath the following year, had issue, (all bapt. at Easingwold,)
 1. William Barnet, (or Barry,) b. 1 March, 1800, who d. aged 17, having suffered injuries at school which he never recovered.
 2. Henry Barnet, (or Barry,) surgeon, of Blackheath, Kent, b. 10 March, 1805; m. 26 Jan. 1830, Eliza, 2nd dau. of the Rev. Jonathan Dixon, Domestic Chaplain to the late Duke of St. Albans, and Vicar of Humbleton and Garton, in Holderness, by Jane, his wife, dau. of Robert Raines, Esq. of Flinton, in Holderness, and by her has issue,
 1. Henry-Crosby Barry, b. 10 Nov. 1833.
 2. William-Harold-Hodilow, b. 16 May, 1837.
 3. James-Herbert-Marsh, b. 7 Feb. 1839.
 4. Charles-Saint-John-Burren, b. 9 April, 1841.
 5. Edward-Ranulph-de-Barry, b. 16 Dec. 1842.
 6. Malcolm-Barugh-de-Barry, b. 9 Dec. 1844.
 1. Eliza-Hennel, b. 10 Jan. 1832, d. young, 7 April, 1833.
 2. Eliza-Hennel, b. 25 Sept. 1835.
1. Marianne Barnet, (or Barry,) b. 14 March, 1796.

* Now represented, it is believed, by Whytehead, of Easingwold.

† Their mother's name was Seal, and Mrs. Barnet was married under it to her first husband Barugh, at Ripon Minister, 3 March, 1764.

- i. Elizabeth Barnet, (or Barry,) bapt. at Easingwold, 9 Feb. 1767, buried there an infant, 25 July same year.

WILLIAM-BACHELOR BAYLEY, (previously Barnet, or Barry,) M.D., but styled only Esquire in his commission of deputy-lieutenant of Northallerton, Ellerbeck and Easingwold, in North Yorkshire, long the leading physician of North Yorkshire and South Durham, and of great provincial eminence in that profession; a banker at Northallerton, where he chiefly resided, a Deputy-Lieutenant for the North Riding, and Member of the Royal Medical Society of Edinburgh; was b. 16 July, 1762, took the name of Bayley in 1785, pursuant to his maternal uncle's will, inheriting therewith the Easingwold property; and about 1786 purchased, in conjunction with his first wife's connexions, Messrs. Walton and Hirst, of Northallerton, the manor of Ellerbeck, in Osmotherley parish, in Allertonshire, North Riding, co. York, held by lease under the dean and chapter of Christ Church, Oxford, and then worth about thirty thousand pounds, of which each purchaser acquired one-third. After studying in Edinburgh, he took his degree of M.D. at Leyden University, in 1789; in 1803, he was appointed a D.L. for the North Riding, by the late Duke of Leeds, and afterwards bought lands at Romanby, in Allertonshire, of the Lambtons. Dr. Bayley was twice married: 1st, at Bilbrough, co. York, 21 Aug. 1785, according to the contemporary newspapers, with a portion of "3000*l.*," to Elizabeth, only sister and heir-presumptive of Matthew Todd, Esq. of Norman's House, in that parish, captain in the Yorkshire Hussar Yeomanry, who d. s. p. m., and dau. of another Matthew Todd, (cousin of the last Lady Widdrington), who, having purchased and retired to Normans, d. there two years before his dau.'s marriage to Dr. Bayley; by Mary, his wife and widow, eldest of the six daus. of Richard Dunhill, of Pontefract, who made his fortune in the liquorice trade of that town, and sister of Mr. Alderman John Dunhill, twice mayor of Doncaster. By this charitable and excellent woman, whose virtues are well remembered by those who knew her, and who, dying aged 45, 18 Feb. 1807, was interred in the chancel of Northallerton church, Dr. Bayley had the issue presently named; and surviving her, m. 2ndly, in Nov. 1809, Antonina, only dau. of the Rev. Henry Hewgill, of Hornby Grange, co. York, lord, patron, and rector of Great Smeaton, and a J.P. for the N. R., (see HEWGILL OF HORNBY GRANGE,) by Antonina, his 2nd wife, dau. of the Hon. Thomas Willoughby, of Bird-sall, co. York, sister of Henry, 5th Lord Middleton. (See BURKE'S Peerage.) Dr. Bayley d. in his 51st year, 11 June, 1813, and was interred in the chancel of Northallerton church, when his professional talents, remarkable for an "acute perception and nice discrimination," were extolled in the local newspapers. By Antonina, his second wife, who survived till 12 Oct. 1840, when dying aged 71, in London, she was removed for burial among her knightly maternal ancestry, at Wollaton, co. Notts, and there interred, 23 Oct. following, he had no issue; but by his former wife had five children,

- i. John, (The Rev.) A.M., Fellow and Mathematical Lecturer of Emanuel College, Cambridge, but previously Scholar of Trinity College, who graduated fifth Wrangler in 1809, and was author of an Algebraical work, published 1830, and of two printed sermons, preached by him in Yorkshire, one at the consecration of Alverthorpe Church, near Wakefield, where he some time resided, his wife being first cousin to Lady Pilkington, of Chevet, near that place. He was b. 30 Nov. 1786, bapt. at Easingwold, 1 Jan. 1787, and m. in 1814, Jane, eldest dau. of Anthony Hammond, Esq. of Hutton Bonville, co. York, a deputy-lieutenant for the North Riding, (see HAMMOND OF HUTTON BONVILLE,) by Jane, his wife, dau. of John Close, Esq. of Easby Hall, co. York, Clerk of Assize for the Northern Circuit, and Bencher of Lincoln's Inn, by Eliza Wilson, of Hartlepool, Durham, ancestress of R. Wilson, Esq. of Woodham, in Essex, high sheriff of that county in 1815, and of T. Wilson, Esq. once M.P. for London. By this lady, (who was elder sister of Lady Bateson, of Killoquin, co. Antrim, and whose maternal aunt m. Mrs. Antonina Bayley's brother, the Rev. James Hewgill,) he dying, 26 May, 1838, in his stepmother's lifetime, and thus without succeeding to any part of the Ellerbeck property, of which he had the reversion, when he was interred in the vaults of Christ Church, Blackfriars, London, left issue an only child, CHARLES-JOHN, Esq., A.M., Barrister-at-law, of the Inner Temple, and late scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, b. Nov. 1816. This gentleman, who was educated at Eton, and distinguished for his classical attainments, in 1840, on the death of Mrs. Antonina Bayley, s. to the small remnant of the Ellerbeck property, much diminished by litigation in Chancery, of which, nevertheless, he is joint-lessee and heir-at-law of the family.

VINCENT'S Pedigree of this ancient and gentle family commences with a

THOMAS HODILOW, or Hodelot, evidently a foreigner, who must have lived temp. HENRY VI. and EDWARD IV., and m. scarcely later than 1478. He had three sons, all of whom were settled in Cambridgeshire early in the succeeding century, viz.,

i. John, of Histon, 11 HENRY VIII. (1520), where he owned freehold and copyhold lands, and dying April, 1542, as appears by his will, dated and proved that year in the Bishop of Ely's Court, had issue,

1. William, of age, 1542.
1. Emma.
2. Joane.
3. Katherine.
4. Elizabeth.

ii. Peter, of the City of Ely, who by Margaret, his wife, had no issue. Both their wills, his dated 1546, and hers 1551, are in Ely Consistory Court, at Cambridge.

iii. ROBERT, which

ROBERT HODILOW was of Chettisham, in the Isle of Ely, co. Cambridge, where he lived on his own estate, temp. HENRY VIII., and m. before 1522, to Alice —. He made his will in January, 1540-1, in which he speaks of "his books and his debts owing him in Holland," and by his said wife, who, surviving him, by hers, proved in the Bishop of Ely's Court, in Feb. 1545-6, requests burial within Trinity Church, Ely, to which she leaves church linen, had issue two children,

THOMAS, his heir.

Alice, wife of Edmund Heynesworth, 1540 and 1545.

THOMAS HODILOW, b. before 1523, s. to his father's property in the Isle of Ely, but removed to the town of Cambridge, where he greatly increased his patrimonial estate by the then respectable business of a brewer,† and latterly lived in sumptuous style in Castle End, Cambridge. He owned freehold property in Cambridge, and leasehold lands near that town, held of Caius College and Clare Hall; and during his time the family's arms and crest were recorded by the Heralds, viz., by Glover, Somerset Herald, and afterwards inserted in Phillipot's MS.

* This George Cayley, M.D., was originator of the Promenade Room, at Harrowgate; author of a Treatise on Croft Mineral Waters; brother of Cornelius Cayley, Esq. of Sowerby, co. York, J.P. and D.L. for the North Riding, and descended from Cornelius, son of the first Baronet Cayley, of Brompton, co. York. His widow, Mrs. Cayley, died soon after her son, (Macdonald), and left her property to Cardinal William Riddell, a catholic bishop, in trust for the catholic church at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and other pious uses. Cambridge, by his wife, Agnes Castell, of Somersham, co. Hunts, whose arms and pedigree were recorded in the Cambridgeshire Visitation of 1619. By the said Barbara, who was also next sister to Mrs. Drury, of Reach, co. Cambridge, and Fincham, co. Norfolk, and related to several of the contemporary gentry of the neighbouring counties, Edmund Hodilow, who was buried in Kelvedon Church, 22 Dec. 1586, had the presently named children, all then minors, and respecting whose moral, religious, and intellectual education he evinces great anxiety in his will, viz.,

- i. ARTHUR, his heir.
- ii. Thomas, bapt. 1580, and buried 1586; both at Kelvedon, aged six.
- iii. John, bapt. 1583-4, and alive 1641. To him his father willed his house at Witham, in Essex, and lands in that county.
- i. Anne, bapt. 1574.
- ii. Katherine, bapt. 1575, and alive 1594, unm.
- iii. Marche, bapt. 1576.
- iv. Susanna, styled in her father's will "the child newborn but not christened," which she, however, was on the day of his funeral, 22 Dec. 1586, like all her brothers and sisters, at Kelvedon.

ARTHUR HODILOU, Resident 'Squire of Grafton Underwood, co. Northampton, temp. JAMES and CHARLES I., and styled Gentleman in contemporary deeds, &c., eldest son and heir, was bapt. at Kelvedon, 24 Feb. 1577-8, and becoming seated at Grafton Underwood, recorded his pedigree in VINCENT, 112, in Coll. Arm., at the time of the Northamptonshire Visitation by that Herald, 1618. He m. 1st, about 1600, Jane, only sister of the Right Rev. Humphry Henchman,† D.D., Lord Bishop of London, previously Bishop of Salisbury, who, having saved CHAS. II.'s life after the battle of Worcester, was by that king raised to those sees after the Restoration, and appointed Chancellor of the Garter, Bishop Almoner, and Privy Counsellor to his Majesty, and dau. of Thomas Henchman, of Wellingbro', co. Northampton, who recorded his arms and pedigree at the London Visitation of 1634, by Anne, his wife, maternal aunt of Bishop Owen, before named as husband of Sarah Hodilow, first cousin to this Arthur, and aunt also of Lady Glynnne, and dau. of William Griffith, Esq., Constable of Carnarvon Castle, 4th son of Sir William Griffith, of Penrbyn, in that co., Chamberlain of North Wales, whose mother was co-heir with Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, of Sir William Troutbeck, slain at Bloreheath, in 1459; his grandmother, Griffith, a dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Dalton, of Dalton, co. Lancashire, by Catherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Venables, and his great-grandmother, Janet, dau. of Sir William Stanley, of Hooton, co. Chester, by whose marriage with Gwyllym ap Griffith, of the great and famous line of Marchudd ap Cynan, founder of the 8th noble tribe of North Wales and Powis, the knightly house of Griffith of Penrbyn was founded, (see p. 737.) By this well descended lady,§ Arthur Hodilow had,

- i. Thomas, aged 15 in 1618, who d. unm. at Dantzic, May, 1641, a few days before his father.
- ii. REV. ARTHUR, his heir.
- iii. Edmond, who left a son, EDMOND, heir male to Arthur.

* This March family merged in the baronetcy houses of Norton of Rotherfield and Wollaston of Loseley.

† Viz., Bland of Haddenham, Grey of Blithford, Dixon of Ashwell, Thorowgood of Essex, &c. The descendants of her sister, Drury, recorded at the Cambridge Visitation, in 1619.

§ Her mother was also first cousin to Lady Bagenal, grandmother of the wife of Dr. Lewis Bayly, Bishop of Bangor, (whence Bayly-Paget, Marquess of Anglesey,) and to Edmund, father of Dr. John Williams, Archbishop of York, and related to all the neighbouring Welsh and Cheshire aristocracy, as well as to Bowes of Streatlam, co. Durham, through Talbot. There are, however, contradictory accounts explanatory of the Constable of Carnarvon's connexion with Griffith of Penrbyn, some loose authorities calling him Robert Griffith, though all make him a member of Griffith of Penrbyn.

iv. John of Lubbenham, co. Leicester, who d. s. p. in 1648-9, leaving a will proved at Doctors' Commons.

v. Philip of Radwell, co. Herts, vintner, who d. s. p., leaving a will, proved at Doctors' Commons in 1642.

vi. RICHARD, of whom hereafter.

i. Jane, m. 1st, to James Fyshe; and 2ndly, to Mr. Constable.

ii. Cecily, wife of Francis Collins.

Arthur Hodilow, of Grafton Underwood, m. 2ndly, about 1630, Dame Susan Humfrey, widow of Sir Thomas Humfrey, Knt. of Swebston, co. Leicester, high-sheriff of Leicestershire, 1602, who recorded his arms and pedigree at the Leicestershire Visitation of 1619, and dau. of George Pilkington, Esq. of Staunton le Dale, co. Derby, and Barston, co. Leicester, whose arms and pedigree were entered by her ladyship's brother in the same Visitation, and great-granddau. of Edmund Pilkington, of Staunton le Dale, whose mother was Margaret Babington, of Dethic, (see p. 41.) by his wife, Katherine Basset, of Blore, co. Stafford, a descendant of many royal houses. (See PILKINGTON Pedigree, p. 1043.*) In right of this lady, Mr. Hodilow had a Chancery suit against Sir John Monson, in 1635, and dying aged 63, in May, 1641, left further issue by her ladyship, who was buried at Swebston, and her will proved at Doctors' Commons, in Sept. 1664, vii. George, of London, tobaccoist, who suffered a considerable loss by the great fire in 1666, and d. insolvent about 1670, having m. in 1663, Abigail, dau. of Mr. Henry Barker, of London, whom he left with an only child, George, who d. s. p., bequeathing his property to his mother's family.

viii. William, living in 1663.

ix. Henry, of Chester, who d. a bachelor, about 1696.

x. Anthony, of London, citizen and flaxman, who m. Mrs. Waldoe,† a widow, of the Waldoe family of Kent and Middlesex, descended from the celebrated Peter Waldo, of Lyons, who in the 12th century founded and gave name to the Waldenses. By her he, dying in 1711, had issue,

1. Thomas, who d. s. p. about 1725, seised of lands at Sudbury and Little Cornard, co. Suffolk.

2. John, citizen and girdler, of London, who, by Hannah, his wife, had issue, at his death, about 1727, three children,

1. John. 2. Thomas.

3. Elizabeth.

1. Elizabeth, m. 1st, John Crispe; and 2ndly, John Seagood.

2. Katherine, m. to Mr. James Lumley.

iii. Frances, m. to John Moseley.

THE REV. ARTHUR HODILOU, 2nd, but eldest surviving son and heir, having been introduced into St. Asaph's diocese through the patronage of his kinsman, the Bishop, (Dr. Owen,) m. Ermine, dau. of Hugh Meredith, Esq. of Wrexham and Pentirbychan, (see that name), brother of Sir William Meredith, of Stansty, in Wrexham parish, in the said diocese, paymaster of the army, temp. ELIZABETH and JAMES I., whose son, Sir William, was created a baronet in 1622, (see BURKE'S Extinct Baronetage), which family, chiefly residing at their other seat, Leeds Castle, co. Kent, Mr. Hodilow became resident at Stansty; his wife's sister, Susan Meredith, being m. to Robert Pulleston, Esq. of Havod-y-erne, also in Wrexham parish. On this Ermine, who was first cousin to the wives of the celebrated Sir Peter Wyche,‡ Ambassador to Constantinople, and Privy Counsellor to CHAS. I., and of Francis, Lord Cottington, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Ambassador to Madrid, Lord High Treasurer, and Master of the Wards to the same monarch, he settled the Cambridge property, however; and d. before Nov. 1647, when his will was proved at Doctors' Commons, leaving by her only a dau., Jane, living unm. in 1652. Thus his nephew,

EDMOND HODILOU (son of Edmond) became heir-male of the family, and was living in 1648, but dying s. p. soon after, the representation devolved on his (Edmond's) uncle,

Underwood, by Jane, his first wife, sister of Bishop Henchman, C.G. and P.C., and named after his mother's eldest brother, Richard Henchman, Esq. of Wellingbro' and Rushton, co. Northampton. He was apprenticed in Dec. 1637, and m. pursuant to licence granted 16 Jan. 1650, Susanna, dau. and co-heiress with her sister, Rebecca, wife of Isaac Honeywood, of Hampstead, (grandson, through his son Edward, of Sir Thomas Honeywood, of Evington, co. Kent, and first cousin to Sir Edward Honeywood, the first baronet of that name, by whom she was mother of Edward, and grandmother of Frazer Honeywood, Esq. of Hampstead and Malling Abbey, Kent, the great London hanker, of whom hereafter,) of William Pycheford, Gent., citizen and haberdasher of London, nephew of Robert Pycheford, of St. Alban's, who recorded their arms and pedigree at the Herts Visitation of 1634, as also of him of the name, whose widow* m. the first and great Lord Coventry, and 2nd son of Thomas Pycheford, resident 'Squire and chief proprietor of Lee Brockhurst, co. Salop, to whose progenitor, John Pycheford, of Lee Brockhurst, Rt. Cooke, Clarencieux, allowed their modern arms, temp. ELIZABETH, and descended from Sir John de Pycheford, Knt. of Pycheford, co. Salop, who d. seized of the manor of Lee Brockhurst, 13 EDWARD I., whose ancestor, Ranulph de Pycheford, for his valiant conduct at Bridgenorth Castle, temp. HENRY I., was enfeoffed by that king of Littlebrug, co. Salop, to be held by the tenure of finding drywood for the fires in Bridgenorth Castle when the king came there, as mentioned in CAMDEN'S Britannia. In 1676, Richard Hodilow had a Chancery suit against John, son of Sir Charles Doc, Knt. of London, arising out of the affairs of Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Staines, the only other co-heir of William Pycheford. Part of the Pychefords' property, also, in London, were houses in Coleman-street, burnt down by the great fire, in 1666. Richard Hodilow made his will, 23 Feb. 1696-7, sealed with the Hodilow arms and crest, and dying aged about 78, was buried in old Hampstead church, described in the register as "a gentleman," 18 May, 1698, and his will administered in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. According to tradition, confirmed by many remarkable circumstances, this Goldsmith Hodilow was the "Hamlet," or "Rundell" of that day.† By his said wife, who predeceased him, and was also interred in old Hampstead church, he had issue only daus., his co-heiresses, viz.,

- I. Elizabeth, m. pursuant to licence, granted Nov. 1684, to Mr. Samuel Dawes, of Hampstead, and St. Michael's, Cornhill, London.
- II. SUSANNA, of whom presently.
- III. Jane, who d. s. p. v. p.

SUSANNA HODILOW, 2nd dau. and co-heiress, and eventually sole representative, was b. about 1664, and pursuant to licence, granted 10 March, 1687-8, became the 2nd wife of Anthony Burren, Esq. of St. Dunstan's in the East, London, an eminent merchant of London, temp. JAMES II., free of the Mercers' Company, and afterwards one of the Court of Assistants of the Russia Company, who had recorded his pedigree and arms in the London Visitation the preceding year (1687), showing himself then a widower, aged 35, and s. p. s. to be only son and heir of Richard Burren, merchant of London, (whose father, another Richard Burren, styled Gentleman in his will, was Mayor of Reading, co. Berks, in 1638,) by Mary, his wife, sister of Michael Biddulph, progenitor of Biddulph of Ledbury, and dau. of Anthony Biddulph,† of Wood-street, London, merchant and haberdasher, uncle of Sir Theophilus Biddulph, Bart., of Westcombe, Kent,

* This lady was mother of the Hon. John Coventry, who libelled CHARLES II., and who, being maimed for it by hired ruffians, the "Coventry Act," as it is called, was passed. Her four daughters were, Anne, mother of George Saville, Marquess of Halifax; Mary, mother of Thomas Thynne, Viscount Weymouth; Margaret, wife of Anthony Ashley Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, the celebrated statesman, temp. CHARLES II.; and Dorothy, a great protégée of Bishop Henchman, and reputed authoress of The Whole Duty of Man, wife of Sir John Packington, Bart.

† The position of his connexions evidences his consequence; and the simple fact of his naming four men-servants in his will, shows his private establishment to have been no second-rate citizen's for that day.

† This Anthony Biddulph gave each of his daus. £1600 on her marriage, as appears by his will, proved in 1651, in C.P.C. This was a very considerable portion in that day for such Misses.

and Elmhurst, co. Stafford, and descended from the ancient family of Biddulph of Biddulph and Elmhurst, (see pp. 93-5, and also BURKE'S Baronetage), by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Robert Palmer, Esq. alderman of London, and his wife, Mary Cradock, of Staffordshire. By this gentleman, who d. aged 80, and was buried at Hampstead, 16 Sept. 1731, the heiress of Hodilow had surviving issue,

- I. RICHARD BURREN, of St. Catherine Creeks, London, bapt. 12 Aug. 1690, at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, who dying embarrassed, and a bachelor, during the commercial earthquakes of GEORGE II.'s reign, administration of his effects was granted, in 1739, by the Prerogative Court of Canterbury to one of his creditors, while the family representation devolved on his six sisters, as co-heiresses, to whom a small leasehold property in St. John's, Wapping, held of the Drapers' Company, and devised by Richard Hodilow's will, had been secured from the general wreck.
- I. SUSANNA BURREN, bapt. at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, 20 Oct. 1692; m. at Hampstead, 26 Sept. 1728, to Mr. William Barry, of Fleet-street, St. Dunstan's-in-the-West, London, woollen-draper, then a widower, aged 42, and a gentleman, (i. e., by birth,*) and free of the Haberdashers' Company, by purchase, dated 17 March, 1709. He died, aged 58, 27 May, 1743, and was buried at Hampstead, leaving by the said Susanna, who administered his effects, June, 1743, in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, and dying herself, 19 March, 1745-6, was buried beside him, three children, all of them minors, who were brought up by their maternal aunts, the Misses Burren, viz.,
 1. WILLIAM BARRY, b. 13 Aug. 1729, and bapt. 27 Aug. in the same year, at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West, Fleet-street. He was educated for a surgeon in London, but having lost the control of a father, and become connected with theatricals while a medical student, squandered his property, went upon the stage under the assumed name of Barnet,† and marrying, as before mentioned, was father of WILLIAM-BACHELOR BARNET, (or BARRY,) who took the name of BAYLEY, and of SAINT-JOHN BARNET, (or BARRY.)
 2. SAINT-JOHN BARRY, of the Minorities, and Leadenhall-street, London, goldsmith, b. 26 June, 1734, and bapt. 11 July following at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West. He m., but d. s. p., aged 75, and was buried at St. Mary's, Lambeth, 7 Aug. 1809, where he had retired after his failure, in 1789.
1. Susanna Barry, of Queen-square, St. George the Martyr's, b. 23 March, and bapt. 5 April, 1732, at her father's house, in Fleet-street. She d. unm., aged 68, 7 Jan. 1800, and was buried at Hampstead; by her will, dated 28 Feb. 1797, proved at Doctors' Commons, 11 Jan. 1800, she left the bulk of her property to her solicitor, Mr. John Tubbs, of Gray's Inn, and a Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, of Southampton-row, except only two trifling legacies to her eldest brother, William, and the wife of her nephew, Dr. Bayley, although both her nephews had christened their youngest daughters after her, and corresponded with her to the last.
- II. ANNE BURREN, bapt. at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, 12 Dec. 1693, who with her maiden sisters lived first in East-street, St. George the Martyr's, afterwards at Hampstead, and finally at Clerkenwell-green, co. Middlesex, and who, with her sister, Margaretta, then the only survivors, became claimants for a share of the celebrated

* On strong presumptive evidence, and by a very remarkable and most plausible pedigree, sanctioned by Ulster, King of Arms, this William Barry (who was doubtless a Jacobite, and perhaps Papist born) was nephew of one Elinor Barry, of Cork, who by her will, proved in Cork Consistory Court, 1712-13, mentions her cousin Barnet, and grandson, through his son John, of Philip Barry, of Cork, by his first wife, Ellen MacCarthy, sister of Mrs. Saint John, of Culedonell, co. Cork, maternal aunt of Almeric de Courcy, the outlawed (1691) Lord Kinsale, and descended, through Roche, Viscount Fermoy, from Barry, Viscount Buttevant; which Philip Barry m. 2ndly, the Hon. Margaret de Courcy, paternal aunt of the said Almeric, Lord Kinsale, and was himself grandson, through his son, William, of Philip Barry, feudal Lord of Ryncorran, co. Cork, (who having engaged in the Irish rebellion in 1641-2, all his estates were confiscated, and conferred on the Southwell family,) by Julian, his wife, dau. of Sir Dominick Sarsfield, Viscount Kilmallock, whose family was attained in 1691; and descended from Philip Barry, summoned to Parliament as a baron, 1374, whose progenitor, Philip Barry de Ryncorran, also received writs in 1302. No doubt William Barry, of Fleet-street, was of the Irish race; but the foregoing tracing explains the origin of the names Barnet and Saint John in his issue, and agrees with a variety of curious traditions; as of course with dates, and the essential points in identifications, without vitalising evidence.

† See MURPHY'S play of The Apprentice, written and acted at Drury Lane in 1756, to ridicule a then recent theatrical mania of the London apprentices.

£20,000 legacy,* left by their before-mentioned relative, Frazer Honeywood, Esq. of Hampstead and Malling Abbey, Kent, and of London, banker, 1764, to be divided amongst his kindred; and proving themselves his second cousins, obtained a share of it under an interlocutory decree in chancery, in 1769, as noticed by Anne Burren in her will, (sealed with the Hodilow arms,) 6 Nov. 1770. She d. unm. 9 April, 1781, and was buried in a vault of the Burrens', at Hampstead, near Lord Delamere's, and her will proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury the same year.

III. JANE BURREN, bapt. at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, 18 May, 1697, who d. unm. 13 Aug. 1749, and was buried in the said vault; and her will, dated 23 June, 1749, proved 1 Sept. in the same year, at Doctors' Commons.

IV. MARY BURREN, who d. unm. 27 Jan. 1764, and is buried with her sisters, at Hampstead. Her will also is at Doctors' Commons.

V. HANNAH BURREN, who d. unm. in East-street, and was buried at St. George the Martyr's, 11 August, 1741. Her will, dated 10 July, and proved at Doctors' Commons, 1 Oct. in the same year, mentions the property in St. John's, Wapping, held by lease of the Drapers' Company.

VI. MARGARETTA BURREN, the last surviving co-heiress, b. circ. 1703, who, by her will, dated 2 Sept. 1776, as of Clerkewell-green, bequeaths, inter alia, to her nephew, William Barret, (or Barry,) her "grandfather Hodilow's ring, with his coat of arms on it, and her old silver watch, and to Anne, his wife, her gold watch;" to her niece, Susanna Barry, she leaves "her own family pictures," &c., and appoints the said William Barry, executor and residuary legatee. She d. unm. 6 May, 1784, in her 82nd year, and was buried in the vault with her sisters, at Hampstead, 16 May, 1784. Her nephew, the said William Barret, (or Barry,) proved her will in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, and the seal ring of the Hodilow arms has ever since remained in the family; both his sons, indeed, as well as his senior grandson, having generally used the Hodilow arms simply, as heir-general, a large handsome seal of which, with helmet, mantling, &c., was impressed, by Dr. Bayley, on his letters, in 1788; but the family pictures bequeathed to Susanna Barry having passed, with the residue of her property, to her personal friends in London, they were lost to the family, and have never since been recovered.

Arms—Quarterly: 1st, Quarterly, or and ermine, on a fesse, sa., between three martlets, vert, three bezants, for BAYLEY; 2nd, pale of six, ar. and gu., on a chief, sa., three lozenges, or, for BURREN; 3rd, gu., a patée-cross, fitchée at foot, ar., within a bordure, engrailed, or, for HODILOW; 4th, az., a cinquefoil, between six martlets, or, a crescent, ar., in dexter chief, for difference, for PYCHEFORD.

BRADDON OF TREGLITH.

BRADDON, JOHN, Esq. of Treglith, co. Cornwall, m. Judith, dau. of Richard Kingdon, Esq. of Holsworthy, co. Devon, and has issue, three sons. Mr. Braddon, a magistrate for co. Cornwall, represents the elder branch of the family, and s. his father in 1823.

Tincage.

According to tradition, this family came from Northumberland, but we believe it to have been really from Northamptonshire, as we find described in Edmonson's printed Catalogue of Arms,—viz., Sable, a bend, fusilly, argent; or, Sable, a bend, engrailed, argent—applied as having been equally used by the families of Braddon of Cornwall, and Braden, or Braddene, of Northampton and Rutland. * More than four hundred persons put in claims for a share of this bequest, (vide AMBLER'S Reports), but the majority were of course set aside. Frazer Honeywood left his real estates to his fourth cousin, but nearest kinsman of his name, the Baronet Honeywood.

† Evidently pictures of the Barry family, which had fallen into testatrix's possession with the children's guardianship; and a strong corroboration of the superiority of the Barrys over even Burren and Hodilow.

‡ This delay was occasioned by the executor's absence at Pontefract, when news of her death reached Easingwold, and the deferment of the funeral till he could be communicated with, and reach London.

§ The old Bayleys of Eisingwold annexed no arms to the change of name in 1780-5, and the family they conferred it on being sated with such honours, obtained none; but the above charges were afterwards assumed, and more recently differenced, as above.

this family, the first person recorded in the Heralds' College as living in Cornwall, is

STEPHEN BRADDON, barrister of the Inner Temple, of Treworkey, in St. Genny's, Cornwall. He m. Alice, dau. of William Beleawe, and was elected member of parliament for the neighbouring town of Bossiney, in the first year of Queen ELIZABETH, 1558, as he also was in the fifth of the same reign. William Braddon, of whom we have no particular notice, lies also buried in St. Genny's Church, with the date 1600. WILLIAM BRADDON, grandson of Stephen, rebuilt the old house of Treworkey, as appears from his initials, still seen, cut in granite, with the date 1647, on the front wall; he d. at Treworkey, in the year 1694, and was buried within the railings of the altar in St. Genny's Church; he was elected member of parliament for the co. of Cornwall, in the year 1651, and was a commander in the civil wars, and an eminent magistrate during those great commotions, whence originated the lines inscribed on his tomb—

"In War and Peace I bore command,
Both Gown and Sword I wore,
But now am here laid in cold clay,
As those I ruled before.
Vain is the pomp and grandeur seen,
Which in the world men have;
For it leaves them when they come to die,
And to be laid in grave," &c.

By Ann, his wife, (who d. 21 Oct. 1672,) William Braddon left issue, two sons and one dau.,

HENRY.

Lawrence, barrister of the Middle Temple, who in 1683, was tried, with Hugh Speke, for spreading a report that the Earl of Essex had been murdered in the Tower, contrary to the inquisition taken after his decease, which found that he had destroyed himself; being convicted of the charge, Mr. Braddon was fined £2000, (a considerable sum of money in those days.) He pleaded his own defence; and afterwards published a pamphlet on the subject, entitled, "The Earl of Essex's innocence and honour vindicated, in a Letter to a Friend."

Lineage.

As early as the reign of King EDWARD I., the ancient family of Brooke, or Del Brooke, had a seat and estate at Leighton, in the parish of Nantwich, co. Chester, of which the direct male line† terminated on the death of Thomas Brooke, Esq. of Leighton, very aged, in 1652, having sold his house and lands there to Lady Mary Cholmondeley in 1608, in the 6th of JAMES I.‡ But although there was a failure of issue of the family in the direct male line, there are several branches remaining§ who claim descent from the collateral, or younger lines. One of these was located, in the last century but one, near Congleton,|| in the parish of Astbury; a member of which,

BENEDICT BROOKE, Esq., b. in 1670, and acquired an estate at Handford, (otherwise called Handford cum Bosden, or Handforth cum Bosden,) in the parish of Cheadle, co. Chester, in the 12 Queen ANNE, to which he afterwards made considerable additions. He d. in Aug. 1728, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD BROOKE, Esq., b. in 1715, who d. 19 July, 1774,¶ aged 59 years, and was s. by his only son,

RICHARD BROOKE, Esq., b. 14 June, 1761, who m. 29 Dec. 1786, Mary, dau. of Peter Penny, formerly Pennée, Esq., by whom (who d. 15 Jan. 1847, in her 81st year) he had issue,

- i. PETER, b. 4 Dec. 1788, a lieutenant in the Royal navy, who distinguished himself at Martinique in the boarding and capturing of the French brig of war, "La Cygne," of eighteen guns, under a heavy fire from the enemy's batteries and troops on shore, and his name was honourably mentioned in the "London Gazette" of the 4th of February, 1809, for his gallant conduct in that action. He was also engaged in the attack on New Orleans, on the 7th January, 1815, where he was wounded. On the 11th Nov. 1819, he m. Frances, widow of Charles Bowns, Esq. of Darley Hall, co. York, and d. without issue, 25 March, 1841.
- ii. RICHARD, of Handford and Liverpool, b. 19 July, 1791.
- iii. Thomas, b. 17 Sept. 1793, d. in infancy.
- iv. Strethill, b. 9 June, 1801, d. in infancy.
- i. Mary-Ann.

* Richard Brooke, Esq. of Handford, and of Liverpool, is descended, through his mother, from the ancient family of Trafford of Swithamley, co. Stafford, and is connected with the Traffords, formerly Leighs, of Oughtrington, co. Chester, (descended from a younger branch of the Swithamley family,) and distantly with the family of Brooke of Mere; and his wife is related to the family of Innes of Edengight, in Banffshire.

† The pedigree of Brooke of Leighton is given in ORMEROD'S Cheshire, vol. iii. p. 241.

§ The family of Brooke of Norton is from one of those branches.

|| In Smallwood and Buglawton, near Congleton.

¶ Another part of the same branch of the family resided for many years at Chelford, co. Chester, where they had an estate.

The Rev. Thomas Brooke, LL.D., dean of Chester, was of this branch; he was the son of Benedict Brooke, of Buglawton, in Cheshire, Gent., and received his education at Brasenose College. He was rector of Winslow, co. Bucks, vicar of Nantwich, 30 June, 1720, and rector of Dodleston, 15 June, 1739, and dying at Nantwich, was there buried, 20 December, 1757.* He was nearly related to the first-mentioned Benedict Brooke.

Another of this branch was Samuel Brooke, Esq. of Chelford, in Cheshire, who d. without issue in 1775, having devised his Chelford estate, in default of issue of his sister Catherine,

ALAN-EDWARD, b. 16 Oct. 1831.

Lineage.

The family of De Camera, or Chambre, is one of the few that has preserved an uninterrupted lineal male descent from a very early period. It is not known where the family originally sprang from. The name of Chaumberay occurs in the roll of Battle Abbey; and it has been ascertained lately, that there still exists in Normandy an ancient family of the name of De la Chambre, bearing the same arms as the Westmorland Chambrs, but without the chief; and that there exists also, at Milan, a family bearing the same name, now represented by the Marchese de la Camerà, and bearing the same arms, with the addition of the chief, which is traditionally reported to have been given for eminent services to the state. The chief, "a serpent gliding in pale, devouring an infant, ppr.," being the arms of the city of Milan, subsequently adopted by the Viscontis on becoming dukes of Milan. The first of the family who settled in Westmorland appears to have been

HUGH DE CAMERA, or DE CHAMBRE, who in the beginning of the reign of HENRY III. was assessed 16*d.* for the twentieth part of one knight's fee at Kendal. In the year 1230, Richard de Aston gave to Randle, son of Richard de Kingsley, one oxgang of land in Aston, co. Chester, which John Lacy, Constable of Cheshire, confirmed, and was afterwards given to Hugh de Camerà by the daus. and heirs of Richard de Kingsley, and Hugh de Camerà gave the same to Allan le Turner, of Frodsham. Hugh de Camerà was s. by his son,

JOHN DE CAMBRA, DE CAMERA, or DE LA CHAMBRE, as he is styled in various deeds, 9 EDWARD I., &c. This John, with Sybil, his wife, co-heiress with her sister, Margeria de Leyhourne, purchased of William, son of Robert de Strickland, the demesne lands of Houwys, which to this day bear the name of Chambre Hawes, and remained in the possession of the family until the middle of the last century. In a deed without date, he is styled "Ballivus Domine Margaret de Ross," which Margaret was co-heir of William de Lancaster, last Baron of Kendal, and m. Lord Ross of Wark. John de Camerà was succeeded by his son,

JOHN DEL CHAMBERS, DEL CHAMBRE, or DE CHAMBRE, as he is styled in various deeds, 7 EDWARD III., 49 EDW. III., 6 RICH. II., &c. In 36 EDW. III., he had some remaining parts of the Hawes from Richard Carus, and Agnes, his wife, in exchange for his lands in Watchfield. By his wife, Christiana, he had issue,

JOHN CHAMBYR, or CHAMBRE, or DEL CHAMBRE, as he is styled in deeds, 15 RICH. II., 6 HEN. IV., 9 HEN. IV. He m. Agnes, dau. of Thomas Middleton, Esq. of Middleton Hall, and had issue,

THOMAS DE CHAUMBR, CHAMER, or CHAMBRE. In 1 RICH. III., Sir Thomas Strickland granted to Thomas Chambre a messuage and twenty-five acres of land in Siggiswick (Sedgwick), paying yearly two farthings for all services, (still in the possession of the family.) He had issue, THOMAS, his heir. James. Robert.

In 1491, a Thomas Chambre was elected Abbot of Furness. Dr. Burns, in his History of Westmorland and Cumberland, vol. ii. p. 18, states, that a Robert Chamtrc was Abbot of Holm Cultram for about twenty-six years, in the reigns of HEN. VII. and VIII., and that his three brothers, Thomas, Richard, and Laurence, were all abbots of different places at the same time. The records of the family however, do not warrant the assertion that they were of this branch, at least in direct descent. Thomas Chambre was s. by his son,

THOMAS CHANMER, CHAUMER, or CHAMBRE, styled De Halls, in deed 3 HEN. VII. and other deeds. He m. and had issue,

ALAN CHAMBER, Esq. of Halhead Hall and Kendal, barrister-at-law, and a bencher of the Middle Temple, was elected recorder of Kendal in 1695, resigned his office in 1699, was re-elected in 1715, and resigned it in 1738 in favour of his son, Walter Chambre, Esq. In 1714, he proved his pedigree in the Heralds' College, and was told by the officers it was one of the fullest they had ever seen. In the commencement of his pedigree, after quoting from Camden's Remains, chapter on surnames, "that three hundred years are a sufficient antiquity for a family," he goes on to say, "and inasmuch as my family bath been upwards of five hundred years' continuance in Kendal, or the parish, in a direct line, and that with an estate competent against contempt, I do humbly acknowledge it as a signal instance of the promise or blessing of length of days, desiring my posterity, for whom this is written, to be also thereby, amongst other motives, the more incited into pious and virtuous lives, that it may please the Almighty to continue the same blessing, but without their being elated thereby, otherwise than by their being the more above little, sordid, and ungentile actions." Alan Chambre m. in April, 1692, Mary, eldest dau. and co-heir of Marmaduke Truman, of Mardenby Grange, co. York, and had issue,

He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ALAN CHAMBERE, Knt., one of his Majesty's justices of the Court of Common Pleas. Following the steps of his great-grandfather, grandfather, and father, Mr. Chamber was brought up to the profession of the law. Left a minor at the death of his father, with an encumbered estate burdened with two jointures and the maintenance of his brothers and sister, he gave early proofs of that independent and upright, as well as noble and generous spirit which so strikingly marked his character during a long and useful life. Having chosen the northern circuit, he became early one of its leaders, and continued to be so until he was raised to the bench, "on which occasion (are the words of one who knew him intimately) the acclamations of the whole bar were quite unprecedented." His elevation to the bench was attended with a trivial circumstance, which yet strongly marked the estimation he was held in by the then chancellor, Lord Loughborough, and Mr. Pitt, the prime minister, to neither of whom was he barely known, except by character. Mr. Chamber, practising in the Court of King's Bench, had not taken the degree of serjeant-at-law, a necessary step to the bench, which could only be conferred during term. The vacancy on the bench occurring out of term, and it being desirable that no time should be lost in filling it up, Mr. Pitt resorted to the unprecedented step of obtaining an act of parliament, the house then sitting, to enable the king to create serjeants out of term time. The act contains only two clauses, a short preamble and a still shorter enactment. Sir Alan's judicial career was marked by the same pure and independent spirit, joined to the greatest benevolence, which had characterized his early life, and so high was the estimation he was held in as a judge, that on more than one occasion his late majesty, GEORGE III., took the opportunity of expressing his high opinion of Sir Alan Chamber's character and worth—a testimony which was further confirmed by the notice and expressed sentiments of H.R.H. the Prince Regent, to whom he was known only in his judicial capacity. It may, indeed, be fearlessly asserted, that in his public career, few have ever commanded higher respect and esteem than Sir Alan Chamber, or gone down to the grave more beloved and lamented by those with whom he was connected through the ties of friendship and blood. Sir Alan d. unm. at Harrogate, July, 1823, aged 83, when the representation of the family devolved upon the children of his brother, (who had predeceased him.)

Walter Chambre, who was a partner in the firm of Eibbeck, Chambre, and Ross, a very large mercantile house in the Virginia trade, suffered great reverses of fortune by the breaking out of the American war. When Lord Dunmore, governor of Virginia, found it necessary to abandon that office, he removed with his family and suite on board a very fine vessel, then lying in Norfolk Bay, belonging to Eibbeck, Chambre, and Ross. Previous to bombarding the town, a printing-press was brought on board by the soldiers, with types and workmen, and the Norfolk Gazette was printed for three weeks at sea. Several proclamations and other papers were also printed. Walter Chambre having predeceased his brother, the representation of this family devolved upon the only child of his eldest nephew, Mary Alan, while the estates passed, under the will of Sir Alan Chambre, to his second but eldest surviving nephew,

THOMAS CHAMBRE, Esq., barrister-at-law, signer of the writs in the Court of King's Bench, and clerk of assize on the western circuit. COLSTON OF ROUNDWAY PARK AND FILKINS HALL.

COLSTON, EDWARD, Esq. of Filkins Hall, co. Oxford, and of Roundway Park, Wilts, an officer in the King’s Hussars, b. in 1822; m. 20 June, 1848, Louisa-Ruperta, dau. of the Rev. Edward Murray, second son of Lord George Murray, Bishop of St. David’s, second son of James, Duke of Atholl. (See BURKE’S Peerage.)

Lineage.

We are justly proud of the merchant-princes of England. Possessing wealth equal to that of many royal potentates, they employ that wealth with almost royal munificence in philanthropic objects, destined long to survive their own short tenure of life. THE CHARITIES OF ENGLAND are a crown of jewels such as a nation never wore hut herself. Greece may boast of her chaplet of hays, Rome of her iron diadem of war, hut the adornment of our own country’s brow is a fairer one than either—the gentle virtues wrought by Christianity—the helping of the weak and afflicted—the causing the widow’s heart to sing for joy.

EDWARD COLSTON was one of those princely benefactors to whom we have alluded. He was descended by a long line of ancestry, from ROBERT DE COLSTON, of Colston Hall, in the county of Lincoln, living at the time of the Conquest, many of whose descendants were knights. Rowland de Colston, of Colston, m. the daughter of Sir Thomas Wenterburen, Knt., and had issue, two sons, Thomas, of Colston; and James. From the latter gentleman, through a descent of nine generations, this branch of the family, that of Preston-Mercer, descended. Edward Colston, the philanthropist, was b. at Bristol, 13 Nov. 1636, and was son of William Colston, sheriff of that city. His father was largely engaged in the Spanish and Levantine trade; and soon after the completion of his education, Edward visited Spain, with a view to extend his mercantile connexion with that country. On his return to Bristol, he continued the business of a Spanish merchant, and by it attained the opulence, which he employed in relieving the necessities of the afflicted. He never married, alleging as his plea, “that every helpless widow was his wife, and all distressed orphans were his children.” To this end, and to alleviate their wants, he founded several almshouses, charity-schools, and hospitals, on which he is supposed to have expended more than one hundred thousand pounds; while his acts of private beneficence demanded from him a nearly equal sum. His charity-school in St. Augustine’s-place, Bristol, is the most important free school in that city. Here one hundred boys are boarded, clothed, and educated for seven years from the period of their admission; and are then apprenticed to trade, or to a profession, the fee being also paid by the institution. This seminary is rendered memorable by the name of CHATTERTON—

—“the marvellous boy,
The sleepless soul that perish’d in his pride.”

Chatterton was admitted into Colston’s school in Aug. 1760, he being then eight years of age. He remained for the usual period; and in July, 1767, was apprenticed to Mr. John Lambart, an attorney, of Bristol. The poems, which he attributed to Rowley, the monk, were in great part composed during the intervals of his school hours, or during the holidays which the institution afforded. Mr. Colston's calm and unostentatious life was protracted to the longest limit. He died, in the eighty-fifth year of his age, 11 Oct. 1721, and was buried in the church of All Saints, Bristol, where is his tomb. A statue, executed by Rysbrack, and modelled from a portrait by Richardson, which is kept in the saloon of the Merchants' Hall, forms a suitable monument, and preserves the mien and form of the philanthropist for our contemplation. A sermon is annually preached in this church in memory of his useful life; and it is customary to place, each Sunday, in the bosom of his statue, some specimens of such flowers as the season affords. Notwithstanding his munificent charities, Mr. Colston left a fortune of £100,000 to his only surviving sister and heir, MARY, who had married, in 1670, Sir William Hayman, of Bristol.* The issue of this marriage was one dau.,

MARY, who m. in 1698, Thomas Edwards, Esq. of Filkins Hall, co. Oxford, and had three daus., her co-heirs,

- i. Sarah, who m. John Fullen, Esq., and d. s. p.

- iii. Frances-Louisa, m. to Richard Dutton, Esq. of London.
- iv. Louisa-Mary, m. to Morris, second son of John-Izard Pryor, Esq. of Clay Hall, Herts, and has issue, Louisa.

Mr. Colston m. 2ndly, 18 Oct. 1814, Harriet, dau. of Robert Davies, Esq. of Farthingville, co. Cork. His eldest son,

EDWARD-FRANCIS COLSTON, Esq. of Filkins Hall, Oxfordshire, and of Roundway Park, Wilts, b. 15 April, 1795, m. 1 Nov. 1819, Marianne, only dau. and heiress of William Jenkins, Esq. of Shepton Mallet, and d. in April, 1847, leaving issue,

* Sir William Hayman, a member of the old Somersetshire family of that name, was mayor of Bristol in 1684, in which year (8 March) he was knighted at Whitehall, by JAMES II. In 1685, after Monmouth's defeat at Sedgmoor, the infamous Judge Jefferies was sent to try all persons concerned in the revolt. His barbarities we need not here set forth. When at Bristol, he replaced the mayor, who attended his court in his scarlet robe, at the bar, and inveighed against him in the lowest scurrility, because of Sir William's kindness to some unfortunate prisoners.

- i. EDWARD, present representative.
- ii. William-Jenkins-Craig, b. in 1824.
- iii. Samuel-Hunt, b. in 1825.

Eliza-Owen.
Olivia.

Henrietta-Ellen.

Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is proved by a document drawn up for Sir Robert Finlay, of Stockholm, by J. Campbell, Lyon king of arms, in 1755, which document is now in the possession of the present representative. From this document the following is an extract:—

“Having made diligent inquiry and examined into the pedigree of the aforesaid family, (I) do find that the said Robert Finlay's family is descended, on the paternal side, from the ancient families of Balfour of Dunmiln, Scot of Balweerie, Kinneir of Kinneir, all old Barons of the aforesaid county of Fife; and on the maternal side, from the noble and ancient families of Grey, Lord Grey, Stewart, Earl of Orkney, Ogilvie, Earl of Airly, and Kennedy, Earl of Cassilis.”

The first who settled in Ireland was

ABRAHAM FINLAY, of Balchristie, co. Fife, who had two sons, ABRAHAM, his heir; and Robert, who was father of Sir Robert Finlay, Knt. of Stockholm, in Sweden. The elder son,

ABRAHAM FINLAY, Esq. of Balchristie, co. Fife, m. Frances Macdonald, of the Antrim family, and had two sons, THOMAS; and William, whose dau. m. Lord Dufferin. The elder son,

THOMAS FINLAY, Esq., m. Rebecca Stear, and was father of

JOHN FINLAY, Esq., who settled at Corkagh. He was M.P. for co. Dublin, col. of the county militia, and J.P. By his wife, Elizabeth Stear, he had issue, THOMAS, his heir; George, capt. 6th regt.; and Jane-Louisa, m. in 1802, to Richard Jebb, Esq., one of the judges of the Court of King's Bench in Ireland. The elder son and heir, FRASER OF FINDRACK AND PITMURCHIE.

FRASER, FRANCIS-GARDEN, Esq. of Findrack, co. Aberdeen, s. his father in 1824, and is heir and representative of Baird of Auchmedden, chief of that name.

Lineage.

FRANCIS FRASER, only son of John Fraser, who acquired the lands of Ferryhill, near Aberdeen, who was fourth son of Thomas Fraser, of Durris, co. Kincardine, and Helen, dau. of James Gordon, of Abergeldie, acquired the lands of Findrack and Pitmurchie, in Lumphanan, and at different periods the lands of Tolmads, Drumlassie, and Birsclassie, &c., in the parish of Kincardine O'Neil, co. Aberdeen.

The immediate ancestor of the family of Durris, (who were anciently designed Thanes of Cowie and Durris,) in common with the noble families of Lovat and Saltoun, (DOUGLAS'S Peerage, voce SALTOUN and MACFARLANES' Genealogical Memoir.) was Sir Alexander Fraser, Knt., Lord High Chamberlain of Scotland in the reign of King ROBERT the Bruce. He m. Lady Mary, sister of that great prince, from whom he got many grants of land. He had a charter of the lands of Strachan in 1316, and the king afterwards gave "dilecto et fideli suo Alexandro Fraser militi," the lands of the Thanedom of Cowie to him, "et hæredibus suis inter ipsum et Mariam Bruce, spensam suam sororem nostram." The lands of Durris were erected into a free barony by King DAVID BRUCE in 1369.

GARDYNE OF MIDDLETON.

The following is a more correct pedigree of this family than that given at p. 134 of Supplement.

There are no records known to be in existence of the early history of this family. The first authentic document is a justiciary process in the 15th century, relating to a feud between the laird of Gardyne and the laird of Guthrie, the latter of whom was killed by the former. An account of Forfarshire, written by John Ochterlony, of Guynd, printed in the Spottiswood Miscellany, and supposed to be compiled somewhere about 1660 or 1670, calls them "Gairdyne of that ilk, a very ancient family, and chief of the name;" previous to that time the castle of Gardyne, and a great part of the barony, had passed out of their hands. The tradition of the family says it had been, "wadset," to raise money for the government, in defence of the country. The Gardynes, or Gardens, of that ilk, the Gardynes of Lawton, and the Gardynes of Middleton, are all one and the same family.

* For some account of the family of Baird, see BURKE'S Peerage and Baronetage, voce Newhyth and Saughtonhall.

DAVID GARDYNE, of Lawton, m. in 1603, Janet Lindsay, of Edzell, and had issue. He was s. by his son,

MACDONALD OF RANATHAN AND ST. MARTIN'S.

MACDONALD, WILLIAM-MACDONALD, Esq. of Ranathan and St. Martins, b. in 1822, s. his father, Major-Gen. James-Alexander Farquharson, in 1834, and his cousin, William Macdonald, of St. Martin's, in 1841, and in virtue of the deed of entail of the St. Martin's properties, took the name of MACDONALD in lieu of his patronymic of FARQUHARSON. He m. in 1849, the Hon. Clara-Anne-Jane Brownlow, second dau. of the first Lord Lurgan, and sister of the present peer.

Lineage.

FINDLA MORE, the common ancestor of the various branches of the Farquharsons, (see vol. i. p. 400,) m. Beatrice, dau. of George Garden, of that ilk, and had issue several sons. The second son, DONALD FARQUHARSON, laird of Castletown, m. Janet Ogilvie, and left issue seven sons.

WILLIAM FARQUHARSON, laird of Corlarach, left, among other children, a son,

DONALD FARQUHARSON, who served in Leven's regiment, at the battle of Killyranky, in the year 1681, and was m. to Margaret McGregor, of Ach Collater. He had issue,

DONALD FARQUHARSON, (commonly called More,) who served in Viscount Shannon's regiment, at the battle of Sheriffmuir, where he was wounded. He m. Jean Robertson, of Knoelo, and had issue,

JOHN FARQUHARSON, who served in Flanders, was wounded at Fontenoy, and again at Bergen op Zoom, (where his twin-brother, George, was killed.) He m. Christian, eldest dau. of James Maedonald, of Ranathan, (his third cousin,) by Anne, dau. of William, laird of Corlarach, and had issue,

JAMES-ALEXANDER FARQUHARSON, Esq., major-general in the army, who served in the West Indies, in 1794, 1796; Holland, 1789; Egypt, 1801, where he distinguished himself; and at the reduction of Guadaloupe, in 1815. He m. Rehecca, eldest dau. and eventual co-heiress of Sir George Colquhoun, Bart. of Tully Colquhoun, and left, at his decease, in April, 1834, (he was then Governor of St. Lucia,) an only son, the present WILLIAM MACDONALD-MACDONALD, Esq. of Ranathan and St. Martin's.

Macdonald of Ranathan.

This branch of the great clan of Macdonald settled on Dee Side, after the Lord of the Isles engaged the king's forces, at the battle of Harla, in 1414. It is very difficult, however, in those remote times, to ascertain the exact history of families. There seems to be no authentic account of the heads of this branch of the Macdonalds till 1630, when mention is made of ALEXANDER MACDONALD, known by the name of Marcus. He left a son,

JAMES MACDONALD, who m. Anne Farquharson, dau. of William, laird of Corlarach; he was much respected, lived to the age of 80, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM MACDONALD, b. in 1663, who m. Janet, dau. of Macgregor of Drummachary, (the property now belongs to Mr. Macdonald, and Garth Castle, built upon it, is one of the seats of the family.) He was a man of great courage and lawless daring, and was mixed up in some of the wild exploits of the Macgregors, who were then an outlawed family. He had issue,

JOHN MACDONALD, who succeeded him, and d. unm., and

JAMES MACDONALD, b. in 1702, who m. in 1731, Helen, dau. and heiress of Ludovick Grant, of Tullach. He was an accomplished man, and was of great use in that remote county, in advancing the civilization of the people on his property. It is well known that almost all the families of Macdonald espoused the cause of the Stuart family in '15 and '45, but in the former of these periods, William, laird of Ranathan, had been s. by his son JOHN, who was a minor, and in the latter, James, who was far beyond those around him in mental cultivation, did not wish to embroil himself in civil warfare. He felt the less inclined to espouse the cause of Charles Edward, as Sir Alexander Macdonald, the Lord of the Isles, had declined taking part in his favour. Ranathan, consequently, escaped the universal conflagration after the battle of Culloden, and its walls gave shelter to many a poor houseless sufferer. He d. in 1776, aged seventy-four, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM MACDONALD, b. in 1732, who, being in possession of the estate of St. Martin's, in Perthshire, at his father's death, preferred making it the principal residence of the family, as it was more ancient than Ranathan. He was an active, energetic man, and was of much use in forwarding agricultural improvements in Scotland, especially in the active part he took in the formation of the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland, of which he was the first secretary. The society marked its grateful sense of his services by presenting him with a service of plate, hanging his portrait in their hall in Edinburgh, and, after his death, by erecting a handsome monument to his memory in the parish church of St. Martin's. He m. Cecilia, dau. of Kinloch of Kilrog and Logie, and left a son,

WILLIAM MACDONALD, who s. his father in 1814. He m. in 1808, Grizel, eldest dau. of Sir William Miller, Bart. of Glenlee, long a distinguished member of the senate of justice, under the title of Lord Glenlee. He d. in 1841, and was s. by his cousin, WILLIAM MACDONALD-FARQUHARSON, now of St. Martin's.

Seats—Great St. Martin's House, Garth Castle, Crossmount Lodge, Glen-Shee Lodge, Perthshire, Rossie Castle, Forfarshire.

MACMICKING OF KIL-ST. NINIAN, AYRSHIRE.

MACMICKING, THOMAS, Esq. of Miltonise, co. Wigton, b. in 1786; m. Jane, youngest dau. of the late John Morine, Esq. of Laggan, and sister of the present John Morine, Esq. of Allanton and Cayfield, Dumfriesshire, and has issue,

- I. THOMAS, b. in 1812.
- II. John, d. in infancy.
- III. Gilbert, b. in 1823.
- IV. John, d. in infancy.
- V. Robert, b. in 1826.

- I. Catherine, m. John Wilson, Esq. of Hillpark.
- II. Jane-Maitland, m. to the Rev. John Harper.
- III. Mary. v. Ellen, d. young.

Lineage.

Little is known of the origin of this family beyond the current tradition of Mahun, the founder, having come to Carrick, from the Dahriad, co. Argyll, in the ninth century, (temp. 836,) and from him is derived the surname.

Till about the end of the twelfth century little has been preserved of his descendants' history, but at that time Mahun Rusid is heard of as having fought a pitched battle on the south of the Girvan, near where Ardmillan House now stands; and as having afterwards crossed Loch Ryan, and established himself in Kirkeolme. At this place he and most of his followers were murdered. Some of them are said to have fled to Ireland, some few to have returned to Ayrshire, and one or two appear to have remained undiscovered at Kirkeolme.

Ninth in descent from the Rusid was SIR GILBERT, who m. Agnes Macdonald, dau. of John, the son of Angus, King or Lord of the Isles. His son John spelt his name Macmichan, who was grandfather of John, who sold his estate, and died in France in 1507; he was the last of that ilk.

GILBERT, second in descent from him, regained a part of the old estate by marrying Isabel Hamilton, of Killantringan, which barony has since continued to be the designation of the chief of Macmiking. At the time of the Scottish reformation some of the clan were not undistinguished; the second son of Gilbert of Killantringan, (1st of Miltonise,) having caused to be rebuilt the family chapel, (Barhill,) where Presbyterian ministers preached to the country people, was the first person in Scotland persecuted by Claverhouse, who, not finding the laird at Miltonise, carried off three horses, &c. The Rev. John Maemichan, of Dalry, was also among the proscribed.

JOHN, of Killantringan, fifth in descent from Gilbert, entailed his estates past his next of kin, the present chief, Thomas Maemicking, of Miltonise, on a distant relation. His successor broke the entail, and sold Killantringan in 1840, the Grange estate remaining bound by it.

The spellings of the name are various; from the ancient one of Macmahun are derived the present corruptions of Macmehan and Macmeihan, both common in Galloway, being descended of those who remained in Kirkeolme, on Mahun Rusid's death. Macmichan is still borne by the Meikleforthhead family; Maemiking, adopted about 1500 by John; Macmicing has fallen into disuse; Macmicking is the spelling of the chief of the clan; Macmikin and Macmicken are also common. In addition to these, are sometimes found Mehan, Meihan, &c., without the prefix of Mac.

Arms—Az., four fleurs-de-lis, in cross, the tops to the exterior of the shield, or; and for the chief, over all, an escocheon, dovetailed, as badge of chiefship.

Crest—A demi-savage, bearing in his dexter hand an arrow, and wearing at his back a quiver, full, ppr.

Mottos—"Res non verba;" and also, "We have done," or, "We hae dunc."

MATHEW OF LLANDAFF.

Enceage.

The family of MATHEW of Llandaff is descended from GWAYTH-VOED, (Prince of Cardigan in right of his mother,) who d. in 1037.

Eleventh in descent from Gwayth-voed, through a long line of alliances with the first families of Wales, too tedious to detail, was EVAN AP GRIFFITH GETHIN, of Brynwith, who m. Crisly, sister and heir of Aedan ap Llewellyn ap Cynric, Lord of Rythin, and had a son,

MATHEW AP EVAN, of Brynwith, who m. Janet, dau. and heiress of Jenkin Fleming, of Penlline Castle, and had three sons,

- i. DAVID (Sir), the great standard-bearer to EDWARD IV. ii. Lewis, m. Joan, dau. and heiress of Gwyllim ap Rhyn, Lord of Penlline, and had one dau., Catharine, m. to John Ragland, of Garllwyd.
- iii. Robert, m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Llewellyn ap Howell, and went to reside at Castle Monich: from him descended William and Morgan, who settled at St. Ryl. A descendant of this family, the dau. and heiress of Charles Mathew, of Castle Monich, m. Charles, Lord Talbot, of Hensol, chancellor of Eng. and.

The eldest son was

SIR DAVID MATHEW, the great Standard-Bearer of England in the reign of EDWARD IV., the ancient altar-monument to whom, with his effigies carved in alabaster, is still in the chapel of the Mathew family in Llandaff Cathedral, and highly prized. (See BROWNE WILLIS, SIR RICHARD-COLT HOARE, &c.) He m. Gwenllian, dau. of David ap Gwyllim ap Jenkyn Herbert, of the Chapel. She was cousin-german of Sir William ap Thomas, who m. Gladys, dau. of Sir David Gam, from whom descended William, 1st Earl of Pembroke, and Sir Richard Herbert, both cruelly beheaded in 1469. By her, Sir David Mathew had five sons and two daus.,

- i. John, of Llandaff, m. his cousin, the dau. of Thomas Fleming, Lord of Flemingstone, and had a dau. and heiress, Janet, m. to Sir John Morgan, of Tredegar, knight of the Holy Sepulchre, living in 1491.
- ii. Rimbrom, m. Isabella, dau. of Sir William Denis, Knt., and had issue, Sir Christopher, whose fine altar monument, as described by Browne Willis, is in Llandaff Cathedral; and a dau., m. Oliver Basset, Esq. of Beaupre, and had issue, Eleanor, m. to Sir Reece Mansell, Knt. Rimbrom d. in 1470, and was buried at St. Mark's the Evangelist of Gauntz, at Bristol, in pursuance of his own will, in which, besides other bequests, he ordered the images of gold and silver to be placed around the shrines of the saints Theliam Dubricius and Odoceus in Llandaff Cathedral, to the full number there required. Of many distinguished persons descended from Rimbrom Mathew, was the brave Admiral Mathews, so ill-used in 1744. The line became extinct in the well-known Thomas Mathews, of Bath.

iii. THOMAS, of Aradyr.

iv. William, whose only dau. and heiress m. to John St. John.

v. Jenkyn, who was killed at Cowbridge by certain men of Brecknock, and left no issue.

i. Margaret, m. Edward Malefacent, Esq., whom William, Earl of Pembroke, had in his will directed his dau. should marry.

ii. Ellen, m. to Thomas Boteler, Esq.

THOMAS MATHEW, of Aradyr, 3rd son of Sir David Mathew, and by direct descent from whom were the late Earls of Llandaff, settled at Aradyr, an estate a short distance from Llandaff. He m. Kate, dau. of Morgan Llewellyn, Lord of Rythin, descended of Jestyn ap Gwrgant, Prince of Glamorgan and had

- i. David, m. Alice, dau. of Robert Vell, of St. Fagan's, and had four daus.
- ii. WILLIAM (Sir), knight-banneret.
- i. Janet, m. to Thomas Stradling, of St. Donat's Castle, son and heir of Sir Harry Stradling, who made the pilgrimage to Jerusalem in 16 EDWARD IV., and d. at the Isle of Cyprus. Thomas Stradling d. in his 26th year, having, by Lady Janet, two sons, Edward and Harry, and one dau., Jane. Lady Janet m. 2ndly, to the famous Sir Rhys ap Thomas, Knight of the Garter, who raised the Welsh and joined HENRY VII., and fought bravely against RICHARD III. at Bosworth Field.

SIR WILLIAM MATHEW, Knight-banneret, (2nd son of Thomas of Aradyr,) was a very distinguished person and gallant soldier of the reign of HENRY VIII., which monarch he accompanied to the Field of the Cloth of Gold. His splendid altar-monument, in alabaster, dated 1528, (as described by Browne Willis,) is in Llandaff Cathedral. He lies thereon in complete armour, decorated with the collar of SS., and his lady by his side. The monument had been taken down on the repairs of the cathedral, and left in pieces in the chapter-house, until restored by the present Mr. Edmund Mathew, with the consent and approbation of the Rev. Bruce Knight, chancellor of the diocese; it now forms one of the most magnificent ancient monuments in all Wales. Sir William m. Janette, dau. of Henry ap Glyn ap Gwyllim, of Llangathan, and had issue,

- i. GEORGE (Sir), Knt., high-sheriff of Glamorgan in 1544, m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir Henry Herbert, of Colebrooke, Knt., and had four daus. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Robert Brett, Esq., and by her had four daus. and six sons.

1. William, m. a dau. of Sir George Herbert, Knt. of Swansea, and had many daus. He was high-sheriff of Glamorgan in 1569.
2. Henry, m., and had two daus.
3. George, had two daus.
4. EDMUND, on whom the estates and representation devolved, of whom hereafter.
5. Thomas; no issue.*
6. Miles; no issue.

EDMUND MATHEW, 4th son of Sir George, s. to the estates, &c., and was high-sheriff of the co. of Glamorgan in 1592. He m. Jane, dau. of Bartholomew Skern, Esq. of Somersetshire, and had issue, five sons and five daus.; of these—George was the eldest, and Edmund, the second, went to Ireland about 1615; the remaining sons remained in Glamorganshire, and the daughters married. Of the two sons above named, Edmund died a colonel in the army, in Ireland, about 1652, leaving by his will, proved in 1653, his estate at Gorbally, to his nephews, Toby and George, the sons of his brother, Captain George.

CAPTAIN GEORGE MATHEW, the 1st son of Edmund Mathew, m. Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Butler, Viscount Thurles, son of Walter, 11th Earl of Ormonde, who was lost at sea on the Skerries, on the 15th Dec. 1619. This lady had three sons and two daus. by Lord Thurles, the eldest of whom, James, was the first and great Duke of Ormonde; by this lady, George Mathew had two sons and two daus., Toby and George Mathew, half-brothers of the duke; Frances, a nun; and Elizabeth, m. to Edward Butler, of Ballyragget. Captain George Mathew d. in 1636, at Tenby. Of Toby Mathew, the elder son, more hereafter.

GEORGE MATHEW, of Reaghill, 2nd son of Captain George and Lady Thurles, afterwards settled on the demesne of Thomastown. He m. Eleanor, widow of Edmund Butler, Lord Cahir, which is thus recorded in LODGE'S Peerage, 1757:—"Eleanor, 2nd dau. of Edmund Butler, Lord Duiboynne, m. in 1641, Edmund Butler, son and heir of Thomas, Lord Cahier, who d. before his father, when she remarried with George Mathew, of Thomastown, a gentleman of great fortune, honour, ability, and integrity," and had one son, Theobald Mathew, more familiarly called Toby. This

THEOBALD MATHEW, of Thomastown, m. the dau. and heiress of Bartholomew Faulkes, and had three sons and four daus.,

- i. GEORGE, of Thomastown, styled Grand George, of whom hereafter.
- ii. Toby, d. unm. in 1720.
- iii. Bartholomew, d. unm. in 1712.
- i. Elizabeth, m. Christopher O'Brien, heir of Donogh O'Brien, of Duagh.
- ii. Frances, the wife of Captain John Butler, of Kilvoilegh, co. Tipperary.
- iii. Eleanor, wife of Kean O'Hara, of Nymphsfield.
- iv. Anne, m. Pierce, 3rd Lord Galmoy.

Theobald Mathew d. 6 Jan. 1699, and was s. by his son,

GEORGE MATHEW, of Thomastown, (styled Grand George, for his great requirements and style of living, see SHERIDAN'S Life of Swift.) He m. 1st, Elizabeth Butler, of Ballyragget, and had four sons,

- i. George, d. unm. in the lifetime of his father.
- ii. Edmund.

* About this period lived the celebrated Tobias Mathew, Archbishop of York, who d. in 1628. The archbishop was descended from the ancient family of Williams of Flint, but the Williams's marrying the heiress of Edmund Mathew, Esq., they took the name and arms of MATHEW. (See BLISS, Athenæ Oxonienses.)

iii. Theobald, m. Mary-Anne, dau. of George Mathew the younger, in 1731. He d., and she re-married Charles O'Hara. They had two children, a son, George, who d. an infant; and a dau., who d. a minor in 1750, when thus failed the line of George Mathew, of Thomastown, second son of Captain George and Lady Thurles.

But it must be noticed that Grand George m. 2ndly, Aune, widow of James de la Poer, Earl of Tyrone, and d. in 1740, leaving no issue male, when the estate came to George Mathew, the youngest, of Thurles, brother of the Mary-Aune Mathew who had m. Toby, son of Grand George. We must now go to the Thurles branch, commencing with

TOBY MATHEW, of Thurles and Annefield, the eldest son of Captain George and Lady Thurles. Toby Mathew, who obtained of his half-brother, the Duke of Ormonde, the manor, castle and town of Thurles, with a vast estate surrounding, m. three times: 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir Valentine Brown, of Hospital; 2ndly, Anne Saul; and 3rdly, Catherine Neville. By his first wife he had, with one dau. Elizabeth, (who m. Pierce Butler, Lord Cabier,) two sons, GEORGE and James, who m. a dau. of Theobald Bourke, Lord Brittas. The elder son,

GEORGE MATHEW, Esq., (called Major George, and also George Mathew the elder, of Thurles,) m. 1st, Cecilia, dau. of Francis Arundel, of Dykes, and brother of Sir John Arundel, and had one son, GEORGE, the younger, of Thurles, of whom hereafter. He m. 2ndly, the widow of Sir Simon Eaton, Bart., and dau. of Sir Richard Aldworth, of Newcastle, co. Cork; by her he had one son, Justyn, who d. unm. in 1725, and two daus. The son and heir,

GEORGE MATHEW, the younger, m. 1st, Mary, Lady Shelley, widow of Sir John Shelley, of Mitchell's Grove, and dau. of Sir John Gage, of Firlie, and by her had one son, GEORGE, the youngest, of Thurles, afterwards of Thomastown, and one dau. Mary Anne, who, as before related, m. Theobald, 3rd son of Grand George, and afterwards Charles O'Hara. He m. 2ndly, Martha Eaton, dau. of his step-mother, but by her had no issue. The only son, GEORGE MATHEW, the youngest, of Thurles, who s. to Thomastown on the decease of Grand George, m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Thomas Butler, of Kilcash, by his wife, Lady Margaret Bourke, eldest dau. of the Earl of Clanricarde, and widow of the Rt. Hon. Bryan, Lord Viscount Iveagh; by her, who d. in July, 1743, he had one son, who d. an infant, and a dau. Margaret, wife of Michael Aylmer, of Lyons, co. Kildare. She disputed her father's will against Thomas Mathew, of Annefield, and failed. She was ancestress of the present Earl of Kenmare. He m. 2ndly, Isabella, dau. of W. Brownlow, of Shankhill, M.P. for the co. Armagh, but had no issue. He d. 30th March, 1760, when both the Thurles and Thomastown families became extinct. He bequeathed the estates of Thurles and Thomastown, &c. to his nearest kinsman, Thomas Mathew, of Annefield, who then represented the family, entailing the whole in the strictest possible manner; first to the sons of Thomas, and thence to his brothers, John, George, and Charles, of Annefield, and their issue male only, by right of priority and seniority, then to Edmund and James and their issue male, and thence to sundry female members, on failing male heirs, but all confined to the Irish descent, recognising no others whatever, thence to his own right heirs, who must take and use the name of Mathew. We now come to the Annefield family, descendants of the first Toby Mathew, (son of Captain George,) by his second marriage with Ann Saul, dau. of — Saul, Esq. of Cashel, by Mary Butler, dau. of Thomas, 5th Lord Cahier, as before related.

TOBY MATHEW, eldest son of Captain George and Lady Thurles, m. three times. By his 2nd wife, Anne Saul, he had two sons and one dau.

- i. THOMAS, on whom Annefield was settled by his father. He signed an address to King CHARLES II. in 1683, and d. in 1714.
- ii. James, d. before his father, having m. Elizabeth, dau. of Theobald Bourke, Lord Brittas.
- i. Mary, d. unm. about 1695.

The elder son,

THOMAS MATHEW, of Annefield, m. Honora, dau. of Thomas Ryan, of Clonmell, and relict of — Furly, and by her, who d. in 1735, he had seven sons,

- i. THEOBALD, his heir, of Annefield.
- ii. Thomas, d. young.
- iii. George, d. unm.

iv. Charles, of Anabeg, co. Galway.

v. James, of Borris, m. Anne, dau. of James Morris, of Thurles. He is grandfather of the excellent Father Mathew.

vi. John, d. unm.

vii. Edmund, of Annefield, who d. unm. in 1722, leaving his property to his nephews, John, George, and Charles, (of whom hereafter,) and appointed his well-beloved friend and kinsman, Walter Butler, of Garryricken, his executor, who was of right 16th Earl of Ormonde.

Thomas Mathew d. in 1714, and was s. at Annefield, by his eldest son,

THEOBALD MATHEW, of Annefield, who besides possessed estates in the counties of Limerick and Galway. He m. Catharine, dau. of Sir John and Mary, Lady Shelley, which latter had remarried George Mathew, the younger, as before related. She left her dau. Catharine, wife of Toby Mathew, of Annefield, 2000*l.* in her will, dated 1722. Theobald Mathew, of Annefield, and Catharine Shelley, his wife, left four sons and one dau.,

- i. THOMAS, of Annefield, who, at the demise of George Mathew, of Thurles and Thomastown, became chief of the family, and who s. to all the estates of the family by George Mathew's will and entail.
- ii. John, believed to have d. unm.
- iii. GEORGE, an officer much on foreign service, of whom hereafter.
- iv. THOMAS, also an officer in the army, m. Honora, dau. of James Mathew, of Borris, and had a dau., m. to Sir Hugh O'Reilly, afterwards Nugent of Westmeath.
- i. Mary, d. unm. in Dublin in 1777.

Toby Mathew d. at Crumlin, 24 Sept. 1745, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS MATHEW, of Annefield, who m. very young. Miss Mathews, dau. of Richard Mathews, of Dublin, and by her had one dau., Catherine-Anne-Marie, m. 1st, to Philip Roe, Esq.; and 2ndly, to John Scott, Earl of Clonmell; and a son,

FRANCIS MATHEW, who s. his father, Thomas, in 1777, to all the united estates. He became Baron, Viscount, and Earl of Llandaff. He m. in 1764, Elisha, dau. of James Smyth, of Tynny Park, and by her, who d. in 1781, had issue three sons and one dau.,

- i. FRANCIS-JAMES, second earl.
- ii. Montague, a general in the army, col. of the 99th regt. of foot, which his father raised, and M.P. for the co. of Tipperary, d. unm. in 1819.
- iii. George-Toby-Skeffington, in the army, d. unm. in 1832.
- i. Lady Elisha, survived all, and d. unm. in 1842.

The Earl of Llandaff m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Clotworthy Skeffington, Earl of Massereene, but had no issue by this marriage. The Earl d. at Swansea, in Wales, in Sept. 1806. His son and heir, FRANCIS-JAMES MATHEW, 2nd Earl of Llandaff, m. 10 July, 1797, Gertrude, dau. of John Latouche, Esq. of Harristown, in the co. Kildare, and d. in 1833, leaving no issue, when the title became extinct. On his death, intestate, his sister, Lady Elisha (in opposition to the orders of George Mathew of Thomastown, from whom the chief estates came to her grandfather, Thomas of Annefield) was put in possession, and she dying in 1842, bequeathed the property to the Viscount Chabot.

The next brother of Thomas Mathew of Annefield, who s. in 1745, was

JOHN MATHEW, who is said to have d. unm. at the Castle of Thurles. The next brother,

GEORGE MATHEW, married when absent on military service, and had two sons, WILLIAM and Toby, who were chiefly resident at Annefield and Thurles to about 1777, when though young lads, about twenty years of age, they left the country, in consequence, it is said, of some very serious riots and disturbances at Annefield, and came to England. Toby, who is well remembered, was in London in 1782, when his brother William married, and afterwards returned to Ireland, and it is believed d. in Dublin. His brother,

WILLIAM MATHEW m. at St. James's church, in Piccadilly, in 1782, Lettice, dau. of Stephen Kemshead, Esq., a gentleman of small landed estate, called Wymington Lodge, on the borders of Northamptonshire. She was cousin, on her mother's side, to Euseby Cleaver, Archbishop of Dublin, and William Cleaver, Bishop of St. Asaph, and niece of the Rev. John Lettice, D.D., Prebendary of Chichester. They left two sons and two daus.,

- i. EDMUND, of whom presently.
- ii. William, in holy orders, M.A. of the university of Oxford, who d. unm. and deeply lamented, in France, (in 1831,) where he had gone on account of his health, and was buried in the protestant cemetery, at Nantes.

i. Anne. ii. Mary, unm.

The elder son,

EDMUND MATHEW,* Esq., the present representative of the family, has been the greater part of his life abroad, and chiefly, with his family, resident in France. He m. in Jan. 1829, Constantia, dau. of John Chichester, Esq. M.D. of Cheltenham, and has two sons and one dau., Edmund-Powell-Lettice; William-Henry; and Constance.

It is to be observed, in proof of this being the head of the Llandaff family, that the manorial rights of Llandaff, and the estates there, came down to the last Earl of Llandaff, who sold them in 1813. There are, moreover, several members of this family in Ireland, who were justly held in estimation as his relatives by the late Earl of Llandaff and his brother Montague: of these we need only cite that great public benefactor and excellent man, Father Mathew, and his brother, Mr. Charles Mathew, of Cork, Captain Fitz-william Mathew, who was the personal and particular friend of the Earl, and Mr. John Mathew, late of Thurles, now residing in France, a great favourite of General Montague.

Of the descendants of Toby Mathew's third marriage with Miss Neville, of Holt, in Leicestershire, there were three sons, Theobald, Francis, and Peter-Neville, living in 1783. Mary and Catharine both d. at a very advanced age, unm. The first son, Theobald Mathew, m. Honora, dau. of Coula Geohegan, of Donowor.

Mr. Meredith, a magistrate for co. Kerry, and its high-sheriff in 1803, was capt.-commandant of the corps of yeomanry cavalry, from 1796 to 1811. He s. his father in 1821.

Lineage.

This family of Meredith descends from a very ancient line of the same name, originally seated at Gowress, co. Montgomery, one of whom having m. a niece of Edward, the 2nd Lord Herbert of Cherbury, was sent by that nobleman to manage his estates in Ireland, a fair portion of which was settled on Mr. Meredith, and is still enjoyed by his descendants. The name of the settler in Ireland was

RICHARD MEREDITH, Esq., second son of David Meredith, Esq. of Gowress, co. Montgomery. He m. Anne, dau. and heir of William Browne, Esq., by his wife, the Hon. Frances Herbert, eldest dau. of Edward, the first and celebrated Lord Herbert of Cherbury and Castle Island, and d. in 1752, leaving a son and heir, MORLEY, ORIGINALLY OF MORLEY AND WENNINGTON, AND SUBSEQUENTLY OF CLAPHAM AND BEAMSLEY.

MORLEY, FRANCIS, Esq. of Marrick Park, co. York, b. 5 April, 1810, s. his father, the late Josias Morley, Esq. in 1827; m. Charlotte, eldest dau. of John Clervaux Chaytor, Esq. of Spennithorne, and has issue,

i. FRANCIS, b. 23 Nov. 1836.

ii. Clervaux, b. in March, 1841.

i. Charlotte-Ann. ii. Anna-Elizabeth.

iii. Alice-Sophia.

Mr. Morley is a magistrate for the North Riding of Yorkshire.

Lineage.

By the earliest records we learn that Wennington Hall, together with the manor, was held by a family who bore the local surname, and that, at a period antecedent to the time of EDWARD II., William de Wennington was in possession of the estate. His granddau. (the only child of his son Gilbert)

MARGARET DE WENNINGTON, conveyed the lands in marriage, about 4 EDWARD III., to her husband, RICHARD DE MERLEY, or MORLEY, of Great and Little Morley, co. Lancaster. In the descendants of this alliance Wennington continued until the year 1673, when, on their removal to Beamsley Hall, West Riding of Yorkshire, it was sold to the Marsdens of Gisburn, and is now possessed by WILLIAM-ALLEN-FRANCIS SAUNDERS, Esq., who is married to the dau. of the representative of the ancient possessor, JOSIAS MORLEY, Esq. of Beamsley. We will, however, now trace the regular line of descent:

JOHN DE MORLEY, lord of Great and Little Morley, son of Richard de Morley and Margaret de Wennington, his wife, inherited the manor of Wennington, jure matris He m. Ann Booth, of Barton, and had a son,

WILLIAM DE MORLEY, of Morley and Wennington, living temp. HENRY V., who m. Anne, dau. of Henry Radcliffe, Esq. of Ordsall, co. Lancaster, and was father of

JOHN DE MORLEY, of Morley and Wennington, who m. Jane, dau. of Riddlesden, of Morton, co. York, and had issue,

i. ROBERT, Lord of Wennington and Morley, who d. 15 HENRY VII., leaving by Margaret Neville, his wife, a son, JOHN, of Wennington and Morley, and a dau., Margaret, m. to Henry Sale, of Bedford, co. Lancaster, who both d. s. p.

ii. Thomas, heir to his niece, Margaret Sale; he d. s. p. 24 HENRY VII.

iii. Giles, whose son, THOMAS, of Morley and Wennington, d. s. p., 1 HENRY VIII.

iv. JOHN, of whose line we treat.

The fourth son,

JOHN MORLEY, m. Margaret, dau. of John Southworth, of Samlesbury, and was father of

FRANCIS MORLEY, Esq. of Morley and Wennington, who succeeded to those estates at the decease of his cousin Thomas, 1 HENRY VIII. He m. Margaret, dau. of Edward Beconsall, Esq. of Beconsall, co. Lancaster, and d. 24 HENRY VIII., leaving two sons and a dau., viz., THOMAS, his heir; Nicholas, who m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of John Walleis, of Glynde, in Sussex, and was ancestor of the MORLEYS OF GLYNDE; and Elizabeth, second wife of Sir Richard Hoghton, Knt. of Hoghton Tower, co. Lancaster. The elder son,

THOMAS MORLEY, Esq. of Wennington, aged twenty-eight at the period of his father's decease, m. a dau. of Geoffrey Starkey, and dying temp. PHILIP and MARY, left a son and successor.

THOMAS MORLEY, Esq. of Morley and Wennington, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Curwen, Esq. of Gressard, co. Lancaster, and had issue, THOMAS, his heir; Francis; William, of Catton; Mary; Clara; Elizabeth, wife of — Johnson; Catherine, and Anne. The eldest son, York, by whom he had a son, ROBERT, and a dau., Elizabeth, wife of Jonathan Farrer, Esq. Thomas Morley m. 3rdly, Anne, dau. of William Dunch, Esq. of Easton-on-the-Hill, co. Northumberland, and had by her a son and dau., who both d. unm.

- II. Josias, b. 1 Nov. 1612, who m. 8 July, 1642, Dorothy Thompson, and d. at Hornby, 31 Dec. 1690, leaving a numerous issue.
- III. FRANCIS, of whose descendants we treat.

The third son,

FRANCIS MORLEY, Esq., b. 3 Aug. 1614, m. Jane Buskell, of Capel Side, Westmoreland, and had two sons,

- I. JOSIAS, of Scale House, in Craven, lord of the manor of Bethmesley and Clapham, by purchase from the senior branch of the family. He m. twice: by his first wife, Elizabeth, he had no child, but by the second, Anne, dau. of William Atkinson, of West Halton, he had issue, 1. Josias, of Kighley, who d. s. p. in 1756; 2. James, of Scale House and Skipton, who m. Anne, dau. of Matthew Wilson, Esq. of Eshton Hall, co. York, and relict of Mr. John Swainson, but d. s. p. in 1762; 3. Francis, who m. Margaret, dau. of William Fairbank, Esq. of Olley, but d. s. p. in 1743; 4. William; and, 1. Cassandra, m. to Matthew Atkinson, of Bradford.
- II. FRANCIS, of whom presently.

Mr. Morley d. in France, a Roman catholic: his second son,

FRANCIS MORLEY, Esq. of Clapham, co. York, b. at Wennington, 3 March, 1652, m. Emmat, dau. of Byrks, of Pursland, co. York, and had four sons and five daus. He d. at Thorn, in 1708, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN MORLEY, Esq. of Beamsley Hall, lord of the manors of Bethmesley and Clapham, who m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Benson, Esq. of Lancaster, and had issue,

- I. JOSIAS, his heir.
- I. Elizabeth, who m. Caleb Readshaw, Esq. of Richmond, and had issue,
 1. CALEB READSHAW, heir to his uncle.
 1. Anne Readshaw.
 2. Jane Readshaw, m. to Thomas Cornforth, Esq. of Richmond.
- II. Margaret, m. the Very Rev. Thomas Wilson, D.D., dean of Carlisle, and left issue,
 1. THOMAS WILSON, A.M., vicar of Corbridge, in Northumberland, who s. to Clapham and Ruthmell at the decease of his uncle Josias, and took the name of MORLEY. He m. 9 April, 1782, Maria, dau. of W. Hughes, Esq. of Low Field, co. Somerset.
 2. George, A.M., in holy orders, who m. Jane, dau. of the Rev. Charles Allix, of Swaffham, co. Cambridge.
 1. Margaret, m. to Robert Walters, Esq.
 2. Barbara, m. to John-Lellington Pownall, Esq.

The only son,

JOSIAS MORLEY, Esq. of Bethmesley and Giggleswreke, lord of the manors of Beamsley and Clapham, and a moiety of the manor of Rathmell, m. Lydia, dau. and co-heir of George Whalley, Esq. of Winterburne, but d. s. p. in 1783, when he was s. at Beamsley by his nephew,

CALEB READSHAW, Esq., who assumed, in consequence, the surname and arms of MORLEY. He m. Alice-Mary, dau. of Henry Chaytor, Esq. of Croft, and by her (who d. in 1833) had issue,

- IV. Thomas-Andrew.
- V. John-Peter.
- VI. Lorenzo-Nickson.
- I. Mary-Elizabeth.
- II. Helen-Gordon, d. in Sept. 1847, aged 16.

Mr. Mosse, formerly a capt. in 1st foot, or Royals, served for several years in India, and at the storming of Bergen op Zoom, in 1814, where he was wounded; he is a magistrate of the Queen's County.

Lineage.

THE REV. MILES MOSSE, A.M., Minister of the Church of Bury St. Edmund's, Suffolk, in 1594, distinguished himself by his orthodox sermons, which were published by the desire of the parishioners, and as the author of a very able work on the Arraignment of Usury. His relative,

ROBERT MOSSE, b. in 1633, a landed proprietor at Postwick, near Norwich, in which parish it appears from the registry, this family (whose name is occasionally entered Moss, without the final e) were settled from 1579 to 1792 He d. 8 Feb. 1700, leaving four sons,

- I. ROBERT.
- II. Samuel, b. in 1668.
- III. WILLIAM, of whom hereafter.
- IV. Charles, b. in 1683.

The eldest son,

THE VERY REV. ROBERT MOSSE, D.D., b. in 1666, at Gillingham, Norfolk, Dean of Ely, was educated at the grammar-school, Norwich, and went, in 1682, to Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, of which he became a fellow in 1687. He was appointed preacher to the Hon. Society of Gray's Inn, in 1698; rector of Gilston, Herts; had the honour of being chaplain in ordinary to three successive sovereigns, WILLIAM, ANNE, and GEORGE I., and was instituted to the deanery of Ely in 1712. In 1708, he succeeded Dr. Tillotson, the celebrated Archbishop of Canterbury, in the lectureship of St. Lawrence Jewry, which he held till 1727. He was author of Sermons on Practical Subjects, in 8 vols., a work of considerable repute for deep research, learning, and sound theological knowledge; and of the Extent of Christ's commission to baptize, "in reference to the validity or invalidity of Lay Baptism, and the Report vindicated for misreports in reference to the Bangorian controversy," &c. &c. He d. a perfect model of a Christian clergyman, 26 March, 1729, s. p. s., and was buried in the presbytery of his own cathedral. There is also a monument to the memory of himself and his wife, Mary, widow of — Hinton, of Cambridge, in Postwick Church. He left his property, with the exception of a few legacies, to his nephew, Charles Mosse, b. in 1710, (son of his younger brother, Charles, an eminent physician at Hull,) then a student, and subsequently a fellow of Caius College, Cambridge:

he became archdeacon of Colchester, residentiary of Salisbury, rector of St. James's and St. George's, Hanover-square, and Bishop of St. David's in 1766, from which he was translated to the see of Bath and Wells in 1774, and d. in 1802. His son, the Right Rev. Charles Mosse, D.D. of Caius College, another learned divine, fifth wrangler at Cambridge, in 1760, was consecrated Bishop of Oxford, 14 Jan. 1807, and d. in Dec. 1811. The third son of Robert Mosse, and brother of the Dean of Ely,

THE REV. WILLIAM MOSSE, b. in 1672, at Postwick, accompanied King WILLIAM III. to Ireland, and became rector of Maryborough. He m. Miss Boyle, granddaughter of Richard Boyle, the great Earl of Cork, brother of the celebrated philosopher, the Hon. Robert Boyle, and had issue,

- i. ANDREW, of whom presently.
- ii. Thomas.
- iii. Bartholomew, b. in 1712, A.M., M.D., an eminent physician and philanthropist, founder of the Lying-in Hospital in Dublin, in 1745, opened in 1757, the parent and most splendid institution of the kind in his Majesty's dominions, having obtained for it a Royal charter in 1756; and by his last will, he left the hospital (in the entrance hall of which there is a marble bust to his memory, and on the pedestal is the following concise and expressive inscription, "Bart. Mosse, M.D., miseris Solamen Instituit MDCCCLVII.") as a monument to posterity of his surprising perseverance, diligence, and talent, and one of the most beautiful architectural ornaments of the city of Dublin. He made over the same to James, Earl of Kildare, and Viscount Sudley, ancestors of the present Duke of Leinster, and Earl of Arran, to the only use of the said corporation by charter, and their successors for ever. He m. in 1744, Jane, dau. of the Ven. Dr. Whittingham, Archdeacon of Dublin, and d. 16 Feb. 1759, leaving issue, MICHEL, MARGARETTA, of Whatcombe, co. Dorset, m. the Rev. James Michel, son of David-Robert Michel, Esq. of Dewlish House, in the same co. She s. her father, Edmund-Morton Pleydell, Esq. in Jan. 1835.

Lineage.

The chief part of the following account is from a pedigree and collections of this family furnished in 1722 by Robert Dale, Esq., Suffolk Herald, and a part from a pedigree drawn about 1619 for Sir Charles Pleydell, with extracts from old deeds, registers, visitations, letters, wills, &c., being about 200 pages, begun by Mr. Dale in 1714, and finished in 1722.

The family of Pleydell is originally of the village of Coleshill, Berkshire, in the western angle of the county, and is descended from Thomas de Coleshill, who on 2 March, 1275, held the lordship of Coleshill from the crown by knight's service, as appears by a grant to him, still extant, from EDWARD I., dated at Berwick, from which these words are extracted:—"Edwardus Rex Angliæ D'nus Hiberniæ et Dux Aquitan, &c., liberam warrenam—Thoms. de Coleshill—in terris suis Domin. de Coleshill, &c., Dat. Barwic. 2d March 4to test—W. Epus Wigorn. Cancell. Gilbert de Clare com. Glocest. & Hereford. Johan de Warrena, com. Surr. Henr. de Piercy. Rob. de Clifford," at which time he attended that prince in his expedition against the Scotch, and whose family having held the same estate at, or very soon after, the Conquest, was probably so called from this place of their residence; it being evident that the latter receives its name from its situation on a hill, washed by the rivulet Cole. Of this family was,

WILLIAM PLEYDELL, of Coleshill, who was b. about the year 1425, and by direction in his will, dated 6 Nov. 1494, now in the Prerogative office,* was interred in the church of Coleshill before the high cross, together with Isabella, his wife. He d. in 1495, and was s. in the lands he had in Berks and the adjoining counties by his son,

THOMAS PLEYDELL, Esq. who d. in 1527, possessed of a considerable estate, the appraisement still extant,† of his moveables only, made 9 Oct. 1527, amounting to £353 7s., (a large sum for those times,) and was interred, together with Agnes, his wife, in a chapel which, for that purpose, he had in his lifetime caused to be erected on the south side of the church of Coleshill, called in his will "The new church of the Salutation of our Blessed Lady," and by him, amongst other donations, endowed with ten marks yearly to a priest to sing and pray for his soul and the souls of his family, which particulars appear by his said will, now also in the Prerogative office,‡ dated 7 Oct. 1527, and proved 15 Nov. 1527, beginning thus, "Fyest I boquethe my sowlle to Almighty God, and to our Blessed Ladye, his mother, Saynt Marie, and my bodye to be buried bytwyxt Agnes, my wife, and Rose, my daughter, in the north syde of the new Chappell of the Salutation of our Blessed Ladye; edyfied by me the said Thomas, &c." The probate is under the seals of Thomas, Cardinal Wolsey, Archbishop of York and legate, and William Wareham, Archbishop of Canterbury; and his tomb and that of his wife (with her effigies on it, covered by two gothic arches, together with his coat of arms, and the fragments of some other of the monuments) are still extant upon the remains of the north side of his chapel, which are now part of the church; on the former of which tombs, these words of the original inscription have been preserved—

"Pray for the sowlles of Thomas Pleydell, Agnes, his wife, and William, his father,
And Isabel, his mother, Rose, his daughter,
And all Crysten sowlles."

His son and heir,

WILLIAM PLEYDELL, Esq. of Coleshill, m. Anne, dau. and co-heiress of Robert Keason, of Corfe Castle, Esq., or else of Warcham, in that county, according to Sir Robert

Atkins, in his history of Gloucestershire (p. 219), by whom he had seven sons (three of whom were the ancestors of the three branches now extant of this family) and two daus. He d. in 1555, and was interred in the same chapel. He left the following children,

- I. ANTHONY, who d. in his father's lifetime, in 1538, leaving no issue, by Elizabeth, his wife.
- II. TOBIAS, who m. Eleanor, dau. of John Yate, of Buckland, co. Berks, and was seised of the manor, town, and hundred of Farrington, in that co., which he had purchased of Sir Francis Englefield and the said John Yate,* where he and his wife lie interred under a handsome monument in the chancel. He d. in 1583, leaving two sons, John and Philip, d. s. p., and three daus., Mary and Ursula, m., Elizabeth, unm., (extinct.)
- III. Virgil, d. s. p.
- IV. GABRIEL, of Midgehall, co. Wilts, of whom presently.
- V. Zachary, who m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Welles, Esq. of Lydiard, and left issue, two sons, William and Thoby. His line is extinct.
- VI. Thomas, ancestor of the Pleydells of Coleshill, Shrivenham, and Cricklade, which branch is now represented by the EARL OF RADNOR.
- VII. John, ancestor of the Pleydells of Westcott and Holyrood, and Amney, co. Gloucester. He m. Bridget, dau. of — Barker, of Sunning, in Berkshire, and left a numerous issue. His three elder sons dying s. p., his fourth son, ROBERT, s. to the estates, and was lord of the manor in 1608. He m. Susanna, dau. of Edward Saunders, Esq. of Brixworth, co. Northampton, and dying in 1642, was s. by his son, ROBERT, who was father of ROBERT PLEYDELL, Esq., who m. Sarah, dau. of Philip Sheppard,† Esq. of Minchin Hampton, co. Gloucester, and by her had one son, who d. s. p. in 1719, and two daus., the eldest of whom dying, her sister, Charlotte-Louisa, became sole heiress, and m. Henry Dawney, eldest son of Lord Downe, by whom she left issue, Henry-Pleydell Dawney, Viscount Downe.
- VIII. Susanna, m. to Thomas Bushe, Esq. of Noythington, co. Gloucester.
- IX. Elizabeth, m. to John Welles, Esq. of Lidiard Tregoze, co. Wilts.

The fourth son,

GABRIEL PLEYDELL, Esq. of Midgehall, was ancestor of the eldest surviving branch of Milbourne, now removed to Whatcombe. He m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Henry Stokes,‡ Esq. co. Sussex, by whom he had issue one son, OLIVER PLEYDELL, Esq. of Midgehall, who m. a dau. of — Palmer, Esq. of Gloucestershire, and had one son, SIR CHARLES PLEYDELL, of Midgehall, who was knighted in 1618. He m. Catharine, dau. and heiress of Thomas Bouchier, Esq. of Barnesley, co. Gloucester, and by her had seven children, John, William, and Charles, who all d. without issue; and Anne and Susan, unm.; Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Newcome, Esq. of Killarney, Ireland; and Deborah, m. to Benjamin Culme, D.D. Sir Charles Pleydell m. 2ndly, Jane, relict of Robert Attye, Esq., and dau. of Sir John St. John, Knt. of Lidiard Tregoze, co. Wilts, elder brother of Oliver St. John, Viscount Grandison, in the kingdom of Ireland, and Baron Tregoze, of Highworth, co. Wilts: by her he left ten children, viz.,

- I. Edward, b. 1 May, 1619, and d. young.
- II. OLIVER, of Milton, co. Oxford, of whom presently.
- III. Charles, ancestor of the Pleydells, of Wootton Bassett, had one son, William (clerk), and m. his cousin, Eleanora-Pleydell.
- IV. Mary, m. to Sir William Roberts, Knt.

Four other sons and two daus., viz., John, Gabriel, Giles, and Allen, Catherine and Lucy.

The eldest surviving son,

OLIVER PLEYDELL, of Milton, co. Oxford, m. Mary, dau. of — Goldsmith, Esq. of Aveling, co. Wilts, and left issue,

- I. EDMUND, of whom presently.

Family of Morton.

After the marriage of Mr. Edmund Pleydell with the dau. of Sir John Morton, the name of Morton was, in accordance with the will of the latter, added to Pleydell.

This family of Morton was originally seated at Morton, co. Nottingham, which with the hamlets of Torworth, Limple-Plumtree, were long the inheritance of this family, who held lands here in 1289.

This family founded a hospital on the edge of Harworth, near Bautre, in Yorkshire, where was a chapel standing in 1674, where they used to be buried. WORTON'S Baronetage agrees with Mr. Pleydell's parchment pedigree from Thomas Morton, secretary to King EDWARD III., but deduces their descent before him thus: i. William de Morton; ii. Peter; iii. Nicholas, who occurs before 1289; iv. Roger, father of Thomas before mentioned, who occurs 5-20 EDWARD III., to whom s. Sir Robert, sheriff of Nottingham and Derby, 35 EDW. III.; and lieutenant of Nottingham Castle, 47 EDWARD III.; and Charles, father of William, ancestor of the Dorset line.

WILLIAM MORTON is first styled of Milbourne St. Andrew, and was s. by

RICHARD MORTON, of Milbourne, who occurs 8 and 9 HENRY VI., but of him and his father we find no particulars. He left five sons,

i. John, Archbishop of Canterbury and Cardinal.

ii. Thomas, Archdeacon of Ely.

iii. RICHARD, of whom presently.

iv. William, the father of Robert and Thomas. Robert was a dignitary of the church, and Bishop of Worcester.

v. Sir Rowland, ancestor of the Mortons of Herefordshire.

CARDINAL MORTON, the most considerable person both of his family and of the age he lived in, was born at the ancient seat of the family of Morton, situated in Milbourne Stileham, in the tything of Bere-Regis. He was educated in the abbey of Cerne, and, as some say, was a monk there; thence he went to Balliol College, Oxford, and took his degree in laws. In 1446, he was one of the commissaries of the university, and afterwards principal or moderator of the civil law school; and in 1453, principal of Peckwater Inn. Thomas Bouchier, Archbishop of Canterbury, taking notice of him, he was, by his means, in 1458, made prebendary of Fordington and Writhlington, in the church of Sarum, and afterwards passed through several preferments and dignities in the church. In 1474, he was made Archdeacon of Winchester; in 1475, keeper or master of the Rolls, and one of the plenipotentiaries in the treaty of Amiens; in 1476, he was made Archdeacon of Berks; and in 1478, elected Bishop of Ely. Richard, Duke of Gloucester, aspiring to the crown, and being sensible of our prelate's attachment to the family of EDWARD IV., committed him to the Tower. 13 June, 1483; but on the petition of the university of Oxford, 6 July, released him, and committed him to the custody of the Duke of Buckingham, at his castle of Brecknock, in Wales, where are still the ruins of a tower, which bears the name of Eli Tower, or Twr Eli, probably the place of his confinement; but that nobleman being disgusted, communicated his thoughts to the Bishop, and they agreed to offer the crown to the Earl of Richmond, on condition that he should marry the eldest dau. of EDWARD IV., and by this means put an end to the civil wars between the houses of York and Lancaster. Soon after, the Bishop, fearing a discovery, made his escape into the Isle of Ely, and from thence into Flanders. HENRY VII., on his accession, rewarded his merits by making him one of the privy council and prime-minister; and in 1486, procured him to be elected Archbishop of Canterbury. August 8, 1487, he was made Lord Chancellor; and on 20 Sept. following, a cardinal, by the title of St. Anastatius, and chancellor of the university of Oxford. He died at Knoll, in Kent, (which place he had much beautified and improved,) 16 Oct. 1500, according to the Canterbury Obituary, or 15 Sept., as in the Register, aged 90. He was buried in the cathedral of Canterbury. Over his stone coffin, which was but just deposited in the ground, was laid a marble, even with the surface of the pavement, which, being broken, several parts of the body, wrapt in cerecloth, were taken away; at length the head only remained, which, in 1670, Ralph Sheldon, of Bcoly, co. Worcester, begged of Archbishop Sheldon; and at his death in 1684, left it to his niece. By his will, dated

* This gallant officer was drowned when in command of the "Romney," at the time that ship was wrecked with the greater part of Sir Cloudesley Shovel's fleet on the Scilly rocks, 22 Oct. 1707.

10 June, 1500, he ordered 1000*l.* to be given in alms at his funeral, and his best gilt cross and mitre to the church of Ely; to King HENRY his best portiforium; to Queen ELIZABETH his best psalter; to Lady Margaret, the king's mother, a round image of the blessed Virgin of gold; to Lady Margaret, his goddaughter, and the king's eldest dau., a cup of gold and 40*l.*; to Thomas Morton, son of his brother Richard, 10*l.* In his lifetime he performed many works of munificence and charity. He was a great benefactor to the cathedral of Canterbury. He was a prelate of great learning and abilities, an eminent statesman and politician, and presided in the court of Chancery with reputation. In his temper he is said to have been haughty and severe; he was envied by the nobility on account of the king's favour; disliked and perhaps misunderstood by the people, who suspected him of being the author of the king's oppressive measures.

RICHARD MORTON, brother of the cardinal, m. Edith dau. of Richard Turbeville, Esq. of Bere Regis; she m. 2ndly, — Coker, Esq. of Maponder. He had issue, I. JOHN, who d. 18 HEN. VIII. 1521, and was buried at Milbourne;* and II. William. John Morton m. Lucy, dau. of Thomas Hussee and Christian Fitz-James, and had issue,

- I. THOMAS, of whom presently.
- I. Isabel, m. to George Anketil, of Almer.
- II. Lucy, m. 1st, Thomas Hody, of Stawel, widower; 2ndly, Thomas Francis, of Cranbourne.
- III. Elizabeth, a nun.
- IV. Frances, m. to William Hody, son of the former.
- V. Edith, m. 1st, — Smith; 2ndly, Thomas Chimney.

THOMAS MORTON d. 33 ELIZABETH, 1591. He greatly augmented his estate by marrying the co-heiress of De la Lynde. He passed away the manor of Adreston, which seems to have descended from William, his uncle, to whom Cardinal Morton gave it. He m. Warburgh, second sister and co-heir of Sir George De la Lynde, Knt. of Clenston, co. Dorset, and had issue,

- I. GEORGE, d. 37 ELIZABETH, 1595, buried at Clenston, of whom presently.
- II. Thomas, ancestor to the Henbury line.
- III. Sir Anthony, of Lechlade, co. Gloucester.
- I. Lucy, m. Thomas Mompesson, of Little Bathington.
- II. Cecily, m. John Champneys, of Orchardleigh, co. Somerset.
- III. Mary, m. Augustin Lawrence, of Sherford.
- IV. Bridget, m. Thomas Basket, of Dewlish, 2nd wife.
- V. Margaret, m. George Lovel, of Rawson.

GEORGE MORTON m. Joan, dau. of — Holloway, Esq. of Walton, co. Devon, and had issue,

- I. GEORGE, (Knight,) of Clenston, buried there, d. 8 JAMES I., 1611, of whom presently.
- II. Andrew.
- III. William.
- IV. John.
- I. Warburgh, m. John Ludlow.
- II. Bridget.
- III. Elena.

GEORGE MORTON m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Arthur Hop-ton, of Witham Friars, co. Somerset. He was knighted in 1603, before the coronation of JAMES I., and had issue,

- I. SIR GEORGE, (Knight and Baronet,) of Milbourne St. Andrew, d. 1661, of whom presently.
- II. William.
- III. John.
- IV. Francis.
- V. De la Lynde.
- I. Rachel, m. Edward Pitt, of Strathfieldsaye, co. Berks, d. 1643.
- II. Jane, m. Robert Hussee, buried at Clenston.
- III. Elena, m. Thomas Hussee, of Thompson, co. Dorset.

The eldest son,

SIR GEORGE MORTON, Knt., was created a BARONET in 1618. He m. Anne, dau. of — Francis, Esq. of Somersetshire, and relict of Sir Abraham Willoughby, Knt. of Selston, co. Notts, and had issue,

- I. Henry, d. s. p.
- II. Sir John, 2nd Bart., member for Weymouth and Melcombe Regis, d. 1698, aged 71. He m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of John Fontayne, Serjeant-at-law, by whom, who d. 1671, he had a dau., Anne, m. to E. Pleydell, Esq.; Elizabeth, d. young, 1665; Willoughby, d. young, 1667. He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Francis Wortley, Bart. of Wortley Hall, co. York, by whom he had no issue. Sir John m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of Benjamin Culme, D.D., by Deborah, dau. of Sir Charles Pleydell, d. s. p.

Lineage.

This family is a younger branch of the ancient house of Chandos-Pole, of Radbourne, co. Derby, and traces its pedigree from the time of WILLIAM the Conqueror.

HENRY DE FERRARS, son of Walkelin de Ferrars, who came over to England with WILLIAM the Conqueror, in the time of that monarch possessed Tutbury Castle, with one hundred and fourteen manors in the co. Derby. He was s. by his only son,

ROBERT DE FERRARS, who was created Earl of Derby by King STEPHEN, for his great bravery and valour as a soldier, in defeating DAVID, King of Scotland, and d. in 1139. He was father of

ROBERT DE FERRARS, second Earl of Derby, a great and liberal supporter of the church, who d. and was buried at Merevale Priory, Warwickshire.

WILLIAM DE FERRARS, third Earl of Derby, s. his father in the reign of HENRY II.; he m. Margaret, heir to her father, William Peverell, Lord of Nottingham, and left two sons, Robert de Ferrars, fourth earl, ancestor of the Earls of Derby; and WALCHEREN DE FERRARS, Lord of Egginton, co. Derby.

ROBERT DE FERRARS, or FITZ-WALCHELINE, lord of Egginton and Radbourne, s. his father, and left at his decease, 9th HENRY III., two daus. and co-heirs, viz., ERMINTRUDE, m. Robert de Talbot, Lord of Gainsburg, co. Lincoln, 18th King JOHN, the ancestor of the Lloyds of Plymog, Gwerclas, and Bashall; MARGERY, second dan. and heir, living 30 HENRY III., m. Sir John Chandos, Knt., of the old baronial family of Chandos, and had a son and heir,

SIR HENRY CHANDOS, Knt. of Radbourne; by Eleanor, he left a son, who s. as

SIR JOHN CHANDOS, Knt. of Radbourne, 16 and 28 EDWARD I. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Henry Braylesford, and was father of

* His Gothic tomb of Purbee marble is still in the church at Milbourne, bearing a brass inscription to the memory of himself and his wife.

SIR EDWARD CHANDOS, Knt. of Radbourne, who m. Isabel, dau. of Sir John Twyford, Knt., and had issue,

- i. JOHN (Sir), his heir.
- ii. Robert, d. unm.
- i. Margaret, m. Robert de Ireland, and had a dau., one of the co-heirs of Sir John Chandos, m. to Sir John Annesley, Knt., but d. s. p.
- ii. Elizabeth, d. unm.
- iii. ALIANORE, of whose descendants presently.

The eldest son and successor,

SIR JOHN CHANDOS, of Radbourne, was a distinguished warrior, one of the original knights of the Garter. On the field of Cressy, King EDWARD entrusted him with the task of directing and defending the Prince of Wales. He was a great favourite of EDWARD III. He fought at Poitiers, was vice-chamberlain to the King, and in recompence for his great services he received £100 a year out of the Exchequer, and granted to him and his heirs for ever the barony of St. Saviour le Viscount, where he built a castle. In 1364, Sir John Chandos fought the battle of Auray against Charles of Blois, when the famed Bertrand du Guesclin was taken prisoner, and all historians ascribe the victory and achievement to the ability and prowess of Sir John Chandos having the chief command of the army of the Conte de Montfort, 41 EDWARD III. Sir John Chandos went with the Black Prince into Spain, on behalf of PETER, King of Castile, and held a high command at the battle of Nazar, and afterwards became constable of Aquitaine, and seneschal of Poitiers. This brave and gallant soldier's career, "the pride of English chivalry," soon after ceased, as in 1369, in the wars of Gascoigne, he fell at the Bridge of Lussac, to the great grief of the monarchs of both countries. The King of France was so apprehensive, that he passionately said, there was no soldier so able to make peace between both crowns as he. At his death, in consequence of leaving no issue, his sisters became his co-heirs, the third of whom was,

ALIANORE CHANDOS, 46 EDWARD III., m. 1st, Sir John Lawton, Knt., squire to Sir John Chandos, and 2ndly, Roger Collynge: by the first marriage, she left an only dau. and heir, ELIZABETH LAWTON, of Radbourne, who m. Sir Peter de la Pole, M.P. for Derbyshire, 2 HENRY IV., eldest son of Sir John de la Pole, of Newborough, co. Stafford, and brother to Ralph, the ancestor of the Poles of Wakebridge and Park Hall, and Cardinal Pole. She d. 4 Aug. 1432.

SCRIMGEOUR,

THE HEREDITARY ROYAL STANDARD-BEARER OF SCOTLAND.

The grants of King ALEXANDER I., and of his royal father, MALCOLM III., of Scotland, A.D. 1057 and 1107, as well as inheritances and subsequent grants of honours, lands, fees, duties, privileges, and immunities, given and granted to Sir Alexander Scrimgeour, hereditary royal standard-bearer of Scotland, and to his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Scrimgeour, were irrevocably confirmed to them, and to them only, A.D. 1600, by King JAMES VI. and the Scottish Parliament, in the time of Sir James Scrimgeour, hereditary royal standard-bearer, and hereditary constable of Dundee; and any purchases of such rights covertly made, or subsequently made, are declared of no effect, and null and void, excepting with the consent of the said Sir James Scrimgeour and his forefathers, which was probably a quaint and a safe enough way of confirming the honours and estates, saving in ease of attainer and forfeiture to him and to his posterity, D. V., in perpetuity. The grant of Sir William Wallace and the Scottish parliament to Sir Alexander Scrimgeour, who bore the royal standard at Falkirk and at Bannockburn, of Hereditary Constable of Dundee, was dated at Torphichen, 22 March, 1298, and the deeds of entail to the heirs male of the family were delivered into the hands of JAMES VI., at the palace of Holyrood, 25 Nov. A.D. 1587. (See NISBET'S Heraldry, Ed. 1816, vol. ii. Appendix, page 48. For some particulars of the dormant honours, see BURKE'S Illuminated Heraldic Illustrations, Part III., Plate 10; and also vol. iii., Supplement of this Work, page 290.)

The Act alluded to, passed A.D. 1600, is to be found in the "King's Library" at the British Museum, being in vol. iv. of the "Acts of the Parliament of Scotland, printed A.D. 1816, by command of his Majesty George III., in pursuance of an address of the Commons of Great Britain," page 243. It runs thus:—

"Act in fauouris of the eōstahle of dundie anent the bering of o' souerane lordis bāner.

"Oure Souerane Lord and Estaittis of this pūt pliaiment Ratifeis approues and confermes the infestimentis, riehtis, titilis, y seuriteis maid be his hienes and his most nobill progenytours of worthie memorie, To his hienes weilhelouit Sr James Scrimgeour of dudup Kny^t and his predecessours of the heritable office of the bering of his hienes banner, In all the pointis, artielis, and clauss^s pairof and willis 't gratis and for his hienes and his successours decernis 't ordanis the said ratificacoun and cōfermaⁿun To be als' gude, valide and effectuell as gif all the saidis infestimentis riehtis, and securites wer at lenth registrat, and insert hereinto anent the omissionn qubair of bis heinres with advyse foirsaid dispensis be pir pūtis, and fuidis and declaris that the said Sr James Scrimgeour of dudup Kny^t and his hairis mail had and hes the onlie and Indoubtit veretable right of the said office and of the beiring of all his hienes banneris standertis, cornettis, pinsaillis, handsehengeis, vtheris dignis and takennis of hattell and weir of quhat sumeur collo' schaip or fassoun haith on ors' and fute that has hene displayit or salbappin to be displayit hefor his hienes and his successours at any tyme heirefter, and thairfoir, and for gude trew and thankfull service douc be pe said Sr James, and his predecessours to his Ma^{tie}, and his most nobill progenytours and to be do to his heirres, and his successours. His hienis with adyee foirsaid hes of new gevin, gratit^t dispoit, And be the tenor of this pūt act geves, grantis and disponis To the said Sr James Scrimgeour of dudup Kny^t and bis saidis airis mail heraud pe surname and arnes of Scrimgeour the foir said Office with all honours laudis feis dewteis privileges and Immunities belanging pairoir And expressis annullis and dischargis all and quhatsumeur infestimentis riehtis titillis and securiteis, purchest be any other pson or psones of the said office or any pairoir without cōsent of the said Sr James and his forfairdis, and declaris pe samē to be of na force strenth nor effect in tyme cūming."

It may be seen at once by the above, and by the references there made, that the hereditary estates, the family papers, and heirlooms, the properties and titles, were wrested from the male heir, on the demise of Scrimgeour, Earl of Dundee, &c., A.D., 1668, by wrongful covert and unconstitutional proceedings, and have continued unpossessed and unenjoyed by his successive heirs since 1668 and 1688.

So that it appears the heir in those years was deprived of his papers, his property, his estates, his heirlooms, and his hereditary rights of honour, by the cunning device of raising a question where no question existed, and by forcing him to appeal to courts of law or equity, which, although acknowledging the self-evident wrong, were incompetent or unwilling to reinstate a palpable right. The patent to Viscount Dudhope, Lord Scrimgeour, was "to him and the heirs male of his family whatsoever," (see Wood's Douglas, vol. ii.), the patent thereby according with the entails and with the other rights. (See BURKE'S Illuminated Heraldic Illustrations, Plate X. The above is a transcript of the Act there alluded to.)

He had been engaged deeply with the Duke of Monmouth, and was at dinner with Mr. W. Speke, at Ilminster, when intelligence arrived of the defeat of his Grace's army at Sedgemoor. Mr. Trenchard immediately mounted his horse, and advised Mr. Speke to do the same, lest he should be seized and hanged for his attachment to the duke. Mr. Trenchard fled to Liehet; but instead of going to his house, concealed himself in the lodge of the park belonging to the keeper, whom he sent to secure him a passage on board a vessel at Weymouth. Tradition says, at the moment he was embarking, his friend Speke was banging before his own door at Ilminster. He subsequently became the confidential friend of King WILLIAM, and on the accession of that monarch, was made chief justice of Chester. He m. Philip, dau. of George Speke, Esq. Whitelackington, and by her, who m. 2ndly, Daniel Sadler, left at his decease in 1694 (with three daus., Elizabeth, m. to John Meech, Esq. of Charminster; Mary, m. to Thomas Arnold, Esq. of Portsmouth; and Anne, m. to John Bromfield, Esq. of Haywood) four sons, who all d. s. p. except the eldest,

WATTS OF DANET'S HALL.

Lineage.

JOHN WATTS, the eldest surviving son of Coningsby Watts, by Barbara Danet, his wife, (see p. 1537,) removed into Leicestershire, and purchasing a considerable estate there, which had originally belonged to the ancient family of Danet, his mother's house, built Danet's Hall, and took up his residence there. He held the office of receiver-general for the county, projected, and nearly completed the water-works for supplying the city of Leicester with spring-water, and was also of considerable service to the early manufacturers of Leicester, by lending them money in the infancy of the hosiery business. It is said he had the honour of handing the first cup of liquor to WILLIAM III. on his landing in England. He d. in 1742, aged 80. Mr. Watts had a son,

JOHN WATTS, jun., of Danet's Hall, who was a barrister-at-law, and sunk a considerable fortune in the South Sea scheme. He d. in 1728, aged 32. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Nicholas Mosley, Esq., and niece of Sir Oswald Mosley, WAYLEN OF DEVIZES.

Lineage.

The family is of some antiquity in Devizes, and the adjoining parishes of Bishops Cannings and Potterne. In the former there are records of the possession of extensive freehold lands by WILLIAM WAYLAND, the ancestor in the senior line of the present head of the family in and prior to 1586. He was a son of Arthur Wayland, whose name is sometimes spelt Wellen, "a capital Burgess of the Devizes," and, from family tradition, besides the episcopal Records of Salisbury and the Castle Rolls, "Arbiter (inter alios) in a controversy between the Borough of Devizes and the Bishop of Sarum on the subject of tythes," in the reign of HENRY VIII. The family claim descent from Richard Wayland, who represented the borough of Calne, in the same county, in two of EDWARD the Second's Parliaments—viz. those of 1307 and 1309; at which date it appears, by a record in Doomsday Book, that certain lands in Bishops Cannings were held under tenure from the corporation of Calne. His (Richard's) brother, or son, John, of Devizes, was appointed arbiter, in 1315, in the same reign, (with John de Foxle and William de Harden, burgesses of Devizes,) in a dispute between Master Thomas de Yttlet, parson of the church at Devizes, and the Constable of the Castle, on the subject of tithes in the Old Park, on a complaint by the former to the King in Parliament. (See Parliamentary Rolls, 1315.)

The name, originally Wanelunt (Saxon), has been indifferently spelt, Waleweyn, Wellen, Wayllen, Wayland, and Waylen, till the middle of the last century, when the latter spelling was adopted by all branches of the family living in Wilts.

ARTHUR WAYLEN, or WAYLAND, Esq. of Southbroom, Burgess of Devizes, b. circ. 1500, m. and had two sons, ARTHUR, his heir, and John, who appears to have settled in Suffolk. The elder son,

ARTHUR WAYLEN was b. in 1530. There is no registry of his marriage, nor of the birth of any other children besides William, b. in 1560, and Robert, b. circiter 1566. [The latter was m. 6 Oct. 1595, to Edith-F. Praytter, by whom he had children, Robert, Edith, and William. This branch is represented by John Waylen, Esq., of Lancashire, who has no male issue.]

WILLIAM WAYLEN, Esq. of Nurstead, m. 4 Nov. 1586, Joan-F. Perry, by whom he had children; William, b. in 1587; Elizabeth, b. in 1594, m. in Jan. 1629, to Roger Green, Esq. The son,

The eldest son,

WILLIAM WAYLEN, Esq. of Nurstead, b. in Dec. 1620, d. 18 Jan. 1697, having had by Anne, his wife, (who d. 14 June, 1681.)

i. WILLIAM, his heir.

ii. ROBERT, Esq. b. in 1660, who inherited half of the Nurstead estate, with the principal part of the landed property, to which he added an eligible freehold at Potterne; he m. in 1688, Mary, dau. of William Withers, Esq. of Bourton, and had issue, Robert, Anne, Jane, and Mary; ROBERT (who, alone, had issue) was a leading Jacobite in Wiltshire, in 1715 and 1745. By Katherine-Jane, his wife, he had a son, Robert, b. in 1740, who twice filled the mayoralty of Devizes; he m. Betty Norris, of an ancient Wiltshire family, and d. in 1817, having had nine children, of whom the eldest son (whose descendants alone survive) was an alderman and banker of Devizes; he was b. in 1771, and d. in 1847, leaving by Sarah, his wife, dau. of John Willis, Esq. of Berksbire, i. ROBERT, of Devizes, b. in 1798; ii. Samuel, of Keldedon, b. in 1802; iii. Alfred, M.D., b. in 1805; iv. James, of Etchilhampton, b. in 1810, who possesses by purchase the paternal estate of "Woodley Edge," Potterne, and that on which he resides; v. Edward, in holy orders, b. in 1811; i. Elizabeth, m. to James Anstie, Esq.; ii. Katharine, m. to Charles Nash, Esq. of Hinxton Grange, Cambridge; iii. Caroline; iv. Charlotte.

i. Mary, b. 28 Nov. 1657.

ii. Anne, b. in Dec. 1659, m. to William Withers, Esq., 23 June, 1684.

The son and heir,

WILLIAM WAYLEN, Esq. of Rowde, b. 28 April, 1654, d. in June, 1731, having had, by Sarah, his wife, Sarah, b. in 1684, who d. 7 Dec. 1727, and

WILLIAM WAYLEN, M.D., Esq. of Devizes, b. in 1686, who m. Margaret Adece, b. in 1706, d. in 1793, by whom he had,

i. Swithin-Adece, b. circiter 1720, m. Maria Alt, by whom he had one son, Henry, who d. without issue.

ii. WILLIAM, his heir, b. in 1732, d. in 1777.

i. Margaret, b. in 1724, d. in 1805.

ii. Elizabeth, b. in 1729, d. in 1795, m. to William Clark, Esq.

iii. Sarah, b. in 1737, d. in 1802, m. to John Beswick, Esq.

iv. Mary, m. to Alexander McKenzie, Esq.; she d. in 1815.

v. Anna, m. to Col. Smith. Their only son, David W., was engaged in the American war, and was knighted by GEORGE III. His only son, David-W., of the Royal Navy, was killed in action in the Peninsular war, and left four children, David-W., Robert, Mary, Anne, now living.

Dr. Waylen d. in 1738: his son,

WILLIAM WAYLEN, M.D., of Devizes, b. in 1732, was sometime mayor of the borough; he m. Mary Withers, and by her (who was b. in 1729, and d. in 1827) left at his decease, in 1777, an only child,

WILLIAM WAYLEN, Esq. of Devizes, who owns that part of the original patrimony in Nurstead, called "Upper Waylen's," which is rented by Mr. D'Ouse. He m. in 1800, Rebecca Johnson, b. in 1776, d. in 1817, by whom he has had,

i. William, of Colchester, b. in 1801, m. to Harriet Joselyn, and has issue, William-Henry, Margaret-Anne.

WRIGHT OF LONGSTONE HALL.

WRIGHT, WILLIAM-HENRY, Esq. of Longstone Hall, co. Derby, b. 17 June, 1783. This gentleman was formerly captain in the 4th Dragoons, and has received a medal and six clasps for his services in the Peninsular war. He also had the freedom of the city of Exeter presented to him. He s. his father in 1838.

Tineage.

The family of Wright has been seated at Longstone Hall, near Bakewell, co. Derby, from a very early period.

In the Harleian MSS. there is the copy of a deed executed in the year 1331, by Henry, son of Robert Wright, of Great Longstone, being a deed of gift of land in that parish; and in the 24th year of EDWARD III. there is another conveyance of land in Great Longstone, executed by Thomas Wright. On the 3rd July, 1578, a deed was executed by William Wright, then in possession of the lands, whereby he creates the first entail, and declares that he does so to preserve the same in the name of "Wright," being an ancient and old house and name.

Under this entail the property passed to William Wright, his nephew, who had a son William, who died in his father's lifetime, and was succeeded by his grandson William, who m. 1st. Manners, dau. of William Saville, Esq. of Bakewell, but by whom he had no male issue; and 2ndly, Penelope, dau. of Thomas Legh, Esq. of Adlington, in Cheshire, by Ann, his wife, (who was then widow of her second husband, Alexander Rigby, Esq. one of the Barons of the Exchequer,) and had issue, THOMAS and WILLIAM. The elder son, THOMAS, m. in 1686, Anne, dau. of Sir Thomas Vernon, afterwards one of the members for the city of London, and had issue three sons, Thomas, William, and Henry, besides daughters. He d. in 1704, and was s. by his son THOMAS, who m. Jane, only child of John Smithson, Esq. of Eaton Dovecote, co. Derby, and had issue a son, THOMAS, by whom he was s. in 1720. This son m. Charlotte Vernon, a relative of Lord Vernon's, and d. in 1760, leaving an only son, Thomas, who d. an infant in 1769.

By the decease of this son, the estates became vested in WILLIAM WRIGHT, the second son of Thomas Wright, who m. Anne Vernon, (the said W. Wright being then a lieutenant-colonel in the army, and residing at Clontarf, in Ireland,) and by his will, dated in 1770, he entailed them on JOHN WRIGHT, of Eyam Hall, co. Derby, (who was then the eldest heir male, being the great grandson of the William Wright, who m. Penelope Legh in 1686,) and his issue male. The said

JOHN WRIGHT, Esq. of Eyam Hall, co. Derby, entered into possession of the lands, and became of Longstone Hall. He m. Jane Farewell, and dying in 1780, was s. by his son,

ROBERT WRIGHT, Esq. of Longstone Hall, who entered the army 28 Dec. 1744, and became captain in the 53rd regiment. He retired in 1773, and was for many years justice of the peace for Derbyshire. At his decease in 1803, he was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq. of Longstone Hall, who resided at Lympstone, co. Devon, and was colonel of the Exeter Volunteers. He m. in 1782, Catherine-Jane, elder dau. of Sir Stafford Northcote, 6th Bart. of Hayne, and had issue,

i. WILLIAM-HENRY, his heir.

ii. John-Thomas, late collector of the Customs, at Hull, b. 20 July, 1786, who m. in 1813, Charlotte, dau. of the Ven. Archdeacon Andrew, of Exeter, son of John Andrew, Esq., M.D. of Exeter, by Isabella, his wife, dau. of Sir William Courtenay, Bart. of Powderham, (grand aunt of the present Earl of Devon,) and by this lady has issue,

1. John-Thomas, b. 21 Nov. 1815, who m. 9 Sept. 1841, Ellen-Marian, dau. of Henry Buckley, Esq. of Riverhill, co. Kent, and has issue, BOLTON of Curraghduff.—Charles-Newport, A.B., of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, b. 15 March, 1816, son of the Rev. Henry Bolton, m. 4 Feb. 1845, Anne, eldest dau. of the Rev. Joshua Anderson, A.M., of Grace Dieu, co. Waterford, by Anne, his wife, eldest dau. of Captain William Perceval, (see PERCEVAL OF TEMPLE HOUSE,) and has issue, Anne-Frances-Ellen.

Page 116, col. 2.—Ellen, eldest dau. of Henry Wallis, of Drishane Castle, co. Cork, widow of the late Charles Bolton, Esq., d. 21 Feb. 1842.

Same page—Elizabeth, m. to Sir S. Newport, first cousin to the Right Hon. Sir John Newport, Bart., comptroller of the Exchequer, d. without issue, 1 Dec. 1844.

The following is more correct than the first part of the pedigree as given in the body of the work:—

CAPT. WILLIAM BOLTON, an officer of Dragoons in the Protector's army, who stormed and took Fatlock Castle, in Oct. 1649, and obtained a grant of 2834 acres, 3 roods, and 31 perches of land, in the barony of Gaultier, A.D. 1667, co. Waterford, m. and had issue,

i. Cornelius, mentioned by name in the Act passed in the reign of JAMES for the attainder of "divers rebels," who had assisted in "the horrid invasion made by the King's unnatural enemy, the Prince of Orange." His son Henry m., contrary to the wishes of his relatives, Eliza, dau. of Benjamin Alcock, and was killed, it is supposed, by a fall from his horse over the cliffs at Parkwood. His sudden disappearance caused a long and angry lawsuit.

ii. Charles, whose will is dated 22 May, 1718, m., but left no issue. He s. to the Faithlegg estates, on the sudden death of his nephew Henry.

iii. Hugh, the Very Rev., Dean of Waterford, s. to the estates on the death, without issue, of his brother Charles. His estate (on his death) was left to his cousin William.

It would seem from these entries, that a wrong date has been assigned as the birth year of his son and successor.—Mr. Besse d. 25 Nov. 1757. He was author of a life of Richard Claridge, prefixed to his posthumous works, and numerous other publications.—Mr. Brightwen d. 21 March, 1846.—Mrs. Smith d. 5 Aug. 1847.—John Wild, eldest son of Abraham de Horne, Esq., has, by Maria Gotsall, his wife, the following surviving issue, John, Morris, and Emily.—George, Abraham's second son, d. 13 Sept. 1847.—Louisa, his second dau., m. 1 Aug. 1844, Alexander Bevington, Esq. of Battersea, Surrey, and has issue.—The issue of Mr. Abraham De Horne by his second wife, Eliza, dau. of W.-H. Butler, Esq., of the Ordnance Office, is as follows: Abraham; Emmeline-Eliza; Ada; Jessie, d. in 1841; Rosalind, and Jane.—Captain Henry Festing was elder brother of Rear-Admiral Robert-Worgan-George Festing, C.B.; Commanders Benjamin-Morton Festing, K.H., and Colson Festing, and Lieutenant Thomas Festing; all of the Royal Navy.—The arms given are those which have been some time used by the family, but the correct coat is—Or, three bugle-horns, gu., mouthed and ringed, arg. The crest—A cap, round at top, erm., bordered with the eyes of peacocks' feathers, ppr. The three ennobled branches of the great house of De Horne, originally from Horn on the Meuse, (near Ruremonde,) North Brabant, Holland, the Counts De Horne, the Counts de Baucignies, eventually Princes D'Overysse, and the Counts De Houskerke, are all now extinct. For pedigrees of these several lines, and of the Lords of Perweys, Cranendouck, and of Geldorp, each also now extinct, vide BUTKIN'S Trophies, tom. i. f. 620, 621; ii. f. 50, 52, 99, 100; Nobiliaire des Pays Bas, prim. p. f. 6, 313, 814; see p. f. 488—492; Le vrai Supplement, f. 155; Suite de Supplement, tom. iii. f. 143—147. It is to be remarked that Nieuw Kirke is very near to Bailleur, a township of the De Baucignies branch of De Horne, and no great distance from Houskerke, or from Armentieres, a seignior of the family; but as the early registers of the church of Nieuw Kirke have been destroyed, it is not now easy to connect the line in England with those above alluded to.

FYLER of Woodlands and Hefferton.—Mr. Fyler's second dau., Susan-Elizabeth, m. the Rev. Francis-P. Roupell, rector of Walton-on-the-Hill, Surrey, third son of the late George-B. Roupell, Esq., Master in Chancery, of Chart Ham Park, Surrey. After the name of Mr. Fyler's second wife, "Mary-Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Andrew Bain, Esq., M.D.," should be inserted—(Physician extraordinary to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and J. P. and D. L., some time high-sheriff for Dorset,) by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. (and co-heir with her sister, Sarah, 1st wife of General Sir Eyre Coote, of Wrest Park, Hants) of John Rodbard, Esq., of the family of Rodbard, of Evercreech, co. Somerset.—Mr. Fyler's eldest son, by his second wife, Henry l'Anson, d. young.—In the lineage, p. 455, col. 2, the late Thomas-Bilcliffe Fyler's eldest son, l'Anson-Annesley-Gore, d. young.—Capt. Laurence Fyler, 2nd son of the late Samuel Fyler, Esq., by Margaret, his second wife, dau. of Hugo Arnot, Esq., became a field officer in 1846; and in 1848, purchased his majority in the regiment, exchanging in Oct. into the 3rd Light-dragoons. In HART'S Annual Army List, the following reference is made to his services:—"Major Fyler served with the 16th Lancers during the campaign in Affghanistan, under Lord Keane, including the siege and capture of Ghuznee (medal), also at the battle of Maharajpore (medal), 29 Dec. 1843, and in the campaign on the Sutlej, in 1846, including the battles of Buddiwal and Aliwal (medal), at which last he was severely wounded by a musket-shot whilst charging a body of Infantry." After the last-named battle, Gen. Sir H. Smith, in the hurry of making up his dispatches, inadvertently omitted to notice Brigadier Macdowell's report of Captain Fyler's services; the general, however, hastened to repair this omission in a subsequent report to the commander-in-chief, and Capt. Fyler's gallant conduct in the field was acknowledged by his being promoted to a brevet majority, 19 June, 1846. In reference to this, we give the following extract from an official letter to Capt. L. Fyler, 16th Lancers, by Brigadier Macdowell, C.B., commanding 1st brigade of cavalry, at the Battle of Aliwal, 28 Jan. 1846:—"It is with great pleasure I embrace this opportunity of stating to you officially, that your squadron, commanded and led by you, made a most brilliant charge, breaking through a large body of the enemy's élite infantry, completely disorganizing and routing them."—Margaret-Louisa Fyler d. at Malvern, Wilts, 21 June, 1848.

HOPE of Deepdene.—Alexander-J.-B. Hope, Esq., m. 7 July, 1842, Lady Mildred Cecil, elder dau. of the present Marquess of Salisbury.

HOPKINS of Oving.—From the strong resemblance between the armorial bearings of the Wykehams, of Swalcliffe, co. Oxon, and the Hopkyns' of Oving, it has been conjectured that, in early times, some bond of connexion may have existed between the two families. In confirmation, too, of this surmise, there is in Sibford Gower, in Swalcliffe parish, a small estate, which is charged with a quit-rent of a hundred pence, that tradition has assigned to the late owner, as the 19th John Hopkins who has successively and lineally inherited it, without the intervention of any other Christian name than John; it now belongs to Mr. D.-D. Hopkyns, who has a deed in his possession of the 9th year of ELIZABETH's reign, when the name is written Hopkyns. As this estate joins immediately to Warwickshire, it may be fairly assumed that the family of Hopkyns, at Coventry, and that in Swalcliffe, derive from a common ancestor.—General Northey-Hopkins d. 26 April, 1845, aged 89. By his second marriage with Miss Thompson, he had issue, Lucy, m. to J. Rowley, Esq., d. s. p.

* N.B. MARSTON OF WILLENHALL does not occur in the Histories of Staffordshire, but notwithstanding this, when the Rev. G. H. Fisher, recently incumbent of Willenhall, became located there, not many years ago, and shortly before the Marstons' mansion was consigned, with the rest of the property, to the "great commercial vortex," he finding it the chief mausoleum in his parish, or chapelry, made notes of it, and collected the local memorials of the Marstons prior to its demolition, which he did, not to gratify the family, (to whom he was then unknown,) but merely from antiquarian taste, and his conviction of the intrinsic rights to consideration of both the mansion and its former owners. Like most such buildings of its era, it was a large family house, with walled garden, fish-ponds, &c. The reason its owners are not noticed in SHAW'S Staffordshire was probably the circumstance that the estate was chiefly copyhold, held of the manor of Stowheath, whereof the Leveson family (since Giffard of Chillington, and the Duke of Sutherland, by inheritance) are lords, which Leveson pedigree is there published; besides, SHAW'S Staffordshire was not published till after the Marston's decline. HARWOOD'S Staffordshire was not brought out till after their mansion was demolished, and the family dispersed.

CORRIGENDA.

MASON of Necton Hall.—The following early lineage of this family is more correct than that given at p. 839 :—

A descendant of PAUL-MILLER MASON, citizen of London, who settled (as stated at p. 839) at Necton Hall, temp. ELIZABETH.

RICHARD MILLER, alias MASON, living 25 Jan. 1641, m. at Necton, 4 Aug. 1618, Anne, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Scott, of Whinburgh, and d. before 13 April, 1646, leaving a son and heir.

JOHN MASON, of Necton, Gent., aged about 19, in 1646, who m. Anne, sister of John Cooper, Gent., and d. s. p. in 1694, (he was buried at Necton, 21 June in that year; his will is dated 22 Nov. 1692, and proved 5 July, 1694,) leaving his property to his kinsman, RICHARD MASON, of whom hereafter. The direct ancestor of the present Mr. Mason was WILLIAM MASON, of Necton, who m. at Necton, 19 Dec. 1625, Elizabeth Scott, (probably sister of Anne, wife of Richard Miller, alias Mason, above mentioned,) and by her had issue, Richard, of Necton, bapt. 3 May, 1632; will dated 19 Aug. 1691, proved 8 Sept. following. He had m. Frances, second dau. and co-heir of John Bagge, Gent.; she d. before 1 Oct. 1691.

WILLIAM, of whom we treat.

JOHN, of whom hereafter, as successor to his nephew.

The second son,

WILLIAM MASON, of Castleacre, co. Norfolk, bapt. at Necton, 8 Oct. 1635, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of the Rev. John Gay, and d. before 19 Aug. 1691, having had issue, RICHARD, of whom presently, as devisee of his kinsman.

Anne, m. to Thomas Bilby.

Elizabeth, m. to Nicholas Pinkler.

The son,

RICHARD MASON, Esq. of Necton, high-sheriff of Norfolk in 1698, s. to the estates of his kinsman, John Mason, of Necton, before mentioned. He d. s. p., 15 Dec. 1702, aged 37, and was s. by his uncle,

JOHN MASON, sometime of Carbrooke, and afterwards of Necton. He d. 19 Nov. 1712, aged 66, (his will, dated 9 Sept. 1710, was proved 16 Dec. 1712,) having had (by Frances, his wife, who d. 2 Nov. 1720) four sons, viz.,

RICHARD, of Necton, m. 27 Oct. 1713, Frances Pell, and d. intestate, 4 July, 1722, aged 39, having had by her (who d. in 1726) an only son, Richard, bapt. at Necton, 16 March, 1716, who was buried there, 16 April, 1735.

John, d. s. p. buried at Necton, 17 March, 1728, will dated 12 March, in that year, devising his estates to his brother William.

William, of Necton, s. his nephew Richard, and was devisee of his brother John, d. s. p. 28 June, 1755, aged 68, having left his property to his nephew, William.

THOMAS, of whose line we treat.

The youngest son,

THOMAS MASON, of Swaffham, m. Mary, daughter of Thomas Bodham, Gent., and was buried at Necton, 1 March, 1747, leaving (besides two daus., Susanna, wife of Francis Colombine, Esq. of Norwich; and Mary, wife of John Marcon, Esq. of Swaffham) one son,

WILLIAM MASON, Esq. of Necton Hall, devisee of his uncle William, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Francis Bloomfield, Gent. of Swaffham, nephew of the Rev. Francis Bloomfield, rector of Fersfield, the historian of Norfolk, and d. 25 Jan. 1807, aged 71, having by this lady (who d. 17 Dec. 1780) a son and successor, WILLIAM MASON, Esq. of Necton Hall, b. in 1758, who m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of the Rev. Paul Colombine, D.D., &c. &c., as given at p. 839.

MASSINGBERD of Gunby.—In the lineage, p. 841, col. 1, the following additions should be made to Charles and Emily, son and dau. of Thomas Massingberd, eldest son of William Meux, Esq. of Gunby, who assumed the surname and arms of Massingberd :—

ROBERT-WILLIAM, b. in 1842.

Catherine-Hamilton. Harriet-Gardiner.

PARTRIDGE of Bishopswood.—John Partridge is a deputy-lieutenant for "Monmouthshire," not "Herefordshire."—William Partridge, Barrister-at-Law, &c., a magistrate for the counties of Monmouth and Hereford, and a deputy-lieutenant for the latter shire.—Frederick-John Partridge, (late a Mate,) now a Lieut. R.N.

PAYNTER, John, Esq. of Boskenna, co. Cornwall, d. 2 Jan. 1847.

PENNEFATHER of Ballylanigan.—William Pennefather, Esq. of Ballylanigan, co. Tipperary, b. 16 Aug. 1823, s. his grandfather, 25 Dec. 1828. Mr. Pennefather is only son of William Pennefather, (a brave officer, who distinguished himself by his gallant services in the Peninsula and India,) and Susan, his wife, dau. of Anthony Dwyer, Esq. of Cashel, co. Tipperary, and grandson of Thomas Pennefather, Esq. of Ballylanigan, mayor of Cashel, who was son of Bolton Pennefather, Esq., only son of Thomas Pennefather, Esq. of Ballyneira, second son of Kingsmill Pennefather, Esq. of New Park, colonel of militia, and M.P. for Cashel in 1711, and Tipperary in 1727. (See PENNEFATHER OF NEW PARK, p. 1025.)

Arms and Crest.—As PENNEFATHER OF NEW PARK.

Motto—Certavi et vici.

PENRICE, Thomas, Esq. of Kilvrough, is deceased.

PERKINS of Orton Hall and Sutton Coldfield.—Mr. Steele-Perkins is erroneously stated to be a magistrate for Warwickshire. He has not taken out his dedimus for that county.

PERRY of Moor Hall.—John-Watlington Perry, Esq. took by sign-manual, 10 April, 1849, the additional surname and arms of Watlington.

PHAIRE of Killoughram Forest.—The ancient mode of spelling the name, Phayre, was revived by the late Col. Robert Phayre, and is continued by his youngest sons, the head of the family adopting i instead of the y.—Amelia, first wife of the late Col. Robert Phayre, was dau. of William Holmes-Pomeroy, Esq. of Pallas, co. Cork, and not William Holmes, as stated in the lineage; this lady d. 23 Nov. 1801.—Col. Phayre's two sons, by his second wife, Anne Whitmarch, are:—

Frederick-Richard, m. Mary-Anne, dau. of William Williams, Esq. of Bristol, and has issue, Frederick-Annesley Maxwell; Blanche; and Ellen-Louisa.

George-Annesley, lieut. R.N., m. Mary-Anne, only dau. of Captain Ford.

Colonel Phayre was first cousin of the present Earl of Donoughmore's mother, the dau. and sole heir of Henry Nixon, Esq. of Belmont, co. Wexford.—The present Robert-William Phaire, Esq. of Killoughram Forest, m. Sarah-Selina, dau. of J.-C. O'Driscoll, Esq. of the co. Cork, Ireland, of a junior branch of a Milesian family, but has no issue.

PHELIPS of Montacute.—Mr. Phelps m. Ellen-Harriet, second dau. of William Helyar, Esq. of Coker Court, co. Somerset.

POLEY of Boxted Hall.—George-Weller Poley, Esq. d. in 1849.

POWELL, Alexander, Esq. of Hurdcott, Wilts, d. 25 Dec. 1847.

PRESTON of Flasby Hall and Moreby.—The following is a more correct lineage of these families than that given at p. 1068 :—

CHRISTOPHER PRESTON, of Holker, co. Lancaster, m. 1st, Margaret Ludworth, and 2ndly, Miss Jephson, and by the former was father of

JOHN PRESTON, who m. Mabel, dau. of William Benson, of Huggill, co. Westmoreland, and had a son,

GEORGE PRESTON, Esq. of Holker, who d. in 1640. He m. 1st, Elizabeth, sister of Sir Ralph Ashton, of Great Lever, and by her was father of Thomas Preston, Esq. of Holker. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Strickland, K.B. of Sizergh, by whom he had a son,

CHRISTOPHER PRESTON, of Leeds, merchant, who d. 12 April, 1639, leaving a son,

JOSEPH PRESTON, who d. 9 July, 1655. His son,

JOHN PRESTON, mayor of Leeds in 1692, m. 1st, Martha Ayliffe, who d. s. p., and 2ndly, a dau. of — Bacon, and d. 12 Jan. 1710, leaving by the latter lady two sons, Croft, merchant, of Leeds, mayor in 1715, who m. Frances, dau. of Benjamin Wade, of New Grange, near Leeds.

WILLIAM, of whose line we treat.

The latter,

WILLIAM PRESTON, of Leeds, merchant, purchased Flasby. He m. 1st, Olivia, dau. of William Smithson, Esq., M.D., of Barnsley, co. York, and by her had a son and dau.,

JOHN, of whom presently.

Elizabeth, m. to William Topham, Esq. of Lisbon, merchant,

He m. 2ndly, Ellen, dau. of the Rev. Jeremiah Farrer, vicar of Leeds, and by her (who d. in 1771) had issue, as correctly given in lineage of PRESTON OF MOREBY, p. 1068, col. 2. Mr. Preston d. in 1771. His eldest son, JOHN PRESTON, Esq. of Flasby, who d. 7 Aug. 1757, &c. &c., as given correctly in the lineage, to the end.

PRIOR of Essex and Rathdowney.—Lodge-Morres-Murray Prior, Esq., b. 3 April, 1797, second son of Thomas Prior, Esq. of Rathdowney, is Captain-Paymaster of the 12th Lancers.—The Rev. Thomas Murray, who m. Mary, dau. of Captain Thomas Prior, was descended from a branch of the Murrays of Athol.

PRYSE of Gogerddan.—Pryse Pryse, Esq. M.P., d. 4 Jan. 1849, and was s. by his son, now Fryse Loveden, Esq.

PURDON of Tinerana.—In the lineage, p. 1083, col. 2, line 34 from top, "George," heir to his brother, should be "Simon;" line 41, "George Purdon" should be "Simon Purdon." This gentleman, by his first wife, Helena Toler, had two daus.: his sons, by his second wife, should stand thus:—

i. SIMON, his heir. ii. George.

iii. William, from whom is descended the branch of the family represented by Simon Purdon, Esq., son of the late William Purdon, Esq., as mentioned in p. 1084, col. 1, line 30 from bottom.

iv. John.

QUICK of Newton St. Cyres.—Mr. Quick's brother, the Rev. Andrew Quick, is a fellow of Winchester.—His brother, Edward, is fellow of New Coll., Oxon.—His brother, Thomas-Nutcombe, late a capt. 1st Dragoon-guards, highly distinguished himself at Waterloo, and led his regiment into action, all the senior officers being either killed or wounded.—Mr. Quick's brother, George, also distinguished himself at Waterloo.

RAIKES of Welton.—In the lineage, p. 1095, col. 2, line 35 from top, Richard is not deceased; he m. Miss Thornton.

RASHLEIGH of Menabilly.—Jonathan, second son of Jonathan Rashleigh, Esq. of Menabilly, M.P. for Fowey, m. 2ndly, Jane, sister of Sir Alexander-P. Gordon Cuming, Bart., and had by her a son, George-Cuming, fellow of Winchester Coll., Oxon, who m. twice, and has issue.

READE, W. Morris, Esq. of Rossenara, co. Kilkenny, d. 31 March, 1847.

READE of Ipsden.—John Reade, Esq. d. in 1849.

REDE of Ashmans.—Anne, wife of Thomas Rede, and dau. of Sir "Thomas" Gawdy, not "F."

RODES of Barborough.—The Rev. Cornelius-Heathcote Reaston-Rodes has d. since the issue of the work.

ROSS-LEWIN of Ross Hill.—P. 1148, the "John Ross-Lewin," who m. "Anne Hastings," left (besides "Barbara") a dau., "Susanna," who was m. to Palmes Westropp, Esq.

ROUPELL of Chart Ham Park.—Mr. Roupell's brother, the Rev. Francis-Pooley Roupell, m. 16 Feb. 1847, Susan-Elizabeth, second dau. of James-C. Fyler, Esq. of Woodlands, Surrey, and Heffleton, Dorset.

RUSHBROOKE of Rushbrooke.—The wife of Robert Rushbrooke was an illegitimate dau. of Sir Charles "Davens," of Rushbrooke, Bart., not "Davies."

ST. GEORGE, of Wood Park.—Mr. Acheson St. George, of Wood Park, is younger brother of the representative of this family, who is THOMAS-BALDWIN ST. GEORGE, Esq. of Morse, co. Roscommon, and of Parsonstown, formerly capt. in the 80th regt., b. 12 May, 1777. He m. Eliza Mason, and has had issue, three sons, viz.,

Thomas, in holy orders, vicar of Kilnasalagh, co. Clare, m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Joseph Clarke, Esq. of Mount Prospect.

Archibald, in holy orders.

Howard, deceased.

ST. LEGER OF HEYWARD'S HILL.

HEYWARD ST. LEGER, Esq. of Heyward's Hill, d. since the publication of the pedigree of his ancient family, and was s. by his eldest son, ANTHONY BUTLER ST. LEGER, Esq., now of Heyward's Hill, who is married, but has no issue.

Few families in the empire are of higher antiquity or distinction than that of St. Leger. Amongst the many eminent persons whom it produced, we may instance the following:—

SIR ANTHONY ST. LEGER, sheriff of Kent, M.P., and one of the executors of the will of HENRY VIII., and lord-deputy of Ireland five times, viz., in 1540, 1544, 1547, 1550, and 1553.

THE HON. ELIZABETH ST. LEGER, the only female who ever obtained the honour of initiation to the mysteries of freemasonry.

Amongst the nobility who were slain in the second battle at Newbury, 27 Oct. 1644, was Sir William St. Leger, lieutenant-col. of the Duke's regiment. Gen. Antony St. Leger was governor of St. Lucia. The Doncaster St. Leger stakes were instituted by this gentleman, who resided at Park Hill, near Doncaster, in the year 1776.

GENERAL JOHN ST. LEGER, commonly called "Handsome Jack St. Leger," was appointed lieutenant-col. in the 1st regt. of Guards, 5 Sept. 1787; he was the intimate friend of his late Majesty GEORGE IV. and his Royal Highness the Duke of York, and was subsequently commander of the forces in India, where he died on service. The portrait of this celebrated roué is in the Queen's guard-chamber, Hampton Court; in the corridor, Windsor Castle; and at the residence of Antony-B. St. Leger, Esq., 10, Berkeley-square.

SALTMARSH, Philip, Esq. of Saltmarsh, co. York, d. 28 Nov. 1846.

SAVAGE of Hunton.—Thomas Savage, mentioned under this head, proceeded to New England in 1635, and not in 1653, as therein erroneously stated. He was a younger branch of the ancient family of SAVAGE of Rock Savage, co. Chester, and was the great-great-grandfather of

JOHN SAVAGE, Esq. of Brompton, co. Middlesex, who m. Ann Allen, (born Scott,) of the noble family of Deloraine, in Scotland, and is stated to have become male representative and heir of the Savages of Cheshire. His grandson and heir, JOHN SAVAGE, Esq., M.A., barrister-at-law, now of St. Leonard's, co. Kent, for several years held the office of Master of the Supreme Court at Madras.

The SAVAGES of Cheshire are enumerated by Wingfield, York herald, amongst the few distinguished houses that are, by prescriptive right, entitled to use supporters to their coat of arms.

The supporters of this family are—A falcon, billed, or, and a unicorn, arg., as they now appear on the monument of Sir John Savage, of Rock Savage, in the Savagé Chapel, at the side of the old church at Macclesfield, co. Chester. This Sir John Savage was grandfather of Thomas, Lord Viscount Savage, and great-grandfather of John Savage, 1st Earl of Rivers.

The Savagé Chapel at Macclesfield was erected by Thomas Savagé, Bishop of Rochester in 1492, Bishop of London in 1497, and Archbishop of York in 1501, brother of Sir John Savagé, K.G., and nephew of Thomas Stanley, 1st Earl of Derby, and it was for many years the burial-place of the Savagé family.

SAWYER of Heywood.—The crest of this family is wrongly described: it should be a talbot, not a demi-lion.

SCOBELL of Nancealverne.—In the lineage, p. 1197, col. 2, line 47 from top, Hester Savagé, wife of Captain Treweeke Scobell, R.N., is a descendant maternally of the Lansdowns of Woodborough, the De Wycks of Court De Wyck, and the Hungerfords of Farley Castle, families of well-known antiquity in Somersetshire.

SCOTT of Raeburn.—Line 2, in the shire of "Selkirk" should be "Dumfries," Raeburn being in the latter.—Page 1202, col. 2, line 3, "Horsborough" should be "Horsburgh."—Line 32, Walter Scott (third son) m. Isabel, not Anne-Isabel.—Line 37, "Bearded" should be "Beardy."—Residence—Lessudden Place, co. Roxburgh, not Raeburn.

SENHOUSE.—The present male representative of the ancient family of Senhouse is

SAMSON SENHOUSE, Esq. of Ponsonby, in Cumberland, who m. in 1801, Mary, eldest dau. of Nicholas Le Mesurier, Esq. of Guernsey, but has no issue. His next surviving brother is ENWARR-HOOPER SENHOUSE, Esq., commander R.N., who m. in 1815, Elizabeth-Bishop, eldest dau. of John Spooner, Esq. of Barbadoes, and has issue.

SEROCOLD of Cherry Hinton.—The Rev. Edward-Serocold-Pearce Serocold, d. 21 Nov. 1849, aged 53.

SHEDDEN of Paulerspury Park.—Robert Shedden, the first ancestor who appears in the lineage, should be stated to have married, and to have had two sons, ROBERT, who is named in the lineage; and John of Marshyland, Beith.

SHULDHAM of Marlesford.—See ADENDA.

SILVERTOP of Minster Acres.—George Silvertop, Esq. d. 20 Feb. 1849.

SMITH, William Corbet, Esq. of Bitteswell Hall, co. Leicester, d. 9 March, 1847.

SMITH of Lydiate.—Second line of the article, after "co. Lancaster," add, "and Tilley Park, co. Salop."

SMYTHE of Barbavilla.—Fourth line of lineage, p. 1257, "Sir R. Ingoldsby" should be "Sir George." Line 21 from bottom, col. 1, "Richard Smyth, of Altamont," should be "Richard-Altamont." The following should be appended as a note to col. 1, p. 1257, referential to Barbara Ingoldsby, line 3 of lineage:—Barbara Ingoldsby, sister of Lieut.-Gen. Richard Ingoldsby, was dau. of Sir George Ingoldsby, son of Sir Richard Ingoldsby, of Lethenborough, Bucks, and Elizabeth Cromwell, dau. of Sir Oliver Cromwell, uncle of the Protector. Col. Richard Ingoldsby, brother of Sir George Ingoldsby, was compelled by his cousin-german, CROMWELL, to sign the warrant of CHARLES I., but was afterwards instrumental in restoring CHARLES II., and was pardoned, and made a Knight of the Bath. (See CLARENDON.) Lieut.-Gen. Richard Ingoldsby, dying a Lord Justice of Ireland, in 1714, left a son, Henry, who m. Frances, dau. of Sir Constantine Phipps, Lord Chancellor, and had two daus., who were wards of William Smythe, of Barbavilla, their great-uncle, and who m. Mr. Naper, of Loughcrew, and Lord Massy: they both d. s. p. Mr. Smythe, of Barbavilla, represents their branch of that ancient family. The Marquess of Winchester represents the senior line; the 12th Marquess having m. Martha, heiress of Thomas Ingoldsby, who inherited the landed property of Lieut.-Gen. Richard Ingoldsby, after the death of his son Henry, including Carton, co. Kildare, which was afterwards sold by him to the Duke of Leinster.

SMYTHE of Newpark.—In the lineage, line 24, "younger dau., Helena," should be "younger sister;" line 25, "Baron de Braeg" should be "Baron de Brous;" line 26, "dau. Eliza" should be "sister Eliza."—Mr. Smythe's younger brother, Frederick, has a son, b. 29 Aug. 1847.

SPARROW of Red Hill.—Mrs. Sparrow's father is of Leamington, co. Warwick, not Lylington, Hants. The following is a more correct enumeration of the issue of Henry Sparrow, Esq. of Red Hill, high-sheriff of Anglesey in 1773, by Barbara Williams, his wife, than that given at p. 1267, col. 1, line 22:—

- I. JOHN-BODYCHAN, his heir.
- II. William, b. in 1758, m. Anne, dau. of James Briscoe, Esq., and d. s. p. in 1835.
- III. Bodychan, m. Martha-Elizabeth, second dau. of Owen Meyrick, Esq. of Bodorgan, and had issue, Meyrick-Bodychan, lieut. R.N., b. in 1791. Robert-Holme, R.N., b. in 1774, d. at sea. Edmund, b. in 1797, m. Valette, only dau. of Colonel Carey, R.A., by whom he had an only son, Henry, an officer in India. This Edmund, an officer in the 1st Bombay Native infantry, and interpreter in the Hindostanee, was killed at the fort of Shalapore, after having rescued the Rajah's son from the Burmese insurgents, after which the Rajah settled a pension of several thousand rupees on his widow and son. Henry-William, lieut. 10th hussars, b. in 1799, d. on his passage to India, in 1829. Martha, d. young. Hester-Elizabeth, m. James-Duff Watt, Esq. of the Commissariat, Cape of Good Hope, and d. in 1845, having had issue. Frances-Emma, m. to William-Wynne Sparrow, Esq. of Red Hill. Anna-Elizabeth. Martha, d. young. Georgiana-Anne, m. to Charles Malpas, Esq., barrister-at-law. Meriel-Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Henry Pringle, Esq., co. Armagh, by whom (who d. 4 April, 1834) she had no issue; she m. 2ndly, in 1835, Horatio - Clarence Carey, son of Col. Carey, R.A. Charlotte-Anne.

- IV. Henry,
- V. Thomas,
- VI. Hugh, and
- VII. Charles,

VIII. Pierce.

IX. James, b. in 1771, m. Margaret, dau. of William Lewis, Esq. of co. Anglesey.

I. Anne, m. to John Lloyd, Esq. of Llwydrarth.

II. Frances, m. to the Rev. William Rush.

III. IV. V. Three daus., d. young.

VI. Emma, m. 1st, the Rev. Henry Lloyd; and 2ndly, William Meyrick, Esq., third son of Meyrick of Bodorgan, and by the latter only had issue, William-Richard, deceased. Owen, deceased.

Edmund, m. in 1844, Susanna, dau. of the Rev. T. Winfield.

A dau.

STANSFELD of Burley Wood.—P. 1286, col. 2, after line 44, add—"4. Humphry Wolryche, Esq. of Wootton, who m. Eleanor, dau. of John-Collinson Rowley, Esq., and is now represented by STEPHEN WOOLRYCHE, Esq. of Quatford Lodge, Bridgenorth, Salop, inspector-general of military hospitals, (see his pedigree in the SUPPLEMENT, p. 313, according to which the above-named Humphry was the third son, and Roger the fourth, of Humphry Wolryche and Isabella Peshall.)"—P. 1285, col. 2, line 4, for "George-Micklethwait, David, Richard, m. Harriet, dau. of William Wood, Esq. of Bradford," read "George-Micklethwait, m. to Harriet, dau. of William Wood, Esq. of Bradford, David, Richard."—P. 1285, col. 2, after line 40, for "Mr. Stansfeld d., seized of the manor of Armlay, in Nov. 1818," read, "Mr. Stansfeld was seized of the manor of Armlay in 1800, and d. in 1818."—P. 1286, col. 1, line 26, for "as well of the Conqueror as of the Confessor," read "of the Confessor and aunt of the Conqueror."—P. 1287, col. 1, line 2, for "Northumberland," read "Northampton."

STRONG of Nether Stronge.—Dr. Strong is a deputy-lieut. as well as J.P. for co. Hereford. He has another dau., Joan-Beresford.—In lineage, p. 1322, col. 2, line 18 from bottom, "William Rypun" should be "William Ryfum."—7 lines from bottom, the eldest son of "Clement-Samuel" should be "Thomas-Linwood."—The last line in this col., "Sarah" is a dau. of "Melancthon Strong," and not of "Clement-Sammel."—Dr. Strong has two sisters, Emily-Margaretta and Ellen.

SURTEES of Hamsterley.—Robert-Smith Surtees, Esq. of Hamsterley Hall, co. Durham, s. his father, 5 March, 1838. Mr. Surtees, who is a magistrate of the cos. Northumberland and Durham, on the Commission of the Peace for the borough of Gateshead, a deputy lieut. co. Durham, and late major of the Durham militia, m. 29 May, 1841, Elizabeth-Jane, youngest dau. and co-heiress of the late Addison Fenwick, Esq. of Pallion Hall and Bishopwearmouth, co. Durham, and has issue, Elizabeth-Ann, b. 12 Sept. 1844.

Anthony, b. 7 July, 1847.

"Almond guards" is in the county of Durham, not Northumberland.—The late Anthony Surtees, Esq., was on the Commission of the Peace for Northumberland as well as Durham; and Alice, his wife, d. in 1837, not 1827.—"Blackett" is spelt with two "t's."—Instead of "Anthony, the eldest son, d. unm. at Malta, 24 March, 1831," read "Anthony, the eldest son, a man of great talent, after some years spent in travelling, was seized with small-pox on his voyage from Alexandria to Malta, and d. in quarantine, 24 March, 1831."

SURTEES of Redworth.—Mr. Surtees's eldest son, Robert, Lambton, is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for Durham. His second son, Henry-Edward, has issue, a dau., Elizabeth-Ellen.

SWAINE, Spelman, Esq. of Wisbeach, rear-admiral R.N., d. 14 Jan. 1848.

TALBOT of Oakland.—Mr. Talbot's eldest son, Henry, m. in 1829, not 1809.—His second son, Charles's wife, d. 20 Feb. 1835: that gentleman m. 2ndly, 30 July, 1839, Elizabeth, dau. of Francis Wakefield, Esq. of Mansfield, Notts; he has issue, two children.—His third son, William, was b. in 1804, not 1806: the father of this gentleman's wife, should be "Nathaniel" Lawrence, not "Tertius" Lawrence; he has issue, four children.—His fourth son, Frederick, has issue, five children.

TAUNTON of Freeland Lodge.—The wife of Nathaniel Taunton, of Liskeard, M.D., was dau. of Anthony Tanner, Esq., by Grace Carthew, his wife, as stated. The latter lady, however, was "dau.," but not "heiress," of Thomas Carthew, Esq. of Cannalidgy.

THOMAS of Llanon.—Page 1385, col. 2, line 73, Rees-Goring, "M.A., of Christ's Church, Oxon;" line 74, William-Esdaile, "ensign in her Majesty's 26th regt of foot;" between lines 74 and 75, enter the third son, "Morgan-Trehearne, b. 22 May, 1830, d. 21 Aug. 1831;" between lines 77 and 78, enter the third dau., "Sarah-Frances;" line 78, "Mr. Thomas is a magistrate for the counties of Caernarthen and Cardigan, and a deputy-lieut. for the former."—Page 1386, col. 1, line 13, "Mydfweh," "Nydfweh;" line 35, after "issue," add, "of whom the eldest son, THOMAS DAVIES LLOYD, Esq. now of Bronwydd, m. Henrietta-Mary, dau. of the late George Reid, Esq., and granddau. of the late Sir Charles Oakeley, Bart.;" line 56, Sarah, dau. of the
